FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

Total stock sales, 449,000.

Twenty industrials averaged 98.51, net gain 1.01. High 1923; 105.38; low 96.91.

MARKET WAS UHET

New York, Aug. 6.—Saturday's losses in the stock market, which resulted largely from the liquidation of investors and speculators alarmed at the possible consequences of a change in administration, were recovered in today's quiet session. Wall street started the week in a more optimistic frame of mind, due to the expressions of confidence in President Coolidge by banking and business leaders, reports from steel centers of an improvement in forward buying and circulation of private cable reports indicating a resumption of friendly negotiations on reparations between France and Great Britain.

Trading originated entirely from professional sources being divided between covering operations of speculators who sold short last week and buying by floor traders who acted on the theory that the market had been oversold, at least temporarily. Early in the session, however, there was a fair volumes of orders from commission houses.

U. S. Steel, which had sold as low as 86 Saturday, snapped back to 88 1-8. The monthly tonnage statement, which is to be issued on Thursday, is expected to show a decrease of 400,000 tons in unfilled orders. Gulf States Steel advanced 2 3-8 and Republic and Crucible about a point each.

Baldwin, Studebaker, American Can and other so-called pivotal stocks also showed net gains of 1 1-2 to nearly 2 1-2 points on the day. American Beet Sugar, Manati Sugar, United Fruit, Woolworth and American Water Works 6 per cent., preferred advanced 1 to 4 points. Motor accessory and oil shares made moderate gains. Coppers were strong on reports of a heavy domestic demand for the red metal.

There were a few weak spots in the industrial group, notably Allied Chemical, which was depressed 1 1-2 points on publication of pessimistic reports concerning possible European competition in the local dye market. Kresge dropped 5 5-8 points on two transactions.

Heavy selling of the St. Paul issues, which touched new lows for the year failed to unsettle the railroad list in which some excellent gains were recorded. Erie issues were particularly strong, the second preferred gaining 3 5-8.

Call money opened at 4 1-2 per cent., the lowest renewal rate in a month, and then advanced to 5 where it closed. The time money and commercial paper markets were dull with no change in rates.

Trading in foreign exchanges was quiet because of the bank holiday in London. The feature was another collapse in German paper marks which carried them down to 5 cents a million, a week-end depreciation of more than 40 per cent. in quoted value. Demand sterling dropped about half a cent to $4.56 1-2 and French francs slumped 8 points to 5.77 cents.

FULL ASSOCIATED PRESS DESPATCHES

The Bulletin

Norwich, Tuesday, August 7, 1923

THE WEATHER.

Winds.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Gentle to moderate, mostly southerly and weather cloudy Tuesday, probably showers and thunderstorms.

Conditions.

The atmospheric pressure was relatively high Monday night from the east gulf and South Atlantic states eastward over the Atlantic Ocean, also in the New England states. Elsewhere the barometer was comparatively low with centers of minimum pressure north of Lake Superior in Kansas and southern Arizona. Showers and thunderstorms have occurred in various portions of the country since Sunday night.

The temperature was above normal Monday night over most of the eastern half of the country and below normal generally over the western half.

The outlook is for showers and thunder storms Tuesday in the North Atlantic and Middle Atlantic states, followed by generally fair weather Wednesday.

Forecast.

For southern New England: Showers by Tuesday afternoon or night; Wednesday probably fair, not much change in temperature.

Observations in Norwich.

MOIR MAKES RESTITUTION—CASE NOLLED ON PAYMENT OF $50

The embezzlement case against William A. Moir, former manager of the Charles A. Keubler Company of Franklin street was nolled in the city court Monday morning by Judge Arthur F. Libby on payment of $50. Moir, according to City Attorney Lee Roy Robbins, has made full restitution. In view of the fact that Moir has spent three weeks in jail, that he has made restitution and that he has a position awaiting him in Vermont, the city attorney recommended to the court that the case be nolled on payment of $50 and the recommendation was accepted by Judge Libby.

Moir was arrested on the afternoon of Friday, July 13, and has been in jail here the greater part of the time since then. His case has been continued from time to time when it came up in the police court. In the warrant upon which the arrest was made at the Keubler marble yard on Franklin street he was charged with the embezzlement of $55, but it was understood at the time that the sum might reach $2,500 and the amount of bail that was demanded for his release until his appearance in court was $5,500. This was secured a few hours after he had been arrested after a Franklin St. business man came to the rescue and put up the bail. The next day the Franklin street man decided to withdraw his bail and surrender Moir to the police. There was a hurried Saturday night trip by automobile to Willimantic. Then there was another fast trip to Norwich to catch the trolley car. The automoolle party, which included Constable Myer Blumenthal, reached Franklin square ahead of the trolley car, but Moir was not aboard the car when it came in, having got off at some point and gone to his home on Division street. There the bondsman and deputy sheriff found him and took him in charge, delivering him over at police headquarters about 1 o'clock Sunday morning.

While in Willimantic they located the home of a pretty girl, said to be of Lithuanian or Polish parentage, with whom, according to their statements, they learned that Moir had been on very friendly terms and had taken her on trips to Hartford, Springfield and Waterbury for which he hired Norwich jitneys. The last trip they heard of was to a big boxing bout in New York.

LIQUOR CASE GOES OVER TO NEXT MONDAY

There was a busy session of the city court Monday morning, Judge Arthur F. Libby presiding. Paul Salamoucha of 26 Sixth street, charged with violating the liquor laws, was held under bonds of $500 and his case went over until August 13.

Three Westerly men paid fines for intoxication, and M. Kosloski, charged with breach of the peace, got 30 days on one count, the other going over until Sept. 6th. A Providence man went to jail to work out a fine for intoxication.

Several local men received fines for breach of the peace and the case of another going over until Aug. 13.

F. F. Rogers was fined $50 for operating a car without a license, the matter of evading a summons not being pressed. A. J. Nutting of Brooklyn was fined $50 and costs for driving an automobile without lights.

Two other men paid a total of $29.50 for intoxication and breach of the peace and court adjourned.

MARRIED AT COLCHESTER REMARRIED IN HARTFORD

Arthur W. BroSmith, son of William BroSmith, counsel for the Travelers' Insurance company, and his wife, formerly Miss June F. Kippen of West Hartford, who were married Saturday, July 28, by a justice of the peace in Colchester, were remarried Wednesday night by Monsignor Thomas Duggan in the rectory of St. Joseph's cathedral in Hartford. The religious ceremony followed closely upon the civil ceremony of Saturday which was in secret.

Allan E. BroSmith, a brother, was best man, while the matron of honor was Mrs. Everett E. Ricketson. The two families were present at the ceremony and at the reception which followed at the Farmington country club. Mr. BroSmith's friends were surprised to hear of his marriage at Colchester.

SILAS WHIPPLE PICKS FREAK EAR OF CORN

Silas Whipple, the Salem turnpike farmer, brought to the Bulletin office Monday a curious "sport" ear of sweet corn which he had picked from his field of Whipple's Early which is a variety he has developed. The freak ear was a twin ear of unusual formation and size, measuring 9½ inches across the top and weighing 1½ pounds. The kernels from top to bottom were well filled out and it was perfect product of the stock except for its unusual shape. Whipple's Early is a special variety of sweet corn which Mr. Whipple developed to suit his Wauregan house trade, a short thick ear of just the right size to fit the dish in which it is served at the hotel.

ARTHUR E. STORY SUCCEEDS LATE J. DANA COIT

Arthur E. Story was elected assistant treasurer and secretary of the Chelsea Savings Bank at a meeting of the board of directors held Monday morning in the banking rooms of the institution.

Mr. Story is at present assistant cashier of the Merchants National Bank where he has been since the summer of 1899. The change of office for Mr. Story is to take place at the convenience of the banks. The election of Mr. Story in the Chelsea Bank is to fill the vacancy resulting through the death of James Dana Coit.

It was in the summer of 1899 that Mr. Story entered the Merchants National Bank as a clerk. He graduated from the Norwich Free Academy in the class of 1897 and was a member of the class of 1901 at Harvard University. After entering the Merchants bank Mr. Story remained as clerk and bookkeeper until November 16, 1908 when he was made assistant cashier. He is well versed in banking matters and his friends are pleased at his promotion and wish him success in his new field.

In politics Mr. Story is a staunch Democrat. For several years he was a member of the old town board of school visitors and for one year served as an active school visitor. For two years he held the position of city clerk and clerk of the common council of the City of Norwich and at one time was a member of the board of gas and electrical commissioners. Later, during the administration of Mayor H. M. Lerou, being appointed a member of the board of water commissioners. Since that time he has twice been elected as a member of the board by substantial majorities. In all these positions he has demonstrated his ability and proven himself capable.

He has been a member of the Arcanum club for many years and for two years served as president of the club. He is also a member of the Norwich Fish and Game association. He is greatly interested in the Norwich Boy Scouts and has aided in civic work. He was treasurer of the home service fund of the Salvation Army.

Mr. Story is a member of St. James' Lodge, Franklin Chapter, Franklin Council and Columbian Commandery K. T. of this city. He is also an incorporator of the Dime Savings Bank and holds positions in different organizations and clubs in the city.

THEATRES MUST COMPLY WITH STATE LAW

Prosecuting Attorney Lee Roy Robbins and Chief George Linton have notified local theatre managers that in the future the state law on Sunday theatre performances will be enforced and that the theatres cannot open until 7 o'clock (standard time), 8 o'clock (daylight time).

The ruling has no effect on the opening of the theatres during the other days of the week.

Previous to the new enforcement the theatres had been opening at 7 o'clock daylight time). The law will be strictly enforced, and began with performances at local theatres Sunday night.

"GOD SAVE OUR BELOVED COUNTRY," PRAYS FR. MAY

"The whole nation mourns," declared Rev. W. H. May, rector of St. Patrick's church, as he addressed the usual large congregation at the 7.30 mass Sunday morning. The preacher referred to the deep sorrow which the announcement of the death of President Warren G. Harding had brought to all the people, recalling the historic fact that the president had consecrated himself to the duties of his high office. Father May requested his hearers to pray that the new president Calvin Coolidge, may be given grace by God to continue to guide this nation in the ways of virtue and religion, and to administer its laws in righteousness. He ended his brief reference to the nation's loss with the fervent prayer, "God save our beloved country!"

The day was the eleventh Sunday after Pentecost, the epistle read in all the masses throughout the Catholic world being I. Corinthians, I-10, the gospel being Mark 7, 31-37, narrating Christ's miraculous curing of the man deaf and dumb. Father May made this a special lesson to parents, who, he said, are the agents of God in bringing up their children, hence should be concerned, not alone in securing for them what is needed physically and educationally, but morally and religiously. Too many parents let their charges continue in spiritual dumbness and deafness, through their fault of imperfect and inadequate teaching.

Shower for Miss Marsh

A company of about fifteen assembled Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Marsh, of Peck street, when a miscellaneous shower was given their daughter, Miss Esther Marsh in recognition of her approaching marriage with Alfred Smith. Miss Marsh upon answering the door bell about 7.45 that evening cordially welcomed her guests, which mostly included Norwich Town friends and former neighbors of the Marsh family on Town street. The evening was devoted to music and sociability, during which Mrs. Marsh served cake and punch. Miss Marsh was surprised by some very beautiful gifts, consisting of linen, aluminum pieces, vases, glass also a number of personal gifts.

The marriage is to take place during this month.

Acquiring all possible knowledge of matters educational fails, unless children advance, as did the Christ-Child, in wisdom and stature, yet at the same time grow in grace with God and man. The danger of cultivating the intellect, yet neglecting the will, was the outstanding thought of the short but pointed instruction.

NORWICH TOWN

C. E. Beckwith, of New Britain, was was a recent visitor at the Johnson Home, having been a caller on his aunt, Miss Mary Witter, who also had as callers recently her cousins, Mrs. L. L. Lyons and Miss Doane, of Watch Hill.

Mrs. Oliver Randall returned Tuesday evening, to the Johnson Home, after a visit of three weeks in Willimantic. Part of the time was passed at her daughter's cottage on the Camp Grounds.

Mrs. Frederic H. Wyant and niece Phyllis Rosalyn Hinrichs, also Miss Beatrice Smith spent Friday on the Rhode Island shore.

Miss Mary Freeman of the Johnson Home, has been passing two weeks with relatives at Storrs.

Miss Blanche Wheeler is enjoying a vacation of two weeks, taking daily trips to various places. Recently Miss Wheeler visited relatives in Leffingwell.

The Young People's Christian Endeavor society of the First Methodist church, held a successful lawn party, Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Woodruff Sullivan on West Main street.

Mrs. Richard Carter chairman of the Lookout committee and Miss Blanche Wheeler, chairman of the music committee were in general charge. The grounds were gayly decorated with Japanese lanterns and festoons of pink, yellow, grey and green crepe paper.

On the tables about the lawn, the decorations were bouquets of dahlias, pansies, nasturtiums and other flowers. Lewis Aldrich was in charge of the candy booth Miss Hazel Cruthers had charge of the ice-cream table; and Mrs. Carter and Mrs. Charles Perkins were at the cake table.

The grab-bag proved an interesting feature and was in charge of Miss Wheeler and Miss Gladys Cruthers. A very fine rug made and donated by Mr. Sullivan was auctioned off by Lewis Aldrich, netting the society a good sum.

At the Sunday morning worship at the First Congregational church, the pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey occupied the pulpit for the first time since a vacation of several weeks spent at the shore. During the day he was warmly greeted by his parishioners. The theme of the morning was Caring For Our Own. The text chosen was 1. Chronicles 29:9. Then the people rejoiced, for that they offered willingly, because of perfect heart they offered willingly to the Lord.

Rev. Mr. Bailey emphasized the loyalty of the Hebrews people in sustaining their temples on Mount Zion, and declared that the respect of the world for religion today could be largely recovered by a more devoted support of the church. In his very earnest prayers, Rev. Mr. Bailey paid a fitting tribute to President Harding.

The choir in pleasing harmony gave the anthem Deal Gently Unto Zion, by Thompson, Clyde M. Beebe sustaining the solo parts. As an offertory solo, Calling Me Home to You, by Dorel, was finely sung by Dr. Charles H. Lamb, tenor, accompanied by Organist Herbert L. Yerrington.

Following the sermon, Clyde M. Beebe, chairman of the Board of Trustees addressed the congregation in the interests of the welfare of the church, giving a detailed report of some of the important things recently done, and several more which are quite compulsory to be accomplished before cold weather. Thus far a new lightning system for protection has been put in place; insurance on the church, chapel and parsonage, has been increased; and a large tree which had died was cut down and removed all at quite an expense. Further expenses to be incurred, in all reaching the full total of $825.00 and for which soliciting is now being done, are as follows: Repairs to belfry, new pipe for water motor for organ, one new furnace and repairs on two others.

God in Nature was the theme of the Young People's Christian Endeavor service at 7 o'clock, with Miss Louise Hyde in charge. Lemuel M. Fielding of Norwich, in Indian costume gave a talk along the line of the subject, also touched on Indian life with special reference to his family. Mr. Fielding, who put much zeal and enthusiasm in his talk, also sang several songs. Miss Bessie M. Grant was at the piano.

Havana, Cuba, has a new hotel that will accommodate 1,000 guests.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Giant Merrylaugh

I was dreadfully sorry to keep you waiting until now to tell you what happened when the wicked robber caught Little Jack Rabbit but you see there was no more space in yesterday's story and I couldn't telephone to all the little boys and girls who read these good night stories.

Well, just then the big robber caught the frightened little bunny boy, Giant Merrylaugh strode up in his seven league boots and shouted in a terrible loud voice:

"There I am," chirped the tiny cricket.

"Don't you hurt my little bunny friend!"

This so frightened the wicked robber that he dropped the bunny boy quicker than a wink, Mr. Merrylaugh lifted him up on his shoulder.

"I'm going to break your castle all to pieces," cried the giant, and swinging his club he knocked off the chimney, some of the bricks falling in a pond a mile away, for Mr. Merrylaugh could knock a brick for a home run as well as a baseball.

"Stop, stop!" shouted Little Jack Rabbit. "There's a little yellow bird and a black cricket inside the castle. Let up get them out before you knock the castle all to pieces."

So Mr. Merrylaugh stalked inside and took down the little wicker cage but when he looked around for the little cricket he couldn't find him.

Then with a swing of his great club, the giant knocked down the castle like a house of cards, forcing the robbers to crawl out through the cellar window.

Then Mr. Merrylaugh, with Little Jack Rabbit on his shoulder marched away with the wicker bird cage in his hand and the little black cricket in the bunny boy's pocket.

By and by, after a while, they came to the giant's house. My, what a big place it was, and the little cricket peeping out of the little rabbit's pocket thought it was a city.

When they were all seated in the living room, the little yellow bird began to sing. Pretty soon Mr. Merrylaugh went over to the piano and playing the same music, began to sing the words to her song:

"Tra la la la, tra la la la,
Four merry comrades are we,
A cricket, a bunny, a big giant man,

BODY OF PRESIDENT HARDING LIES IN THE HISTORIC EAST ROOM OF THE WHITE HOUSE; REACHED WASHINGTON 10.22 LAST NIGHT

As the Casket was Lifted from the Special Door Cut in the Side of the Car the Band Played "Nearer, My God, to Thee"—Mrs. Harding, Who Had Stood the Trip Well, Was Immediately Whisked Through a Side Street to the White House—Although the Train Was Nine Hours Late Thousands Were There to Give Silent Tribute to Their Dead Chieftain—President Coolidge Gave His Formal Greetings to the Dead as the Casket Reached the President's Room in the Station.

Although the train was nine hours late, thousands jammed the station and nurses waiting six hours packed against the iron fence that skirts off the train platform so as to give them a full view of the casket when it came.

President Coolidge Was Waiting

The train backed into the station so that the funeral car with its flag draped casket rolled in first, to stop where the head group headed by President Coolidge waited.

Secretaries Christian and Dr. Sawyer were on the rear platform. There was silence in the station as the throbbing of the air pump on a distant engine.

"Nearer My God to Thee"

Mrs. Harding stepped off the car leaning on Secretary Work's arm and with Dr. Sawyer on the other side. She paused for the first notes of playing "Nearer My God to Thee."

Mrs. Harding moved on her slow way along the red platform. White her hand was on Secretary Christian's arm and an apparent need for support. The nurses gained behind her and followed Mrs. Harding all the way from San Francisco and night and day.

Members of the party said Mrs. Harding came all the way well and that she had stood the trip well.

As the solemn throng of the comforting old home within the station, the casket was tenderly lifted down the special door cut in the side of the car. It was placed on a railway platform.

Single Wreath at Station

A single wreath lay on the casket as it was lifted down on the platform. The pallbearers gathered around the bier. The uniformed men and their heads bared, moving slowly around the casket. The non-commissioned officers who formed a cordon for the pallbearers came.

Meanwhile Mrs. Harding had got into an automobile and had been whisked away through a side street to the White House. Her appearance and the reports of those who had made the trip with her from San Francisco set at rest widespread rumors that she had been physically unequal to the long journey and had succumbed to illness. It was said she had stood up bravely from the start and had scorned any idea of [illegible] Secretary Work and Secretary Denby rode together. The newspapermen of President Harding's party walked beside President Coolidge's car and the secret service men flanked it on the other side. A picked guard of honor from the headquarters company of the District of Columbia walked beside the caisson.

Down the winding roadway under the trees the escort moved, turning into Pennsylvania avenue around the Peace monument and swinging up the street at a slow walk.

A hush filled the broad street, lined again despite the late hour with thousands who had waited long to pay their humble need of acclaim to the dead. The following troop of the cavalry swung down, then the rolling rumbling guns that brought up the rear.

As the funeral party wound slowly beneath the high windows of the Willard hotel, Mrs. Coolidge looked down upon it to ponder who knows what lesson the solemn cortege carried for her husband so ruthlessly forced to high place by the death of his chief.

Swinging wide around the old corner beyond the hotel where the bulk of the gray treasury blocks the road, the slow moving troops turned up the gentle hill of 15th street into a canyon of stone and steel where the steel on their booted feet rang sharper in the heavy, close air.

Another wide turn carried them into Pennsylvania avenue again and the last stage of the journey. Thousands were ranked silent and bareheaded along the way and deep into the park over the way from the White House gates.

The troopers swung on to turn in line and sit rigid with lifted sabres. The caisson rolled by them and on into the east gate at 11.40 p. m., and then around under the old trees to the great door through which great men of the century have passed, but never more sadly than tonight.

Lights from the great chandelier under the portecochere threw a soft light down on the casket as it was lifted down and carried tenderly into the east room with its endless banks of flowers from the kings and great ones of the world.

A soldier and a marine bore the head of the sad burden and before it walked at slow pace the officers of the army and navy who had served close to the dead leader as his aides. Across the wide entrance way they passed, and Warren Harding was back again for a brief moment of rest in the home a proud nation gave him with his office in the fullness of its trust.

Body Reposes in East Room.

The casket was rested on a wheeled carrier to ease its weight gently over the door sill. It was drawn slowly through the wide door of the East room and placed with head to the east under the great crystal chandelier, with the portraits of Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln looking down upon it.

President Coolidge and the others of the mourning party passed into the White House with bowed heads. So the new chief executive first entered on the scene of the great duties that await him, in sorrow for the friend and chieftain who is gone.

Out beyond the south window, faintly visible through the night, towered the pointing finger of Washington monument telling the greatness of another president. It also was dark, like the capitol, without the long booms of light that pick it out in lines of grace and beauty in happier times. It was dark and almost grim in its majestic bulk as if in sadness for the dead.

Still beyond in the darkness was the square white mass of the Lincoln memorial, lonely beside the slow waters of the Potomac. A short yesterday ago, President Harding with eloquent tongue dedicated this gift of the nation to the memory of a great president. Now he awaits honor almost as impressive though not written in "piled stone."

President Coolidge and the cabinet officers, the high judges and the members of congress who came with him, followed the casket into the east room to stand for a brief moment only beside it, then turn away and be carried swiftly away. It was close to midnight when Mr. Coolidge reached his hotel.

Mrs. Harding Did Not See Cortege.

Mrs. Harding did not see the funeral cortege arrive. She went at once to her room when she reached the White House long before the procession had turned into Pennsylvania avenue a mile away. Her hand rested on the arm of her brother-in-law, Dr. George Harding, as she stepped again within the old doorway.

After the last of the official party had turned back from the East room, the guard of honor took up its vigil for the night, motionless, silent, with heads bent to watch with a sleeping comrade. Silence and the heavy scent of the flowers surrounded Warren Harding again as he lay, free forever from the care of state, to await the morrow and the proud honors of his country will then heap upon him.

Last Night in the White House.

Warren G. Harding was back again in the White House for his last night in the home that had been his for more than two years in victory, defeat, sorrow and gladness. Alone again with the loving and constant wife, the helpmate and companion, the driving force that always spurred him onward and upward; home again with Laddie Boy, the Airedale pup on whom he bestowed his affection as a symbol of his kindliness for all God's creatures.

Out over the broad streets andd avenues of the city his thousands of fellow countrymen were going to their less pretentious homes in respectful silence leaving him alone for his last night in the White House.

All that was mortal of Warren Harding was home again for the last time, but his soul was out on dark tide that flows around all the world.

PROGRAM IN NEW YORK FOR DAYS OF MOURNING

New York, Aug. 7.—New York, already planning two days of mourning for the late President Harding, this afternoon saw the birth of plans for a third, when the committee of the Layers club which was to have greeted the President on his return from his Alaskan trip, reorganized as a committee of mourning and decided to arrange a mass memorial service.

President Coolidge is to be invited to deliver the eulogy to his dead chief, John A. Stewart, chairman of the committee, said the meeting probably would be held late in September or early in October, the exact date being left to President Coolidge, if he accepts the invitation.

Meanwhile the city's plans to express its sorrow tomorrow, the day of the state funeral at Washington, and Friday, when the late President's body will be entombed at Marion, Ohio, were brought to completion.

Governor Smith issued a proclamation this morning, designating Friday as a public holiday and the New York Clearing House, the Federal Reserve Bank and all the other banking institutions in the city immediately announced plans for closing Friday. This means that practically all the city's activities will cease on that day, as the various exchanges, the department stores, theatres and other places of amusement already had decided to close.

Protestant, Catholic, and Jewish congregations will meet in hundreds of the city's churches and synagogues for memorial services. While many of the silent theatres and motion picture houses will be used for memorial services by American Legion posts and various civic organizations.

While business will continue as usual for the greater part of tomorrow, the stock exchanges and many business houses will suspend activities for a brief period while the services simultaneous with those in Washington—and all the city will be reminded constantly by half-masted flags and crepe-draped buildings, of the nation's loss.

All the wheels of public transit in Greater New York—Subway, elevated and surface railways and motor-bus systems—will cease turning for two minutes after noon next Friday, in tribute to the late president on the day of final services at Marion, Ohio.

The New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company also will observe the day of national mourning over its system with the cancellation of all trains previously scheduled on its time tables for withdrawal on Labor Day. Notices of special stops to be made by regular trains next Friday, for the accommodation of passengers affected by the diminished service, were ordered posted in all railway stations.

FLORAL TOKENS FROM KINGS; BLOSSOMS FROM CHILDREN

Washington, Aug. 7.—(By the A. P.)—Depressed and weary with sad waiting, Washington dragged through the slow, hot hours of daylight watching for the last coming of Warren G. Harding. Night came to a city still waiting in uncertainty for the funeral train bearing him upon whom the full measure of his countrymen's acclaim will be poured out tomorrow.

At the White House the delay gave opportunity for added touches to the setting in the east room, where the long journey from San Francisco will halt for a space. The wide, time-darkened old floor had been cleared so that the sleeper frame-work on which the casket was to lie seemed strangely small on the broad expanse up the high ceiling. Along the eastern wall, under the windows that look out toward the treasury, there blossomed and banked mass of tender flowers. The tributes bore the names of kings and great men in many lands. Among them nestled a handful or two of bright blooms carried to the door by tiny children.

The floral tokens came in a steady stream through the late afternoon. No closed gates barred the way of the people through the grounds and hundreds strolled by to look in through the partially drawn curtains of the tall windows and see row masses of beauty set in place. The scent of the flowers inside was heavy even out in the open air beyond.

Among the floral pieces towered one tall easel built of lilies of the valley, Easter lilies and China asters, with a simple white card bearing this legend:

"With a profound sympathy.
"George, R. I."

A huge wreath of tiger and Easter lilies with pressed leaves betokened the sympathy of the diplomatic corps. It was brought in person by Ambassador Riano, acting as dean of the corps in the absence from the United States of Ambassador Jusserand. There were other wreaths from the King of Spain, the King of Italy and the President of Argentina. One bore the name of Shah of Persia. Others came from "His Britannic Majesty's Government," the government of Italy, the Dominion of Canada, from the legation of the kingdom of Serbs, Croats and Slovenes, from Ambassador Riano in person and from many others of the diplomats who speak for great peoples overseas came still other silent tributes to the dead.

GOOD-WILL WAS INNATE IN WARREN G. HARDING

New York, Aug. 7.—A striking picture of President Harding, holding up to himself the mirror of public opinion and candidly discussing what he saw reflected there, was portrayed before the Lawyers' club today by John A. Stewart.

At a meeting of the club today to discuss plans for a Harding memorial in September or October, at which President Coolidge will be asked to deliver an eulogy, the lawyer described his last conversation with the man whose body is now journeying to Washington before taken to its final resting in the little burial plot in Ohio.

Characterizing the man from Marion as one who had "laid down his life in martyrdom to appease his sense of friendly duty to the American people, whom he loved so fondly," Mr. Stewart went on:

"A few days before his last departure from Washington I spent three hours alone with him. He told of his plans to visit the West, Alaska, and Canada on a mission of sheer friendship. He talked of 'good-will' as an affirmative policy in all political relationships, domestic and international.

But the real picture of Harding, seeing himself as others saw him, and honestly, critically discussing the image he cast, flashed on the screen when the man with whom he talked commented on "the dire misfortune that so many of the untalking should regard good-will as only amiable weakness." As Mr. Stewart related it, the President's reply was:

"'It is a pity that this is true but, nevertheless, I shall continue on this course—to be myself, just as I am. I know my limitations; I know how far removed from greatness I am. But be that as it may, I intend to approach every problem with good-will in my heart, instead of hatred.

"'Most questions which are settled by armed force are never permanently settled. Problems can be solved fundamentally only as they are worked out in a spirit of neighborly goodwill.

"'Good-will is the only solvent of ill-will. I believe this is the time for good-will to be used as the great and most effective political policy, in furtherance of that gobd understanding without which no permanent betterment in human affairs can be effected.

"'I intend to approach every question, so far as I can, with neither bias nor ill-will. People may think of me as they please, but I shall continue to be as I am. Just Warren G. Harding as he is and as God fashioned him—a man who is trying, the best he knows how, to throw into the discard age-old, discordant ways of doing things, ways which have never succeeded in bringing happiness into the world.

"'If I am misunderstood, and another course is demanded of me, then I shall accept, as I must, what fate may have politically in store for me, but I will not change my policy of good-will, even though it lead to my relegation to private life.'"

555 BANKRUPTCIES IN STATE IN FISCAL YEAR

New Haven, Aug. 7.—Five hundred and fifty five bankruptcy petitions were filed in the bankruptcy division of the United States court for Connecticut in the fiscal year ending June 30, according to the annual report compiled today by Bankruptcy Clerk Richard Carroll. Of this number 466 were voluntary and 14 remainder involuntary. In the previous year 172 voluntary and 29 involuntary petitions were recorded.

At the beginning of the 1922-3 fiscal year 1,412 cases were pending. A total of 55 new cases were filed under 899 were concluded. There now are 1,568 cases pending.

Bankruptcy estates had total liabilities of $10,343,654.62.

CHARGED WITH MURDER OF 12-YEAR-OLD GIRL

Barre, Vt., Aug. 7.—George Pruneau, sought by city and county police since yesterday, was arrested late today in the town of Berlin, and charged with the murder of Leona Tacy, a 12-year-old girl, who was shot and killed near her home one mile from this city. Pruneau was taken to Montpelier and lodged in jail to await arraignment.

The Tacy girl was shot through the heart by a man who had accosted her on the highway earlier in the day and who late yesterday was seen near the Tacy home. Mrs. Hubert Tacy, Leona's mother, went out with her daughter and threatened the stranger with arrest. He drew a revolver and killed Leona before her mother could shield the child with her own body.

Gov. Templeton Adds To His Proclamation

Leaves Observance of Friday to the Good Will of the People of the State.

"In my proclamation I designated Friday, August 10th, as a day of solemn remembrance and recommended that at the hour of the funeral daily occupation be suspended in order that all might turn in thought and prayer to the grave of their dead President.

"I have already given orders that all state buildings and all state departments shall be closed on Friday. Consequently no state business whatsoever will be transacted throughout the day of the funeral.

"It is my hope that private individuals will, so far as possible, likewise abstain from their usual occupations, in order that the day may be, as the President of the United States has appointed it to be a day of mourning and prayer throughout the nation. The doors of my own business will be closed the entire day.

"I leave the observance of the day to the good will and affections of the people of this state in their several communities."

MRS. CARSON FAILED TO SWIM ENGLISH CHANNEL

Dover, England, Aug. 7. (By the A. P.)—Mrs. Clemington Carson, the American long distance swimmer, abandoned her attempt early this morning to swim the English channel from Dover to Calais. She was then only a few miles from the French coast.

She had covered a little over sixteen miles and had been in the water 14 1-2 hours.

When seen at her lodgings here tonight Mrs. Carson's first remark was: "I'm going to try again, but not this year.

"It was the bad seas that were so killing," she continued. "It was wretched luck, because we could see the French coast so plainly and the lights in the villages."

Mrs. Carson's husband said she did not want to leave the water, but it was so rough that they decided to have her out. She had to be helped into a boat, but by the time she reached Dover, at 4 o'clock in the morning, she was able to walk, proceeding on foot from the pier to her lodgings.

GERMAN GOV'T TAKES ACTION TO ELIMINATE PAPER MARKS

Berlin, Aug. 7.—(By the A. P.)—Utter confusion prevailed in the retail situation in all lines in greater Berlin today due to the continued plunging of the mark and the consequent fantastic rise of the dollar.

While the food situation continues to show a chronic shortage in ordinary staples, hourly rises of prices caused by the fluctuation of the mark are projecting a new and serious element into the situation as the retailers are withdrawing their wares from sale whenever the customers refuse to pay prices raised on the gold mark or the dollar units.

As the latter procedure results in price ranges which are prohibited under the usury ordinance the shopkeepers' union has proclaimed a general strike for Thursday and all retail establishments except food shops will close down for a day as a protest against conditions under which they are erected to operate.

Many shops throughout the city already have shut down, barricading their doors and emptying the shop windows of displays.

The government virtually has abandoned all further attempts to "peg" the mark, or stop it from the abysmal plunge. The government proposes to make the recently floated internal gold loan the crux of the new national currency.

The dollar rate fluctuated between three and four million marks to the dollar throughout the day. The official figure was 3,300,000 for the dollar and 15,000,000 for the pound sterling.

$17,133,914.96 TOTAL ASSETS OF KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS

Montreal, Aug. 7.—The membership of the Knights of Columbus showed a gross increase of 75,793 for the year 1922-23. Supreme Secretary William J. McGinley of New York states in his report to the forty-first supreme convention of the Knights which formally opened here this morning.

A new state jurisdiction was added to the sixty already existing in Canada, Newfoundland, the United States and its possessions, Cuba and Mexico—that of Manitoba. Eighty-five new councils were formed, making 2,-331 in all.

Total insurance of $247,800,353.33 was in force by the K. of C. on its membership of June 30, 1923, the report shows, the increase for the year being nearly five and a half millions. There were 5,542 deaths in the order during the past twelve months. The total assets of the order have reached the unprecedented figure of $17,133,-914.96 exclusive of all special funds.

Simplicity to Mark Marion Ceremony

Last Rites Will be Carried Out According to the Expressed Desire of Mrs. Harding.

Marion, Ohio, Aug. 7.—(By the A. P.)—Simplicity almost approaching severity will characterize the last rites for Warren G. Harding, when his body is brought here Thursday from Washington.

Carrying out the expressed desire of Mrs. Harding, only services, excepting probably a prayer at the home of his father, George T. Harding, Sr., where the body will repose before being placed in a receiving vault, will be very brief and will be conducted at the vault at Marion cemetery where the President's body will be placed temporarily. This will be in charge of Rev. George M. Landis, pastor of Trinity Baptist church of which Mr. Harding was a member, assisted by Rev. Jesse Swank, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, Mrs. Harding's pastor.

There will be no imposing funeral cortege to the cemetery, made resplendent by bright uniforms and glittering sabres; no trooping of horses; no rumble of artillery wheels; no marching organizations. Its grandeur will be its simplicity and its sadness. Not even the "President's own" Troop A, Ohio National Guard Cavalry, Cleveland, which acted as escort of honor when Mr. Harding was inaugurated President, will participate, other than to maintain quietude. There will be thousands of other soldiers here, but they too, will be here in capacity of aides to civil authorities to maintain order.

Plans which, it was explained, are only tentative until they are carried through, will bring the body of the late President to his home city about 11 A. M. Thursday, accompanied by Mrs. Harding. Members of the party who made the sad journey with her from San Francisco to the national Capital and back again to his native state, and two aides, a representative of the army and a representative of the navy who will comprise the only military escort to the body.

A hearse will be used to convey the body to the father's home in East Center street, where it is planned to have it lie in state from 2 P. M. to 10 P. M., Thursday, and from 9 A. M. to 2 P. M. Friday. The funeral cortege is scheduled to leave the Harding home soon after 2 o'clock for the cemetery, services there being conducted about 3 o'clock. Mr. Harding's body instead of being buried in the family plot beside his mother and sister, will be placed in the receiving vault until a mausoleum is erected to receive it.

As soon as the detailed funeral plans had been received by Col. F. P. Lahn, personal representative of President Coolidge, and Attorney Mike Donithen, chairman of the Marion Civic Association scenes about the Marion club, headquarters for arrangements took on aspects of a military camp where the general staff was preparing plans for attack. Tables were covered with blue print maps of the city and pencils began to trace lines here and there. It was in fact a preparation for an attack on the biggest problem that has ever confronted this city—the problem of properly handling the crowds which are expected to come here to attend the funeral of the dead President. Preparations are being made to handle 100,000 people in a city of about 30,000.

APPREHENSIVE FEELING IN WALL STREET UNDERWORLD

Anxiety Created by the Confession of Bankrupt Brokers Fuller and McGee—United States Attorney Howard Has Announced That Additional Indictments of Bucket Shop Proprietors Will be Sought of the Grand Jury—An Effort is to be Made to Regain Some of the $6,000,000 in Assets Which Disappeared Shortly Before the Failure.

New York, Aug. 7.—Additional indictments of bucket shop operators and bankers and "other prominent persons" will be sought of the federal grand jury sworn in today, as a result of the confessions last night of Edward M. Fuller and W. F. McGee, partners in the bankrupt firm of E. M. Fuller & Company, United States Attorney Hayward announced today.

It was indicated that an attempt would be made to show that the Fuller concern was a sub-division of a loosely organized system—one of several directed by a council and supply center—and was in turn the center for a number of bucket shops operated under different names in this and other cities; also that many of the outpost branches are still in lively operation in an unsuccessful effort to "shear" enough from the credulous to pay the legal expense of those "higher up."

Another result of the confessions was expected to be a move on the part of the receiver in bankruptcy for E. M. Miller & Co. to regain some of the $6,000,000 in assets which disappeared shortly before the failure. The brokers were said to have given the names of several persons to whom large checks were given and it was indicated court action would be taken to recover these funds.

Mr. Hayward again refused today to make public the confessions he announced last night he had obtained.

"Until I have determined what further moves we shall make in the matter," he said, "I cannot in the interests of justice make any further revelations as to the nature of the confessions. I have already stated that they are complete and in my opinion truthful."

Anxiety approaching panic prevailed in the Wall street underworld today in the absence of information as to just how much Fuller and McGee have told Mr. Hayward. Curiosity also was keen as to the whereabouts of the two bankrupt brokers, who were spirited away from Fort Jay, Governor's Island, Saturday night, and have been held secretly in various places in Manhattan.

ROBBERY OF THE EAST HADDAM POST OFFICE

East Hampton, Conn., Aug. 7.—The post office in the general store at East Haddam, a hamlet near here, was entered this morning and $150 in stamps, $50 in cash and a large quantity of store stock stolen. The stamps and cash were taken fro man old-fashioned safe that had been opened by a key which was found in a desk Postmaster Harry Hopkins when he opened the store at 7 o'clock this morning discovered that entrance had been made by forcing open a rear window.

Post office inspectors, state police and the sheriff's department are investigating.

FOUR GRADE CROSSING VICTIMS GROUND TO PIECES

Niagra Falls, N. Y., Aug. 7.—Four persons were killed at the Wheatfield Highway crossing of the New York Central railroad, one mile east of Lasalle, late this afternoon. The victims were on a truck that stalled on the tracks and was struck by a train bound for Niagara Falls.

The force of the collision tore the pilot from the engine and tossed it to one side of the tracks. Three of the victims were ground to pieces under the wheels of the train.

LETTER TO GOVERNOR FROM PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

Waterbury, Aug. 7.—Governor C. A. Templeton with his staff left tonight for New Haven where he will take a special car attached to the federal express leaving at 11.07 for Washington to attend the funeral of the late President. He has received the following letter from President Coolidge in answer to his recent telegram:

"My dear Governor Templeton:

Such a message as that from you which I found on my return to Washington, has been a very real help.

"I wish that I might express through you, to the people of Connecticut, my thanks for their assurance of support and encouragement.

"Very truly yours,
Calvin Coolidge."

He has also received the following letter from George B. Christian, Jr., secretary to the late President in response to the Governor's telegram to the President when he was first taken sick:

"My dear Governor:

"On behalf of the President, I wish to acknowledge the receipt of your telegram of July 31st and to express grateful appreciation to you and the people of Connecticut for your kind message of sympathy.

Sincerely yours,
George B. Christian, Jr.,
Secretary to the President."

WILLIMANTIC

NORWICH BULLETIN
31 Church Street — Telephone 1062

Community memorial services in honor of President Harding will be held at Elks' park, Pleasant street, on Friday afternoon between 3 and 4 o'clock, standard time. In the advent of stormy weather the services will be conducted in the state armory. Speakers will represent the civic and religious denominations of the city. A special request has been made by the committee in charge, that all the business houses, offices and manufacturing plants close during the hour of the meeting. It is expected that all the organizations in this city will be represented and hymns will be played by local bands. The committee of arrangements is to be announced later.

Mrs. M. B. Donovan of Eagleville recently entertained her sister, Miss Milly Heuck and niece, Miss Louise Haase of New Haven.

Tuesday announcement was made that the offices in the town building would remain closed all day Friday, the national day of mourning. The town, city and probate court offices are affected by the announcement. The fact that the offices close Thursday afternoon, the regular clerks' weekly half holiday, is a reminder that anyone having pressing business to transact at the town building should do this Wednesday or Thursday forenoon.

A memorial service for the president was held by the Willimantic Rotary club Tuesday noon at its weekly session, in accordance with a telegram received from Guy Gundaker, president of International Rotary. The services for the president, who was a Rotarian, opened with the singing of Lead, Kindly Light, a favorite hymn of President Harding. Rev. Harry S. McCready delivered a most impressive oration. Following the oration the members stood for one minute while Rev. Mr. McCready offered prayer.

Resolutions which were presented by a committee of two, Frank H. Foss and Valentine L. Murphy on the death of President Harding were unanimously adopted. They set forth in substance that since the circle of Rotary International has lost one who exemplified in the highest degree those qualities of kindliness, good fellowship unselfishness and altruism upon which the organization is founded, that the Rotary club of Willimantic, expressed its gratitude that so true a representative of the principles of Rotary has been granted the opportunity to serve his country so long and so ably, and its deep and enduring regret that it should have become necessary in the inscrutable wisdom of the Infinite, that that service should terminate. It was further resolved, that these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the meeting, and a copy thereof transmitted to the press.

Countess Agnes Esterhazy, one of the most beautiful Hungarian women on the Continent, who became infatuated with the movies once she saw them, and wished to enter them immediately. Her papa, a noble of the old school, couldn't see his daughter entering the movie mart and appearing before so many thousands of eyes, and he said firmly and emphatically, "No." Nothing daunted, daughter packed up and left the paternal roof and she is now appearing as one of the most brilliant leading women on the German screen. All Berlin is mad about her.

Agricultural Interests

PLOW UNDER REFUSE PLANTS.

One cannot do better at this time of the year as early garden crops are being finished, than to plow or spade in the refuse plants of peas, beans, turnips, lettuce, cabbage, or whatever it happens to be and sow at once to a soil improvement crop. Crimson clover or timothy may also be sown between rows of tomatoes and sweet corn at the last cultivation. A good soil improvement crop will wonderfully increase the humus or fiber content of the soil, and every gardener is realising more and more the necessity of humus to maintain a strong, healthy growth of any crop up to the time of its maturity.

Manure is scarce and is becoming more difficult to get each year. Humus is one of the principal elements from the gardener's standpoint and a good soil improvement crop will spread its root fibers into every particle of soil to a depth of several inches, and when these decay the humus will be better distributed throughout the soil than can possibly be the case the first year by plowing and harrowing in manure.

Three months' growth of crimson clover has been found by the New Jersey experiment station to add several tons of organic matter to the soil and besides this the equivalent of 300 or more pounds of nitrate of soda which will become available the next season. Later in the season, even up to freezing weather, timothy or rye may be used as a soil improvement crop. Besides the above benefits, the planting of a soil improvement crop now will kill out weeds, help another weed growth for the balance of the season and give one a cleaner, healthier garden soil next year. Try this method on at least part of your garden.

KEEP OUT CORN BORER.

"Keep the European corn borer out of the county" is the battle cry, and if evidence of the pest is found, steps will be taken to help farmers rid their fields of it. In order that the pest may be identified properly, the following description of its appearance and habits is given:

The female moth whose eggs hatch into larvae of the corn borer, is pale yellow in color and has a wing expanse of about one inch. She lays eggs in masses of from five to 50, and these hatch into larvae about one-fifth of an inch long. The larvae have a black head and a white body covered with black or brown spots. The eggs and larvae will be found on the under side of the leaves, and evidence of the borer will be found in ears of infested stalks.

There are insects which are often mistaken for the European corn borer. Such is the northern corn root worm, a whitish grub about two-fifths of an inch long, which burrows into the roots of the plants. There is also the corn ear worm, a green or brownish striped caterpillar which feeds on the corn beneath the husk. As soon as the corn ear worm is seen, steps should be taken to get rid of it. If only a few are found in the field, the infected plants should be pulled up and the plants destroyed by burning. Any other method of disposing of them may simply increase the infestation. If the corn ear worm seriously infests the field, the regular potato dust which contains 17 per cent arsenate or the potato Paris green dust may be used.

Small Gain In Potato Growing

As potato growers, we are still in the "small potato" class, if we are to judge our standing by the gain in the average production per acre made in the United States in the last 55 years. Statistics gathered by the United States Department of Agriculture during the last half century show that the average production per acre during the five-year period, 1918-1922, was 98.7 bushels. Our grandfathers did almost as well 50 years ago, producing in the five-year period, 1868-1872 an average of 94.5 bushels to the acre. In other words our ability to grow potatoes has improved during these 55 years only enough to raise the average production by 4.4 per cent.

From 1868 to 1888 the average yield decreased steadily until it was but 74 bushels to the acre. Since that time the average yield has been steadily increasing until it is now the highest it has ever been. A number of reasons for the decline in yields during the first half of this period are given by the department, the most important among them being the ravages of the Colorado potato beetle during the early period of its invasion of the eastern United States, the financial depressions of 1877 and 1893, which brought about a well-marked decline in agriculture in New England, New York, and other heavy potato producing areas, and a gradual depletion of soil fertility.

Parasites of Japanese Beetle

During the first week of July a large shipment of dexiid and tachinid parasites of the Japanese beetle was received in Seattle. These insects came from Japan in cool storage, and great care was exercised in preparing them for transcontinental shipment to the Japanese beetle laboratory of the bureau of Entomology, United States Department of Agriculture, at Riverton, N. J. At Seattle representatives of the bureau had ready a number of 10-gallon ice cream freezers. The boxes of parasites were tranaferred directly to the tubs of these freezers, well iced, and started east with as little delay as possible. An express company cooperated in the work by seeing that the freezers were re-iced en route. The parasites are to be liberated in connection with Japanese beetle control work.

Great Wood Consumption

The United States uses more wood than any other country. In fact the consumption in this country equals about two-fifths of the entire consumption of the world, or, expressed in round figures, about 22½ billion cubic feet, declares the Forest Service, United States Department of Agriculture.

The per capita consumption in this country is 212 cubic feet, of which 110 cubic feet, or a little more than half, is saw timber, and the balance consists of cordwood, continues the department's report, which was recently printed for public distribution.

Including the losses by fire, insects, and disease, the total drain of the country's forests is close to 25 billion cubic feet. At the present time this country is growing only about 8 billion cubic feet. However, according to the data contained in the report, if the entire forest area of the country—some 470,000,000 acres—were placed under intensive forestry about 27 billion cubic feet could ultimately be produced each year. This amount would exceed the present drain on our forests by a relatively small margin.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

Bartollo Bonelli of Broad Brook was fined $25 and costs, a total of $38.41 by Judge Heald in the borough court Tuesday morning for speeding on the Hollow road Sunday evening. Bonelli was driving toward Stafford Springs and was overtaken by State Policeman Kelsey who attempted to pass him. As Kelsey approached Bonelli stepped on the gas and there was a race between the state policeman and Bonelli who was driving a Buick six. He was not aware that his competitor in the race was an officer until he reached Heald's Corner where the officer passed him and asked to see his license. At the same time ordering him into court. Bonelli pleaded guilty and paid the fine cheerfully, saying that he thought the officer was one of his friends from Springfield.

MARRIED MEN CELEBRATE VICTORY OVER SINGLES WITH PARADE AND BLOCK DANCE

"From the little acorn grows the mighty oak" and so from a mere friendly game of baseball between the East Side Married Men and Single Men grew the mammoth celebration Tuesday evening that was a fitting climax to this much talked of series. As is right and proper the Married Men for once had the last word, due largely to the fact that they were batting against single men rather than their better halves. The Henpecks completely outclassed the single men and emerged victors by a 10 to 3 score.

A Huge Crowd

Ever since the series started each crowd has been larger than the last. Starting with a crowd of about 100 the attendance has mounted game by game until at the game last night the attendance reached well over the three thousand mark. They came from everywhere, far and near, and the number was so large that they hampered the players to some extent although Col. George Fowler with his puttees white suit and sword and admiral's cap did all in his power to hold the mob in check. The Colonel was the busiest man on the ball park, outside Berger Goldberg, and although small but mighty he made his presence felt on that field of battle, and his graciousness in leading the two bands and the drum corp to their places in the outfield was highly appreciated.

Both teams appeared early at the park and had their practice under the able generalship of Managers "Jumbo" James and "Jimmy" Pedace. The crowd began gathering early and there was every indication that a record in attendance would be broken. Just before the game started the Court of Common Council drove onto the field in automobiles and were escorted to places of honor in the outfield.

Alderman Gebrath Pitches First Ball

When Umpire Billy Wright took his place on the field there was a subdued excitement as the crowd anticipated the deathly struggle for the baseball honors. Senior Alderman Henry A. Gebrath was escorted by Frank M. Green, a brother member of the council, to the pitcher's box to hurl the first ball in this crucial contest. The alderman, returning to his younger days when he himself cavorted on these very grounds in games that have made baseball history, wound up and delivered a most beautiful strike to the batter—at least the umpire said it was a strike. Then began the struggle which will go down in East Side chronicles as the one big day of days.

"Jumbo" James Performs

"Dutch" Leonard, pride of the Married Men, began the grind of pitching his team to victory. He hit the first man but little did this bother him for he soon located the plate and the next was a strikeout victim. "Sparky" Walz was safe on a fielders choice, but Baker had scored. The next two men were easy strikeout victims. The Single Men and their supporters were jubilant for one run looked big. There was nothing to it, in their opinion, "Jumbo" James would surely have to ride the goat. "Jumbo" had little liking to demonstrate his powers as an equestrian on a lowly consumer of tin cans, so he held a council of strategy. Apparently it was beneficial for the Married Men proceeded to wade into "Spike" Harris' offerings and when the first inning was over the Henpecks were two runs in the lead. This lead was the direct result of "Jumbo" James' crashing two bagger with two on base.

In the second inning "Dutch" Leonard held the Single Men who were striving to retrieve their lost advantage and their stock had dropped far below par. Some were hopeful that Harris would be equal to holding the Henpecks but the majority were calling for Manager Pedace to put Berger in the box—the pitching box. Spike" was not equal to the occasion and the Married men sent out but after hit in the second frame until four runs had been scored. Again Manager James figured in the scoring with his hitting.

Berger Hurled Into the Breach

Manager Pedace realizing that Harris was not in form hurriedly threw Berger into the breach hoping to stem the tide of defeat that was biding fair to engulf him. Berger, true sportsman that he is, willingly took up the tremendous burden that was cast upon his broad and sun-burned shoulders. He felt the mighty urge to rescue his teammates from that ignoble disgrace of being trounced by the Married Men, and stepped confidently into the box. Wild cheering greeted him as he divested himself of the baseball shirt and stood out like a bronze statue. There was a depressing feeling as the crowd noticed that instead of the pearl gray golf stockings the hero had worn in previous games he wore a pair of brand new blue and white baseball socks. It was taken as a bad omen and was only forgotten when the band played The Sheik.

Berger had no chance to get his mighty arm in shape and he went into the box cold. But this did not daunt him he did only what any man can do—that is his best. His control was good but his support was rather weak and the Married Men scored 3 more runs. In the last inning Berger pitched superb ball and although defeated his popularity did not lose a thing as was demonstrated in the honor accorded him in the parade that followed the game.

When the final man was out the Single Men had only three runs to their credit made off the deliveries of Leonard and "Jumbo" while the married Men could proudly point to ten big counters. It was up to Jimmy Pedace to ride the goat, Jimmy, a good sportsman and true, one of the principal movers in the East Side activities, good naturedly tried to ride the unruly animal but gave it up in disgust and contented himself with leading the animal.

The Parade

After the game the parade formed on Fowler avenue and some parade it was too. Col. George Fowler, grand marshal of the parade, in his uniform of white, khaki puttees, admiral's cap and glistening sword was a glorious spectacle as he led the column through the streets. Next in line came his aid Mrs. Carl Spaulding in a flaming red silk uniform who towered over the mighty little hero who trudged valiantly ahead of her. Then came Houston's band led by Silk Hat Harry Chabineau of the famous team of acrobats, the Chabineau Brothers. Following the band was the victorious Married Men, wreathed in smiles and their faces flushed with victory, led by the conquering hero "Jumbo" James. The defeated Single Men, crestfallen at being pulled from the pinnacle of fame, led by Manager Jimmy Pedace and Uncle Billy, followed in the wake of the victors installing the dust kicked up by those prancing victorious feet.

The Hero

Then came the Italian Band acting as a special escort to the hero of the series, Berger Goldberg, who rode in a gayly bedecked hack, drawn by two prancing steeds which during the day are used by a local trucking concern to haul heavy loads. Little did these humble beasts of burden realize the honor that had been accorded them of hauling such a noted personage. Berger rode with all the pomp of a Caesar in a chariot of gold and graciously acknowledged the thunderous applause accorded him along the line of march. On his head rested a gold and velvet crown, a trivial tribute to his prowess as a baseball player, in order that Berger's mighty left arm would feel no effects of the chill night air Andy Boyens had thoughtfully provided a stove for the conquering hero and the stove pipe was pushed up through the roof.

After the kingly coach came the Boy Scout Drum Corps of St. Patrick's church and a number of boy-scout troops. After them came the East Side's fairest maidens bearing a large American Flag and after them came Billy Kellner's Town Clown Band and the Preston Horribles. Horribles is a meager word to describe this collection of odds and ends that regaled the human forms. Every attic in Preston had been rummaged to provide wearing apparel for this section of the parade. Young and old alike participated in the horribles and led by the enchanting music of the Clown band they made a weird scene.

The parade at last wended its way about the streets and on every hand was greeted with applause by the thousands that had gathered on the streets. On the return of the line to Billings' corner a block dance was held, music being furnished by the Royal Radions orchestra and hundreds danced on the pavements.

It was the end of a perfect day.

GIANTS TAKE FIVE GAME SERIES WITH CINCINNATI

Cincinnati, Ohio, Aug. 7—The New York Giants made a clean sweep of the five game series with Cincinnati by winning the final contest today, 6 to 2. Luque was wild and was hit freely, losing his second game in the series. Watson was invincible until the seventh when the Reds bunched two singles and a triple by Bohne for two runs. When he walked the first man up in the eighth he was relieved by Ryan who finished capably. The score:

PHILLIES CONTINUE WINNING STREAK AND BEAT PIRATES

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 7—The revived Phillies struggling to move up from their cellar position continued their winning streak today by defeating Pittsburgh 7 to 5. Today's win made three out of the four game series won by Philadelphia.

Cy Williams polled his 29th home run of the season in the fifth inning with two runners on the paths. The ball dropped in the right field bleachers and then bounced over the fence.

BAY STATE HORSES GET THE WORD TODAY IN FIRST OF THREE DAYS' RACING MEET

At two o'clock this afternoon some of the fastest horses in New England will get the word at the local track in the first event of a three-day racing programme of the Bay State Short Ship Circuit. Local people and in fact the people of all Eastern Connecticut will have opportunity to see the best horse flesh that has ever traveled over the half mile oval at the Fairgrounds in action, during the remainder of the week. Never before has there been such a collection of fast steppers assembled in this section of the state, and if the weather man is favorable there will be plenty of action during their stay in our city.

Wednesday's programme includes three events, the 2.16 trot, the 2.14 pace and the 2.24 trot. Every event has at least eight starters and all horses have fast marks for their class. When Billy Crozier, Kingfisher Martin or Joe Johnson and Rodney enter a horse from their stable in any event there is always a race for the wire. Rodney appears on the local track after an absence of nearly two years. At his last appearance on the oval he met with an accident that resulted in a broken leg but he had been driving winners this season and will be a welcome figure along the rail the next few days.

Yesterday all the horses were quartered at the grounds and from the appearance of the animals all are in prime condition. Many lovers of horses were attracted to the stables Tuesday afternoon inspecting the pacers and trotters and without doubt a large crowd will be in attendance today.

The Colonel has a mark of 2.01 1-4 and is entered in the free-for-all on Thursday which is the big day of the meet. Other horses at the grounds have marks of 2.03 or better and many of them are by Peter the Great, a horse that has sired more light harness horses with marks of 2.09 or better than any other stallion.

There will be no racing on Friday owing to the funeral of Warren G. Harding but Friday's events will be run off on Saturday. The local committee is anticipating three days of the greatest racing that Norwich has ever seen and also expects an attendance that will break all race records here.

New York, Aug. 7—The St. Louis Americans won their last game under the management of Lee Fohl here today, slugging out a victory against New York in the third game of the series by a score of 12 to 10. It was only the third game St. Louis has won from New York this season. Ruth scored his one hundredth run of the season in the seventh inning, being the first major league player to reach that mark. ATHLETICS HAVE EASY TIME BEATING CHICAGO

Philadelphia, Aug. 7—Philadelphia made it two straight from Chicago today winning 6 to 2 when Cvengros weakened in the third. Hale continued his hitting streak with a triple, two singles and a sacrifice in five trips to the plate while Galloway had four singles. McGowan starred in the field with a remarkable running catch in center that robbed Falk of a home run.

LEE FOHL IS RELEASED AS MANAGER OF BROWNS

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 7—(By the A. P.)—Lee Fohl has been released as manager of the St. Louis Americans, it was announced here today.

In a telegram to his secretary, L. B. Von Weise, Phil Ball, owner of the Browns, stated Fohl's dismissal was "for the good of the game and the morale of the players."

There was no intimation as to who will succeed Fohl, who last year led the team to within one game of first place, and to third in 1921.

Fohl is under contract for the remainder of the season.

"Bill" Friel, a former Browns player, early in July succeeded Bob Quinn as business manager, who now is head of the Boston Americans. Reports here are that Fohl will become manager of the Red Sox next year. George Sisler, star first sacker, probably will become manager of the team as soon as his eyes permit, it was said. Until that time Friel probably will handle the team.

Mr. Ball became incensed at the recent action of Mr. Fohl in refusing to join the Browns' players in protesting against the suspension of Pitcher Dave Danforth, it was said. Danforth was ordered out of a game with Philadelphia a week ago by Umpire Moriarty for alleged discoloration of a ball.

LUQUE TURNS PUGILIST AND SIGNS WITH STENGEL

Cincinnati, Ohio, Aug. 7—Today's ball game between the New York Giants and the Cincinnati Reds was enlivened by an attack made by Pitcher Luque upon Casey Stengel of the Giants in the first half of the eighth inning. The visitors were pounding the Cuban pitcher, having just made four straight hits and three runs after two were out. With Young at bat Luque heard someone on the New York bench hurl an insulting epithet at him. He picked Stengel as the man and walked deliberately out of the box and over to the bench, tossing the ball to Umpire Klem as he passed.

The Cuban took one swing at Stengel, who was sitting on the bench and did not arise at his approach. The blow glanced off Stengel's shoulder inflicting little damage. Luque was instantly seized by Young, who had hurried over from the batter's box and who secured a strangle hold on the Cuban dragging him twenty feet from the bench, where Luque was taken in charge by policemen and escorted to the Red dugout.

After taking a drink of water, he seized a bat and rushed again toward the Giant players, but was intercepted before he could do any damage. Roush, who came in from centerfield to engage in the fray, also was headed off before he could get near any of the visiting players. Luque and Stengel were banished from the field by Umpire Klem.

Luque declared after the game that Stengel had been the one who attacked him verbally, but Manager McGraw of the Giants, who was seated next to Stengel on the bench, stated positively that the latter was not the man who insulted the Cuban and that it was another outfielder on the New York club.

HODGES TAKES LEAD IN BIG CHESS TOURNEY

WATERBURY WINS 11 INNING GAME FROM BRIDGEPORT

Bridgeport, Aug. 7—Tomlinson bested Abrams in a pitchers' duel here this afternoon and Waterbury won 3 to 2 in 11 innings. Donahue's double followed by an infield out and Gonzales' single drove in the winning run. The hitting of Donahue and Orme featured. Score by innings:

LAVELLE NOT TO TAKE DE FORREST'S PLACE

New York, Aug. 7—Argentine sportsman who is coming to the United States to be with Louis Angel Firpo when he prepares for his engagement with champion Jack Dempsey, September 24, will act as the challenger's adviser and will not displace Jimmy De Forrest as trainer.

LAVELLE WILL TRAIN FIRPO FOR BOUT

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 7—Hortiz Lavelle, of Buenos Aires, will train Luis Angel Firpo for his bout with heavyweight champion Jack Dempsey, in New York on Sept. 14, it was announced here today by G. W. Widmer, secretary of the challenger.

Lavelle will relieve Jimmy DeForest, veteran American trainer, who has had charge of Firpo since the Argentenian forged to the front of the heavyweight aspirants, and who is generally accredited with having taught Firpo the fine points of boxing. Widmer added that there had been no break with DeForest.

Firpo concluded his training this afternoon for his scheduled ten round bout here tomorrow night with Joe Downey, of Cincinnati. He announced his weight as 214 pounds.

FISCHER SPRINGS SURPRISE BY BEATING KINSEY

Southampton, N. Y., Aug. 7—Carl Fischer of Philadelphia, national intercollegiate champion, provided one of the upsets of the tennis season today, defeating Robert Kinsey, of San Francisco, sixth ranking player of the nation, 6-3, 0-6, 6-3 in the third round of the Meadow Club's tournament.

A vigorous attack at the net won the first set for the Philadelphian, but Kinsey, with marvelous stroking from the baseline, had an easy time in the second. Kinsey's chop strokes failed him in the deciding set and he lost after a series of brilliant rallies.

Vincent Richards, of Yonkers, had a narrow escape in the second round against Dr. George King of New York, defeating the physician after a brilliant struggle 8-6, 3-6, 8-6. Richards advanced to the fourth round defeating Lewis Deane, of India, 6-1, 6-1.

ITALY'S YOUNG LEADER.

That Italy has in Signor Mussolini a premier who is comparatively a young man gives promise that he can still render useful service to his country for many more years to come. To reach heights of power such as Mussolini has attained at forty is usually reserved for those who have passed his age by ten, twenty or twenty-five years, although history presents some notable exceptions. Alexander Hamilton was secretary of the treasury at thirty-two, Napoleon commanded the armies of Italy at twenty-seven, and William Pitt, one of England's greatest statesmen, became chancellor of the exchequer at twenty-three.

With Signor Mussolini his youth is one of his greatest assets. His service in the war has won him the loyalty of Italy's many millions of youthful war veterans who see him expressing their spirit of militant nationalism. In the few months in which he has become a national figure, he has achieved much for his country, ridding her of the dry-rot of governmental inefficiency with which she was afflicted, and he has imparted to the government a new vigor and vitality. On the one hand the material gain has been shown by a greater economic and industrial output, and on the other the gain in civic health has been indicated by the virtual elimination of the communists as a factor in Italian politics.

He has made an auspicious beginning towards bringing Italy back to her place among the nations and the future is of the brightest, with few if any clouds on the horizon. It will be his task to establish constitutional government on a firmer basis than ever before. The destruction of bolshevism and the substitution of efficient methods of administration for inefficient should facilitate the task of restoring the constitution.

PEACE BY PUBLICITY.

Whatever can be accomplished towards maintaining peace by publicity, the council of the league of nations proposes to do though an order to the signatories for the publication of a year book by the armament commission. This will record the full military strength of each nation and it will be for the commission to obtain, verify and disseminate the data.

This order from the council of the league met with sharp debate. Significantly or not, France opposed it as being "too costly" and criticized the plan to get at the facts by independent investigation as "prying." But France was with the minority in its opposition. Lord Robert Cecil, a strong supporter of the league, voiced the arguments of those who stood for full publicity.

The spirit of the league is publicity, not secrecy, a part of the new diplomatic doctrine of "open covenants openly agreed upon." It will not stop war, but it is another check on war. It will not make men or nations pacific, but it will make them intelligently belligerent, if belligerent they must be, and that is very nearly a contradiction in terms.

The league stands towards the nations in the position of the Texas town marshal who posted the notice: "Gents, wear your artillery outside your pants or get pinched." Where you can see your neighbor's gun and he can see yours, you are both apt to speak softly and step warily. If each nation can know the strength of every other's armaments, loose and boastful threats of war may cease, and no nation can arm for aggression without the town marshal—the league of nations—knowing it.

CORDIAL NEW ENGLAND.

This is the season of the year when New England extends its hospitality to visitors from all parts of the country and it is gratifying from letters and conversations with our summer visitors to learn that they have not found the spirit of hospitality lacking. The spirit of friendship is in evidence, perhaps more now than in the past. The New Englander is not effusive in his friendliness, but is inclined to a reserve that might suggest to the stranger a lack of interest in him and his surroundings. But the friendly feeling is there, even if seemingly concealed behind a forbidding exterior.

There is a relationship of mutual benefit in this annual influx of summer visitors. The city dweller with a summer home in a New England town finds that not the least among its attractions are the friendships which he forms for the neighbors who live there all the year. There is an interchange of ideas in which the philosophy of the countryside plays its part. The summer visitor whose vacation is passed in hotel or boarding house finds there an interest and kindly feeling that has more than a dollars-and-cents consideration behind it. It is the exception to find among New England folks those who look upon vacationists as victims rather than guests. Such is the testimony of our summer visitors when they speak of their New England experiences.

There can be many ways for the expression of this friendly, cordial spirit on the part of New Englanders. Many a city dweller can recall the enthusiasm with which some "native" initiated him into the mysteries of camp life or seashore, while there can be pleasant recollections of many a bit of helpful advice given along unfamiliar roads. Cities are also doing their share in smoothing the pathway of the stranger within New England gates, and not entirely with the thought of the value of summer travel in a business sense. It all embodies the genuinely cordial feeling that New England has for those who are fortunate enough to select this section for their summer playground.

SENATORS ABROAD.

Five of our American senators are on their way to Europe—La Follette of Wisconsin, Swanson of Virginia, McKellar of Tennessee, McKinley of Illinois, and Robinson of Arkansas. Whether they go to get or to give information is a question of some importance. It used to be said, whether true or not, that you could always tell a Harvard man, but you could not tell him much. It sometimes appears as if this were true with certain of our senators.

In the case of La Follette, for instance, it is hard to imagine one so long engaged in instructing the world now permitting himself to be instructed. It is true, he said, that he would not neglect looking over the continent and familiarizing himself with important subjects." It is something to find La Follette in the mood to receive instruction. He seemed to realize the extraordinary condition of his mental state, when he said before he sailed: "Funny, isn't it, to hear me say I don't know where I am going or what I am going to do, but that's the case."

There have been times when it seemed that the senator did not know where he was going, but he thought he did. Now the case is different. Now he does not know and knows that he does not know. Here then is the first step in an educational process that may have important results—and may not. One must guard against oversanguineness. The old frame of mind may return, and the old cocksureness again appear. There is much to be learned in Europe by those who are willing to learn, by those whose minds are not closed by pride of opinion. Some of our senators will learn and some will not, and that is about all that can be said—though much may be hoped. It is exceedingly interesting to think of Senator La Follette in the role of pupil and condescending to "look over" Europe.

If the process can bring benefit to all concerned, it will be a trip well worth while.

SWIMMING THE CHANNEL.

Henry Sullivan, the Lowell swimmer, believed that what man had done man could do again, and he applied that belief until on his seventh attempt he successfully accomplished the crossing of the English channel by swimming. Until he stepped ashore at Calais Monday night after 26 hours and 50 minutes in the water only two others, both Englishmen, had ever conquered the difficult stretch of water between England and France.

The channel swim has been a challenge that hardy master swimmers, men and women, have accepted time after time, but few have accomplished. Its swirling eddies and changing currents have more than once compelled some swimmer to give up the attempt when within a few miles of the goal. There is not straight progression from one point to another but the swimmer is tossed back and forth or carried far out of his course by the treacherous water. If good fortune favors him and his strength holds out he hopes not to be defeated in his effort, but he knows that the chances are all against him. That the Lowell man made slower time than the two other successful swimmers is immaterial. To reach the opposite shore is success enough. Captain Webb, first to swim the channel, registered only 15 miles in distance and 21 hours and 45 minutes in time, while William Burgess, who also has the channel swim to his credit, took 23 hours and 35 minutes to cover about 60 miles, approximately the distance which Sullivan made.

Like scaling an almost impossible peak, reaching the North Pole or penetrating to the wilds of darkest Africa, the channel swim is one of nature's obstacles which invite the daring of man to overcome and when it is accomplished claims our inborn admiration for the man who can achieve what others may only wonder at.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

One week of the great vacation month gone.

Lloyd George, the human Welsh rarebit, will have a good time when he comes over here. He is so adaptable.

Calvin Coolidge, known as a man of action and few words, now has opportunities for action such as few men ever enjoy.

At the rate some radical senators keep talking it looks as if they had adopted that as the only plan to keep from being forgotten.

The man on the corner says: Whenever the public learns that a grade crossing is a safe place only for trains there may be fewer accidents.

More Scotch emigrants are now coming to the United States than to Canada, perhaps because there are enough golf courses here to make it look like home.

France disclaims all responsibility for the separatist movement in the Rhineland, but hardly conceals her smile of pleasure over the possibility that a large slice of Germany may detach itself from the fatherland.

HE HAD THE GRIP

"Well, well, so you're out again!" rejoiced the Woodlawn man when his friend from Hyde Park sank into the vacant seat beside him on the suburban train. "A cold sure does lay a fellow out when it gets hold of him!"

"Say," the Hyde Park man burst out belligerently, "I don't care for your casual tone. A cold, indeed! I had the grip for the first time in fifteen years and you cannot imagine all the improvements they have made in that time. This certainly is a progressive world with experts on the job every second and whoever is in charge of the grip college for germs is no slouch keeping right up to the minute in all the newest wrinkles for his little charges before turning them loose to make their way in the world.

"To confess there was something reminiscent about the first germ which bit me. On survey there was nothing startling about him, just one of those wild-eyed, nondescript, narrow-shouldered, ill-tempered germs that carry a cake of ice in their claws and run it up and down the spine in an annoying way—just enough to make you shout out irritably and ask who in thunder has left that confounded window open and on a day like this too!

"I fancy he was about the only one left on the bench when the hurry call came, so they let him sort of practice on me. They sent the improved germs subsequently. There were so many of them and I was so occupied in my role as host that their various entrances have become somewhat confused in my mind. I realize that above all things they had been taught concentration during their college course and had it explained to them how every successful germ must hew his own path and stick to it.

"There were three special chaps who must be a source of great pride to their alma mater—I refer to the ones in charge of the pincers, the hammers and the torches." Seen what old Bacilly has been doing since he started up in business?" the callow undergraduate germs would be asking each other excitedly.

"Broke all records—half an hour after he began lighting his torches and waving them around in that fellow's interior he had raised his temperature five degrees without any effort at all! Well have to go some to beat that!' And then everybody would give three cheers for old Bacilly.

"Fat germs and Slivers, the athlete, also came in for enthusiasm. It seems that, rushing in some minutes late after Bacilly had things nicely started, Fat hammered me completely from garret to cellar and so thoroughly that a court of law couldn't have convinced me I wasn't languishing beneath a pile driver or so, with every bone in my body splintered, while Slivers took the nippers and pincers to the nerves and muscles.

"Among them they did get things going properly. They sat around on the footboard and watched the job critically, ready to hop in and add a few free finishing touches for good measure if any dissatisfaction with the service should be expressed.

"I could just hear old Prof. Purple Germ in the classroom droning on about not being afraid to work overtime. 'Never watch the clock,' he would have told them severely. 'Never be afraid to do a little extra, a little more than is expected of you, if you would succeed in your chosen work!' I'll say those boys didn't suffer from fear and they remembered every word he said, is the bargain!

"I wish I knew the name of the one who sailed in after the others had packed up their tools and left. He took whatever it was he worked with, raised it up and slammed me down flatter than a pancake and about as full of pep. News that I had been left a million dollars wouldn't have impelled me to wiggle an eyelash. Knowledge that Imogene had eloped or the bank had blown up would not have interested me one second. Maybe he pushed the Wrigley building over onto me—I dunno. I'm just sort of crawling out from under these days and I'm pretty shaky still. Why, I almost sat down on the lap of the young woman in the end of the car when it lurched as I came in—"

"Was she pretty?" asked the Woodlawn man mechanically.

"Of course she was pretty!" the Hyde Park man said impatiently. "Grip didn't affect my brain and eyesight, you know!"—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Lieut. Gen. Nelson A Miles, U. S. A. retired, who today enters upon his eighty-fifth year, will be remembered as the first volunteer to rise to the command of the United States army. A native of Massachusetts, General Miles at the age of twenty-one gave up his clerkship in a Boston store to go to the front as lieutenant of a Massachusetts regiment of volunteers. His Civil war record was one of unusual brilliance and at the close of the conflict he was mustered out as a major-general of volunteers. He then accepted appointment as a colonel in the regular establishment and during succeeding years he enhanced his military reputation by leading numerous successful campaigns against hostile Indians in the far west. In 1895 he became the active head of the army and continued in that position until he was retired for age in 1905.

Stories That Recall Others

These Doctors

Mother and Jack were walking home from the morning sermon with serious mien and in thoughtful frame of mind. Not so, Jean. Her mind was on earthly things—the flash of her bright red cat, the shadow and play of the wavy feather on her best Sunday bonnet—but she caught Jack's words to his mother.

"Isn't Dr Dunkel wonderful, mother?" he was saying.

"Yes, Jack, he is," was her response.

"Oh, Jack," loftily interrupted Jean, with a sidewise toss of her head and a knowing half-smile. "Why do you call him Dr. Dunkel? You know he doesn't cure us when we are sick."

Mother came in to the rescue. "There are two kinds of doctors, Jean," she said. "One cures our bodies and makes them well. The other cares for our souls."

"Oh, he mends our shoes, doesn't he," and she skipped on ahead as lively as before.

Wives of Famous Men

PENELOPE, WIFE OF ULYSSES

The classic example of wifely fidelity is Penelope, beautiful Greek wife of Ulysses, conqueror of Troy. For 20 years, while her husband was away at the Trojan war, Penelope remained faithful to him, in spite of the frequent report of his death and the importunities of her many suitors. The story of how Penelope outwitted these scheming lovers has been handed down to us by no less a chronicler than Homer, who immortalized her deeds in "The Odyssey."

Famed for her beauty as a girl, Penelope, who was the daughter of Icarius, also a famous Greek, was sought in marriage by scores of the eligible youths of her day. Unable to choose among them herself, she asked her father to decide upon a son-in-law. Icarius determined that the fleetest of foot among the suitors should win his daughters hand, and instituted a foot race, in which Ulysses, the Ithacan, was victorious. Then her father urged her to remain with him, but she accompanied her husband back to Ithaca, where her son, Telemachus was born.

Shortly thereafter Ulysses was called to the seige of Troy. And it was 20 years before he returned. Many times messengers came from Troy bringing reports of his death in battle, and it was not long before the household was overrun by suitors for the hand of the supposed widow. But Penelope was faithful to her husband's memory, and would marry none of them. However, to keep them contented, she said that when she had completed the weaving of an intricately designed shroud she was making for her father-in-law she would choose her next husband.

All day long Penelope would sit in full view of her suitors, weaving industriously at her loom, and still the shroud never seemed any nearer completion. Each night, when the suitors were fast asleep, after their drinking and carousing, she would silently slip to her loom and unravel all the work she had done during the day. Thus she defeated their purpose and kept them in suspense until Ulysses returned from the war, weary and battle scarred. Before he settled down to enjoy his long-deferred domestic happiness, Homer tells us, he killed all the men who had basely taken advantage of his absence.

NEW BOOKS

Jack Gregory. A boy's adventures in the War of the Revolution. By Warren Lee Goss. Illustrated in full colors by H. L. Hastings. 270 pages. Published by Thomas Y. Crowell Company, New York.

Reference has been made already to this latest book by Mr. Goss, which he has dedicated "To my friend and comrade, George L. Buxton, of Norwalk, Conn." Mr. Goss' stories have the faculty of interesting all classes of readers, young and old alike.

Perhaps the outstanding feature of this new book is its naturalness. It does not depict its chief character as a hero. Jack Gregory takes part in the stirring times of the Revolution much as any other young fellow would have done. He relates in the first person many of the incidents, great and small, and succeeds in giving us an intimate picture of the period. The story opens with Jack as a growing lad, impatient of the long, tedious church service, playing hookey in the woods with an Indian companion. He is yet in his teens when the first skirmishes are fought at Concord and Lexington. He takes part in the battle of Bunker Hill. He is sent as a spy into Boston. He becomes an aide to General Washington, and follows his fortunes to Yorktown. It is a story full of action and thrills, and is calculated to give every reader a lesson in patriotism as well as a pleasant hour. Not the least interesting feature is its delineation of the figure of Washington himself, seen, as it were, at close range.

The book is on sale by Cranston & Co.

The Alaskan. A new novel that illuminates Alaskan problems. By James Oliver Curwood. 325 pages. Published by Cosmopolitan Book Corporation, New York.

Curwood is said to have waited ten years to write this story—undoubtedly his finest achievement as the story-teller of the out-of-doors and the far-flung frontiers of civilization.

Woven into Curwood's vivid romance is an exposition of the political conditions in Alaska and an eloquent plea for the salvation of this northern wonderland from the Washington bureaucrats and Wall street capitalists; and, strangely enough for fiction, one of the characters who plays part in the story is Carl Lomen of Nome, a real man, and the reindeer king of the Seward Peninsula.

In "The Alaskan" Curwood portrays with all his old witchery and skill the outdoors he knows and loves. His passion for honor, fairness, square-shouldered manliness, and for the beauty of fair women, makes his characters even more memorable. You will long remember the admiration and respect you feel for Alan Holt; the tenderness you feel for lovely, impetuous Mary Standish. And from this story you will learn something of the injustices which this young empire has known, and something of the fascinating history of the stalwart Americans who first opened "Seward's ice-box."

The plot revolves around a man of mystery who slips into the Canyon of Gold, a vigorous young American who is evidently fleeing something. Up at the end of the trail he meets a girl—"a fragrant blossom of womanhood raised under open skies." She also has her mystery.

Most of the characters are taken from the people Wright knows, to whom the mine is as real as the desert and the sun. He has his love element, his American girl who will touch the hearts of the young men among his readers, as Barbara Worth and Helen touched the hearts of them and their older brothers, the doughboys, who came for his books. He has his message, his desire to help in this book as in the others. He speaks in it to his millions of readers with the same simple clearness, the same passionate conviction, which they expect and from which he cannot depart.

AFTER BABY COMES

Strength Often Returns Slowly

Mothers May Depend Upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to Restore a Normal Condition

Many, many letters similar to the following recommend the Vegetable Compound as a wonderful medicine for bringing the mother back to normal health and strength.

It is an excellent restorative, contains no harmful drugs and can be taken in safety by a nursing mother.

Thousands of mothers who have regained their strength by taking it are its best recommendation. Why not take it yourself?

Could Not Gain Strength

Rock Island, Ill.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a tired, run-down feeling. I was simply tired to death and could not gain strength after my baby came. After a couple of months of worry and overwork I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a tonic as it had often been recommended to me by my friends. I am now able to do my own housework, laundering and sewing, besides taking care of three small children. You may use these facts as a testimonial if you wish."—Mrs. HAZEL CLARK EDWARDS, 411 5th Street, Rock Island, Illinois.

Allentown, Pa.—"After the birth of my girl I was all worn out, without a bit of strength. Nothing helped me until I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Then I picked right up and got strength to do my work. Now with the boy I have no such trouble. I take your medicine right along and won't be without it. I recommended it to a friend of mine, a young girl. She couldn't eat, had no strength and had trouble every month. She is a big strong girl now, and still takes it."—Mrs. JOSEPH S. SMITH, 634 N. Law Street, Allentown, Pa.

Gave Both of Us Strength

Hoosick Falls, N.Y.—"When my girl was born I was a weak run-down woman and very nervous. My husband advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and the Liver Pills and they put me right on my feet. I have just been recommending the Vegetable Compound to my daughter and it has helped her through childbirth. It has given us both health and strength, and if this letter will be of service you can use it anywhere you like."—Mrs. ELIZA MOORE, 48 Classic Street, Hoosick Falls, N. Y.

HAD NERVOUS INDIGESTION

COULD NOT SLEEP—LOST WEIGHT ONLY WINCARNIS HELPED HER

"Let anyone who may question the truth of your claims for Wincarnis come to me and I will soon dispel their doubts.

A year ago I had a very bad spell of nervous indigestion and although my doctor did all he could for me, nothing he gave me relieved me of the dreadful attack.

I lost my appetite, I could not sleep, my nerves got worse and I rapidly lost weight.

I had read about your wonderful tonic Wincarnis and decided to give it a trial. Almost immediately my appetite came back and soon I was able to get a refreshing night's sleep. My nerves grew steady, my indigestion disappeared and I began to put on flesh. In fact, I gained 8 pounds while taking Wincarnis."

MANY BUILDING PERMITS GRANTED PAST YEAR

According to the annual report of Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton a total of 282 building permits were granted for new buildings and alterations during the year ending June 30th. The fire marshal's report, which was presented to the court of common council at its August meeting Monday evening says:

The usual inspection of property in the business district also schools, theatres and public buildings for the purpose of removing hazards to life and property has been continued by members of the fire department. This branch of the service is constantly increasing and only by keeping always on the alert has the department been able to hold the fires and losses down as the records show.

The granting of building permits and the inspection of new construction is also increasing as the number of permits granted will also show. The work is also attended to by the fire marshal.

There were 282 permits granted for new buildings and alterations to buildings during the year ending June 30, 1923, as follows:

New frame houses 57; new brick buildings 7; new brick houses 1; new frame garages, 84; new frame stores, 5, new frame barns, new frame sheds 11; new concrete factories 2; new brick garages 2; new frame factory 1; alterations and additions to frame buildings 86; alterations and additions to brick buildings 22; total 282.

Besides his wife he leaves the following children, Sister Mary Cecelia of the Felician Order at Lodi, N. J., Mrs. Victoria Wawiszynowicz of Norwich, Mrs. Reginia Bushnell of Norwich, Anthony and John Izbicki, both of this city. He also leaves three brothers, Mathew, Zeferyn and Alexander Izbicki of The Plains, Pa., and two sisters, Mrs. Josephine Choladka and Mrs. Melia Jablowski, both of Jersey City, N. J. There are several nephews and nieces. Mr. Izbicki was a member of St. Joseph's church and the St. John society and was one of Norwich's most prominent Polish residents.

Mrs. William C. Osgood

After an illness of several weeks, Frances Griffin, widow of William C. Osgood died Monday at her home in Andover, Mass. Mrs. Osgood was the daughter of Francis and Mary Lord Griffin of Lyme, and was born in that town, spending her early girlhood there. Her parents came to Norwich and she attended and graduated from the Norwich Free Academy. The family home was then on Laurel Hill.

She was united in marriage with William Colt Osgood and they resided in what is now the Elks' home on Main street until they moved to Norwich Town. Several years after the death of Mr. Osgood, with her son, she moved to Andover, Mass., where she made her home.

Surviving are a son, William Colt Osgood of Andover, two sister, Mrs. Brockway of Lawrence, Kansas, and Mrs. Cowles of Norfolk, Conn., and several nephews and nieces.

While in Norwich Mrs. Osgood was a devoted member of the Broadway Congregational church, and served on the Rock Nook Children's Home committee and also in several departments of the United Workers.

Although Mrs. Osgood has been away from Norwich for many years she always retained the love and respect of friends here.

Admired Fanning Park Dahlias

Having been so charmed last season by the beauty of the Fanning Park dahlia gardens of Mrs. Roswell J. Brown, Mr and Mrs. H. C. Newell and friends of Southbridge, Mass., motored to Norwich Monday, to again pay a visit to these attractive gardens.

Fined in City Court

In the city court Tuesday morning three local colored men paid fines and costs aggregating $42.50 for intoxication.

SMALL BOY GROUND TO DEATH IN BEATER AT PAPER MILL

A horrible accident occurred Tuesday evening shortly after 8 o'clock at The Uncas Paper Board company plant in Thamesville when William Slaga, age 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Slaga of 98 Mill street, fell into a beater machine and was ground to bits by the whirling iron knives.

As had been his habit the little boy with his brother and sister had gone to the mill with a lunch for his father who was tending the machine in which the child met his death, and after delivering the dinner box the three children ran upstairs to the paper room on the third floor and ran onto the bales of paper stacked to the ceiling.

Little William was the last one to reach the third floor and according to Frank Miller, who tends to the feeding of the paper down the chutes into the beaters, the boy ran across the floor and not seeing the chute hole in the floor jumped onto a bale of paper, lost his balance and pitched head first down the chute into the beater which was running with a full load at fast speed.

Miller saw the boy fall but was seated about fifteen feet away and was powerless to save the boy from his horrible death but quickly ran down stairs to the beater room shutting to Foreman Michael F. Sweeney to threw off the belt on the No. 6 beater.

Mr. Slaga, who was sitting near the beater, saw something fall out of the chute and disappear into the beater of heavy pulp but thought it was a bale of paper as it disappeared so quickly from his sight. It was not until his daughter and son, screaming to him that William had fallen into the chute, came running into the room, that he realized what happened: but by then the knives, 90 in number, had ground the body into pulp, and the smell of the burning flesh told the story of the fate of the little boy.

The belt of the machine was thrown off and the beater containing about 90 iron knives weighing 30 pounds each, and travelling at a speed of over 100 revolutions a minute, was stopped.

Parts of a hand and foot, pieces of the skull and bits of hair and other parts of the body cut into small bits were recovered from the beater, with a blue shirt, identified by Miller as the shirt the boy was wearing, were recovered and Medical Examiner Gildersleeve gave permission to C. A. Gager to remove the remains to his undertaking rooms on Franklin street.

The tragedy cast a gloom over the entire plant as the boy was a favorite among the men. Everything possible was done by Watchman Covey, Foreman Sweeney and the men in the beater room to render what service they could.

Besides his parents the boy is survived by three sisters and one brother, all of this city.

It was stated that everything possible had been done by Watchman Covey to keep children and outsiders out of the plant but in spite of his efforts they had continued to come into the plant, many times unknown to him.

Medical Examiner Gildersleeve in making his investigation said that conditions in the paper room on the third floor should be changed and that instead of having removable covers on the chutes, the company would be asked to place hinged covers over the openings, which are in some cases only six inches from the floor, and these covers will be kept closed except when the beater down stairs is being fed.

Accidents similar to the one of the Slaga boy have happened at the plant before but have never resulted in so tragic a death. Not long ago one of the workmen fell into one of the chutes and landed in the beater receiving injuries, escaping death simply because the beater was not in operation.

NEEDLESS MIDNIGHT RUN FOR FIRE DEPARTMENT

The fire department was given a needless run at 12.20 o'clock this (Wednesday) morning when someone who saw the glow from the smouldering ruins of the Max Gordon storehouse off Falls avenue pulled in box 14, at Thames square. The recall was sounded a couple of minutes after the box was pulled.

The glow from the storehouse ruins could be plainly seen from all parts of the West Side and from Washington square and whoever pulled in the box evidently saw the deep red glow and was under the impression that a conflagration was in progress.

The ruins have been blazing up at intervals since the fire started shortly before 3 o'clock Tuesday morning, and will probably continue to burn for some time to come. Stored in the building were between 2,000 and 2,500 bales of cotton waste besides a number of old automobile tires. The building was of brick construction and about 200 by 175 feet in size. The loss on the building and contents which were totally destroyed is estimated at $75,000, fully covered by insurance.

The fire must have been burning for several hours before it was discovered for when the firemen arrived the large brick structure was a mass of seething flames. The first indication of a fire in the building was when a telephone call was received at the West Main street station, quickly followed by a bell alarm from box 114, industrial building.

It was evident from the start that the building and contents were doomed. However, two of the pumpers, Engine 6 and Engine 1 were at once put to work and 4,000 feet of hose was laid. This was necessary as the city dump, as the location is known, was so strewn with pipes, old scrap iron and other materials that the apparatus was unable to be moved about. The pumpers were stationed at the edge of the waterfront near the railroad tracks and the lines of hose laid the whole length.

As the companies responding to the alarm left the central part of the city unprotected Chief Stanton had Yantic pumper run to the central station so that it would not be necessary to take the Greeneville company from their station on North Main street. This arrangement gave protection to the central part of the city and did not disturb the Greeneville company.

The recall was sounded at 6 o'clock Tuesday morning. The blaze lighted the sky for miles around and this brought to the scene a large crowd of residents of Norwich and vicinity. The fire was well handled. The only injury was received by Fireman Porter of Engine 5 who had his arm burned from the intense heat as Engine 5 drew up in front of the building. The burns are not of a serious nature, however, and he remained on duty.

NEARLY HAD BAD FIRE AT SILK MILL

During the fire at the Max Gordon warehouse in the rear of the Industrial Building early Tuesday morning the fire department narrowly escaped having another large blaze to fight, one that would have run far into the thousands of dollars.

The watchman at the West Side Silk mill saw the flames shooting to the sky and started to run upstairs to telephone in the alarm. He lost his balance and in tripping, dropped his lighted lantern, the kerosene spilling out onto the floor and immediately catching fire. The watchman succeeded in extinguishing the small fire before it gained any headway.

NORWICH MEN FINED FOR AUTO VIOLATION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Aug. 7.—Philip C. Barry and Joseph Lohn, both of Norwich, were in the police court this morning for violation of the automobile laws, the former for reckless driving and the latter for operating a car without registration. Barry was fined $25 and Lohn was taxed $5. Both paid. An often adjournde case against C. H. Williams, charged with violation of the automobile laws was again continued today. It will be disposed of tomorrow.

EMPLOYE INJURED WHEN MAIN SHAFTING BROKE

Charles Perry an employe at the U. S. Finishing company plant was painfully injured Tuesday morning about 3 o'clock when a piece of the main line shafting broke and flying through the air struck him on the cheek, inflicting a painful gash. Dr. Paul F. Gadle was called and several stitches were necessary to close the wound.

Mr. Perry also received an injured shoulder and bruises about the ankles. He was taken to his home on the East Side where he is resting comfortably.

Annual consumption of smoking tobacco and cigarettes in the Irish Free State is about 7,200,000 pounds.

CITY TO PAY TRIBUTE TO PRESIDENT HARDING

Norwich will be a city in mourning Friday, paying tribute to the memory of President Warren G. Harding, and during the hour of the funeral service at Marion, O., throughout the city heads will be bowed and the wheels of industry and rush of business will come to a standstill.

Mayor Milo R. Waters and First Selectman Casper K. Bailey have issued orders to Joseph J. Fields to have the main portion of the court house draped in mourning, the work being started Tuesday morning after a search for material had resulted in finding sufficient quantities at Sterling. Throughout the country there has been a demand for black goods never before equalled and factories have rushed night and day to turn out the materials, resorting to dyeing materials black to produce the materials in time for the funeral.

At the United Congregational church at 10.30 o'clock Friday morning a suitable union service is to be held and every resident of the city has been invited to attend the service to honor the memory of a man who gave his all to serve his country as its chief magistrate.

Ebenezer Learned, Jr., is to play the favorite hymns of the dead president on Park church chimes during the hour of the funeral at Marion, which is 3 o'clock and Mayor Waters has issued orders that the bell of the court house toll out its beats of sorrow during that hour.

Manufacturing plants will observe the day, many of them closing for the entire day. Business houses will in some cases close for the day or afternoon while others will remain closed during the hour of the funeral.

Races at the fairgrounds scheduled for the Bay State Circuit for Friday have been postponed until Saturday and theatres are expected to darken the screens while final honors are being paid President Harding.

In fact throughout the city a season of prayer will prevail during the hour of the funeral while a sorrowful populace offers up prayer for the late president and appeal to God for divine guidance for a grief stricken land.

PLAYGROUND GIRLS HAVE JOINT OUTING

Tuesday afternoon the girls from the Lake street and Greeneville playgrounds were taken on an outing to which the children had been looking forward with much anticipation. The group left Franklin square at 1.30 o'clock on the Hallville car and then hiked through the cool stretch of pine woods between the state hospital and the Poquetanuck drawbridge. The girls went in bathing and a Norwich woman who happened to be spending the day at the drawbridge took the children out for a row in relays.

While picnic lunches were being eaten in the woods just back of the beach, the instructors taught an informal lesson in botany. Something unusual in the way of entertainment was furnished by little Jennie Gromko, of Greeneville, who sang several songs in both Polish and English.

While waiting for the car, the instructors ran off several obstacle races and the children competed in standing and running broad jumps. The party returned to the city about 6.30.

COMMUNITY CHURCH SERVICE FOR PRESIDENT HARDING

Plans are being made for a community church service in Norwich on the day of President Harding's funeral. It is expected to hold this in the United Congregational church at some hour on Friday which is yet to be determined upon by those who are planning the arrangements and it is anticipated that all the churches in the city will unite in the service at which Rev. Dr. David A. Pitt of the Central Baptist church will officiate.

Definite announcement of the time of the service will be made in The Bulletin Friday morning.

MASSAPEAG COUPLE OBSERVE GOLDEN WEDDING DAY

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nelson Rogers of Massapeag was the scene of a gathering of relatives and many friends Tuesday the occasion being the golden wedding anniversary of the happy couple.

Over 100 people visited the Rogers home during the day and offered congratulations and the couple received numerous remembrances. Relatives and friends were present during the day from New York, New Haven, Sound View, R. I., New London, Norwich and other cities.

The house was attractively decorated for the occasion by Mrs. Frederick C. Rogers and Mrs. Richard Johnson, a beautiful effect being derived by use of ox-eyed daisies, golden rod, golden glow, yellow dahlias and ferns, symbolic of the golden anniversary. Arrangements for the anniversary were made by Miss Marion E. Monroe, of New London, a granddaughter and Miss Agnes Rogers of New London, a niece.

Charles Nelson Rogers was born at Massapeag on February 21, 1851, the son of Captain Benjamin and Sarah Hartson Rogers and has resided in Massapeag practically his whole life. At the early age of 13, with his father, he shipped aboard a sailing vessel and for 19 years followed the sea. His knowledge of the old sealing and whaling days is broad and he was with a number of crews who sailed from New London in those days far into the Arctic Ocean.

Giving up the sailors life Mr. Rogers accepted a position at Allyn's Point and for 38 years was engineer at the Point retiring from business about three years ago because of his health.

On August 7, 1873, he was united in marriage with Eva Parthenia Champlin, daughter of Frederick and Elizabeth Richards Champlin, who was born at Massapeag on July 28, 1853. The service took place at the home of her sister, Mrs. Elliot Dolbeare of Montville Center. Rev. Daniel D. Lyons, pastor of the Baptist church of Palmertown officiating. Mrs. Rogers taught school in Mohegan previous to her marriage.

From this union there were two children, Florence M., and Frederick C. Rogers. Florence M. Rogers was married to Louis E. Monroe of Waterford. She died on May 21, 1900.

Frederick C. Rogers was married to Nancy L. Johnson of Montville, and is now owner and proprietor of Rogers Laundry of this city. They have one daughter, Florence Hilda Rogers now spending the summer in Maine.

One grandchild, Floyd Monroe, son of Louis E. Monroe, has one child, a daughter, June Florence Monroe. There is also a granddaughter, Marion Monroe, daughter of Louis E. Monroe.

Mr. and Mrs. Rogers are enjoying good health and their many friends wish them many more years of happy married life.

FIRE LOSS IN CITY ONLY $49,513.30 PAST YEAR

The total fire loss in Norwich for the twelve months ending June 30th was $49,513.30, according to the annual report of the fire chief, Howard L. Stanton which was presented to the court of common council at its August meeting Monday evening. This figure includes the loss on buildings and contents, the loss on buildings being $13,070.19 and the loss on contents $36,438.11. The insurance paid on the total fire loss was $49,213.30 making the total loss over insurance $200. Insurance paid on buildings totalled $12,870.19 and insurance paid on contents amounted to $36,443.11. Considering the fire record of the last 23 years the loss during the past year is comparatively small.

Total at risk, buildings and contents, $2,011,912; total insurance carried on buildings and contents, $1,636,036; total insurance paid on buildings and contents, $49,313.30; total fire loss, insured and uninsured, $49,613.30; total loss above insurance (buildings), $200; loss above insurance (contents), none; total loss above insurance (buildings and contents), $200.

COMMISSIONER DENIES CLAIM FOR COMPENSATION

A claim for compensation made by William J. O'Connor of Old Mystic against the Mystic Woolen Company, of Old Mystic, is denied in a decision handed down by Compensation Commissioner James J. Donohue and filed Monday with the clerk of the superior court in this city. The hearing was held in the commissioner's office in the Central building July 31st.

The claimant alleged that on April 16th last he pierced his left thumb with a pin and claimed that the injury occurred while he was engaged in his duties at the plant. At the hearing it was found that the claimant continued at work until April 27th at which time he quit work because of an ailment not connected in any way with his employment and he admits, according to the finding, that the claimed injury to his thumb had nothing to do with his quitting at that time.

April 27th the claimant consulted a physician on his own account and on account of the ailment for which he had quit work on the previous day. It is found that the claimant was treated for this ailment which continued for two or three days only, after receiving medical attention.

From the testimony of the medical attendant it was found that the claimant first mentioned to him the thumb trouble on May 1st at which time an infection was in progress and after treating him for a few days the claimant went to a hospital in New London for further treatment.

It was found that the claimant returned to his home town after about seven weeks in the hospital and was again treated by the physician consulted in the first instance until he was able to resume work on July 16th. From the evidence it is found that at no time while employed by the respondent company did the claimant notify the employer or person representing the company.

Because of the fact that the claimant did not report any injury the employer had no opportunity to furnish medical, surgical and hospital service as stipulated by the compensation act. The finding also states that the claimant failed to sustain the burdon of proof of having received an injury arising out of any in the course of his employment. Because of the facts cited above the compensation commissioner disallowed the claim.

HOW TO FORGET TROUBLES

TROUBLES knock up your system like Jack Dempsey knocks down his opponent.

Troubles deal blows both in the head and stomach—and they hurt the stomach more than they do the head!

Troubles give the stomach indigestion, slow up the liver—and then follow constipation and billousness.

The way to get rid of troubles is to invigorate digestion, stimulate liver and bowels and tone up the entire system. The best way to do this—has been for the past 80 years—is to take Beecham's Pills.

Then you will feel so good that "troubles" become merely problems, to be solved readily by the clear, keen brain of health.

LOST HOME WHILE ON VISIT TO OLD LYME

Ellington, Aug. 7.—Returning from a week-end trip to Old Lyme Sunday, W. C. Maynard, manager of the Liedman Brothers farm, situated in an isolated spot about two miles from here, found the farmhouse and barn with the contents of each wiped out by fire. The loss is estimated at $6,000. Mr. Maynard and his family went to Old Lyme, Saturday, and left a workman in the house. The employe was awakened from sleep shortly after 1 o'clock Sunday morning and finding the barn and house ablaze, he had barely time enough to flee with his clothes. There was no way of fighting the blaze and the buildings and contents were destroyed.

The fire started in the barn in an undetermined manner and quickly spread to the house which was adjacent. The neighbors did not know of the destruction until Sunday afternoon. The house is insured but the furniture and farm implements were not covered. The stock was not in the barn at the time of the blaze

FIELD DAY FOR NEW LONDON COUNTY FARMERS

Wednesday, August 22 is the date named for the annual field day of the New London County farmers, according to an announcement made Monday from the office of the New London County Farm Bureau in this city. Some of the features of the day's outing will be demonstrations on practical poultry management; up-to-date practices with old orchards; water, heat, light and labor saving devices in farm homes; potato demonstrations, showing what makes the big yields; how to get a garden spot out of a swamp by draining; diversity in farm business.

Tuberculosis Conference.

Decision has been reached by the six state tuberculosis organizations represented to hold the New England Tuberculosis Conference this year in Worcester, and the dates were announced at the office of the state tuberculosis commission as September 12 and 13.

The conference will take place in connection with the celebration by the state of Massachusetts of the 25th anniversary of the founding of the Rutland Sanatorium, the first state sanatorium established in America.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

President A. L. Reed of the Danielson Chamber of Commerce announced Tuesday morning that Danielson stores will close Friday noon for the remainder of the day, in respect to the memory of President Warren G. Harding. Stores will also close as usual Thursday afternoon to allow clerks their weekly half-holiday, Mills in and around Danielson will close all day Friday in observance of the day of mourning for the president.

Night Officer Arthur Deforest, a member of the police department since last October, tendered his resignation to Chief of Police John McFarland Monday night to take effect Sunday morning. The reason given by Officer Deforest for giving up police work is that he has been offered a better position as electrician. No new patrolman has been chosen yet to take his place.

The funeral of Dora Reynolds, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Reynolds took place Monday afternoon in the Westfield Cemetery. Funeral arrangements were in charge of L. E. Kennedy.

Merrill Gallup, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gallup of Broad Street, recently arrived at Long Beach, Cal. Mr. Gallup with some friends from Brattleboro, Vt., made the cross-country tour by automobile and stopped at all points of intereat.

The burial of Edmond Guilbeault of Moosup took place Tuesday morning in St. Mary's cemetery in Jewett City. Services were held in the All Hallows' church, Moosup, by Rev. Fr. McCarthy. Collins and Norman. The bearers were Maxim Gaudreau, Theodore Willette, Joseph Zicerelle and Oliver Rolin. The funeral arrangements were in charge of L. E. Kennedy.

Quinebaug Pomona Grange is to hold a field day and picnic at Bates' Grove on Webster Lake, near Webster, Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dixon and Kermit Dixon are spending this week at their cottage at Crescent Beach.

At a session of the Town Court Tuesday morning, Eddie John, of Willimantic, was fined $100 and costs, the total amount paid being $109.74. Judge Fenner Woodward penalized John for operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor.

At a meeting of the borough of Danielson held Monday evening, at which only eight out of approximately five hundred taxpayers were present, it was voted to raise the borough tax rate from nine to thirteen mills. The meeting was called to order by moderator Elbert Darbie, and the usual reports were read. The cost of the new sewers was reported as follows: Mechanics Street $8,000; Maple, Carter and Broad Street, $5,800; Library repairs $300; Budget would require amount to be raised $22,432.55; total $36,532.55.

The construction of the new sewers is the principal reason for the tax rate increase. The increase in the assessment of taxes is only $15,075. This is chiefly in the several new houses that have been built.

The Union Federation of churches is to hold its next meeting Sunday evening in the Baptist church. Mrs. Ada Holden Miller of Providence, a talented singer will be heard. Raymond Preston will be accompanist.

PUTNAM

A twenty-four hour whirlwind courtship, a deserted husband, a united pair, another storm and then a crash that smashed a well known Putnam romance to pieces and landed the young husband in jail, Tuesday morning—such is in substance the result of the matrimonial venture of Dewy Tetreault, at the time of his twenty-four hour courtship, a waiter in a Front street restaurant, and Miss Margaret Bogardus, who worked in a bakery next door.

His ardor having somewhat cooled, the husband failed to furnish support for his wife. The wife complained to the authorities and the husband was summoned to court. When asked if he was working the husband said he was not. When asked why not, he replied that he didn't want to. When informed that unless he agreed to give his wife $5 a week he would have to go to jail for six months he replied: "All right, send me to jail!" Although his friends gathered about him and advised him to remain a free man he was obdurate and, after bidding all good bye, was taken to the Brooklyn jail by Constable Peter Gardner.

Tetreault for a number of years was employed by the American Railway Express company. During the war he enlisted in the United States navy and after his discharge had worked off and on in various jobs about the city. It was less than a year ago that he was employed as a waiter in the restaurant on Front street and met his fate in Miss Bogardus. Within twenty four hours they were man and wife and ate their wedding supper in the restaurant where the bridegroom worked.

It was a surprise when, within a few weeks, it was learned that the romance was badly cracked and the wife left the city. In the next chapter the couple were reunited and thi ssituation lasted for a short while, when it became known that the matrimonial sea had again become rough. After some months suddenly the bridegroom appeared in the prisoners' dock in the city court and was led away to jail rather than turn over a five-spot once in seven days to the lady who converted him into a benedict in a few short hours.

At the weekly dinner of Putnam Rotarian club today (Wednesday) noon plans will be perfected for the outing at Crescent Beach on Thursday. The club will be guests of H. H. Davenport of Pomfret, state supervisor of road construction in this section, at his summer cottage at the beach.

State's Attorney and Mrs. Charles E. Searls, of Thompson, left by motor Tuesday morning to spend a week at the Hawthorne Inn, East Gloucester, Mass. From there they will go to the New Ocean House at Swampscott for two weeks, returning home about the 25th of this month.

Under the new law passed by the last general assembly the September term of the Windham county superior court will be a criminal session instead of a civil session as heretofore. Court will be held in Willimantic the first Tuesday in September, Judge Jennings presiding.

On account of the state of mourning for President Harding, the committee of the Putnam Chamber of Commerce has decided to postpone the weekly band concert this (Wednesday) evening. There will be a concert as usual next Wednesday evening, for which the Wauregan band has been secured.

Franklin and Myron Perry, Sydney Keith, William Aldrich and Nelson King, Putnam boys, loaded with knapsacks containing provisions in the event the fish did not bite, and carrying pup tents and cooking utensils, left Putnam Monday morning and hiked seven miles to Quadic pond where they camped for the night. On Tuesday they broke camp, reaching Putnam in the evening.

State road construction from Putnam to Pomfret railroad station is completed as far as the Gary schoolhouse, the Putnam town line. Work is now going on between this point and Pomfret street and on Pomfret hill. There is an unfinished stretch in the vicinity of the Little River bridge and it is understood that a change in the roadway is to be made at this point. This has been stated by the contractor but he says that only the state highway commissioner knows just what the change is to be. It will result in straightening out the road and eliminate a dangerous curve near the present narrow bridge over the river. Tons and tons of crushed rock for the work now going on is secured from the miles of old stone walls surrounding the E. C. Rogers farm, all of which are being torn down and carried to the stone crusher.

Katherine Johnson, 52, wife of John Johnson, of Brandy hill, in the town of Thompson, is on the danger list at the Day Kimball hospital following an operation for internal injuries caused by falling against a stone step during the fire at the Withy farm on Monday afternoon. Mrs. Johnson was helping take furniture from the house after it caught fire from the barn. With her hands full of personal effects of the Withey family, she fell and came down full force on the corner of a stone cap on the step. It was not thought that she was seriously injured at first but she began to suffer intense pain and was removed to the hospital where the operation was performed Tuesday.

NOANK

A new motor driven apparatus has been ordered and is due to arrive here about September 1. The new fire fighter consists of a Republic 2 1-2 ton completely equipped with Firsch triple combination pumper and chemicals. The pumper furnishes 270 gallons per minute at 120-pound pressure, but is capable of doing very much more. There are two 35-gallon chemical tanks. Of the money necessary for the machine $2,500 was raised by a fair which the company held in the spring. The residents of Groton Long Point donated $1,000 and the rest is being raised by subscription among the townspeople. The members of the soliciting committee, are Charles MacDonald, H. H. Park, John Ellis, Walter Palmer, Walter Wolverton, Frank Bacci, Floyd Thompson, W. A. Cook and L. L. Smith.

The members of the Groton Long Point club are making preparations to have a regatta August 11 as in former years. Prizes will be awarded the successful contestants at the dance in the evening. The committee in charge of the programme consist of R. B. Shattuck, chairman, Earl Chase and Gurdon Hoopes. Aug. 18, the following Saturday, an automobile parade will take place, and on that evening a band concert at the board walk will be followed by dancing at the casino. The same committee will have charge of this event.

JEWETT CITY

Agreeable to the proclamation of President Coolidge, Jewett City has decided upon a definite plan for Friday, at which time fitting honors will be paid the memory of the president. There will be services at St. Mary's church at 7, standard time. The funeral in Marion, Ohio, will take place at 3 p. m., central standard time, and at 4 eastern standard time (allowing for the one hour difference), there will be a public service in the Congregational church, which will be addressed by Rev. Howard Stephenson, pastor of the church.

In accordance with the recommendation of Warden Matthew Geary, the bells of the borough will toll from 4 until 4.05, and business of all kinds will cease. The Aspinook Co., The Ninigret Co., The Ashland Cotton Co., The Textile Novelty Co., and The A. B. Burleson Co., will not turn a wheel all day.

Several of the stores have signified their intention to close all day Friday, keeping open Thursday afternoon and evening. The post office will close at 7 a. m. standard time and open at 5 p. m. standard time. The lobby will be open at 10 standard.

In regard to the services to be held at 4 standard time at the Congregational church this decision was made because Mr. Stephenson is the only Protestant pastor who is at present in the borough. A. C. Burdick and A. M. Brown, representing respectively the Methodist and Baptist churches are in favor of these arrangements being made. It is possible (if plans can be perfected) that Dr. G. H. Jennings, commander of Orville La Flemme post, American Legion, may arrange for a squad from the Legion, who will fire the official 21 guns at David Hale Fanning park at the close of the services in the church.

WESTERLY

Convincing proof of the acute need for a hospital in Westerly was made public this week in the announcement that on a single day a few weeks ago there were thirty-eight people from Westerly and vicinity in the hospitals of New London, Norwich and Providence.

This fact was discovered by Doctor Henry L. Johnson, who was curious to know what demands for service will have to be met by the new community hospital, to be built by popular subscription. He therefore made an informal telephone survey, finding thirty-eight persons who, he said, would undoubtedly have come to a local hospital had it been built.

"Moreover," he added, "it is safe to assume that there were at least a dozen more in this district who ought to have been in hospitals, most of whom would have come to a local hospital if there had been one to receive them."

Dr. Johnson picked the day for his survey entirely at random and at a healthy season of the year.

When a hospital is 80 per cent. full it is considered running up to its proper normal capacity, because some ward beds and private rooms must be kept ready for emergency cases, and because patients never come to a hospital in the exact proportion which exists between the capacity of the children's ward, men's ward, women's ward, maternity ward, semi-private rooms, private roms, etc., so that while some departments are full others are perhaps half full. It has been found that to run a hospital over about 80 per cent. of its maximum capacity means that patients must be turned away, occasionlly or frequently according as the percent of occupancy rises over 80 and approaches 100.

Since the new community hospital is to have fifty-one beds, 80 per cent. of its maximum capacity would be about forty-one beds, which would leave just three beds to spare after admitting the thirty-eight persons, who, Doctor Johnson found, would come to the local hospital if it were built. This of course does not take into consideration those who, he pointed out, were in their own homes, but most of whom would have gone to a local hospital.

TEN GOOD HINTS FOR RADIO LISTENERS

There are ten good rules for broadcast listeners:

1.—Don't try to hear Australia in late summer. Be satisfied to enjoy the nearer stations most of the time.

2.—Don't be disappointed if an occasional storm interferes with your summer radio evening. You can't expect a record-breaking concert every night.

3.—If you want louder signals, use a longer aerial, more tubes, higher plate voltage, more sensitive loud speakers, and more careful tickler and receiver adjustment.

4.—A pleasant signal filling a moderate size room should be enough to give satisfaction. It is wasteful to insist on tremendous signals.

5.—If your local station comes in too loudly and drowns others out, a smaller aerial will help in tuning him out, with a smaller condenser connected between aerial and ground. And if all measures to get rid of the local station fail, enjoy his concerts.

6.—For the new longer waves above 450 meters, use a condenser connected between the aerial and the ground terminals of your set.

7.—A little patience in learning to handle your receiver yields rich returns in satisfaction from fine signals.

8.—It is a good idea to read the radio column of a newspaper or a good radio magazine or two. It helps you to know how your set works and keeps you up-to-date in radio. Information of this sort is an aid in getting the concerts loud and clear.

9.—Ask your radio dealer for advice; the manufacture of your set is also willing to help you.

10.—Do not throw away the direction sheets or booklet that came with your set and with the tubes. The direction sheets must answer most of the questions which have been puzzling you and preventing you from getting the best out of your set.

What Other Cities Do

Los Angeles has purchased a thousand-acre farm and disposes of its garbage by irrigation. The sewage is treated, then used with the water for irrigation. Five hundred and fifty acres are now under cultivation and exceptionally large yields of potatoes have been produced. It is said that the sale of the water for irrigation will pay for the plant and leave a profit for the city.

The Worcester Spinning Corporation is incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts to spin the degummed rhea fibre into various sizes and qualities of yarns, as required by the textile trade.

A new textile industry was started by the rediscovery of the Egyptian Art of degumming the vegetable fibre known as Rhea. This plant was originally a native of Egypt and the garments worn by the ancient Egyptian nobility were woven from this fabric. The Rhea tree now grows very extensively in Egypt, India, China, Strait Settlements and Japan. This fibre when properly degummed has greater strength and luster than hemp, flax, silk, or any other known textile material. In addition to its wonderful qualities when spun and woven alone, it also lends itself effectively to combination with silk, wool, camels hair and other textile fibres.

This Corporation is the first and only organization in America devoted exclusively to the spinning of this fibre.

"The Story of Rhea" was told in the June and July issues of our pamphlet "Scraps from an Investor's Notebook." Copies of these pamphlets will be mailed gratis upon request.

NEW LONDON DRUG ADDICT MAY BE SENT TO NORWICH HOSPITAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Aug. 7.—The funeral of Miss Sarah Elizabeth Robinson, was held this morning at 11 o'clock at No. 4 Shapley street, the services being conducted by Rev. Frederick W. Haist, rector of Seabury Memorial church, Groton. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

The funeral of Rose, widow of Stepney Wilder, of Richards street, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at No. 43 Shapley street. The services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Frances of the A. M. E. Zion church. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Miss Elizabeth Nahass of Main street, Master Charles Traymont of Woodbridge street, Miss May Gerard of Stafford Springs, James Lewis of Long Island and Thomas Branch of the U. S. S. Camden were patients discharged at Lawrence hospital today.

Mrs. Louis Solomon of No. 79 Ocean avenue, complained to the police this noon that during last night clothes line thieves visited the yard and stole bathing apparel.

Percy C. Eggleston, executor and trustee of the estate of Arthur H. Eggleston, today sold the residence No. 99 Willetta avenue to Archibald S. MacFarlane.

A petition nominating Cornelius D. Twomey as member of the city was received at the office of the city clerk this afternoon. The petition was circulated by Thomas H. Murray.

Former Patrolman Timothy F. Sheehan, whose death occurred suddenly of heart trouble at his home No. 16 Crocker street yesterday afternoon is survived by five children, three sons, Stephen S., Joseph C. and Harold T., and two daughters, Misses Agnes V. and Nellie L. Sheehan, all of New London. A sister, Mrs. Ellen Sullivan, also of this city, survives.

Orville G. Andrews of No. 311 Linden street, who is having a house erected at No. 39 Gorton street, today complained to the police that yesterday seven or eight loads of loam were stolen from the Gorton street property. Sergeant Nelson Smith determined that Michael Robilla, of Waterford, caused the loam to be carted away and that he disposed of it to the city for filling purposes at the new school house, in course of construction at the corner of Riverview avenue and Alger street. Robilla promised to cart the loam back to the Gorton street land, to avoid prosecution.

Walter Hick, an engineer in the employ of the Central Vermont railroad company, was arrested yesterday, when his wife complained of his conduct toward her. He is said to have the drug habit. In the police court this morning he was like a wild man and sought to do himself bodily harm. He removed the iron grating of the prisoners' box with his head and scratched his face so that he bled freely. Two officers were put into the box with him and then he was taken from the room and into a cell until such a time as he could be transferred to the state hospital for the insane at Norwich. The couple own real estate and have one child. The couple have been industrious and frugal until the habit of narcotics seized Hick.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Williams of No. 696 Bank street, observed the fourth anniversary of their wedding at their home last evening, entertaining a number of intimate acquaintances.

John (Buck) Falvey of No. 17 Glover court, freight brakeman, is confined to his home because of severe bruises sustained Monday at Noank. Falvey was riding a shunted car and in applying the brakes missed his footing and fell. His legs struck the draw bar, causing his to be thrown from in front of the moving car. Falvey is well known to the sporting fraternity, having performed in the ring several times at New London boxing contests.

Timothy M Sullivan has returned home, after spending a year and a half with relatives in Ireland. He was accompanied home by his brother, Michael, who will make a visit in New London.

A solemn high mass of requiem for the repose of the soul of Rev. Dominic Brown, whose death occurred a month ago, was offered this morning at 8 o'clock at St Mary's Star of the Sea church and was largely attended. Rev. Timothy M. Crowley was celebrant, Rev. Alexander Wolhaehlaer, deacon and Rev. John McGrath sub-deacon.

Following the custom of retiring mayors of New London, the portrait of ex-Mayor E. Frank Rogers was hung on the wall of the municipal building this forenoon. The picture is an excellent likeness of Mr. Morgan and occupies a space close to ex-Mayor Rogers, his predecessor. There are about thirty portraits of ex-mayors on the walls of the two upper corridors.

E. M. Dyer, 76, of Westerly, is at Home Memorial hospital, having been removed to the institution this morning, following an acute attack of indigestion at union station. Dyer, who was awaiting the arrival of a train home, suffered the attack on the platform and when other passengers were attracted to him, one of these, Dr. Carroll of Holyoke, Mass., who administered temporary treatment to Dye, and advised that he be taken to a hospital. The ambulance was summoned and Motorcycle Officer John Cavanaugh accompanied the man to the institution. He will probably be sent home within a day or two.

Frederick Leroy, the four months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Glynn, 193 Willetta avenue, died Monday afternoon.

The little son of Mr. and Mrs. Meyer H. Hollandersky, who has been critically ill with pneumonia at the Hollandersky summer home at the Pequot, is now out of danger.

The funeral of Mrs. Rachel Anderson, widow of William M. Anderson was held this morning at No. 15 Masonic street, the services being conducted by Rev. Sinclair Grimstead, pastor of Shiloh Baptist church. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Elizabeth, 59, widow of John Nagle, died this morning at her home, 229 Broad street, after a long illness. Mrs. Nagle was a native of Ireland, had spent her childhood days in New York, but had resided in New London many years. She is survived by seven children, Mrs. Edward McInnis, Misses Helen G., Anna, Katherine N., Winifred T., and James Nagle of New London and Miss Elisabeth Nagle of Willimantic. There are four grandchildren also a sister, Mrs. Hannah Hopkins of New York.

The blood was furnished by Frank Robertson, a nephew, of Yonkers, N. Y. Mr. Robertson has been anaemic a long time. Relatives of Mr. Robertson, including William and James Robertson of Pottsville, Pa., Mrs. James Robertson and daughters, Misses Julia and Maude Rogers of Yonkers have arrived in New London.

Merchants on Green street evidently believe that they can put a stop to the parking of automobiles on that thoroughfare for in two instances they have caused lettering to be placed on the west side of the street informing motorists that no parking is allowed.

It is probable that the city of New London will be made the defendant in two suits for damages for last night two women, identity not established, fell on the steps at the Hempstead street entrance to Williams Memorial park because no light is stationed there.

On Bank street last night, the New England fruit store was entered by a rear window, which was smashed. Nothing of value was found as the crooks had their work for naught. The other place burglarized was the store of Genaro De Luca, at No. 434. Entrance was gained by a rear door being forced with a jimmy. The plunder obtained there consisted of $3, a gold filled watch, the property of De Luca's son and five cartons each of three brands of cigarettes.

An automobile owned by Louis Kaplan, and operated by a man named Clay, collided with a machine owned and driven by Donald M. Sarton this evening at the corner of Main and Williams street, the latter car being damaged.

Clay was supposed to operate the machine to Kaplan's place of business, but instead he went for a ride and it was while doing so that the collision occurred. Clay was sought by the police but could not be located.

Miss Adelaide Murray, daughter of Mayor John F. Murray parked her machine in the rear of the National Bank of Commerce late this afternoon and while away from the car, a thief entered and stole her operator's license and registration. Miss Murray reported the theft to the police.

Premier And Cabinet Out

Prime Minister Sir Richard A. Squires, of Newfoundland, who has sent in his resignation following sensational disclosures of corruption in certain branches of his administration. The entire Cabinet goes out with Squires. When elected he was known as the youngest Prime Minister in the British Empire, being only 29 years old. The reason for the resignation were charges made against the Department of Agriculture and Mines for extravagant expenditures.

AMERICAN EGGS INVADING WORLD MARKET

The cackle of the American hen reverberates throughout the entire world and with constantly increasing intensity. The total number of eggs sent out of continental United States in the fiscal year which ends with June 1923, will approximate a half billion with a value of approximately $12,000,000, and will show a larger total than in any preceding year with the possible exception of one of the war years, when demands from Europe were exceptionally heavy and especially for the class of foods consumed in camps and on the battlefields. The present high record of exports, however, is in response to normal calls from all parts of the world.

Figures compiled for the Trade Record of the National City Bank of New York indicate that the growth in the exportation of this factor of our food supply has been exceptionally rapid in recent years. In the year preceding the war, the total exports of eggs were 17½ million dozen with a value of $3,308,000, while that of the fiscal year 1923 will be approximately 39,000,000 dozen, and if we include those sent to our own colonies but not included as "exports" the number will exceed 40 million dozen, or 480 million eggs passing out of continental United States in the natural form. Add to this $100,000 worth going under the classification "eggs and yokes frozen, dried or canned" and it is quite apparent that the total distribution from our ports in the year which ends with June, 1923, will be fully a half billion in number with a value of fully $13,000,000. The value of the eggs sent out of the United States in the last decade, adds the Trade Record, is nearly $100,000,000 as against $20,000,000 in the decade preceding the war.

Where do they go? To every continent and all of the island colonies of the world. While the figures of distribution by countries are not yet available for the current fiscal year, those for 1918, the former high record year, show eggs sent in the natural form to 26 countries, while those in the "dried, frozen or canned" state went in 1920 to no less than 46 countries, colonies and islands, representing all of the grand divisions of the world.

OUR RUBBER IMPORTS IN 1923 MAKE NEW HIGH RECORD

Announcement of an organization of rubber manufacturers of the United States "to look after the problems of rubber manufacturer and to especially prevent any artificial regulation of prices" lends interest to some figures compiled for the Trade Record of The National City Bank of New York showing the tremendous growth in rubber consumption in the United States in the last dozen years and the simultaneous fall in price.

Rubber importations save the Trade Record, which amounted to only 73,000,000 pounds in 1911, will show a total of approximately 775,000,000 pounds in the fiscal year which ends with the current month or more than 10 times as much in the fiscal year 1923 as in 1911. On the other hand prices at the present time are far below those of 1911, in which year the average import price was $1.05 per pound, in the fiscal year 1922 15c per pound, and in the 9 available months of the fiscal year 17c per pound.

The quantity of rubber brought into the United States in the last dozen years is 14,364,000,000 pounds, and the value nearly $2,000,000,000. The imports of the fiscal year 1923 are larger in quantity than those of any other year in the history of the rubber trade, having been approximately 775,000,000 pounds against 558,000,000 in 1922, and 632,000,000 in the high record year for 1920. This tremendous growth is largely due to the increased use of the automobile, which utilizes fully three-fourths of the rubber imported into the United States, and as this country imports fully three-fourths of the rubber produced in the world we may assume, says the Trade Record, that the American automobile utilizes over one-half of the ruber of the world. Exports of rubber manufactures have grown from $10,000,000 in 1910 to approximately $36,000,000 in 1923.

A very large proportion of this enormous and constantly increasing quantity of rubber which we import comes half way round the world to get to our factories, for the Malayan Peninsula and Dutch East Indian island, which produce the bulk of the world's plantation rubber, are nearly opposite us on the other side of the globe. The large proportion of our rubber imports now coming from the plantation of the Orient is illustrated by the fact that of the 669,000,000 pounds imported in the 9 months ending with March, 401,000,000 came from the British East Indies, 82,000,000 from the Dutch East Indies and 24,000,000 from Brazil, while of the 29,000,000 coming from England and 8,350,000 from Netherlands a large proportion is the product of their oriental colonies.

MARKET WAS STRONG

Short interests continued to furnish most of the buying power but commission houses reported a substantial increase in odd lot orders from small investors who favored the seasoned dividend paying issues. Steels, motors, motor accesdories, coppers and most of the rails and other standard shares moved to higher ground despite the sporadic selling of some of the cheap oil, leathers and a few specialties.

Several favorable earnings reports made their appearance during the day and had a beneficial effect on sentiment. These included the semi-annual statements of the Otis Steel Company, which showed net operating profits of $1,068,560 as against a deficit of $229,861 in the first six months of last year; the Maxwell Motors Corporation which showed net profit of $3,072,532 for six months ended June 30 as compared with net profits of $2,018,266 during the entire year of 1922 and Mack Trucks, Inc., which earned $4,044,478 net as against $1,570,632 in the first half of 1922. In addition, current American Can earnings were reported at the rate of $32 a share and those of Jones Bros. at $12 a share, buying of these two stocks being accompanied by rumors of an increase in dividends before the end of the year.

American Locomotive touched a new top at 44 3-4 but reacted later to 73 1-2, up 1-8. Baldwin closed 1 1-8 higher at 114 1-8. U. S. Steel moved up 3-4 to 88 7-8, and American Can was pushed up nearly to 160 3-4. Selling of the later issues was founded on the poor quarterly report of American Hide and Leather which showed a deficit of $19,134 compared with a deficit of $12,204 in the corresponding period of last year.

Strength of the northwestern rails, which had been heavily sold in recent weeks, was the feature of the trading in carrier issues. St. Paul common and preferred, Great Northern preferred, Northern Pacific, Union Pacific and Chicago Northwestern all gained 1 1-4 to 2 points. Erie issues also made good gains on reports of high current earnings.

Foreign exchanges were again heavy, German marks being quoted at 23 cents a million, an over-night depreciation of 50 per cent. Demand sterling dropped half a cent to $4.56 and French francs dropped 3 points to 5.74 cents. Heaviness of the exchanges was predicted on reports of an imminent collapse in Germany following disorders in Dresden and other cities.

Call money held at ¾ 3-4 per cent. all day. Time money business was quiet but the market presented a somewhat firmer undertone with all maturities quoted at 5 1-4 per cent. Commecial paper was still quoted at 5 per cent. for the best names.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Aug. 7.—With a majority of traders rightly expecting that the government crop report would prove bullish, the wheat market today scored a moderate advance in price. Closing quotations were firm, quarter a 3-8 to 5-8 cent net higher, September 97 1-8 a 1-4 to 97 1-4 and December 100 5-8 to 100 3-4. Corn finished unchanged to 1-4 cent up, oats at a shade decline to a like advance, and provisions with 2 cents to 20 cents gain.

At first, the wheat market had no decided trend, and business was largely restricted to evening up of open accounts. Gradually, however, it became evident that sentiment was leaning to the bull side, and that a material reduction was generally looked for in the government estimate of wheat yield as compared with the forecast issued a month ago. Besides, messages from Illinois points indicated that wheat receipts at Chicago were likely to diminish in the near future. The chief reason given was that Illinois and Southwestern farmers were holding as much wheat off the market as possible.

Nearly all of the price upturns were held at the finish, aided more or less by continued reports of damage from rust in Canada. On the other hand, export inquiry remained slow, but this circumstance was met with assertions that before another crop all the wheat in the United States would be needed for domestic consumers. Lower quotations from Liverpool were ignored and premiums here for spot wheat were firm.

Corn and oats were steadied by the firmness of wheat notwithstanding rains benefitting the corn crop and despite current belief that the government report would be bearish as to corn and oats.

BOND MARKET

New York, Aug. 7.—Bond prices ruled slightly irregular. The four Liberty issues of the United States government were traded in actionally, while the tax exempt 3 1-2's were unchanged and the treasury 4 1-4's eased 1-32 of a point.

In the railroad group the Erie railroad issues were unusually active, the first Consolidated 4's advancing 1 1-8, the Convertible 4's, Series A, 2, Series B, 2 and Series D, 2 1-8. Several other railroad mortgages moved up as much as a point, and Virginia Railway 5's gained 2 3-4.

Industrial liens also gave evidence of strength, U. S. Rubber 1-2's moving up 1 1-8, Western Union 6 1-2's, 1, and numerous others by large fractions. Gains of a point each were recorded in the foreign division by Marseilles 6's, and United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland 5 1-2's, of 1937.

The Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., has requested permission of the Missouri state public service commission to issue $50,000,000 30-year 5 per cent. mortgage bonds.

CURB MARKET

New York, Aug. —Short covering operations pushed numerous stocks up several points in today's curb market.

After soaring 9 1-2 points higher, Prairie Oil & Gas closed 1-2 points upa on the day and numerous other oil shares advanced a point or more, including Cumberland Pipe, Ohio Oil, Imperial Oil of Canada, Gulf Oil of Pennsylvania, the Standard Oils of Indiana and New York.

Industrials generally were less active but short interest experienced considerable difficulty in covering on Peerless Motors which rose 6 points at one time and closed 5 1-2 points higher on the day at 37 1-2. Reading Coal rights, when issued, was up 7-8 but Glen Alden coal receded fractionally.

Mining shares moved irregularly within relative narrow limits.

METAL MARKET

New York, Aug. 7.—Copper easy. Electrolytic spot and nearby 14 3-8; later 14 3-8 a 14 1-2. Tin firm; spot and futures 38.37. Iron steady; prices unchanged. Lead firm; spot 6.60 a 6.75. Zinc steady; East St. Louis spot and nearby delivery 6.15. Antimony, spot 7.70 a 7.80.

MONEY

New York, Aug. 7.—Call money steady; high 4 3-4; low 4 3-4; ruling rate 4 3-4; closing bid 4 3-4; offered at 5; last loan 4 3-4; call loans against acceptances 4 1-4.

COTTON

POETRY

On the Hills

Today I walked on lion-colored hills
With only cypresses for company
Until the sunset caught me, turned the brush
To copper, set the clouds,
To one great roof of flame above the earth
So that I walked through fire
Beneath fire
And all in beauty.
Being alone
I could not be alone, but felt
Closer than flesh the presence of those
Who once had burned in such transfigurations.
My happiness ran through the centuries
And linked itself to other happiness
In one continual brightness.
Looking down—
I saw the earth beneath me like a rose
Petalled with mountains
Fragrant with deep peace.
—Elizabeth J. Coatsworth, in Harpers Magazine.

Daybreak

A wind came up out of the sea,
And said, "O mists, make room for me!"

It hailed the ships and cried, "Sail on,
Ye mariners, the night is gone!"

And hurried landward far away,
Crying, "Awake, it is the day."

It said unto the forest, "Shout!
Hang all your leafy banners out!"

It touched the wood-bird's folded wing,
And said, "O bird, awake and sing!"

And o'er the farms, "O chanticleer,
Your clarion blow; the day is near!"

It whispered to the fields of corn,
"Bow down, and hail the coming morn!"

It shouted through the belfry tower,
"Awake, O bell! proclaim the hour."

It crossed the churchyard with a sigh,
And said, "Not yet! in quiet lie."
—Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"Jack says I'm something to adore."

"Does he mean that you're a belle or a knocker?"—Boston Transcript.

"After he takes one drink," said Uncle Bill Bottletop, "he's liable to be crazy enough to do anything."—Washington Star.

Blinks—"How did you persuade your wife to give up wearing knickers?"

Jinks—"I told her I thought they were very becoming, but they made her look at least ten years older."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

"Your school report isn't as good this month," said father. "I know it, dad, but I can't help it. The boy that used to do my arithmetic examples is mad at me and I had to do 'em myself."—Chicago News.

Manager (of Hickville theatre)—"What's the big idea of carrying Eskimau dogs instead of the regulation bloodhounds?"

Manager (of Uncle Tom's Cabin Company)—"If the show busts, I don't intend to walk home."—Judge.

Old Gent (to little girl candy vender)—Well, my little friend, now that you have so many sweet things to sell I suppose you take a piece for yourself once in a while.

Little Girl—No, sir, I dassent do that, but I lick 'em.—Associated News.

"Is you potato crop a failure?"

"Not yet," replied Farmer Corntassel; "but I reckon it will be, as usual, when it comes to dryin' to dispose of it at the market."—Washington Star.

Two battered old wrecks were sitting on a bench on the Common when one remarked "Im a man who never took advice from anybody."

Shake, brother," the other. "I'm a man who followed everybody's advice."—Boston Transcript.

"Pa," asked Johnny, "what is 'inertia'?"

"Well, my son, if I have it, it's pure laziness, but if your mother has it, it is nervous prostration."—Boston Transcript.

"With it will be worn one-piece suits in all colors of the rainbow—honey dew, tangerine, orchid, cocoa and black and white."—Canadian Paper.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dimon and Miss Marion Dimon, of Hartford, are guests of Mr. and Mrs G. B Dimon.

John H. Avery of New London spent a day or two at A S. Peckham's the first of the week.

Miss Beatrice Stiles has been visiting in Providence the last few weeks, also has been at the Girls' Camp at Jamestown, R. I.

G. B. Dimon with his family and guests (his sister, Mrs. Phillips and three children of Glastonbury) motored to Providence and return Sunday, July 29th and visited his sister, Mrs. Burdick.

Mrs. Etta Lewis of Willimantic is spending a few days with Mrs. C. H. Tate.

STAFFORDVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Olney T. Hulett and family moved to Stafford street last week.

Harold Rathbun, of Boston, and Mrs. Amy Rathbun, of East Milton, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Elwin Phelps this week.

Mrs. Edith Mathews is spending some time at her cottage on the Willimantic campground.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Baxter and family have moved to the Gillingham place, which they recently purchased.

Miss Ruth Bosworth, who has been visiting relatives in Hampden, Mass., returned home Sunday.

Miss Grace Hiscox of Brimfield, Mass., was the guest of Mrs. Willis Belcher over Sunday.

Philo West had the misfortune to have his barn burn to the ground last Tuesday night. The cause of the fire is unknown.

The diet of the average man should contain at least seventy or eighty grams of protein daily, part of which should be of animal origin.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

THE LONG-LEGGED CRANE.

Let me see. We left Little Jack Rabbit with his two small comrades, the tiny black cricket and the pretty yellow bird in the castle of the Giant Merrylaugh, who you remember had just sat down to the piano to sing a song?

Well, after that was finished, the little yellow bird flew out of the window and the tiny black cricket crept into a crack in the floor, so the bunny boy said goodbye and hopped off once more by himself.

After maybe a mile, he came to a long-legged crane standing knee-deep in a lake.

"Little fishy in the lake
Stay away for safety's sake.
Don't you know this fisherman crane
Fishes without hook or seine?"

sang Little Jack Rabbit.

When the great long-legged crane heard this, he became dreadfully angry and wading swiftly out of the water, came up to the little bunny boy, with a terrible scowl on his face.

"I'll snip off your ears," he shouted, snapping his beak together, one, two, three, bang! But Little Jack Rabbit wasn't frightened. Oh, dear no! He just laughed and snapped his paw—

"Don't bother me, you long-legged crane,
I'm not afraid of you.
You'd better pull your trousers up
Or they'll be soaked with dew."

"Well, I must admit you're quite a poet," replied the long-legged crane, his scowling gone and a smile in its place, and when a crane smiles with his great long beak, he looks almost all smile, let me tell you.

"Oh, I've travelled so long in Fairy Land that it comes very easy to me," replied Little Jack Rabbit, "In fact, almost every one in Fairy Land talks in verses. In Rabbit Land, Professor Crow has a Wisdom Book just full of poetry."

"You don't say," answered the crane, smoothing out the wrinkles in his trousers.

"I wish I had a pair of boots
Of rubber, tall and high,
So I could wade into the lake
And keep my tootsies dry."

he sang as, he waded back into the lake for a little fish. But before he had finished Little Jack Rabbit had hopped away for he was tired of listening to this great big long-legged crane.

"I wish I had a pair of boots"

MANSFIELD CENTRE

At the First Congregational and First Baptist churches Sunday the morning sermon was by Prof. H. A. Seckerson. The topic for the Christian Endeavor service was A Mature Psalm. At the Center, Miss Vera Clinton.

At the Center church Saturday evening a group of students from the Connecticut Agricultural college under the direction of Prof. H. A. Seckerson presented two one act plays. The Trysting Place, by Booth Tarkington, and How He Lied to His Wife, by Bernard Shaw. This group of students, who are in town for Farmers' Week, have been giving plays throughout the state. The presentations were under the auspices of Mansfield Library.

A miscellaneous shower was given Wednesday evening at the home of Dr. and Mrs. W. E. Cramm, for Miss Dorothy Jenner, in honor of her marriage with Robert Gardiner, which is to be held at the First Congregational church Thursday afternoon, Aug. 16 at 3 o'clock. Miss Jenner, who had made other plans for the evening, was sent to Dr. Cramm's home on an errand. When she arrived she found about sixty friends gathered to receive her. A large decorated clothes basket filled with packages, in the midst of which was a life size broomstick figure clad in gown and cap was presented. Numerous useful and beautiful gifts were found. Later in the evening a beautiful cake was presented, on which, underneath an arch of green, appeared a miniature bried and groom. Ice cream and cake were served by Mrs. Cramm and her assistants.

Joseph Bullock, Jr., held an interesting demonstration at the library Wednesday afternoon, when he showed various methods of cooking and baking with aluminum utensils. An aluminum pan was offered to any woman present who could with a hammer make a hole in one of the pans used. No one was able to accomplish it. Mrs. W. R. Daboll won the pan which was given away. An excellent supper was served by Mr. Bullock, the menu including creamed ham and potatoes, carrots and onions, griddle cakes with syrup, cake and bread pudding.

Plans are being made to hold the Sunday school picnic Saturday, Aug. 25th at the lake on the Chapin estate.

The Young People's club has been invited to hold its outing at Groton Long Point on Thursday next, when they will be guests of Mrs. Clark H. Crane, and the party of young people which she is chaperoning there.

Rev. E. P. Ayer and son, Joseph, were in town over Thursday evening. They left Friday, accompanied in the car by Mrs. Stedman Storrs and children, for Northfield, Mass., where they will attend the conference.

Mrs. Clark H. Crane, Rexford and Miss Frances Crane, Miss Olive Wildes, Miss Frances Davis and Miss Gladys Crane and Willard Stearns, left Saturday for Groton Long Point where they will spend a week at Happityme cottage, with other guests.

Fred B. Eatos has been confined to his bed for a number of days.

Miss Sadie Franklin plans to spend August at Pleasure Beach, Waterford.

An unusual record has been made by pupils of the Mansfield Center school during the last year in the amount of outside reading accomplished. Fourteen pupils have received from the state of Connecticut honor certificates for having read 25 books from the state approved list. The successful grades, are: Alice W. Jenner, Ruth Oden, Howard Eaton, Burton Topliff, Richard Koepke, Esther Curgeavan, Dorothy Aitken. Honorable mention is given the following who have received certificates for reading a smaller number of books. Hazel Gillette, Lois Gillette, Donald Buck and Fanny Curgeavas.

Mrs. O. A. Perry and family spent several days last week at their cottage at Columbia lake.

Among the guests in town the past week were Mrs. Clayton James and family at A. E. James', Mrs. Perkins of Hartford, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Harold James, Robert Solace, of Springfield, Mass., at F. B. Eaton's, and Mr. Phillips of Chester, Penn., at the hom eof his cousin, Mrs. C. E. Franklin, Mr. and Mrs. Buckingham of Quincy, Mass., were guests of Mrs. Buckingham's brother, Dr. W. E. Cramm and Mrs. Cramm over Wednesday night.

APPLICATION FOR ELIZABETH STREET PLAYGROUNDS INJUNCTION DENIED

The application of W. W. Ives and others for a temporary injunction restraining the city and town through the recreation commission from further use of the Elizabeth Street playgrounds as a play center was denied Tuesday afternoon by Judge Allyn L. Brown of the superior court, before whom a hearing on the application was held during the day at the superior court room.

Temporary injunction denied without prejudice upon agreement to follow these suggestions of the court:

Playgrounds to be used only between 12 and 4 and 5 and 7 p. m. standard time.

Police to see that children are kept off except during said hours.

Present supervision to be replaced or assisted by two others.

Police to be available to enforce discipline prescribed by the supervision whenever necessary.

The hearing on the injunction application was to be opened in the superior court room in the morning, but an endeavor was made to get the parties involved in the action together. This failing, the hearing was opened at 12.30 o'clock. Corporation Counsel William H. Shields, Jr., assisted by Attorneys E. W. Perkins and C. W. Cassidy appeared in the interests of the city, Mayor Milo R. Waters, member of the local recreation commission, Dr. C. F. Stinson, Dr. Ireland and Miss Sherburne of the Playground and Recreation Association were present. Brown and James were the attorneys for the complainants.

Considerable testimony for and against the playgrounds was heard and at the close of the hearing Judge Brown announced that he would deny the application, adding, however, the suggestions listed above.

After hearing the complaint Judge Brown said:

It does not seem to me that the evidence presented before the court warrants the issuing of an injunction. The only thing that is left to do is that the court make some suggestions. I think that in the talk which the counsel and the court had this morning most of the things that they had suggested were discussed and as the counsel indicated, they will be willing to carry out all the suggestions.

The first suggestion is that the hours for the playgrounds be strictly limited to 12 to 4 and from 5 to 7 p. m. (standard time). If the members of the recreation commission find any difficulty in keeping strictly to these hours, they should keep close enough in touch with the police department to warrant the strict adherence to this rule.

The second suggestion is: That signs should be placed indicating that these are the hours and the only hours during which the playgrounds may be used.

The third suggestion is: Without any disparagement of the present teacher and supervisor, new supervisors be placed on this particular playground.

The fourth suggestion is. That the city should co-operate with the commission and keep the police in sufficient touch with them so as to force discipline when necessary.

It was agreed that ordinary baseball games be continued to be played on the grounds but all match games be played somewhere else.

Speaking for the Recreation Commission Lawyer Perkins said:

It is true, that we have witnesses to present our side of the story, but it will take a long time to do so. We find these facts and only these facts. First, that these people complain that this is an improper place for a playground, and that having it there, it creates a public nuisance. But we find that they create no more nuisance than any other group of children who congregate form. In fact these witnesses have started feeling among the children in taking property belonging to the playgrounds. It is a psychological fact—the annoyance was caused by their own action. From all their testimony, they have shown that there is no more noise than one would expect.

To me, it seems to be no case for temporary injunction. This is for the welfare and educational benefit of the children. We haven't here, the usual case, but the case of private individuals complaining about something that is a great benefit to a great number of children. When people live in places where a public project is being carried out, they have to necessarily put up with all noises incident to that project. According to their testimony, there isn't any unnecessary noise, but only the noise which we expect and the noise that is incident and necessary to any large group of children.

Our claim is that parks and playgrounds are a governmental duty. There is no Connecticut case that we are able to find that rules against that action. All the articles of law that we find grant the use of public property for the purpose of public celebrations, such as the 4th of July. The health of the children and the education of the children should be encouraged and considered more of a duty than the celebration of the 4th of July.

Our claim is that the use of grounds for this purpose is governmental and any noise that is occasioned by such use of the grounds for that purpose, can not be a nuisance.

The injunction proceedings were started about a week ago the complainants being William W. Ives, Charles W. Robinson, Sarah T. Robinson, Helen Murphy, James Sullivan and Mary Sullivan, all residents in the vicinity of the playground. They complained that the city failed to provide proper discipline at the play center and that the children created general nuisance through trespass on adjoining property, throwing stones and other missels on the property, climbing upon and damaging fences, climbing fruit trees, destroying the fruit on the trees and by shouting and hooting and by using vile and obscence language.

(Special to the Bulletin)

Mystic, Aug. 7—At the Broadway school house the exhibit of paintings by Charles H. Davis, N. A. opened Tuesday. New catalogs have been gotten out, as several new pictures have been added to the Art association's collection, owing to several of the artists' pictures having been sold. The pictures on the top floor which were loaned by the Painters and Sculptors' Gallery Association of New York, have been removed and the whole collection of Charles H. Davis, N. A., is on exhibition in the large gallery. Twenty-nine of his pictures make a most interesting display.

Mr. Davis surrounded by that beautiful nature which has given him both the inspiration and the motives for his work, and, apart from the influence of other painters, is able to develop his ideas and ideals in a wholly individual way. He is a painter of the Connecticut landscape as it has never been before painted, and an interpreter of nature.

Three canvases from somewhat earlier days have generously been loaned for this exhibit. Except for these, the collection is made up almost entirely of new pictures, most of them now exhibited for the first time. The wide interest which must inevitably result will be amply justified both by the character of the collection and by the standing of the man who has produced it.

Over the Hill, which is loaned by George S. Palmer, and All Hallow'en, loaned by William S. Stimmel, are receiving their share of praise. The Rugged Hillside, with its beautiful setting, and the Clouds and the Sea, Summer in Connecticut, In Golden Light, The Brook, running through the green hills, have a gentle touch of nature, wonderfully displayed. The Old Chestnut Tree, is typical of the New England woods, and the moonlight on the water scene, which is shown in The Little Wood, picture shows the skill of the artist. Evening Clouds at Sunset, Winter Morning, Breaking of Winter, Twixt Winter and Spring, April Hillside, An Old Roadway, An Autumn Pattern, Autumn Sunshine, First Snow, this collection is being loaned by Dr. George S. B. Leonard of Mystic and shows the sound feeling for color the artist wishes to bring out.

Mr. Davis has put his best in the collection as also in the rest and all of his pictures: Spring in New England, Gray Dusk, In My Garden, The Evening Comes, The Trysting Place, The Fallen Tree, Sheltered by the Hills, and Snowy Hillside, the last depicts a scene typical of New England's hills covered with snow.

Montclair had its Inness, Arkville, its Wyant, Greenwich its Twachtman—and none of them ever gave its distinguished painter-son the honor of an exhibition of his work in his lifetime; Mystic has seen fit to do this. She is proud of her artist.

Those in charge of the tea room for Wednesday will be Mrs. H. R. Palmer chairman; Mrs. E. C. Streeter, Mrs. Walter Coles, Mrs. Charles M. Williams, Mrs. Frank Dodge and Miss Louise Trumbull.

FINDS NO ERROR IN ANDREWS—OLAFF CASE

The supreme court of errors, in an opinion filed Tuesday with the clerk of the superior court in this city, finds no error in the case of Arthur E. Andrews of this city against John Olaff, also of Norwich. The action was instigated to obtain a new trial of an action in which the defendant has obtained judgment against the plaintiff and for an injunction restraining further service of an execution issued upon the judgment and levied on the property of the plaintiff, brought to the superior court for New London county and tried by Judge Webb. Judgment was granted the defendant and the plaintiff appealed to the supreme court.

The supreme court opinion says:

The trial court found that on June 5, 1918, John Olaff, Jr., the defendant in the present case was injured in person and property by a collision of the automobile of the plaintiff, Andrews, with a motorcycle driven by Olaff. Prior to the collision on the same day he had filled out and sworn to an application for a driver's license and also had been examined as to his ability to operate a motorcycle by an inspector of the motor vehicle department, and his application had been approved by the inspector. Olaff received the license not earlier than June 6th. Prior to that time Olaff had not had a license to operate any sort of motor vehicle for the year 1918, was not on June 5th, 1918 a licensed operator and at the time of the collision had not in his possession any certificate of license to operate a motorcycle or other motor vehicle.

Subsequent to June 5th Olaff brought an action against Andrews returnable to the superior court for New London county on the first Tuesday of December, 1918, to recover damages for injury to person and property sustained through negligence of Andrews. Said action was tried by jury and Olaff had a verdict of $1,000 damages and judgment was rendered thereon in his favor Nov. 29, 1921.

Immediately prior to the trial * * * both counsel inquired of their respective clients * * * and reported each to the other that his client was duly licensed and his car duly registered at the time of the collision.

When Olaff testified at the trial his operator's license for the year 1918 was in his pocket, but he was not requested to produce it either on direct or cross-examination. When he testified Olaff was ignorant that his operator's license was not issued until June 6th, nor had he examined it sufficiently to ascertain the date of issue. He erroneously but in good faith assumed that from his examination by the inspector and the latter's approval of his application that he was authorized to operate the motorcycle. In stating to his counsel that he was a licensed operator at the time of the collision, and in testifying at the trial, Olaff did so believing that such was the fact and without fraudulent intent or intent to deceive or commit wilful perjury. * * * Upon the foregoing facts the court held that plaintiff had not exercised reasonable diligence to ascertain the real facts regarding the defendant's want of an operator's license on June 5, 1918, and rendered judgment for defendant.

Judge Keeler prepared the supreme court opinion which upholds the trial court. The superior court opinion says:

In the complaint it is alleged that Olaff secured judgment in his action against Andrews by fraud, deceit and perjury in his testimony at the trial; intentionally committed to prevent Andrews from taking advantage of Olaff's lack of an operator's license, and also that since the judgment Andrews had discovered new evidence contradicting Olaff's testimony.

In concluding the opinion the supreme court judge says: The ultimate conclusion of the trial judge was correct and it is difficult to see how he could have reached any other result.

There is no error.

In this opinion the other judges concurred except Judge Burpee, who dissented.

FEWER ACCIDENTS IN STATE LAST WEEK

Auto accidents reported in Bridgeport for the week ended July 28 numbered nearly 50 per cent. less than those of the preceding week, and much less than half the figure on record for the corresponding week of 1922, according to the motor vehicle department of the state. Eighteen motor mishaps are on record for that week, as against thirty of the week ended July 21. "Jay walking" is on the decrease, for only three of the eighteen accidents reported involved motor vehicles and pedestrians.

New Haven, Meriden and New Britain reveal decreases in the number of accidents during the week of July 28. The comparison of figures with last year's record is also favorable. The situation in Hartford, Waterbury and New London proved less favorable, however, the latter having twice as many accidents as the week before. Hartford shows a consistent increase in its toll. A detailed comparison of the totals for the seven larger cities of the state follows:

City.	1923	1922
Hartford	44	39
New Haven	31	42
Bridgeport	18	47
Waterbury	17	9
New London	12	13
New Britain	7	12

Sacred Heart church was the scene of a pretty wedding at 7 o'clock, Monday morning, when Rev. U. O. Bellerose united in marriage Miss Aurore Benoit, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Benoit of Providence street and Armand Lippi of 3 Prowidence street, at a nuptial high mass. The witnesses were Peter Benoit and Philibert Chicoine. The bride was handsomely gowned in white canton crepe with bridal veil and was caught up with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of roses and Lies of the valley. After the ceremony at the church there was a wedding breakfast at the home of the bride's parents, which was attended by many guests. The bride received many beautiful gifts, including linen, money, silver and household furniture. During the afternoon the happy couple left for a wedding trip which will take them to Montreal, Quebec, Three Rivers, St. Anne de Beaupre and Actonvale, and upon their return will reside at 9 Providence street. The bride's traveling costume was a grey poiret twill, with hat to match. The groom is the son of Edmour Lippi, and Dorilla Gendron Lippi, and was born in Actonvale, Canada. He is employed in the weaving department of the Ponemah Mills. His bride is the daughter of Peter Benoit and Alma Beaudoin Benoit, and has been a resident of the village for several years. She has been a member of the Children of Mary Society. The young couple have many friends who wish them much prosperity in their married life.

At a nuptial high mass celebrated at Sacred Heart church at 8 o'clock Monday morning, Miss Rosanna Labarre, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Labarre of South B street, became the bride of Philias Ducharme, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Philias Ducharme of Providence street. The church was filled with relatives and friends of the young couple. Professor Dugas, organist at the church, had charge of the music. Rev. U. O. Bellerose, pastor of the church, was celebrant of the mass, and performed the marriage ceremony. Miss Eva Ducharme, a sister of the groom, was bridesmaid, and Alexander Labarre, brother of the bride was best man. The bride was charming in a gown of white canton crepe with veil tulle. She carried a bouquet of brides' roses. Her maid was attired in a handsome gown of pink canton crepe with hat to match, and carried roses. There was a reception and wedding breakfast at the home of the parents of the bride on South B street and many attended. The bride was the recipient of many useful gifts. The young couple left for Canada during the afternoon, where they will spend a month, and upon their return they will reside with the parents of the bride. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Philias Ducharme of Providence street, and holds a good position in the No. 1 Carding Room of the Ponemah Company. He is a member of several of the village fraternal organizations and is popular. His bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Labarre of South B street and has always been a resident of the village. She has numerous friends, and before her marriage, many social affairs were given in her honor.

Peter Delisle, popularly known as "French Pete" has leased to out-of town parties his refreshment stand on the road between Taftville and Occum. French Pete first came into prominence when he attempted to identify a dead body found on a lonely, thickly wooded lane at Riverside Grove, as that of an English tramp weaver, named "Peter Shorrock." Mr. Delisle was unable to do this but gained considerable notoriety through his attempts. He resides in a small camp set quite a little distance back from the road, and earns his livlihood by weaving in local textile mills, or operating his small refreshment stand.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lacroix of South Second avenue motored to Rocky Point, R. I., Sunday.

The committee in charge of the joint clambake and outing of Court Wequonnoc, Court City of Norwich and Court Sprague, F. of A. held an interesting meeting in the courtrooms of Court Wequonnoc, Monday evening.

FUNERAL TRAIN IS BEARING BODY OF PRESIDENT HARDING BACK TO MARION FOR BENEDICTION AND ENTOMBMENT

Train Left Washington Last Night at 6.06 O'Clock—Due to Arrive in Marion About 9.30 This Morning—Distant Guns Spoke the Nation's Farewell as the Train Drew Out—Religious Services in the Capito Rotunda Were Striking in Their Simplicity Against the Background of Military Pomp and Grandeur Given by the Funeral Parade.

Washington, Aug. 8.—(By the A. P.)—Washington said farewell to President Harding late today after heaping upon him all the funeral honors that a beloved leader can receive at the hands of his nation.

Now he goes, followed by the benediction of a great people to begin his long sleep in Marion.

The final ceremony here was a solemn procession from the Capitol, where thousands had looked upon the dead after a state funeral in the rotunda, to the Union station, where the funeral train was waiting to begin the last stretch of its sorrowful journey to Ohio.

As earlier in the day, when the funeral cortege passed along Pennsylvania avenue, President Coolidge and other highest officials of the government had places behind the caisson which has been the funeral car for the flag-draped coffin since it reached Washington from San Francisco last night.

Again too, there was the flashing of cavalry sabres and the slow tread of the infantry, of marines and blue-jackets as the caples and gold-lace. Besides the short three-mile march from the capitol, to the station was lined all the way with interested men, standing at the present in a final salute to their commander-in-chief.

It was 5.10 o'clock when the casket was taken from the rotunda, where it had lain since noon and placed on the black wheeled caisson. An army band played "Nearer My God to Thee" as the burden was borne tenderly down the steps of the capitol.

Ahead of the team that drew the caisson, a petty officer of the navy stood with the President's four starred blue flag unfurled to the light breeze and lowered in mourning for the man it has so often flown to glorify.

President Coolidge, with bared head, followed the casket down the steps. The cabinet followed, and behind them were the senators and representatives, generals and admirals who had been selected as honorary pallbearers.

The new President and the men in the official party quickly took their places in the waiting line of automobiles and the cortege moved slowly off past the senate wing of the capitol where a handful of senate workers, all of whom had known the dead leader, were gathered to bid him farewell.

While the body was being carried through the station the marine band stationed on the concourse played "Lead Kindly Light." Tenderly the burden was lifted once more into the car in which it had been brought across the continent and from which it will be removed for entombment Friday at Marion.

GRAPHIC DESCRIPTION OF CEREMONIES IN WASHINGTON

Washington, Aug. 8.—(By the A. P.)—Warren G. Harding left Washington at 6.06 o'clock tonight, forever. His short, eventful moment of power and heavy care was ended, his eternity of rest begun.

Yesteryear, the flooding tide of destiny bore him eastward to take up the challenge of leadership the millions of his countrymen had thrown to him. Today, that tide ebbed westward again under the setting sun. The singing rails bore him back to the quiet town in Ohio whence he came.

Grim voiced, distant guns spoke the nation's farewell as the funeral train drew out. A legion of armed men stood with rifles and sabers at salute. Great folk and small in their thousands, stood silent and with heads bared in the fading light of evening, and the dead President was gone.

Harding was gone from Washington, splendidly, fittingly gone as went the day that for him had brimmed with honors as brimmed the cup of life, heady with its draft of greatness scarce tasted his lips, when death so ruthlessly struck it aside. Gone from the place and the comrades of his greatness; with the loving care of a brave woman to shelter him on his last journey.

Courage of Mrs. Harding

For in this whole day of pomp and circumstance that men have made to surround the great, there was no thing more touching than the dauntless courage with which Mrs. Harding carried through the public ordeal. As her black gowned figure passed cut of the crowded stone circle where the funeral rites were held, every glance was for her, every sympathy. There was admiration that brought the clutch of choked-back sobs and many a throat at the brave, simple dignity of her carriage that still could not hide the depths of her woe. There were eyes turned misty then that had shed no tear before.

From the dim east room and its heavy scented flowers, the dead President was borne out into a day vivid with sunshine. The clear pealing of a trumpet sent long lines of steel flashing to salute. A moment later it marshalled the ordered array of soldiers, sailors and marines down the long avenue to the Capitol with John Pershing riding ahead with his command, his only actual command since the First Division, home from France, trudged westward over this same route in victory.

Bands Played Old Hymns

Band by band, the old hymns of courage and devotion rose in the still air as they passed. Rank by rank, in khaki, blue or white the sturdy youngsters who serve the flag moved by, their sabers and bayonets glittering in the sun, their dull hued guns rolling slowly. A tolling church bell, swinging with solemn, slow stroke, pierced the harmonies of the bands at intervals; distant minute guns from Fort Myer, across the Potomac, thudded faintly over the miles.

But along the way, banked motionless and silence, were thousands upon thousands who had stood their waiting since daylight to add to the great tribute to the dead. This hushed reverence of these told more strikingly the sorrowful nature of the pageant than even the crepe that streamed from the passing standards of the mourning bands on uniform jackets or the knots of black at the sword hilts of the officers.

Nation's Mourners in Cortege

Down through that long valley of sorrow the cortege wound to the Capitol with that other, living President up-thrust overnight to high responsibility, first among the nation's mourners after the family of the dead. President Coolidge was there both to symbolize the sorrow of the nation and to show his own great personal grief for his dead chief. And behind him rode two other men who have known the hard service of that high office, one of whom was stricken almost as was he to whom such honor was paid today. Chief Justice Taft followed President Coolidge, then Woodrow Wilson, coming from his retirement once again for a brief moment to give reverent homage beside the bier of an honor laden American.

All the great folks of Washington followed after. Among them were the diplomats who speak here with the voices of their kings for governments to testify that human sympathy to a nation in grief knows no barrier of sea or land. There also were the great judges and the sorrowful cabinet officers; the senators and the members of the House called back from their varied occupations for this sad moment. Again block after block behind stretched the ranks of all the civilian organizations of Washington, out in full array; the men who head the bureaus and divisions of the great government departments; the army and navy and marine corps officers serving here and walking now in ordered lines, their tunic sleeves wound with mournful black.

Coming thus to Capitol Hill, the bands ceased to the climb to the wide plaza on the east front where now presidents take oath. The muffled drums took up the tale as the column climbed up the winding, tree shaded way.

And it was this distant throbbing of the drums that carried word of their coming to those waiting in the flower-filled chamber beneath the beneath the towering dome, throbbing that grew nearer and nearer until at last it gave place to the softly rising tones of a great army band that played "Lead Kindly Light" as the flag-wound casket was lifted slowly up the long, wide stone steps.

Religious Services.

The religious services were striking in their simplicity against the background of military pomp and grandeur given by the funeral parade. Just the short prayers, the murmuring of low voices joined in the old, old words of the Lord's prayer. The scriptural readings and the blending voices of a male quartette in the same hymn that marked this funeral everywhere, "Lead Kindly Light," the hymn best beloved by the dead president, and at the end, "Nearer, My God to Thee," with its message of Christian resignation.

Hardly a word of the invocation, spoken by Dr. A. Freeman Anderson of the Baptist church President and Mrs. Harding attended in Washington, or of the later plea for Divine mercy made by Dr. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the house, reached through the chamber. Jealous echoes from the circling walls caught up the voices and made the words inaudible. But every word of the old hymns, in the chanting voices of the singers came clearly and the organ-like chords rose and fell with wonderful effect under the vaulted roof. Tears flowed freely everywhere among the still audience as the last chord died lingeringly away far above.

That was all, save the benediction. It was as simple as Warren Harding himself would have had it for he made no parade of his trust in the goodness of God. And, too, as he had given himself in life to the service of the people of his country, he was given now in death for a brief hour that they might see him. Sleeeping so peacefully in that great casket to which tender hands had confided him beside the far Golden Gate a week ago.

When Mrs. Harding had gone and with her the sympathy and the blessings of those who had briefly glimpsed her triumph over her own sorrow, the new president and his cabinet, the diplomats and generals and admirals all filed slowly out and the great chamber was cleared except for the armed sentries about the bier and the others who quickly carried away the chairs and set long lines of floral offerings in place to form a broad aisle from the east to west across the stone floor. When the flag was gently drawn back, the heavy steel of the cover was set aside, and those who knew him in life saw again the face of Warren Harding.

Face Was Peaceful.

It was a peaceful face, untouched by the ravages of his brief illness. The broad brow was tranquil and save for the slight paler death always brings, he might been asleep there for a moment of rest, to rouse again when duty called. It hardly seemed that the spirit could have fled; that the lids would not lift presently to show the kindly, thoughtful eyes beneath. There was very little of death about him and much of peace and rest.

The eastern doors were thrown open again and waiting at the foot of the long stairways, between ranks of soldiers and other guards, a mile-long column of people stretched—through the hot sunlight to wind away out of sight beyond the distant trees across the plaza. They had been ranked four abreast and at the word, came trooping slowly up to pass with only the soft rustling of footsteps to mark their coming and going down the flower-woven corridor that had been made for them. The hushed human tide flowed by on both sides of the casket and each gazed down just a moment before moving on to the west door and thus to the streets far beyond the wide grounds.

There were men and women from all the states of the Union in that endless column. There were those from almost every nation in the world. They were of all faiths and of all parties and of many colors. They were dressed in all styles. They were a cross section of the mighty people for whom the man they honored freely gave his life.

Sometimes there came one who dropped a single flower on the coffin as he passed, and the watchful guards gently removed it after the giver had gone by. Some came with weeping; some lifted little children in their arms to glimpse that calm, dead face beneath the glass. All came in reverent silence.

There were many little groups of soldiers and sailors and marines who seized the opportunity of their brief rest between the ceremonies that required their services to add hours of waiting and miles of slow marching to the miles the day already had meant for them. They alone passed with caps or jaunty white hats in place, but each gave the dead commander-in-chief a rigid salute as he walked in soldierly erectness past the casket. There came also to salute groups of Boy Scouts and there moved in the long lines policemen in uniform but off duty, firemen, motormen, conductors, chauffeurs and a score of others whose uniforms told their calling.

35,000 Passed Through Corridors.

When the moment came that must see the doors closed again, more than 35,000 persons had passed through that corridor of flowers, it was estimated, and as many more were turned back disappointed after hours in the slow moving lines. But the departure from Marion could not wait and the great doors were shut.

By now the softer light of early evening filled the great plaza outside. And with it came the troops again to line the short, straight way to the station with a double rank of armed men on each side of the avenue. The mounted troops were back in line before the great stairway. The caisson waiting, the little block of the crew of the presidential yacht Mayflower stood with grounded arms to join the last escort of the dead, the Army band held its instruments ready.

President Coolidge and the cabinet officers and the admirals and generals of the honor guard came again in motor cars to enter the rotunda for a few minutes, then the casket was boorne out and down to the caisson while the troopers raised their sabres in salute and the ordered rows of the gus ranked behind them showed every figure erect in saddle or on limber. Again the slow music of the band marked the slow progress of the casket, playing "Nearer, My God To Thee."

At the word the first troop turned to lead the way down the long lane of soldiery and honored the going of the dead chief. The Mayflower crew marched next, then came the caisson and its burden. A troop of cavalry and a battery of guns brought up the rear and hardly had the last gun passed beyond th egrounds before the leading troop turned aside before the station entrance.

The Homeward Pilgrimage.

At the station, the casket was lifted down to be carried out again and gently placed in th position where tens of thousands of Americans saw it on the long homeward pilgrimage of sorrow from San Francisco. There were no ceremonies. The nation's farewells had been said except for the last soft strains of the Marine band which played "Lead Kindly Light" in final parting.

Mrs. Harding reached the station soon after the casket had been placed aboard the funeral car. She came direct from the White House. Other members of the party who travelled with the dead president on his last journey that ended with such sadness, were already aboard the train by Mrs. Harding's personal request, to be with the dead to the last in Marion.

The group of official mourners stood bare headed on the platform. A hand waved in silent signal. Without sound of bell or whistle, the train began to move slowly, slowly down the track. It gathered speed as it moved out into the yards and in a moment had dwindled under the watching eyes of the silent group left behind, dwindled as it moved faster and faster over the clicking switches until it rounded a curve and vanished from view.

170 HEAT PROSTRATIONS IN FUNERAL PROCESSION

Washington, Aug. 8.—Intense heat caused 170 prostrations today among those in the Harding funeral procession from the White House to the Capitol, in the lines of spectators along the route and the crowd awaiting entrance to the rotunda to view the body. First aid stations and hospitals, reporting that this number was given treatment, said none was in serious condition.

MRS. HARDING ASKS FOR EVENING NEWSPAPERS

On Board Harding Funeral Train, Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 8.—Soon after the funeral train left Washington this evening, Mrs. Harding asked for the Washington evening newspapers, which were filled almost entirely with the story of the state funeral services there. One was sent in to her and after 15 minutes she asked for copies of other evening papers that might be aboard the train.

George B. Christian, Jr., secretary to the late president, who has been one of Mrs. Harding's chief supports in her sorrow, talked with her two or three minutes during the evening. The secretary of commerce and Mrs. Hoover also spent some time with her.

All of the visitors to Mrs. Harding's room praised her remarkable fortitude and said that she was still "brave and wonderful."

PROGRAM OR FUNERAL SERVICES IN MARION

Marion, Ohio, Aug. 8.—Following is the brief funeral programme for President Harding in his home city.

Funeral train arrive by way of the Erie railroad from Mansfield at the Union station about 9.30 a. m., Thursday.

Harding home to be opened to the public at 2 p. m. and remain open until 10 p. m., Thursday and again from 9 a. m. to 1 p. m., Friday.

President Coolidge and other high government officials arrive about 11 a. m., Friday.

Funeral cortege leave Harding home about 2 p. m. Friday for cemetery.

Services at cemetery commencing about 3 p. m.

All time noted is central standard time.

A. P. WIRES TO BE QUIET AS BODY IS ENTOMBED

New York, Aug. 8.—When President Harding's body is entombed at Marion, on Friday, a flash—"TAPS"—will be sent throughout The Associated Press service on all wires then in operation. This will reach every state in the country. As soon as this flash is transmitted, all wires will be idle and all employes will remain for two minutes in silence.

DISSOLUTION OF THE DAIL EIREANN TODAY

Dublin, Aug. 8.—(By the A. P.)—At the adjournment of the Dail Eireann today President Cosgrave announced that the Dail would be dissolved tomorrow. He added that nominations for the new Dail would be made Aug. 18, that the elections would be held Aug. 27 and that the new parliament would assemble September 9.

Marvelous Fortitude Of Mrs. F. K. Harding

Washington, Aug. 8 (By the A. P.)—With the same fortitude that already had won her a great outpouring of the sympathy of a nation, Mrs. Florence Kling Harding today passed courageously through the ordeal of the solemn state funeral of her husband. Tonight she again was alone with her dead as the funeral train sped westward toward Marion where for her must come an even greater trial as the body is consigned to its last place of rest.

Although plainly showing the long and painful journey across the continent, Mrs. Harding, who only a brief time ago made a brave fight for her own life, still maintains the control of an iron will that enabled her to say when first the terrible blow struck at San Francisco that she would not break down.

And so in her public appearances today she permitted to escape her no manifestation of the grief that tears at her heart. Both Brigadier General Sawyer, an old friend from Marion and physician to Mr. Harding, and George Christian, secretary to the dead president, declared after Mrs. Harding returned from the capitol that she was bearing up well under the strain. General Sawyer said she was "holding up wonderfully well," adding that she was "a remarkable woman."

After luncheon with members of the immediate family this afternoon Mrs. Harding received Mrs. Coolidge, the wife of the new president, who remained at the White House for half an hour. Wives of the cabinet officers also were received during the afternoon. Many government officers and members of congress visited the White House to leave their cards.

During the few hours the body of the president remained at the White House before the state funeral, Mrs. Harding twice gazed upon the face, now in life, majestic in death. At 1 o'clock this morning, after officials and guests had left the White House, she went quietly to the East room to spend half an hour alone there save for the silent statuesque figures of the guard of honor around the casket.

For a time she stood beside the bier in silent prayer and meditation. Then she examined a number of oral pieces banked against the walls and selected several to be paid near to her sleeping husband.

Returning to her apartments on the second floor, Mrs. Harding retired at 1.30 o'clock. She arose at 7.45 o'clock after what apparently had been a fairly refreshing rest, and had breakfast in her room. During the meal Laddie Boy came in for a time to receive a kindly pat from his mistress.

She remained alone until 9.45 o'clock, when she was escorted to the East room for the simple prayer services that preceded the claiming of the body by the nation to bestow upon it the homage befitting the high estate to which Warren G. Harding, with her help, had achieved.

Entering the room with Mr. Christian and General Sawyer, Mrs. Harding stood for a few minutes at the head of the casket while the Lord's Prayer was repeated under the leadership of Dr. A. Freeman Anderson, pastor of the Calvary Baptist church. President Coolidge, members of the cabinet and justices of the supreme court were present.

Mrs. Harding again retired to her apartments to await the hour of another trial, the journey to the capitol for the services there. Returning to the White House at 12.15 p. m. she was accompanied to her apartments, where she was seated by members of the immediate family with whom she had luncheon.

After receiving Mrs. Coolidge and the ladies of the cabinet, she rested until the coming of the evening hour set for her again to board the caravan of sorrow.

City of Marion Wears A Pall of Mourning

Marion, Ohio, Aug. 8. (By the A. P.)—Warren Gamaliel Harding is on his last journey home and Marion, shrouded in mourning, peacefully awaits his coming.

Unlike his arrival and his departures in the distant past when little notice was taken of his movements and also unlike the near past when they were announced with rejoicing, tomorrow's arrival will be heralded by the tolling of the bells.

When the nation's funeral train bearing the late president in its flag-draped coffin crosses the Marion county line and begins to traverse the country where he laid the foundation for a character which made him the nation's beloved, Marion's bells will begin to peal. They will continue to toll at thirty second intervals until the body has been set at rest in the home of his father.

Sacred Hour in the Home.

As soon as the body is placed in the Harding home, the utmost privacy will be maintained there for a few hours. It will be a sacred hour in the home in East Center street, for there sits the aged father bowed in grief, who for seven days will have been waiting the time, counting the hours and the minutes, when he again might be with his son even though there can be no spoken greeting, no returned smile, no gentle handclasp.

After this silent communion the doors will be thrown open from 2 to 10 p. m., and friends of the dead president will be permitted to pass by his bier. They also will be allowed to pass again Friday from 9 a. m. to 1 p. m., before the body is removed to the cemetery for brief funeral services.

The nation having today held funeral services for its president in all stateliness and honor due his exalted position, Marion, Friday, will conduct funeral services for its most distinguished citizen.

Plain and Simple Service.

In striking contrast to the services in the nation's capitol today when state honors were paid, will be the plain and simple service conducted here at the vault in the "city of the dead."

Without pomp or military display of a single sort, the service at 3 p. m., Central standard time, will consist only of the singing of two hymns by the choir of Trinity Baptist church, of which Mr. Harding was a member, the reading of a few passages of the Scriptures by Rev. George W. Landis, pastor of the Trinity Baptist church, and a prayer by Rev. Dr. Jesse Swank, pastor of Marion Epworth Methodist Episcopal church. The hymns to be sung are Lead Kindly Light and Nearer, My God, to Thee.

With this simple service concluded, the nation's president will have been laid to rest and as the world moves on the only indication that another of the nation's chief executives sleeps in Ohio's bosom, will be the military guard stationed there to see that the sleep is not disturbed.

On arrival of the funeral train, scheduled for about 10 a. m., tomorrow, Mrs. Harding, it is expected, will go direct to the home of Dr. George T. Harding, 498 East Center street, to which the body will be taken in a hearse. Soldiers will keep back the crowds from the Union station, no one being permitted there except those necessary to handle the funeral party and transfer the casket from the train to the hearse. Lines of soldiers also will be stretched in each side of Center street as the body is taken to the Harding home.

Streets Seething With Visitors.

Marion streets tonight were beginning to seethe with persons coming from distant places to attend the funeral. Every road leading into Marion was thronged by automobiles. Railroad companies tomorrow will place special watchmen at all highway crossings within fifty miles of the city to insure safety for those traveling by automobile. The state also will establish patrols along all the principal highways to prevent speeding and to look out for the safety of automobile traffic.

Practically all the streets in the business section and in the vicinity of the Harding home will be closed to vehicle traffic early tomorrow morning. Friday, the day of the funeral, the closed area will be extended in the direction of the cemetery.

City Wears Pall of Mourning.

The city tonight wore a pall of mourning. Business houses and homes were draped in black and white crepe from their roofs to the street level. In the display windows of stores and shops large pictures of the late president, many of which had been proudly displayed less than three years ago when the nation called a Marion citizen to direct its destinies, were entwined in black and white and the flag. From the trolley wires overhead in Center street through which the funeral cortege will pass in going to and from the Harding home and to the cemetery, the same black and white and again the flag hung listlessly or rustled slightly in the gentle breezes.

Nothing, apparently, has been left undone for Marion to pay due honor to her departed citizen or to facilitate the movement of the funeral cortege.

All business will be at a standstill Friday during the hour of the funeral. Most business places closed tonight, not to reopen again until Saturday.

The Marion Star, until recently owned by Mr. Harding, and on which he worked in every position from typesetting up, will suspend publication Friday out of respect for its late owner, and to allow the employes to attend the funeral. Many of the employes have been with The Star for years and are numbered among the late President's and Mrs. Harding's best friends.

GOV. BEECKMAN TO WED MRS. MARSTON BURKE

Newport, R. I., Aug. 8.—Announcement was made tonight that former Governor R. Livingston Beeckman would be married to Mrs. Marston Burke of New York at Bar Harbor, Maine, on September 1. Mrs. Burke is the daughter of the late Edwin Marston, who was President of the Farmers Loan and Trust Company of New York.

Freight houses of the New Haven road will be closed Friday only sufficient workers being held to handle perishable freight.

STARTLING DISCLOSURES IN CONFESSION OF BROKERS

Carl E. Whitney, Counsel for Fuller and McGee, Declares the Financial Section of New York Will be Rocked to the Foundation—Facts Concerning "Bucket Shop Ring," With Political and Business Ramifications.

New York, Aug. 8.—Disclosures of "so startling a nature that the financial section of New York will be shaken to its foundations," will be made when the confession of Edward M. Fuller and W. Frank McGee, bankrupt bucketeers, is made public, Carl E. Whitney, newly named counsel for the pair, declared today.

Facts concerning a "bucket shop ring" with surprising political and business ramifications, were included in the confession made to United States Attorney Hayward, according to Mr. Whitney.

"My clients are now telling the truth about their affairs, a thing which they should have done a year ago," said Mr. Whitney today. "Their disclosures are of a startling nature and are likely to rock the financial quarter to its foundations."

"In my opinion it would be unwise to make public the disclosures of Fuller and McGee at this time. This, however, will probably be done before the end of the week," he said.

The federal grand jury will resume its sittings tomorrow and will be ready to go ahead with any word placed before it by the district attorney's office in the Fuller-McGee case.

DISPLAY OF REVERENCE IN METROPOLIS OF NATION

New York, Aug. 8.—A reverent hush, broken only by the solemn knell of cathedral chimes and the reverberating echo of distant cannonading, descended on the nation's metropolis for a few brief minutes today during the funeral of Warren G. Harding at the Capital.

On the thronged sidewalks, thousands stood at attention, with heads bared and lips moving. Other thousands knelt in venerable houses of worship. Still others ceased their labors in gloom-stricken factories and towering skyscrapers, to pay silent tribute to the dead President.

Quiet stole down Fifth avenue. It invaded Wall street, and struck incongruous garish Broadway. Harbor craft stilled their noisy manoeuverings and great ocean liners silenced their whistles' booming. With New York it was a display of sorrow from the heart, unplanned, informal, spontaneous. She could not wait until Friday, the date of the final rites at Marion, Ohio, which officials of the nation, state and city have decided as the formal day of mourning.

Wall street had a large share in the memorial today, and with all the banks, which, restrained by law from closing, discouraged all but transactions of necessity. Stock, bond and commodity market tickers were stilled, while members of exchanges paid homage to the dead executive in ceremonies of extreme simplicity.

Muffled gongs sounded at 11 o'clock, directing suspension of trading. Lights were dimmed and trading floors deserted for 90 minutes. Brokers and financiers gathered in groups to discuss in subdue tones the progress of the ceremonies at Washington.

Of all the ceremonials of sorrow throughout the greater city, one stood forth as perhaps unique. It was at "the Little Church Around the Corner," off Fifth avenue, where actor-folk made the services peculiarly their own, although stenographers, cabmen, bank clerks and cloak models and many others joined with them in tribute to the dead. Many nationalities and creeds were there, and many professions.

In a brief eulogy, E. H. Sothern, Dean of American Shakespearian stars, spoke falteringly as he sensed the depth of the emotions of his audience.

"I believe you feel with me that words are but a small part of the tribute we come here to pay," he said, hastingly. "People of our calling are aware that those moments are most eloquent when no word is uttered. But we are able to thank God that such a man has been at the helm of our country."

Cyril Maude, another veteran of the theatre, read a lesson from ecclesiastes. Rev. Dr. C. E. Reader officiated over a solemn requiem high mass; there was organ music, a choral, the soft booming of chimes, and the services was over.

At the same time the hundreds of church bells were tolling in unison with those in Washington. 2000 men laid down tools in the big shipyards in Brooklyn and stood with heads uncovered as an orchestra nearby played "Nearer My God to Thee." All along the water front were services similarly impressive, as little groups of grimy workmen gathered to hear one of their number, or perhaps an employer, speak a brief eulogy of the nation's departed chief.

PASSIVE RESISTANCE TO BE CONTINUED IN THE RUHR

Berlin, Aug. 8.—(By the A. P.)—Passive resistance will be continued with all the strength of the German people, "free from acts of violence and terror," and the people in the unoccupied territory will "support actively" those in the occupied region, Chancellor Cuno asserted in addressing the Reichstag when it convened for a short extraordinary session today.

When the Chancellor rose to begin his long address he was prevented from speaking for some time by the communists who greeted him with epithets such as "traitor," "swindler," and "the President of the Stinnes Company's board is going to speak."

One community deputy got very excited, shook his fist at the Chancellor and was called to order twice. Herr Cuno was subjected to continual interruption during the speech which was received somewhat coldly by the house.

FOUR DROWNED WHEN AUTO BACKED OFF FERRYBOAT

Richmond, Me., Aug. 8.—Four persons were drowned and three rescued late today when an automobile with a family party returning from a blueberry picking trip to Dresden backed off the end of a small ferryboat into the Kennebeck river. The dead are James Goodall of Litchfield, owner of the car; his wife, their son Leonard, 11 years old, and Fay Goodall of Oakfield, Goodall's sister. Three other children, Henry, Kenneth and Dora Goodall, were saved.

TWO BOYS DROWNED AT OAKLAND BEACH, R. I.

Providence, R. I., Aug. 8.—Leo Lambert, 13, and Roland Vover, 14, both members of a picnic party from the Notre Dame Des Victories church, Woonsocket, were drowned at Oakland beach today when the former fell into the water from a rowboat and the latter, though unable to swim, attempted to rescue him.

LIFE SENTENCE FOR SLAYING POLICEMAN IN CLEVELAND

Cleveland, Aug. 8.—A sentence to life imprisonment was imposed upon John L. Whitfield here today after a jury which heard evidence in his trial on the charge of killing Patrolman Dennis Griffin, May 11, had returned a verdict of first degree murder with a recommendation to mercy. The jury was in deliberation 32 hours.

Whitfield probably will be taken to the Ohio penitentiary tomorrow.

The crime for which Whitfield was tried was one of the most unusual in local police annals.

Whitfield had been placed under arrest by Griffin early on the morning of May 11 on the charge of stealing spark plugs. The two men started for a branch police station in Whitfield's automobile. Griffin was not seen again. Three days later his body, stripped of clothing, was found buried in a shallow grave near a farm 20 miles southeast of this city. A bullet wound was in his neck. Whitfield testified that Griffin accidently shot himself during a scuffle, with him.

Judge Frank C. Phillips, speaking directly to Whitfield, said: "I would have had a measure of satisfaction in sentencing you to die—disagreeable though it might be."

EARTHQUAKE PROBABLY IN THE VICINITY OF JAPAN

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 8.—An earthquake of moderate intensity, probably in the vicinity of Japan, was recorded on the seismograph at the Gonzalos observatory today. The record lasted two hours. The distance was about 4,600 miles.

In connection with the program for holding memorial services as a tribute to the president on Friday afternoon, between three and four o'clock p. m. (standard time), the members of the Business Men's Association have agreed to close their stores from 3 o'clock to 6, that afternoon. It is thought that all the places of business and shops will close during these hours. Several of the manufacturing plants in the city are to remain closed during the day.

Conspicuous notices posted about the shores of Lake Wangumbaug, South Coventry, prohibit any further bathing in that body of water and scores of cottagers and campers at that resort are much disappointed over the edict. Bathing has been stopped there, due to the poor condition of the water which flows into the residences at South Coventry.

Dr. W. L. Higgins, the town health officer, received a report from the state board of health some time ago, that an analysis of a sample of the water from the lake showed that it was not up to standard for drinking purposes and should be used with discretion. A chlorinator will be installed at the head of the lake to purify the water, which goes through service pipes to the customers in the village. The officials of the South Coventry Water Supply Company are making the arrangements. In substance, the notices issued to the people of South Coventry, who use the water, state that due to the conditions at the lake, the water should be boiled before drinking, to avoid all danger of epidemics and diseases which might arise from bathing in the lake and from other sources of contamination along the shore.

Several of the cottagers on the lake shores who were severly jolted upon reading the "prohibition" notices have stated their intention of defying the order of the water company. They plan to continue to bathe in the lake and in the case of an arrest they will endeavor to prove that they were in their lawful rights. Wednesday, one of the officials of the South Coventry Water Company was patrolling the shores near the cottage colony and he warned would-be bathers that any one who stepped into the lake would be placed under arrest.

Automobile drivers, within the past few days, have not been reporting automobile accidents when they are at fault. Two such drivers were at fault recently and failed to notify the local police department. The numbers of the cars were secured and checked up at th office of the state motor vehicle department. One of the machines bore Connecticut registry number 31-668, owned by Ella Lang of 16 Reynolds street, Danielson, which backed into a bicycle that stood by the curbing in front of Stamaton's store. The bicycle was wrecked. The other car bore registry number 134-238 and it collided with the automobile owned by W. A. Arnold which was parked on Church street, damaging one of the fenders. The machine is listed as belonging to Frank Canna, 98 Woolsey street, New Haven. The local police department has notified the owners of both machines to report the affair.

Miss Florence Boyer, 26, a former resident of South Coventry, died at the Hartford Hospital early Wednesday morning as the result of an automobile collision in which she was injured recently. The body was removed to her home in South Coventry. She was the daughter of William and Edwardina Ducharme Boyer. She is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Austin Furlong and Miss Mary Boyer of South Coventry and two brothers, Austin and Norman Boyer of South Coventry.

JEWETT CITY

The ice man says he doesn't care so much about persons stealing the ice from his houses at Dorrville, but he does object to their taking the hay forks and ice picks. He calls attention to the unfairness to the next guy that comes along to hook a ton or so, for there are no forks to remove the hay or tongs to handle it with. The case has been looked up a little, and it is good dope to the fellow that borrowed the tools to return same, being welcome to the ice.

Our stores will be open until 9 p. m. today. Closed Friday. Dearnley & Clarke.—adv.

Next Sunday regular services in the First Congregational church at Pachaug, are to be resumed. The vacation of the pastor, Rev. John P. Richardson is over.

Mrs. Althea Comager, one of the oldest residents of the town of Griswold, sends the following clipping from a Moosup paper printed 41 years ago. All the older residents of the town well remember Celia Watson. She doubtless lived to the greatest age of any woman that has died in Griswold. The ice houses now stand where she lived during the Civil war:

"Mrs. Celia Watson died at the residence of Nelson Cross, in Griswold, on Wednesday, the 4th inst., aged 96 years. She was born in 1793, the year that Washington was inaugurated president for the second term, consequently had lived under all the presidents of the United States. She was a woman of intelligence and many virtues, and was held in high esteem by all who knew her best. At the time of her death she had no known relatives living. At her request, she was borne to the grave by members of the Methodist church, of Jewett City, of which she had been a member since its organization. She was buried in Lisbon cemetery. To Mr. and Mrs. Cross are due great credit for their untiring efforts to care for her in her declining years."

Slater Library is to be closed all day Friday.

WATER FIT TO DRINK

Every year many of our boys and girls contract disease by drinking impure water.

For quick sterilization, obtain pure chloride of lime. In a gallon of water dissolve as much as can be heaped on a five cent piece. This makes the stock solution, which can be carried on outings of excursions.

To sterilize any drinking water, take two teaspoonfuls of the stock solution and mix it in the ordinary sized glass of water. This will give a pure tasteless water, that may be taken with a feeling of security.

Save this suggestion and it may save your life.

MILK FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

Miss Jessie M. Hoover, milk specialist, says, in The Farm Journal for August, that our country children do not drink enough milk because their parents sell it instead of using it. She is also responsible for the statement that country children are more undernourished than their city cousins. The minimum amount of milk that each child should drink daily should be one pint. It is a well-known fact that we have been talking about balanced rations for hogs and cows for years and we forget sometimes that the human part of the family needs balanced rations also.

SELECT SEED POTATOES

Do not wait until planting time next spring to select your seed potatoes. Do not even wait until harvest time this fall. Begin now by making a study of the plants. Potato growers should have a seed-plot, which may or may not be a part of the main crop, and from the best-growing, disease-resistant plants in this plat, which produce high yields of marketable sized potatoes select their seed for the following year. An area of one-tenth or one fifteenth of the entire acreage will usually provide sufficient seed for the following season's planting

PLANTS FOR WINDOW GARDENS

It is now time to think about plants for the window-garden. The common practise is to pot up full-grown plants from the garden in the early fall, or take slips from plants in mid-summer before they have become weakened by prolonged blooming.

Take slips in mid-summer, just after flowering commences, while mother plants are in prime condition, continues P. E. Jackman, in The Farm Journal. These slips should come from strong healthy plants that are free from insects or diseases. Taking them at this time allows you to select the plants which have the prettiest flowers, and the slips will have a start that enables them to make good growth by early winter. The slips should be about three inches long and can be rooted in clean, moderately coarse sand, not over four inches deep, or in water. If placed in the window garden as soon as rooted, they will be practically born in the condition under which they will be expected to flower. With very little care they will make continuous growth, and having escaped the perils of lifting, can be expected to produce good results."

NEW ENGLAND FORTNIGHTLY CROP NOTES

Rainfall in June and to July 15 was deficient generally over New England, except southern Maine, northern New Hampshire, and Vermont. Yet except hay and pastures, crops have mostly made fair progress and had fair to excellent growth. The last half of July brought frequent and adequate showers everywhere, except in parts of Connecticut and possibly a few other sections. All crops are now growing fast.

Having is well along generally, but reports state that some will go unharvested for lack of help. Yields as a whole are not far below average and quality is excellent. Sections that had rain earlier have a big crop of hay.

Oats and grains suffered from drought, but are improving now. Corn is late and only A fair prospect, though many report it improving fast now, with many good fields.

Recent rains are pushing the rowen hay crop and will revive the dry pastures.

Aroostook has had generous rains lately, and potatoes are making rapid growth, the stand, as a whole is about average, and with effective spraying kept up, the county expects a good crop. Elsewhere outside Connecticut potatoes have grown well and promise good yields.

Apple prospects are reported best in Connecticut, with Rhode Island and Massachusetts next, while Maine has the lowest prospect with New Hampshire and Vermont only a trifle better. For New England as a whole the outlook for an average crop of good to fine apples is good. Peaches in most sections that raise them promise well, but pears are mostly lighter than usual

Set onions of the Connecticut valley region are a fine crop, with yields from 200 to 400 bags per acre, and are now bringing $2.25. The rains will considerably improve the crop of seed onions, which are rather poor at present.

Tobacco generally throughout New England at present gives promise of excellent yields and quality. Harvesting of early crops is going on. Hail damage is probably less than usual.

The bean crop is good here, but Michigan reports only fair set of pods. Michigan potatoes have grown slowly from drought but stand is good there and there are many pieces, yields will depend upon future weather Michigan has good prospects for apples, peaches and grapes.

SPECTACULAR RACING FEATURES OPENING DAY OF BAY STATE MEET

Extra heats and spectacular driving finishes marked the opening day of the Bay State Circuit here on Wednesday and never before has such good racing been seen on the local track. Every heat was close and it was only superior driving in many cases that brought through the heat winners in the stretch. The attendance was fairly good but was not as large as such racing deserves. Never before and probably it will be some time to come before such a meet is again held in this city and Norwich is indeed fortunate in having such an array of fast horse flesh at the local track.

The 2.16 trot and the 2.14 pace were the feature events of the day and both races furnished plenty of thrills for even those who follow the races more closely than the average person. The 2.14 pace was exceptionally spectacular especially the last heat which was a neck and neck affair between Flemming's chestnut gelding Carl C and Kingfisher Martin's bay mare Guesswork. It was Flemming's superior driving and judgment that won for him.

Carl C looked like an easy winner in the first two heats although given some keen competition by Red Review and Coquetilla. In the third heat there was as pretty a drive as a lover of horse racing could desire. Both horses were away to a good start and the half mile was made in rather slow time with both animals running nose and nose. On the last half the pace was increased and when the horses swung into the last quarter they were traveling at a fast clip with Guesswork showing in front by half a length. Coming up the stretch Flemming put the whip to his mount and inch by inch the chestnut crept up until within twenty feet of the wire they were running nose and nose and then as they flashed under the wire Flemming's horse showed an inch or two ahead of the Martin mount. It was a real horse race and some real driving was done. The last quarter was made in :30 3-4, a record for the quarter at the track.

The 2.16 trot also was productive of some real thrills although not quite as spectacular as the race between Martin and Flemming. This was a go between Ruth Brooke, a bay mare from Whitney's stable and Victory Loan another chestnut gelding owned by Flemming, in which Ruth Brooke won out after placing fifth in the first heat. Victory Loan took the first heat and Ruth Brooke the next two. Michailowa, the mare gave a tight rub in the second and Benzol pushing her hard in the third. The fourth heat was a close finish heat with Victory Loan having the edge in the drive up the stretch. In the fifth heat it was a nip and tuck race from the start with the bay mare having the better staying qualities as they came up the stretch. This was another exceptionally good race.

The 2.25 trot although a good race to watch did not furnish the thrills of the two faster events. In this event Peter Whitlock won in four heats, taking the first from Miss Worthy in a close drive but trailing Plain Mary and Miss Worthy in the second. In the third Burke's bay gelding again showed in front with Miss Worthy giving him a close fight in the stretch. In the final heat it was a brush in the stretch between Burke's horse and Plain Mary with the gelding showing strong at the finish.

Today's Card

Today, Thursday, is slated as the big day of the Bay State meeting in this city and from the calibre of racing that was demonstrated yesterday it is expected that racing such as Norwich has never known before will be seen. It will be a day for the pacers in the 2.11 class and the 2.17 class and some of the fast horses are entered in these two events. The 2.14 trot will also be productive of fast time but the banner event will be the free-for-all.

In this last event is entered a horse with a mark of 2.01 3-4, Colonel Bidwell a bay stallion by Colonel Forrest and owned by Joe Johnson. Johnson says that his mount will lower the track record for pacers which is 2.10 flat. Running against the Colonel will be several other horses with marks less than 2.04 and from all indications some of the local records are going by the boards in the free-for-all if not broken in the 2.11 pace.

Al Standish who is doing the starting at the track is an old timer in the racing game and little gets by his eagle eye. He got the fields away in fine shape on Wednesday and his work is giving perfect satisfaction. C. B Stickney is the presiding judge.

There will be no racing at the track on Friday because of the national day of mourning but Friday's events will hold over until Saturday.

MARRIED MEN TROUNCE HOSPITAL SINGLE MEN

In a weird but interesting game at the Norwich State Hospital on Wednesday evening the married men of the institution gave the Single Men a terrific lacing 25 to 6 in a seven-inning contest. The benedicts had their batting eyes with them and pounded the offerings of the lad with the botanical name, Flowers, to all corners of the old bean patch. The Single Men were helpless before that old time hook of Billy Donovan and every time he threw that old round-house they strained their backs trying to put it out of the lot. One of the outstanding features of the fielding of the single men was that of "Jellyroll" Cominski, who accepted eight chances making six fumbles and leaving the other two to the four winds of Heaven. Outside of that he played and talked a good game. Home Run Schaffrick, a member of the regulars, like the rest of his gang was helpless before Billy's hooks. The lineups were: Married Men—Flynn c, Donovan p, Demming 1b, Jim Averill 2b, Paul Hart ss, Walsh 3b, Burlingame lf, Unknown cf, Maynard rf. Single Men—Coyette c, Flowers p, West 1b, Wilcox 2b, Cominski ss, Schaffrick 3b, Windy Bellows lf, Joseph cf, Jinks rf. The score by innings:

WHITE SOX GET TO HARRIS AND TRIM ATHLETICS

Philadelphia, Aug. 8—Chicago found Harris easy today and batted out a victory over Philadelphia in the third game of the series, 5 to 3. Faber held the Athletics safe at all times. DODGERS AND PIRATES SPLIT EVEN IN TWIN BILL

Pittsburgh, Aug. 8—Brooklyn and Pittsburgh divided a doubleheader here today, the Dodgers winning the first 9 to 2 and losing the second, 5 to 2.

In the first game Vance displayed his usual effectiveness, holding the Pirates to five hits for his ninth consecutive victory. But for Berg's error in the third inning, he would have held the Pirates scoreless.

In the second game after Carey had slammed out a circuit clout in the third inning the locals got their hits at the time the visitors made misplays and had the game won, 5 to 0, until the ninth inning when the Dodgers scored twice. Scores:

INDIANA NOT TO PERMIT FIRPO-DOWNEY BOUT

Indianapolis, Aug. 8—

The ten-round boxing contest between Luis Firpo of the Argentine and Joe Downey of Cincinnati, was ordered cancelled a few hours before it was scheduled to take place here tonight, by Governor McCray, who declared his action was prompted out of respect to the memory of President Harding.

The contest, however, will be held here August 17, according to an announcement by Jack Druley, promoter.

FISCHER CONTINUES HIS BRILLIANT TENNIS IN SOUTHAMPTON TOURNEY

Southampton, N. Y., Aug. 8—Carl Fischer, of Philadelphia, nineteenth in the national ranking, continued his unexpected race to the front today in the invitation tennis tournament on the courts of the Meadow club, when he defeated Howard Kinsey, of San Francisco, eighth ranking player, in straight sets, 6-4, 6-3, and entered the semi-final round.

Fischer, who is intercollegiate champion, led the Pacific coast star through the entire match, playing from every angle and position on the court and often using a terrific net smash, with which he scored three kills in a single game. Kinsey clung to the base line and attempted, unsuccessfully, to counteract with steadiness his opponent's brilliance.

The other players who qualified for the next to last round were Vincent Richards, of Yonkers, who defeated Hugh Kelleher, of New York, 6-2, 5-7, 6-2; Francis T. Hunter, of New Rochelle N. Y., who eliminated Brian I. C. Norton South African star, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4, and Clarence J. "Peck" Griffin, San Francisco, who defeated Manuel Alonso, of Spain, 6-1, 6-4.

The match between Norton and Hunter furnished the most strenuous tennis of the week with a fierce driving drill in which both men hit with savage power and maintained terrific speed throughout the three sets. In spite of the pace there were few errors. Both men made daring recoveries from the most difficult positions.

Griffin was much too steady for Alonso, who, after he had run to a lead of 4-0 on the third set, tired from the heavy pace, and lost the next six games in a row.

Richards was too strong for Hugh Kelleher, and wore him down in the three sets, although the New York player made a brilliant recovery in the second set, which he took after a hard battle, 7-5.

In the third round of the doubles, Richards and Norton defeated S. F. Hepburn and James S. Lowry of the Oxford-Cambridge team in a lop-sided match, 6-1, 6-1, while Alonso and Griffin eliminated Phillip Neer, of Leland-Stanford and James Davies, 6-3, 6-4.

RED SOX DIVIDE HONORS WITH COBB'S TIGERS

Boston, Aug. 8—Boston and Detroit split even in a double header today. Dauss pitched his fourteenth victory of the season in the opener, Detroit winning 4 to 0. George Burns' home run over the left field fence in the seventh inning gave Boston the run which won the second game, 3 to 2. Detroit's fielding was sharp and often brilliant. The scores:

COAL HEAVERS TAKE BOTH ENDS OF DOUBLE HEADER

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 8—Worcester defeated Waterbury today in both games of a double-header, 4 to 3 and 6 to 2. Sterling Stryker pitched airtight ball in all but the sixth inning of the first game when an error and pass gave Waterbury a chance for a run. Kane hit over the fence for the other. Braxton was effective in the second game but shaky toward the end when a long running catch with three men on in the eighth made by Reis, obtained from Providence, saved Worcester from being headed. Reis made a home run in that game. Scores by innings:

First game—

Worcester	1	0	0	0	0	0	1	2	x	—4	14	4

Two base hits, Emmerich, Clanton. Three base hits, Roser, Braxton. Home runs, Reis.

HARTFORD WINS TWO GAMES FROM ALBANY

Hartford, Aug. 8—Hartford took two games from Albany here today, winning the first, 5 to 3 and the second 3 to 1. "Lou" Malone, obtained from Worcester, made his first appearance in a Senator uniform playing shortstop. In the twilight event he got three out of four.

Lou Gehrig knocked home runs in the first innings of each game, scoring Hauk each time. Hughes registered with a circuit clout in the first game and Esmond with another in the second, the latter being Albany's only tally. Both Johnson and Canavan kept hits scattered and were backed up by fielding of a superior brand. Scores by innings:

Hartford	1	1	0	0	0	0	0	1	x	—5	8	0

Typographical Baseball

New York, Aug. 6—Washington, 1922 champion, advanced to the semi-final round of the thirteenth annual championship tournament of the Union Printers International baseball league today at Manhattan Beach, N. Y., defeating Detroit, 8 to 7, in an eleven inning contest. St. Paul, farthest west of the fourteen teams comprising the Printers circuits, eliminated Philadelphia, 8 to 3.

The four surviving teams now in the race for the Garry Herrmann trophy are Washington, St. Paul, Chicago and Hamilton. These four teams will meet in two games in the semi-finals tomorrow morning at the Polo grounds and in the afternoon the winners will meet for the 1923 title.

THREE TIED FOR WORLD CHESS HONORS

Lake Hopatcong, N. J., Aug. 8.—Victories gained by Schapiro of Columbia University and Janowski of Paris enabled these two experts to tie Hodges of New York for first place in the masters tournament of the ninth American Chess Congress at the Hotel Alamac today. Schapiro defeated Black of Syracuse and Janowski won from Bigelow, New York.

Hodges, on the other hand yielded a draw to Palmer of Toledo, Iowa. This set the New Yorker back a half point. Other wins went to Marshall of New York, Lasker of Chicago, Kupchik of New York and Chajes of New York. Kupchik is in fourth place and Lasker and Marshall are tied for fifth.

Hardigs Trim East Ends

Wednesday evening at the Fairgrounds the Hardigs trimmed the East Ends by the score of 5 to 2. Harris, the mainstay of the East Ends, pitched exceptional ball but was ragged in the pinches allowing 6 hits. Segal of the Hardigs had a slight advantage over Harris, Segal allowing but 4 hits. It looked tough for the Hardigs at the beginning of the game, Segal being a little wild. There were no extra base hits on either side. The Hardigs had three new faces in their lineup, Bob Lynch, Mack and Dungan, formerly from Monson, Mass., the three of them playing exceptional good ball. Segal struck out 14 men, while 'Spike' Harris struck out 9.

GOOD RACING MARKS CLOSING DAY AT WINDSOR

Windsor, Ont., Aug. 8—The first grand circuit meeting to be held in the Detroit district since 1915 closed today at Devonshire park. Most of the horses tonight were being shipped to Toledo where the grand circuit meeting opens at Fort Miami track Saturday.

Robert Direct, Chestnut Gelding by Walter Direct, won the 2:04 pace today, taking the first and third heats, but dropping the second to Roger C. In the 2:15 class trotting Gold King won by taking the last five heats, after Zaquilla had finished first in the opener.

Tommy Murphy, who has found the devonshire going unusually difficult, took the first race of the day, the 2:12 pace, winning all three heats with Merriman. Merriman was the only favoriteofthe afternoon not to disappoint its backers.

Hustlers Want Games

The Young Hustlers of Taftville would like to hear about a game with the Hardigs of Greeneville for Saturday and a game with the East Ends for Sunday both at Taftville at 2.30 D. S. T. If this is satisfactory I would like to hear from both managers so that neither one of us need be there for nothing. Please write to Joe Lucier, P. O. Box, No. 371, Taftville, Conn.

No Eastern Games Friday

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 8.—President Dan O'Neil, of the Eastern league announced tonight that all league games would be called off Friday in accordance with the proclamation of president Coolidge. Double headers will be played Saturday.

Luque is Suspended

Cincinnati, Ohio, Aug. 8.—Pitcher Adolfo Luque of the Cincinnati Nationals, was suspended today as a result of the clash that occurred in the eighth inning of the Reds-Giants game here yesterday.

A NATION'S TRIBUTE.

With hearts bowed in sorrow the thoughts of the nation have followed the progress of the funeral train from sea to sea that brought the dead president home. There was nothing perfunctory, official, coldly-planned in the spontaneous reaction of the people of the land along the whole 3,000 miles where the path led though throngs of humanity gathered to pay tribute to their nation's chief in his final home-coming.

From paintless log cabins children came, barefooted, to watch and feel that train go by. Merchants and day-laborers stood at the crossroads and the farmer boy paused at his work in the hayfield and doffed his hat. Reverently hushed, employers and employes filled the windows of factories. The veterans of old wars and new stood side by side in salutation for their commander-in-chief for whom all flags were at half-mast. One impulse moved the cowboy on the lonely western plains and the crowd in the metropolis. By the light of day and in all-night vigil, the funeral pilgrimage has been a period of sustained solemnity with which there is nothing to compare in the history of this or any other country.

In this unprecedented demonstration the people have felt a rare unison of thought and feeling. In this period of solemn reflection we have seen in a new light the smallness of certain issues that divided us, the force and power in the ties that bind all members of the one great family in a single household that is the United States. The death of one man has brought this message to the millions. In death and in life, Harding has been the peacemaker and the grief for him has brought north, south, east and west together. In the loss which the people share as one, section and faction have been wiped away.

SENATOR UNDERWOOD'S OFFER.

Since Senator Underwood has announced to a delegation of the Alabama state legislature that he would become a candidate for the democratic presidential nomination, there is little doubt that Alabama will present his name to the nominating convention. That he is a man of great ability and fine character even his opponents will concede. In his address he spoke of the great importance at the present time of upholding the rights of the states against a growing tendency towards centralization. He is not alone in this thought.

In making his bow at Montgomery, Mr. Underwood discussed three questions of policy: Prohibition, foreign affairs and tariff. With respect to prohibition, his attitude has a familiar facility. Prohibition is law and hence a closed issue for him. He believes in strict law enforcement, but anybody who will bring him rational proposals for amendment of the existing statute will have his support. Mr. Underwood, in a word, is neither wet nor dry; he is just a trifle damp with the dews of his Alabama mountains. When it comes to foreign affairs, he is all for America playing a man's part in world affairs; but here again, we find him more or less vague about a method of manhood. With respect to the new tariff, his position is naturally orthodox democratic doctrine. This is all safe and sane enough, conservative in color and expression.

More stimulating than any of these was his reference to a southern candidacy on which he advanced the proposition that the people are no longer considering it vital from which state a candidate hails, but their first thought is for the principals for which he stands, and the second, the character of the candidate. Mr. Underwood feels that the time has come for his party to abandon its prejudices along sectional lines. He recognizes that expediency may have its virtues, but he repudiates the theory that doubtful states must select a candidate.

The knowledge of democratic ticket-makers that southern states will remain democratic whatever happens is indeed a tactical weakness for any southern candidate, and Mr. Underwood's implied threat is not apt to change so fundamental a condition. As a question of abstract right, a southerner is, of course, entitled to candidacy, but political caution is another matter. Mr. Underwood might do his party a service if he could demolish this tradition, but whether democrats from other sections can be won over to this view is a large question.

AN ANTHRACITE BOYCOTT.

If there is to be a strike of anthracite coal miners on the first of September, the Massachusetts legislative joint special coal commission has evolved a plan which anticipates vigorous action to teach a permanent lesson to those who for the second time within comparatively few months threaten to cut off the fuel supply." This is nothing more nor less than a boycott against the use of anthracite in New England. Because Massachusetts uses one-eighth of the nation's anthracite production and New England uses one-fifth, the commission feels that this territory could well speak with a voice that could be heard by operators and miners alike if it should declare a permanent boycott against hard coal. The plans of the commission, which favors neither the miners nor the operators, are to be laid before a conference of New England governors in Boston on Aug. 23, where the commission predicts the other New England states will readily agree to the Massachusetts plan.

It was the "check-off" system over which the operators and miners reached a deadlock and finally broke up their recent conference at Atlantic City without renewing their agreement. Important as the check-off system may be in the industry, a system by which the mining companies deduct union dues from the men's wages, the thing that New England is primarily interested in is a continuous supply of hard coal. We are looking also for the report of the federal fact-finding commission, which hopes to explain to congress how it can straighten out unnecessary complexities and expenses in the coal industry. It is significant that one of the first visitors to be received in Washington by President Coolidge was John Hays Hammond, chairman of this commission.

If President Coolidge is called upon to take action in the coal situation, he will need to do so with all the tact and skill he can command. It is with a feeling of confidence that the country can entrust the task to his hands.

TREATY WITH TURKEY.

It has been said of the treaty which Turkey signed with the allies at Lausanne that the Angora government imposed the terms of a victor in the articles that were embodied in the treaty. The same cannot be said of the Turco-American treaty that was signed at Lausanne this week. Against the allies it was recognized that Turkey was using its victory over Greece and shrewdly taking advantage of the conflict between British and French interest and desires to exercise such leverage as it might need to obtain its own objects in the treaty with the allies. In the negotiations with the United States the Turks had no such weapon, but the Turco-American treaty is the result of long and difficult negotiations.

That a new treaty was needed is apparent when it is known that the previous one had been signed in 1830. It had become antiquated and the application of its terms by the Turks had been the source of frequent friction. Under the new treaty, it is reported that Americans receive the favored nations treatment and the official and commercial relations between the two countries are regulated in detail. Relief will be brought to Americans and American interests by clarifying the heretofore equivocal position created by Turkey's action of capitulations. American missionary activities, particularly along educational lines, have become very extensive there, and Americans have found much to complain of to the American high commission because their educational institutions were not accorded the same treatment as Turkish institutions, particularly in the matter of taxes from which the American schools and colleges had been legally exempted under the old treaty. The arrest and imprisonment of foreigners has likewise been a frequent cause of complaint, but this condition will be improved by Turkey's agreement to appoint foreign legal advisers to act in such cases.

When Rev. Dr. James L. Barton, Congregational foreign mission secretary, spoke to a Norwich audience recently, he expressed distrust of the treaty on the ground that it was too vague in some of its provisions towards American institutions. It seems probable, however, that these have not been overlooked in the treaty provisions. America is not accustomed to signing pointless provisions or to being worsted in treaty negotiations, even by so wily a diplomat as the Turk has proved to be.

WHEN HE CAME BACK

The gray ambulance turned the corner of the avenue and crawled up to the hospital entrance. It was greeted by a stare of interest from the convalescent patients and visitors in the yard. The little girl whose head was still bandaged from her mastoid operation edged up to her visiting mother and rested her thin little hand on her mother's. "He can have some of my flowers," she said.

They opened the ambulance door and carried a covered stretcher up the high steps into the first corridor, around the corner and to the northeast room. The tall head surgeon with the thin face was in the room waiting.

"No bones broken—just bruised." The head surgeon clipped out the words professionally, though he smiled like a real man. "He's conscious. Follow directions. I'll be back later."

He stopped at the desk to give information, about the new patient. "Just got off the train and left the station when the automobile hit him," he said. "Mighty intelligent looking young fellow. His face was sort of familiar, but his name wasn't. Get it? Did you?"

"I want to take the new sick man some of my flowers," she said. "Mother said I could. She said they were more for me at home."

"Not now, Gertrude, dear." The nurse smiled at the little girl.

The little girl walked away. She would leave the hospital in a few minutes with the mother who was now packing up the little one's clothes in the children's room. They were going back to the home that the mother was trying to keep together. Her husband had been let out of Leavenworth's gates three weeks before. "Something we don't understand is keeping him away," she explained.

The little girl slipped around the corridor and to the door of the northeast room. The curtains at the window were swaying. The soft odor of ether rushed out to meet the child, but she didn't mind that. The nurse was gone and the little girl was glad.

Shyly she slipped up to the bed and held out her little fist of carnations. She touched the man's arm. He uncovered his face and scowled. He might have been handsome. In his satchel was a revolver. He was glad now he had put it there instead of his pocket, for they would have found it there.

At first he had never intended to use a weapon, he had meant to go straight. Then an unwise and cruel letter from his father had told the convict that Molly and the baby would be cared for. The message meant that he need never return. So he thought no more of going straight. There was a black plan of vengeance in his mind to punish the officers who had sent him over the road.

The little hand touched his again. "I'm Gertrude," a sweet little voice announced, "and I brought you some of my mamma's flowers."

The still figure barely moved. "I'll put them in your hand so you won't have to reach for them," she continued. "My daddy works away from home, but some day he is coming home. My mamma says he is."

The voice froze the man. He lay and listened while Gertrude continued. She told of her grandfather's being cross to her mother for letting her father "go away from home to work." Grandpa had been still "madder" because they wouldn't go home with him. But mother was working now and they were happier. They weren't going to use up all of her daddy's money.

"Yes, he is too coming," she insisted. "My uncle Bob said he didn't think he would, but mother told me not to listen to Uncle Bob. We don't have no company at our house, but mother says not to mind that, for we'll have company enough when he gets home.

The man's eyes were full of tears. The scowl had left his forehead. He didn't even ask the nurse any questions when she came back. He merely motioned her to lean over so that he could whisper to her.

"There's a revolver in my bag," he whispered. "I want you to take it and get rid of it. And then won't you please call Gertrude's mother? I—"

The nurse stooped and slipped Gertrude's little hand into his. She, too had heard the story from the little girl and knew all its details. Her eyes were full of tears, but she smiled.

"Yes, I'll call her," she said. "She told Gertrude you'd be back soon, but I don't think even she knew it would be today.—Exchange.

A Little Talk on Thrift

Guarding Against Fires.

Some recent statistics made public by the National Board of Fire Underwriters furnish proof of the need of more intensively safeguarding the homes of the country against fires. According to these figures, there is an annual loss of life in this country of 15,000 due directly to fires. During the last five years dwellings worth a third of a billion dollars—$321,453,875 to be exact—were destroyed.

It has been computed by competent authorities that 90 per cent. of the fire losses in this country are due to avoidable causes. This means that substantially $290,000,000 worth of homes were needlessly burned up in the United States in the last five years.

There is today a shortage in residential buildings throughout the country which makes the wanton loss of homes through fires all the more deplorable. If we use $10,000 as the average home, these figures indicate an unnecessary destruction of about 28,000 homes during the five year period, which would be sufficient to shelter the population of a city well in excess of 100,000.

The wiping out of this property means a tremendous economic loss to the country. It is so much capital gone. The third of a billion dollars thus destroyed places an additional burden on the rest of the country.

And these financial losses, appalling though they seem, are as nothing compared to the sacrifice of 3,000 human lives a year.

The solution of this problem lies almost entirely in education. Various individuals and organizations have been trying for years to secure greater attention to thrift in the public schools. If such an addition to the curricula of the nation's schools went no further than a partial elimination of fires from preventable causes, the saving of human lives and property which would result from these educational efforts would be well worth all the time, energy and money involved.

"Joe, that's the limit."

When the superintendent visited the school he saw the pile of chewed pulp on Joe's desk and said to him:

"What is that?"

"That's the limit," said the boy.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Tolling the Bells.

Mr. Editor: I read in Wednesday's Bulletin that the city of Norwich will have the bells tolled, and the chimes played at 3 p. m. on Friday, standard time, as being the hour when the funeral of our late president takes place.

The services in Marion, Ohio, are to be held at 3 p. m., central standard time. It will then be 4 o'clock Eastern standard time in Norwich, and 5 o'clock daylight saving time.

Very truly,

INTERESTED.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

A fact not generally known in connection with the Duke of Orleans, the Bourbon pretender to the French throne, who is reported critically ill in England, is that he made formal request during the late war to be permitted to serve in the ranks of the United States army. The request which President Wilson felt compelled to refuse, served to recall a romantic episode which happened many years earlier in the Duke's life. After studying at Sandhurst and spending a year or so in India with the British army, it occurred to the Duke that it would be a patriotic move to become a conscript in the Republican army of France. He accordingly journeyed to Switzerland, disguised himself, and traveled to Paris, where he went to the recruiting office; but he was declined, as the name he gave was not on the list. His identity was discovered, with the result that he was sentenced to two years in prison as a first-class offender. He was released, however, after a brief and merely nominal incarceration.

Removes Hairy Growths Without Pain or Bother

(Modes of Today)

It is not necessary to use a painful process to remove hairy growths, for with a little delatone handy you can keep the skin entirely free from these beauty destroyers. To remove hair, make a stiff paste with a little powdered delatone and water. Spread this on the hairy surface and in about 2 minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. To guard against disappointment, be careful to get real delatone. Mix fresh as wanted.

BANKS MAY CLOSE ONE HOUR FRIDAY

Bank Commissioner J. B. Byrne has issued a communication to all state banks, trust companies and savings banks in Connecticut, recommending that they close for at least one hour on Friday out of respect to President Harding, whose funeral service will be held at Marion on that day. Commissioner Byrne has received many messages from the country banks and the banks in the smaller towns of the state, asking what observance of Friday he recommend they make. These smaller banks are expected to follow the action taken by the banks in Hartford, New Haven and Bridgeport, and the action taken in those places will probably be determined, according to Commissioner Byrne, by the clearing house exchanges in the three cities.

Commissioner Byrne's communication to the banks follows:

"By order of His Excellency, Charles A. Templeton, Governor, Friday, August 10, has been set aside as a day of mourning for the late president of the United States, Warren G. Harding. This department will be closed.

"While this is not a legal holiday and due precautions should be taken with respect to obligations maturing on that day, I would respectfully urge that all banks observe this day by at least closing their doors during the funeral hour while the nation mourns the loss of the man who gave his all to the country which he loved so well and served so faithfully."

AUTOMOBILE HIT MAN ON WATER STREET

An automobile, owned and operated by William Parmelee of Broad street, New London, a public service operator, struck an unidentified man on Water street, this city, Tuesday evening. The man walked directly in front of the auto and was knocked down.

The driver stopped to ascertain the extent of the man's injuries but he declared he was not hurt and declined to reveal his name. Parmelee, however, reported the accident to the motor vehicle department Wednesday.

ROTARIANS PAY TRIBUTE TO MEMORY OF PRESIDENT HARDING

With nearly all the members present a short but very impressive memorial service for President Harding, who was a Rotarian, was held by the Norwich Rotary club at the Wauregan hotel Wednesday noon. No luncheon was served and the regular meeting was omitted. In the center of the dining room was a picture of the late president draped with the American flag and the flag that flies from a staff at all Rotary meetings was at half-mast. The service opened with the singing of America and after the roll call President C. A. Saxton delivered a short but impressive address paying tribute to Rotarian Warren G. Harding. President Saxton said:

When I learned on Sunday morning that the body of President Harding was to lie in state in Washington today, it seemed very fitting we should omit the song and luncheon part of our regular weekly meeting so I called our secretary on the telephone and between us we called as many of the directors as could be reached, and they were unanimous in the opinion we should hold a short memorial service for our late president and fellow Rotarian. On Sunday afternoon I received a wire from George Cooper, our district governor, copy of which was included in the weekly notice, so we had anticipated the suggestion of Rotary International.

I do not feel qualified to eulogize our late president and fellow Rotarian, Warren G. Harding, but I would like to say a few words relative to his qualities as a great man and a believer in Rotarian principles. It is perhaps too soon to place an estimate on his character. We do not as yet appreciate or realize the true value of his service. When he came into office the whole world was turning to this country for guidance and help, and he, as chief executive, had to shoulder the burden of advising what part this country should take in the settlement of foreign problems, and he, as all great men have done, gathered around him the most able statesmen, business and financial men he could find for his official family and called into frequent conference other able men irrespective of party for their help, showing in this way his intense desire to do that which was best for all mankind.

It was doing such things as this, though they differed in opinion, which has endeared him to all the peoples of the earth and particularly to the people of the United States. This love for him and sympathy for Mrs. Harding has been expressed in a way which has never been known before—hundreds of thousands of people standing for hours waiting for his body to pass so they might pay a silent tribute to his memory.

In his address to the delegates at the convention of Rotary International in St. Louis just before he started on his ill-fated trip to Alaska he showed the same careful study of his subject which has characterized his every suggestion to our national legislative bodies and at the same time proved he believed in and lived the Rotary code of ethics. I would like to quote a part of his St. Louis address:

"If I could plant a Rotary club in every community I would do it, and then guarantee the tranquility and the forward march of the world. Statesmen have problems, governments have theirs, but if we could plant the spirit of Rotary throughout the world and turn it to practical application there would not be much wrong with the human procession."

These words showed his belief in the principles of Rotary and he applied the motto "Service Above Self" to his own life as shown by the task he set himself to make—this trip around the United States and to Alaska—to lay before the people his ideas as to what part our country should play in the settlement of world affairs and to bring the thoughts of the people of this country into closer harmony. Who knows but what his supreme sacrifice will have the softening influence to bring about the closer harmony he so much desired.

At the conclusion of Mr. Saxton's address the meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

ITALIAN RESIDENTS ARE PLANNING BIG CELEBRATION

The Italian residents of Norwich will next Wednesday celebrate the Feast of Our Lady of the Assumption for the first time in the city of Norwich. An elaborate programme is being arranged under the direction of a special committee.

The celebration will begin Aug. 14, at 7 o'clock in the evening when a salute of six shots will be fired. Then a local band will start a procession and will parade through Franklin square and Franklin street thence returning to the park on Franklin street where a musical concert will be given.

The morning of the 15th at 6.30 a. m. a salute of 20 shots will be fired. At 8.30 a. m. a parade through the principal street will follow. At 10 a. m. the procession will proceed to St. Patrick's church where a solemn high mass will be celebrated. After mass there will be a return procession of the band.

At 12 a salute of 20 shots will be fired and at 4.30 there will be a band concert at the park on Franklin street. At 6.45 20 shots will be fired. The park will be illuminated with electric lights of various colors and flags will be attractively arranged. At 7.30 a band concert under the personal direction of Prof. Pasquale Puca will be given. The concert will terminate at 9 p. m. After the band concert the entire Italian colony will form and march to Talmas street where a beautiful display of fireworks will be set off. This special Italian society desires all citizens of Norwich to assist them to make this celebration one of Norwich's greatest. The chairman of the committee arrangements is Rocco Barbotta.

MEMORIAL PROGRAMME FOR UNION SERVICE

Throughout the entire city Friday people will pay homage to the memory of President Warren G. Harding, who rose from private life to the greatest office this land can bestow upon its sons. All creeds are expected to join in the service for the late president and during the hour that Warren G. Harding is buried in his home town, Marion, Ohio, with brief but solemn services, Norwich people will gather and hold services of a similar kind.

At the same hour as the hour of service at Marion hundreds of citizens of the city representing all creeds will gather at the United Congregational church on Broadway where union services are to be held and a programme of prayer and hymns will take place. The proclamation of President Calvin Coolidge will be read and the favorite hymns of the martyred president will be sung. The service will be as follows:

Funeral March, Chopin; invocation, President's Proclamation, hymn, O God, Our Help in Ages Past; Scripture reading, The 90th Psalm; prayer, hymn, Lead Kindly Light; Scripture reading; hymn, Nearer, My God, to Thee; prayer and benediction; Lead March in Saul, Handel.

POWER COMPANY TO ERECT BUSINESS BLOCK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Aug. 8.—The Connecticut Power Company is to erect a handsome business block on the former Williams property site, being the tract that is bounded by State, Huntington, Church and Meridian streets and which was acquired a few months ago by Frederick W. Mercer, J. P. T. Armstrong and Theodore Bodenwein. The decision to build was made final at a meeting of the stockholders held in Hartford yesterday afternoon.

The new structure will be of five stories and will occupy the tracts at the corner of Huntington and State streets. Mr. Mercer is also to cause to be erected on the site a structure for commercial purpose, he having selected the corner at State and Meridian streets as the additional site for a business house.

MAYOR MILO R. WATERS ISSUES PROCLAMATION

The following proclamation has been issued by Mayor Milo R. Waters relative to the local observance of Friday, the day of President Harding's funeral at Marion.

In compliance with the proclamation of President Coolidge, designating Friday,—Aug. 10, when the body of the departed president will be laid to rest, as a day of mourning and prayer, the citizens of Norwich are requested to close their places of business, and to refrain from any activity tending to avert their attention from the solemnity of the occasion and the reverence and devotion due to the memory of the late president.

MILO R. WATERS,
Mayor of the City of Norwich

Favors Consolidation.

The reply of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company to the report of the Joint New England Railroad Committee to the Governors of the New England States, favoring consolidation, will be made within the next wek or ten days, according to E. G. Buckland, general counsel for the railroad.

EMERGENCY COAL COMMISSION NAMED BY BULLARD

Membership of the emergency coal commission of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce was announced by President Stanley H. Bullard Wednesday. The commission will aim to insure to householders and industries of the state a sufficient supply of fuel in the event of a coal strike this year. The New Haven road has promised its aid and cooperation. The commission will meet at Hotel Stratfield, at Bridgeport, at noon Thursday, to lay preliminary plans.

At a conference of the commission prior to the announcing of its membership it was stated that more coal has been shipped into the state this year than at any other similar period in the state's history. Mr. Bullard's statement did not directly anticipate a coal strike, explaining that the group is formed to carry out the helping policy of the chamber.

Members of the commission follow: Samuel Ferguson, vice president of the Hartford Electric Light Company; James D. Skinner, former fuel administrator at Bridgeport; J. Alexander Hamilton, president of W. F. Gilbert company, New Haven; James O. Halliday, superintendent of transportation, New Haven railroad; Theodore Bodenwein, publisher of the New London Day; O. S. Boeker, assistant treasurer Seymour Manufacturing Company, Seymour; James L. Linsley, purchasing agent of the Eastern Malleable Iron Co. of Naugatuck; Lewis A. Zibbie, vice president Risden Mfg. Co., Frank H. Lee, president F. H. Lee company, Danbury, and Frank S. Drake, treasurer New England Pin Co., Winsted.

Mr. Bullard and George B. Chandler, secretary of the Connecticut Chamber, are serving as ex-officio members.

Thomas Russell, of Hartford, former fuel administrator, was asked to serve with the others but has not replied.

A similar commission served two years ago in the distribution of coal to industries.

WESTERN PEN OF LEGHORNS IN LEAD

Another pen, and not a dark horse, either, is leading in the laying contest at Storrs. It's a Western pen of Leghorns owned by Hollywood farm from Hollywood, Wash. During the last three years these birds, competing with 300 others from all over the country, have won first, second and fourth places in the finals. Thus it can be seen that they are dangerous contenders. Nearly every breed has had its chance since the contest was started last November. A pen of Wyandottes from Rhode Island got away first and stayed at the top for six weeks. Then Hollywood's pen, the one that is now leading, nosed into first place for a single week and tied a pen of Leghorns from Maryland for the two following weeks. In the tenth week the Maryland Leghorns and a pen of Wyandottes from Rhode Island were tied by the Wyandottes pulled away and hung on to first position for the next eight weeks. They succumbed to a pen of Rhode Island Reds from Massachusetts that likewise led all comers for a period of eight weeks. These in turn gave way to a pen of English Wyandottes that stayed at the top longer than any other pen, namely nine weeks. Star position was then claimed by a pen of Leghorns from Long Island for four weeks. In view of these numerous changes no one can yet safely predict the winner for the year.

In the fortieth week the hens actually laid more eggs than for the preceding week and a few more than the eight year average. The total production for all pens was 3481 eggs or a yield of nearly 47 per cent. All the best pens for the week were Leghorns Meadowedge Farm from Cedarhurst, L. I., was first with a score of 57 eggs. Hollywood Farm from Hollywood, Wash., was a close second with a score of 56 eggs. Andrew L. Ohr from Wallingford, Conn., and F. M. Johnson from Waldoboro, Maine, tied for third place with 51 eggs each. M. J. Quackenbuch of Nutley, N. J., was in fourth place with a mark of 50 eggs.

CALLS ATTENTION TO VALUE OF PLAYGROUNDS

With reference to playgrounds and their value Supt. Harold Anson Bruce of the Norwich Recreation commission called attention Friday to the following editorial from a New York paper:

In its seventeen years of hard work and propaganda the Playground and Recreation Association of America has inspired more than two hundred cities with the desire to provide year-round opportunities for public play. Further, as a direct result of the association's campaigning thirty-two cities have passed laws requiring physical education in the schools. Physical efficiency tests for boys and girls, prepared by the association, were used by more than a hundred cities in 1922. In 1906 only forty-six cities evinced enough interest in young people to establish recreation centers winter as well as summer.

Despite this advance there is still much to be done. There are 336 cities which have no all-year-round recreation provisions, and more than half of these do not even have summer playgrounds. Then there are thousands of cities and towns of less than 8,000 people that have never given a thought to the necessity for play space. In such towns people are inclined to feel that public playgrounds are not necessary. Yet the need is there, even though the wide countryside may be only a few blocks away and the air pure and clean day in and day out. One of the anomalies of country life is the comparatively poor health of children. The proper sort of activity is just as necessary out of town as in.

There is another matter that affects the victims of such carelessness. And that is that the criminal classes are recruited almost entirely from the ranks of juvenile delinquents. Warden Lawes of Sing Sing announced a few months ago that three-quarters of the prisoners there were under twenty-one years of age. That is a serious indictment of public responsibility. If it is true of Sing Sing, it is safe to say it is true of other penitentiaries and jails. The public safety is jeopardized by every young person who goes wrong, and the public purse must pay the final cost.

It would be much less expensive to begin at the beginning and see that every child in city and country is provided with real recreation. The Playground and Recreation Association is ready and eager to expand its work to this end. The Community Service, at 315 Fourth avenue, which carries on the work of the association for New York city, finds itself in need of additional financial support. It should not have to appeal in vain.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Mrs. Andrew Robideau of 49 Railroad Street was severely bruised and shaken up, when knocked down by an automobile driven by Mrs. Margaret Shultz of Trenton, N. J. As Mrs. Shultz was driving her car through the business section near Bernier's market Mrs. Robideau stepped out from between two machine parked there into the path of the New Jersey automobile. Mrs. Robideau was taken into the drug store fo A. A. Bonneville where she was attended by Dr. Judson and Dr. Burroughs. She was later carried in her home. Chief of Police John McFarland investigated the accident and found that Mrs. Schultz had stopped her machine within six feet of the place where she had struck the woman. She was found to be blameless by the officer and was allowed to continue on her way.

PUTNAM

Mayor Chapdelaine has followed the suggestion of the committee in charge of the memorial observance to be held Friday. The committee, Edward F. Perry, Rev. Charles F. Bedard, Mrs. Lillie Leach, Ralph C. Jenkins and George L. Padget, suggested as follows: "The Harding Memorial committee believes that the citizens are of one mind in regard to the death of Warren G. Harding as the greatest calamity that has happened to this nation since the World war; that they realize that he was a great American as well as a great man; the highest among us, yet the most faithful of our public servants; that he gave his life in working for the common welfare; that he was the most lovable as well as the most beloved chief magistrate; that the nation has had; that in the common sorrow all political and partisan lines are obliterated

"That as a tribute to the dead executive they ask that Friday, August 10th, the day of the funeral service at Marion, the stores and other business places of the city, be closed at 12 o'clock for the remainder of the day, that the afternoon performances at the theatres be omitted and that the mills and factories shut down at noon. All flags flying from poles to be at half mast from early morning until sunset.

"At 4.50 o'clock which is one hour later than Marion time, the bells on churches and factories will be tolled for three minutes, followed by the firing of a salute by a detail of the American Legion and taps sounded by buglers.

"During the tolling of the bells it is further requested that all traffic cease; that citizens on the street remove their hats and bow their heads in reverent devotion to the memory of the dead president"

The mayor's proclamation is as follows: "I hereby approve the action taken by the citizens' committee regarding the public observance of the ceremony and endorse the tribute they pay to his admirable qualities and to the great loss the country has sustained in his death, and call upon the citizens to conform to the plans outlined. That the stores and other places of business be closed at 12 o'clock noon, Friday, August 10th, that the mills and factories do likewise, that no theatrical or other places of amusement be open during the afternoon. That at 4.50 o'clock the church and other bells be tolled for three minutes followed by a firing salute and taps. From 4.50 until taps are sounded all traffic will cease, citizens on the street are required to remove their hats and bow their heads in reverent remembrance of the dead president

VICTOR CHAPDELAINE,
Mayor.

It is now understood that most if not all of the mills in the city will be shut down all day and Saturday being a half day, they will not reopen until Monday morning.

At the weekly dinner of Putnam Rotary club, Wednesday, all songs and jokes were omitted and the affair became a solemn memorial to President Harding. There was a silent prayer after which an address was delivered by Judge Lucius H. Fuller. Notice was received from H. H. Davenport that the outing at his summer cottage at Crescent Beach, which was to have taken place today (Thursday) had been postponed a week on account of the week of mourning for the dead president.

Rumors that a Federal highway may be constructed in this section are again gaining currency. While nothing definite regarding the plan can be learned it is believed that if undertaken the road will lead from Overlock's corner in the town of Pomfret through Eastford, to Mansfield, there joining the state highway to Hartford. This is almost a straight line from Pomfret to Mansfield as the crow flies and will reduce the distance from Putnam to Hartford nine miles.

Mrs. M. J. Lynch, Miss Martha Griffin and Mrs. Fred S. Bruce are spending ten days at Pleasant View, R. I.

The Woman's Relief Corps of Putnam is to join the Woman's Relief Corps off Danielson in an outing and picnic at Wildwood Park Monday next.

"OUCH!
How My Feet Burn and Calluses and Corns Hurt—What Shall I Do?"
USE "GYPSY FOOT RELIEF"

No more soaking the feet in medicated baths no powders, plasters, nor inconveniences, no fuss—no bother! Applied in one minute, the awful burning, soreness, aching and pains from corns, calluses and bunions disappear as if by magic—then you walk, work, dance and stay on your feet as long as you please!

BECAUSE:

WHEN the blood vessels in your feet become gorged with blood from walking or dancing on hard floors or pavements, friction from your shoes irritates and inflames the blood vessels, then the smarting, burning, aching and pain becomes unbearable. Plasters, powders, liquid acids and soaking in baths is useless, because none of these things get at the underlying cause. But Gypsy Foot Relief penetrates, goes right in to the inflamed blood vessels, relieves the congestion, soothes, and cools the entire foot. Naturally the soreness, aching and burning stops, because you have reached the cause. Successful results are guaranteed in every case, or you get back the little Gypsy Foot Relief costs! It is sold in this city by all good druggists including Conditions on the Wayland wharf have become such that a complaint has been made to Warden Crandall in an effort to restore this popular recreation place to its former state of cleanliness and quiet. The trouble complained of is the objectionable manner in which the boys and young men who gather there comport themselves.

Rev. George H. Spaulding with his wife, Dr. Charles M. Williams, with family and Attorney Henry E. Barnes, attended a picnic at Ledyard Saturday held at the Congregational parsonage and farm now the home of one of their classmates Rev. Giles F. Goodenough. The new owner counts nineteen different varieties of berries which grow on fifty acres of farm land. It is the old Bill homestead repurchased by members of the family as a number of years ago it had passed out of their hands and presented to the Ledyard church. In a large upper room formerly used as a Masonic lodge room can be seen a fine collection of photographs (framed and hung) of a number of representatives of most of the leading families of the town in its early days. This room is now used by the Ladies' Aid society of the church. Across the street from the house is a building used as the village store at which place were probably sold rum and codfish tobacco and calico. The peculiar arrangement of counters, shelves and drawers together with the outside shutters which could be let down in sections and serve as shelves for the display of the various wares on sale, has been preserved and is most interesting. A pleasant feature of the day was the presentation to Mr. Goodenough of a Ford car from those of the classmates present and others of the class of 1893 in other parts of the country.

Advocates Cut In King's Pay

KEYSTONE VIEW CO., NEW YORK

David Kirkwood, Labor Member from Dumbarton, Scotland, who is advocating a cut in the pay of the King of England. For some time past Kirkwood has had his motion down but no opportunity has been granted him to bring it forward in the House of Commons. It is said that $550,000 is for the privy purse of the King and Queen alone. But then there are castles to keep up, many charity donations, etc., and these things do cost money. Kirkwood bases his motion on the critical financial condition of the country after the war and the lack of employment for thousands of workers.

NEW LONDON'S FIRE CHIEF, STANNERS, TO RETIRE AFTER 51 YEARS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Aug. 8.—Rock Zekos and Mrs. Kate Hornitzky escaped the penalty for a serious crime in the police court this forenoon, when they were prosecuted for intoxication, instead of for adultery. Each has a record in the court for offenses of serious nature. A few days ago they were found under the influence of liquor in bed together at the Zekos home. They were fined $10 each today and paid that penalty with the costs of prosecution.

Fire Chief John Stanners is soon to be placed on the veteran reserve list, for today he made formal application to City Manager James E. Barlow for retirement. Just when City Manager Barlow will act upon the request is not known, but it will probably be during the next two weeks. When Chief Stanners is retired he will draw an annual pension of one-half the salary he is now receiving, which will make his yearly pension $1,250. Deputy Chief Charles Rose will probably be named to head the department. Chief Stanners joined the fire department Oct. 4, 1871, when he took membership in the E. L. Allen Hook and Ladder Company. He served that organization one year as second assistant foreman and seven years as first assistant foreman. He was elected chief of the department about twenty-five years ago, succeeding former Chief Charles L. Ockford.

Miss Grave Avery of Bellevue place, Francis Kenyon of Westerly.— Miss Marion Bolton of Jewett City, Charles Crocker of Main street, Miss Julia Purcell of Denison avenue and Earl Parks of Connecticut avenue, the last named having a broken leg by a case of merchandise falling upon it while unloading it from a truck on Main street several weeks ago, were patients discharged at Lawrence hospital today.

Mrs. Frederick Morten of Bayonne, N. J., and Mrs. W. D. Hamilton of Orange, N. Y., are guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Emmerich.

The body of Miss Alice Beckwith, whose death occurred at Warren, Conn., several days ago, arrived here this afternoon for burial in the family plot in Flanders cemetery. Committal services were conducted by Rev. Charles F. Eldridge, of Flanders.

Construction work in New London is at a lower ebb than it has been for a long time. At the meeting of the council Monday evening only one application was made for a permit to build. That was for a frame garage The cost of building is now said to have reached a point where real estate cannot be made to pay any interest on an investment if the rate of wages and the cost of material at present are to be met.

C. H. Williams, a New London driver, has been the accused in an automobile law violation case that has been before the police court several times. Today it was disposed of by a nolle. He was accused by the crew of a street car but the accusers have failed each time to appear to press their charge that Williams was driving recklessly.

James Fitzpatrick of Groton, a public service operator, was in the Groton town court this morning on two counts, breach of the peace and resisting an officer. He was fined $60 and costs of $20.05, which brought the total to $80.05. A third count of operating an automobile while intoxicated was nolled.

This forenoon Mrs. Helen G. Patterson, 36 Tilley street, requested the police to cause her son, Dennis, aged 19, and his younger brother to be intercepted, as the youths were runaways to Montreal in an automobile, owned by the elder youth. The police requested the authorities at Hartford and Springfield, Mass., to maintain a watch for the boys and this noon the youngsters were apprehended by the East Hartford police. Mrs. Patterson was notified and went to East Hartford, returning to New London with the boys this evening.

Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin, who has been absent from the city nearly two months, attending the Elks convention in Atlanta, Ga., and is now at Ashville, N. C., will probably arrive back next week.

Tracy Sheffield spent today at Narragansett Pier.

Barnet Goldberg has sold two tracts of land and four buildings on North Bank street, near Federal street, to Mendel and Samuel Shapiro.

The offices in the municipal building will suspend business Friday at noon. All the local theatres will suspend business for that afternoon.

Lincoln E. Childs, who has been away from New London fifty years, is back here for a stay of a few days. Since about 1875 he has been back for a brief visit some seven years ago to stay but a few hours. Mr. Childs was the son of the operator of the old stage coach that ran between New London and Colchester and which made its headquarters at the Bacon hotel, in the days of William and John L. Bacon. Young Childs was a clerk in the store of M. K. Cady and his successors. He has since spent twenty years in England, Germany, Egypt, Palestine and Asia Minor, where he was the representative of a company that produced a device for stamping letters on cloth, cardboard and paper. He is now located at Springfield, Mass., where he is in the real estate business and attending to estate that have property limited.

The New London police have been requested by the New Britain authorities to be on the lookout for Lena Palazzo, aged 14, who disappeared from her home July 31st.

Commissioner Stoeckel has caused the operator's license of Horace Pervere, 39 Montauk avenue, employed as crew dispatcher by the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, to be returned to the owner.

Nominating petitions for two more candidates will be filed with the city clerk before the end of the week. Today petitions were being circulated for Henry S. Dorsey and William A. Mercer. The former petition is being circulated by Luke Martin and the latter by Martin P. Ahearn.

It is also reported that Jeremiah Lyons, former alderman and a popular member of the F. L. Allen Hook and Ladder company, will be nominated within the next fortnight.

Another woman was nominated late this afternoon when the petition of Mrs. Mary A. O'Brien of No. 17 Rogers street was filed at the office of the city clerk. The petition was circulated by Julius A. Archei.

The state has leased the north store in the Turello building on Bank street, formerly occupied by the Swiss Cleaners. The store is in a new building facing Division street and should be ample for the purpose which it is understood the state will make of it, housing the state police and providing for accommodations for the registration of automobiles and the issuance of operators' licenses. In the past that work has been done in a store hired for the purpose further north on Bank street.

Miss Rose Spadara, 19, daughter of Joseph and the late Rebekah Spadara, died at the home of her parents, No. 41 Shaw street late yesterday afternoon from tuberculosis.

The funeral of Frederick Leroy, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Glynn, 252 Willetta avenue, was held Wednesday morning. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Steamer Edenton, which had been moored at the state pier over two years, sailed yesterday afternoon for New York where the craft will be reconditioned by the United States Shipping board.

The Catholic Women's club spent today at Ocean Beach.

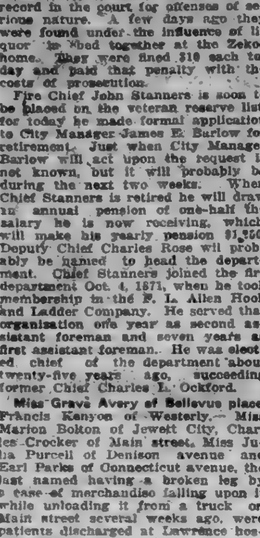
Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Prago of Hartford, formerly of New London, are visiting local friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Marion D. Bartlett are entertaining Mrs. Alfred Rentie of Albany, N. Y.

Mrs. Lucy B. Woods of Huntington street, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. William A. Hobbs of Madison, Wis.

Mrs. Griswold Lamb and infant, and Mrs. Nellie Reed and infant, patients at Home Memorial hospital returned home today.

Member Of Baldwin's Cabinet



KEYSTONE VIEW CO., NEW YORK

The Duke of Devonshire, as he is today. He holds the same post as he was appointed to fill under Bonar Law, namely that of Colonial Secretary, and the Irish Government has found in him someone with whom it can co-operate, this in spite of the fact that his family has suffered much in Ireland. The Duke has held the post of Governor General in Canada and this experience is aiding him immeasurably in getting together with the Irish Government with the least possible friction.

OUR GROWING SHARE IN WORLD IRON PRODUCTION

The announcement that the production of pig iron in the United States in March and April was the largest on record lends interest to some figures compiled for the Trade Record of the National City Bank of New York on world production of iron and the share thereof supplied by the United States.

World production of pig iron, it appears from the Trade Record's statement, made its highest total in 1918, the year immediately preceding the war, when it stood at 78 million long tons, against 40 million in 1900, 27 million in 1890, 18 million in 1880, 12 million in 1870, and 5 million in 1850.

With the disarrangement of world industries following the opening of the war the production dropped from the 78 million tons of 1913 to 62 million tons in 1914, advancing to 72 million in 1916, dropping to 68 million in the closing year of the war, 40 million in the lean year 1921, but advancing to 51 million in 1922.

Our own high record was in 1918, 39 million tons, against 31 million in 1913, 14 million in 1900, 9 million in 1890, 4 million in 1870, and less than one million in 1855. Our share of world production of pig iron has steadily advanced from 9 per cent. in 1830 to 12 per cent. in 1850, 14 per cent. in 1870 21 per cent. in 1880, 34 per cent. in 1900, 40 per cent. in 1913, and 53 per cent. in 1922.

The chief pig iron producers of the world in 1922, stated in the order of magnitude, were the United States 26,824,000 metric tons, Germany 6,604,000, France 5,129,000 Great Britain 4,978,000, and Belgium 1,858,000.

Our share of the world's known iron ore is also larger than that of any single country, having been recently estimated at about 13 billion tons out of an estimated world "known" total of approximately 90 billion tons. These figures of world "reserve" are, however, only estimates based on present knowledge and subject to radical changes as the studies progress, for according to a very high authority "the additions to our known supply of iron are likely to be much greater than those of coal, since great iron ore beds may exist anywhere, while those of coal are chiefly of carboniferous formation and a large share of the world's coal supply is known and measured while the iron ore supply is hardly to be guessed."

One advantage of the United States in the matter of pig iron production lies in the fact that its rich ore beds at the north of the Great Lakes are mined by the use of machinery and the ore transferred across the lakes at low cost by great steamers especially constructed for that service, passing direct to the great coal areas south of the lakes, and as our known iron supply exceeds that of any other country and our coal supply about one-half that of the world it would appear that we may continue indefinitely our present high rank in world pig iron production and the world's reliance of iron and steel manufacture.

WHERE OUR BANANAS COME FROM

Refutation of a popular song is found in a National Geographic Society bulletin just issued which not only shows that we have "some bananas" but traces the origin of this fruit that, in name at least, is now on every tongue.

"Known to only a handful of people on the Atlantic seaboard a generation and a half ago, and considered by them a tropical curiosity, the banana has become now the fruit of the American masses and hangs in great yellow bunches even in the remotest hamlets and in cross-roads 'stores,'" says the Bulletin. "The figures for banana imports are staggering. Between 40 and 50 million bunches were brought in last year. Allowing only three cubic feet to the piled bunch, this is more than enough of the yellow fruit to fill heaping full a gigantic box as deep as the Washington Monument and 460 feet square. Such a box would cover more than an ordinary city block. If this huge pile were evenly divided every person in the United States, old and young, would have several dozen bananas for his share. Each day on an average nearly 15 million bananas are consumed in the United States.

"The banana is supposed to have originated in India near the base of the Himalaya Mountains; but a legend among eastern Christians asserts that it had a prominent place in the Garden of Eden, and that it was a banana not an apple, that Eve ate in her search for knowledge. Botanists were perhaps unconsciously influenced by this legend, for they named two important species of the fruit Musca paridisiaca and Musca sapientium—Fruit of Paradise and Fruit of Knowledge.

"No one knows how this popular American fruit came to the New World but it seems not to have been here when Columbus arrived. One explanation is that it was taken from Spain to Santo Domingo early in the sixteenth century and from there spread rapidly to the other West Indian islands and to the mainland. American capital and initiative placed its development on a plantation basis in Central America, and now it is grown as a commercial crop to a greater extent there than anywhere else in the world. Jamaica is the greatest island producer, while Nicaragua and Costa Rica are the chief mainland sources of supply.

"A large fleet of steamers—refrigerated in summer and warmed in winter—plies constantly between Central American ports and the seaboard cities of the United States; and from these cities hundreds of cars roll daily in the effort to keep our appetite for bananas satisfied.

"The development of the huge banana industry has had an epoch-making influence in the life of the Central American states. The turning of their jungle wastes into productive plantations has brought prosperity, railroad construction, harbor improvements and sanitary betterment. The yellow and gold gold which the Spaniards took away in early days impoverished Central America; but the great stream of golden bananas is bringing back the precious metal and is building up the country in proportion as it flows forth."

HEALTH DEPARTMENT GOES INTO MOVIE BUSINESS

The state department of health has gone into the movie business in its effort to educate every person in Connecticut in matter of personal and social hygiene. Last week Commissioner Stanley H. Osborn received a series of twelve reels which take up the science of life.

Not content with buying pictures the commissioner has gone into the producing business himself. Under his direction there was filmed in New York recently a reel of motion pictures for the instruction of prospective mothers. This is exclusively the property of the Connecticut Health department from its original conception to the finished product.

The reel shows in a clear, concise, yet gentle style just what prospective mothers, particularly young inexperienced woman, should do to insure a healthy child, from the time of their first knowledge up to birth. It is not in a "talky" style, but is very well arranged in a real motion picture.

Under the direction of the surgeon general of the United States the Bray Productions, Inc., have produced a series of twelve reels under the title "The Science of Life." The films provide course of visual instruction in biology, communicable diseases, and personal hygiene, and are arranged for showing in one, two or three units.

THE BELLS AND THE BRIDGES OF BRUGES

Bruges, Belgium, has just had the greatest of its annual celebrations, the procession of the most precious blood which, now that the world war is well past, has taken the prominent place in Belgian hearts that it held before the German occupation caused its temporary suspension. Of the city of this procession—one of the leading religious celebrations of Europe—a bulletin from Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society says: "If we are unfamiliar with the language of a foreign country we are likely to accept names of its cities as meaning nothing in particular or as having an esoteric significance which we can hardly hope to fathom. But Bruges fools us. Its name has about as common an origin and is about as logically descriptive as 'Three Rivers' or 'Smith's Crossroads.' Because the town from the beginning had numerous canals and structures carrying streets across them it was named (in Flemish) 'Bridges.' It is a sort of revised Venice, Whereas the latter is an area of sea with islands scattered in it, Bruges is a land area cut into islands by numerous canals. In both cities many houses rise sheer from the water and boats are used for traffic.

"Like Venice again, Bruges was once the commercial and banking center of the world. This was in the fourteenth century. The center of commercial activity had moved from Italy to Flanders, and Bruges was then Flanders' greatest market. World trade came up the river Zwyn which then gave it a harbor merchants from the four quarters of the world maintained headquarters in the city; and its bourse regulated the exchange rate for all Europe. Ghent was a strong rival, but until the Zwyn finally silted up in 1480 Bruges held its own. At the height of its power Bruges had a population of 300,000; now the inhabitants number about 55,000.

"Not to be cheated of a port by Nature's destructive forces, the people of Bruges have built several canals to the North Sea. The largest and most direct leads eight miles to Zeebrugge meaning 'the seaport of Bruges'). This port and its canal and the basin at Bruges figured prominently in the world war. The Germans developed a strong U-boat nest at Bruges from which their underwater commerce destroyers went out to sink many an Allied ship and to which they returned for repairs and outfitting. A tremendously strong shelter with a concrete roof six feet thick, built over the water, stands near the Bruges end of the sea canal today, a monument to German U-boat activities. Allied bombing planes were unable to find the exact location of this camouflaged nest, and probably would have been able to inflict but little damage on its roof even if direct hits had been scored. The British however, successfully hindered the U-boat activities from the Bruges nest by their famous sortie against the Zeebrugge mole when old ships filled with concrete were sunk across the entrance channel to the canal.

"Bruges is one of the quaintest of the old Flemish cities and is said to be preserved in its architecture a more medieval aspect than any of its sister municipalities. Prominent architectural features are the church of Notre-Dame and the Cathedral of St. Sauveur, both excellent examples of early pointed gothic; and the Market Hall with its dominant belfrey housing 48 bells, one of the most famous collections of chimes in Europe.

"In St. Basile's chapel is kept the sacred vial, brought by crusading knights from Jerusalem, reputed to have been the vessel holding the water with which Joseph of Arimathea bathed the blood stained body of Christ. This reliquary is carried once each year in the procession of the most precious blood.

"Bruges has long been noted for its woolen cloths. In recognition of the city's preeminence in this field in 1430 Philip the Good of Burgundy named the order which he then created, 'the Order of the Golden Fleece.' This has ever since been one of the most exclusive knightly orders."

There are altogether seventy-five pyramids of different sizes in Egypt, one at least being originally 481 feet high.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

THE RAINBOW FAIRY

One misty morning as Little Jack Rabbit hopped across a green meadow, the tip of a lovely rainbow seemed almost to touch the ground. As the bunny boy had often heard that there was a pot of gold at the end of a rainbow, he hastened forward to find his fortune. And wasn't it lucky, right at the tip of the rainbow, half hidden in a bunch of daisies was a big pot of gold.

"Ah!" cried the little rabbit. "I have found my fortune!" and just as he was about to lift up the pot of gold and carry it away, a voice said:

"Hold on, little bunny, where are you going with all that money?"

"Who are you?" asked the rabbit boy looking all around, but he didn't let go of the pot of gold let me tell you. He was too wise a little rabbit to lose a fortune two minutes after he had found it.

"I'm the fairy of the rainbow," replied the voice, and all of a sudden, the prettiest little person you ever saw slid down to the ground and waved her gauzy wings, pink as a cloud at sunset or a new blown rose.

"Oh, dearest me!" sighed the anxious little bunny, "now I suppose I'll have to give up my fortune," and he looked at the little fairy, with a tear in each eye.

"If I let you keep the pot of gold, will you do me a favor?" asked the fairy.

"What is it you wish me to do?" said Little Jack Rabbit, unwilling to promise something he might not be able to do. And let me tell you right here, many people promise to do things without waiting to find out what they are. A very dangerous thing to do for it often gets one into lots and lots of trouble, so please remember to be as wise as Little Jack Rabbit.

"Promise me you'll never do
Things which are not good and true.
Strive to help a weary friend
Forward to the journey's end.
See this rainbow, bright and fair,
Is a promise, sweet and rare
That the storm will pass away
And the sunshine fill the day."

sang the little fairy, and when she had finished her song she added:

"Promise me to tell every one you meet that the rainbow of hope will shine for them in the cloudy skies of disappointment."

"I will," said the little bunny and then the fairy disappeared in the rainbow, leaving the pot of gold in the little rabbit's keeping, and, in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

ELDERLY MAN FOUND DEAD IN BED

New London, Aug. 8.—Nicholas K. Murray, 83, of No. 272 Connecticut avenue, was found dead in bed at the summer home of his son-in-law, Edward J. Neilan, at the Golden Spur, this morning, having expired as he slept, from heart disease. Mr. Murray is survived by two daughters other than Mrs. Neilan, they being Mrs. Jennie Kelley of New London and Mrs. Mary Fenton of Norwich. Mr. Murray had been a sufferer from heart trouble. He went to the Neilan cottage several weeks ago and of late had been quite feeble. He retired as usual Tuesday evening, but when members of the household went to his room this forenoon they discovered that he was dead. Mr. Murray was for many years a plumber in the employ of Smith & Grace, former plumbers and later was employed by Newman & Cronin. He had not been actively employed for a number of years.

RECESSION IN MARKET.

New York, Aug. 8.—Heavy selling of leather and shipping shares and a few specialties because of poor trading conditions led to a withdrawal of buying support by short interests in today's stock market and brought about a sharp recession of prices after an early interval of moderate strength. In view of the absence of a number of large traders because of the ninety minute suspension of business today and the Friday holiday, price changes generally were not regarded as very conclusive.

Considerable short selling developed in the leather group with the result that Central Leather common and proferred and American Hide and Leather preferred dropped to new low records for the year, the net loss in each case being about 2 1-2 points. International Mercantile Marine common and preferred American International Corporation, Burns Brothers A and Allied Chemical and Dye also touched new lows. Selling of Allied Chemical was predicted on the loss of that company's suit to stop the steel and tube merger as a result of which it is reported the company will receive only $15 a share for its steel and tube common which is said to have cost the company about $40 a share.

Baldwin, which had been selling around 114 in the morning trading dropped back later to 111, 3-4 for a net loss of 2 3-8 on the day. United States Steel, Pan-American B, American Locomotice, Studebaker, American Can and Anaconda also closed 1 to 2 points below yesterday's final prices. Eastman Kodak broke 4 points to 103 on omission of the extra dividend of 75 cents a share which had been declared in the two previous quarters.

Rails offered better resistance to selling pressure, the average of 20 leading stocks showing a net loss of about half a point on the day.

The government crop report issued afttre the close of the market yesterday was interpreted by the grain trade as bullish but it received only a moderate response in the commodity markets.

Foreign exchanges were again heavy, French and Belgian francs and German marks establishing new low records for the year. Demand sterling held fairly steady just above $4.56.

Call money held at 4 3-4 per cent. all day. The time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged with business quiet.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Aug. 8.—With the government crop report indicating that the 1923 yield of wheat would be much less than had been generally expected, wheat scored a material advance in price today. The market closed firm, 3-4c to 1 1-4c@1 3-8c net higher, September 98 1-4 to 98 1-2c and December 1.01 1-2 to 1.01 5-8.

Corn finished at 1-8c off to 1-8c up. Oats with a shade to 1-8c gain, and provisions varying from 2c decline to a rise of 15c.

From the outset, purchasing of wheat was prompted by the fact that the official forecast of domestic production of wheat this season fell 8,000,000 to 34,000,000 bushels less than was harvested last year. In this connection, particular notice was taken of the unusual smallness of the crop of hard wheat east of the Rockies. Although on the initial consequent advances in price, the offering of wheat became larger and led to something of a reaction. The market later displayed fresh strength, and closed at virtually the top figures of the day.

Crop damage reports from the Canadian Northwest had more or less influence as a contributory bullish factor in the wheat market during the final trading. According to one report, the Manitoba crop has been cut in half, and there has been a serious reduction also in Saskatchewan. On the other hand export business from the United States continued to be extraordinary slow.

London advised of heavy arrivals of wheat from India, and wheat was said to be piling up a tPhiladelphia and Baltimore because of lack of European demand.

Corn and oats were steadied by the smallness of stocks of old corn and by assertions that there are a great many more hogs and cattle in the country this year than last. Rains and bearish aspects of the government report had only a transient effect on values.

Buying on the part of packers rallied the provision market after a decline due to weakness of hogs.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Aug. 8.—Opening prices in today's curb market were firm but the list turned heavy, when trading resumed during the noon hour after a 90 minue suspension of business, in sympathy with the reaction on the "big board." Funeral services for the late president in Washington exercised restraint on market activities so that the total volume of business was relatively small.

Oils were again the target for pressure, Standard Oil of Indiana losing approximately a point and most of the other active issues yilding fractionally. Standard Oil of Ohio dropped 3 points and Prairie Oil and Gas 1 7-8. The turn over in each case being small.

Ford Motors of Canada sold down 10 points to 410 on an odd lot transaction. Other motors yielded fractionally. Gillett Safety Razor dropped 2 points.

Only minor and unimportant fluctuations took place in the mining group.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Aug. 8.—After moving forward moderately in the early trading, bond prices fell off somewhat later but generally closed slightly higher than final quotations yesterday.

Active U. S. government bonds held relatively steady and foreign issues improved slightly, the Holland American 6s advancing 1.

Most of today's trading centered in the railroad division, a score or more of these mortgages registering fractional gains. New Haven convertible 6s moved up 1 and Interborough Rapid Transit 7s advanced 1, and the 6s, 1 1-4.

A gain of two points by Steel & Tube 7s reflected formal approval by the courts of the company's merger with the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company. Other changes in the industrial group were nominal.

METAL MARKET.

New York, Aug. 8.—Copper easy; electrolytic, spot 14 1-4@14 3-8; futures 14 1-4@14 1-2. Tin firm; spot and futures 39.00; iron steady; prices unchanged. Lead firm; spot 6.50@6.75. Zinc steady; East Sast Louis spot and nearby delivery 6.10@6.15. Antimony, spot 7.60@7.70.

MONEY.

New York, Aug. 8.—Call money steady; high 4 3-4; low 4 3-4; ruling rate 4 3-4; closing bid 4 3-4; offered at 5; last loan 4 3-4; call loans against acceptances 4 1-4.

COTTON.

POETRY

An Old Song

She sings with gay and careless lilt
That old song of the years
A poet fashioned of his dreams,
His laughter and his tears.

He sleeps in some forgotten shroud,
Among forgotten songs.
But through the words she light sings
His spirit lives and longs.

She does not know the grief that keeps
The old songs fresh and green;
She only hears the echoes far
Of laughing lips unseen.

But she will learn with graying years
The meaning of the song.
And find that love that laughs with love
Some time for love must long!
Arthur Wallace Peach.

The Rail Fence

The old place doesn't look the same;
The house is falling down.
I never like to look that way
When I drive in from town.
Time was the marigolds were thick,
And mignonette grew dense.
When every meadow was enclosed
By just an old rail fence.

The fences now are made of wire,
Old wire that's getting slack,
The house is never lived in now
I wish dead years came back!
I wish the fields were not so smooth;
And that, in consequence,
There were a lot of smoky stumps
And just an old rail fence.

It seems to me the daisies grew
Much lovelier those days.
The corners of the fence were white
To please our childish gaze.
There is no grown-up happiness
As sweet as that gone hence,
The finding of a violet
Beside an old rail fence!
Anne Campbell.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Miss Wellalong—"I declare I begin to feel that I am growing old. It's relaly unpleasant."

Mr. Blunt—"It must be, especially for one who has been young so long."—Twice Told Tales.

"I can't stay long," said the chairman of the committee from the colored church.

"I just came to see if yo' wouldn't joint de mission band."

"Fo' de lan' sake, honey," replied the old mammy, "doan come to me. I can't even play a mouf-organ."—Lippincott's Magazine.

The Minister—Do you promise to love, honor—

The Young Lawyer-Best Man (absent-mindedly): I object to the question as irrelevant.

Professor—"What are known as the dark ages, Egbert?"

Egbert—"From eighteen to twenty-five, sir."—Sun Dial.

"Has that mule of yours got a pedigree, Sam?"

"No, sah! No indeedy! Dere ain't nuffin' de matter wif dis mule. He am perfectly sound, sah."—Boston Transcript.

"Goodness, John! How queer the baby looks. I believe he is going to have a fit!"

"By George! I believe you are right. Where is my camera?"—Oregonian.

Madge (describing motor accident)—"The surgeon had to take four stitches in my face."

Marie—"That's what might be called plain sewing."—Boston Transcript.

"Mary," said Mr. Chirpleigh, "I've decided that we'd better let Tom have his way, after all, and send him to college."

"Oh, John! That's wonderful! So generous, and Tom will be a credit to you, I know."

"I hope so. Anyhow, we'll send him. I just got a bill from the garage for what he did to my car last week, and school's a darned sight cheaper."—Richmond Times-Despatch.

KALEIDOSCOPE

Existence of petrol in the Lake Albert regions of Africa has been reported.

An average of 109 passengers daily are carried by airplane from Paris to London.

Bears dislike the odor of musk, but are especially fond of the odor of asafetida.

Honolulu has one of the finest and most efficient telephone systems in the world.

In the state of Oregon there are two large fruit and vegetable dehydration plants.

The United States mints in May coined $70,000 gold pieces of the $20 denomination.

Sir Robert Hartfield says the world loses about $1,500,000,000 a year by the rusting and decaying of iron and steel.

When a new electric burglar alarm is connected to a lock insertion of a key into the latter rings a bell and illuminates a lamp at any desired place.

Shoes can now be polished by electricity. The entire process is performed without hands by an ingenious machine, in which the dropping of a coin in the slot starts the dusting of the shoes, applying of polish, brushing to a shine and rubbing with cloths to a satinlike finish.

If a new device just perfected proves practical, the time honored paint brush had better look to its laurels. An electrical spraying apparatus now applies paint or varnish to furniture or walls in quick time and with little effort. Houses may yet be painted by the electrical method, it is said.

What should Isaac Walton say to an artificial minnow, made luminous by electricity, and resembling a wriggling worm when cast into the water, which will attract fish day or night? Such is the latest refinement in electrical fishing. The bait is protected from breakage by fine wires, and the current is supplied by an electric battery.

Henry L. Doherty, president of many electric and utility companies, has a unique electrical home on top of a New York skyscraper. When he retires to his electrical roof on wheels, he presses a button and the roof is "driven" from the bedroom out to a sleeping porch, or, if it is fine weather, right out under the stars, the doors opening and closing to accommodate it.

BOZRAH

The grange meeting was held Wednesday evening in the town hall. The lecturer had a very pleasing program. Delicious pineapple sundae and fancy cookies were served by the lecturer. The next meeting is to be held at the home of the master, Charles B. Davis, at Smith's Corner on the spacious lawn and will be an open meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Bishop spent the day recently at Ocean Beach.

Bridal Superstition.

According to ancient superstition, it is unlucky for a bride to choose bridesmaids who are not younger than herself.

America Again Ahead.

Stone buildings and implements made in the American Stone age show superior workmanship to those of the Stone age of the Old World.

The Vital Difference.

Woman sees deep; man sees far. To the man the world is his heart; to the woman the heart is her world.—Crabbe.

PHYSICIAN EXPLAINS WHO SHOULD TAKE NUXATED IRON

PRACTICAL ADVICE ON HOW TO HELP BUILD UP GREAT STRENGTH, ENERGY AND ENDURANCE.

"Lack or iron in the blood not only makes a man a physical and mental weakling, nervous, irritable, easily fatigued, but it utterly robs him of that virile force, that stamina and strength of will which are so necessary to success, and power in every walk of life," says Dr. Emile Sauer, well known New England physician. "It may also transform a beautiful sweet-tempered woman into one who is cross, nervous and irritable. I have strongly emphasized the great necessity of physicians making blood examinations of their weak, anaemic, run-down patients. Thousands of persons go on year after year suffering from physical weakness and a highly nervous condition due to lack of sufficient iron in their red blood corpuscles without ever realizing the real cause of their trouble. Without iron in your blood your food merely passes through the body something like corn through an old mill with rollers so wide apart that the mill can't grind.

"For want of iron you may be an old man at thirty, dull of intellect, poor in memory, nervous, irritable and all 'run down,' while at 50 or 60 with plenty of iron in your blood you may still be young in feeling, full of life, your whole being brimming over with vim and energy.

"But be sure the iron you take is organic iron—Nuxated Iron—and not metallic iron which people usually take. Organic iron—Nuxated Iron—is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples, while metallic iron is iron just as it comes from the action of strong acids on small pieces of iron filings and is therfore an entirely different thing from Nuxated Iron. Nuxated Iron represents organic iron in such a highly concentrated form that one dose is estimated to be approximately equivalent (in organic iron content) to eating one-half quart of spinach, one quart of green vegetables or half a dozen baked apples. It is like taking extracts of beef instead of eating pounds of meat."

Over 4,000,000 people annually are using Nuxated Iron. It quickly helps make rich red blood, revitalize worn out exhausted nerves and give increased strength and energy. Your money will be refunded by the manufacturers if it does not produce satisfactory results.

For sale by all druggists.

LEBANON

Sunday morning at the First Congregational church the Pastor, Rev. U. O. Foster, preached an interesting sermon from the book of Job. At 7 P. M. the Y. P. S. C. E. held an outdoor service, Miss Edna Madley, leader, Orrin Maples, President of the Norwich C. E. Union and Mrs. Maples were present. After the service a social hour was held in the vestry, and light refreshments were served.

The Y. P. S. C. E. societies of the Norwich Union plan to hold a picnic at the First Congregational Church, Lebanon, Aug. 18, at 2 P. M. (standard time). Games and sports will be arranged. Supper I sto be served to all at 5 o'clock. An address will begin at 6 P. M. by a speaker to be announced. Transportation will be from trolley arriving at Pleasure Hill at 1.40 P. M. (standard time).

With the passing of James H. Stedman, 80, at South Windham last Thursday there has gone one who will long be remembered in this town where for nearly half a century his life was passed. He was a native of South Kingston, R. I., coming to this town was engaged in the occupation of farming, a few years. Later he began a harness repairing shop in the old Sweet store that stood where the Town Hall is now situated.

A few years later he erected a small store and shop where he conducted his business on the village green in front of the William Williams house and which was recently removed from the site to make the improvements for the new High School building. At the death of Mrs. Stedman about six years ago he discontinued the business and went to Windham to reside with a daughter, although part of his time he has spent in Rhode Island with his son.

Mr. Stedman was a friend to all, never asking or taking compensation for innumerable small helps and services which he had daily occasion to give. He could always command the good in his fellow man.

The death of his favorite daughter, Mrs. Anna Stedman Keller, about a year ago, was a severe blow to him following that of his wife so short a while before, and while he took his bereavement calmly and heroically, it probably had much to do in the last year toward the general breaking down of his health.

Mr. Stedman is survived by a son, Joseph Stedman, of Westerly, R. I., whose boyhood and youth was spent in this town, remembered by many of the older residents who were his friends and schoolmates, and by many others through his writings upon Lebannon Historical matters.

Mr. Stedman was buried in the family lot at Windham Center Cemetery, Sunday.

CORRECT THERMOMETERS NECESSARY AID TO DOCTORS

According to a law passed by the 1921 general assembly of this state only such clinical thermometers can now be legally sold in Connecticut as have been made by manufacturers who have obtained the right to use the Connecticut seal or have been certified as correct by the state department of health. Manufacturers of clinical thermometers are given the right to use the Connecticut seal only after they have submitted a requisite number of sample thermometers which upon being tested are found correct at the bureau of laboratories of the state department of health. All thermometers placed on sale in this state by such manufacturers will be marked "Conn. X Seal" except that the letter will vary with the firm using it. Thermometers carrying the Connecticut seal are now on the market and available to all dealers.

Delegate to Dairy Congress

Chairman R. C. Fisher has appointed Professor J. D. Brew of Cornell University; Professor H. F. Judkins, of Massachusetts Agricultural college; Professor J. M. Fuller of New Hampshire State college and Professor De Voe Mead of University of Maryland, to represent the Eastern Division of American Dairy Science Association, at the World's Dairy Congress. The congress, which will be America's first international dairy meeting, will hold its opening sessions at Washington, D. C. on October 2 and 3, adjourn to Philadelphia, Pa., for October 4, continue to Syracuse, N. Y., from October 5 to 10, in cooperation with the National Dairy Show. Invitations from Washington have been sent to all nations to send official representatives to the sessions and so far 36 governments have accepted. In addition, a large number of internationally known scientists, business men of the dairy industry and students of national health will come from abroad to address the gathering.

WOMAN SO BLUE SHE CRIED

Because of Ill Health—Tells How She Found Relief by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Burlington, Ia.—"I used to dread the time for my monthly period as it came every two weeks and lasted for two weeks, and during that time I would have the blues and cry. Since I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I am so happy I can hardly express myself. I have gained several pounds and look fine. I have recommended your medicine to my friends and you may publish my letter as a testimonial. I hope your medicine will give others the relief it did me."—Mrs. RALPH GAIL, 2021 Des Moines St., Burlington, Ia.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a medicine for ailments common to women. It has been used for such troubles for nearly fifty years, and thousands of women have found relief as did Mrs. Gail, by taking this splendid medicine.

If you are suffering from irregularity, painful times, nervousness, headache, backache or melancholia, you should at once begin to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is excellent to strengthen the system and help to perform its functions with ease and regularity.

YOUTHS CHARGED WITH CRIMINAL ASSAULT ON 12 YEAR OLD GIRL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Aug. 8.—Frank Makowski and Michael Urbankski, each 19 and both of Webster, are being held at the Windham county jail at Brooklyn in default of $5,000 bonds each, for a crime that has greatly stirred the town of Woodstock. The men are charged with making a criminal assault on Grace Eleanor Potter, 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Potter, Saturday night last. According to officers both men were found in the Potter home and one of the men has pleaded guilty to the charge preferred against him.

The girl had been badly treated. She stated that the men had given her something that affected her and then carried her upstairs. A physician was called to treat the child and found a serious condition. The grandfather attempted to arrest one of the men but he got away. The young fellows were known to the father of the child and after complaint was made to Deputy Sheriff L. H. Healey, the deputy accompanied the father to Webster and there, with Webster policemen, the two young men were found and placed under arrest.

It is believed the men knew that the parents of the girl were in Webster and took the opportunity to visit the home during their absence. It is also thought that the reason the call on the telephone was unanswered was because the wire had been cut. The two men charged with the crime are well known in Webster.

SHOULD NOT POLLUTE OUR WATER SUPPLIES

Recently the personnel of the bureau of sanitary engineering of the state department of health found that bathing was practised on the shore of a lake, the water of which is used as a public supply for domestic purposes, and that additional bathing facilities were being erected on the shore of this lake, says a statement issued by the state department of health. The statement continues:

We have but to realize that epidemics of disease due to drinking water are caused by the pollution of the water by wastes from the human body, to understand what a serious situation exists wherever water polluted by human wastes is used as a public supply.

Many persons can remember the typhoid and other intestinal diseases years ago that were caused by the use of Connecticut river water for drinking purposes when the pollution was not as extensive as it is today.

In the past five years epidemics numbering up to a thousand cases have occurred in the United States where pollutel water entered the water system.

The serious aspect of pollution was long ago recognized by the Connecticut legislature and bathing in water used as a public water supply is now prohibited by state law.

A safe drinking water is more essential to the health of the public than the brief recreational facilities during the summer months. Nevertheless it is very desirable to preserve our natural resources of the state for recreation wherever this can be done without endangering the public health.

Bathing and swimming are forms of very enjoyable exercise but to enjoy a swim, then go home and drink infected or polluted water and have dysentery or typhoid fever because of the pollution caused by bathers is not practising modern methods of public health.

ABANDONED MACHINE HELD BY AUTHORITIES

The Groton police are holding a Buick roadster found abandoned at Eastern Point. Its owner has been identified as C. F. Telph of the Submarine Base.

Officer Bernard Chapman, night officer at Eastern Point, took charge of the car, which was parked by the side of the road a little way from his home, at 12.15 Tuesday night, and the machine was towed through an order from Police Captain McCarthy to a garage.

The only clue as to how the machine was left in such a position was obtained from a chauffeur, who told the Eastern Point officer that he had seen two sailors and two girls hurrying away from the car at 10.15 o'clock in the evening. Captain McCarthy ascertained the ownership of the machine by calling Hartford authorities and giving them the registration number of the machine.

NORWICH STORES TO CLOSE FRIDAY AFTERNOON

The Retail Merchants Association of Norwich have voted to close their stores Friday, August 10th at one o'clock for the rest of the day to show respect during the funeral of the late President Harding. The drug stores, tobacco stores, ice cream parlors and restaurants will close their establishments from 3 to 4 p. m., on that day. All the stores will close as usual, at one o'clock this (Thursday) noon so that the stores will close Thursday and Friday afternoon of this week. This is the general program followed in all the large cities of Connecticut.

GAVE SHOWER FOR MISS OLIVE DUTTON

Wednesday evening at the home of Miss Mildred Mellor on McKinley avenue, a shower was given Miss Olive Dutton in honor of her approaching marriage with Harry Davis of New London. Piano solos were given by Miss Loretta Valentine and Miss Mildred Mellor.

Refreshments of salads, rolls, celery, olives, punch, ice cream, lady fingers, and macaroons were served by Miss Mellor assisted by her mother Mrs. John Mellor. Miss Dutton received a number of gifts.

Ask For 'Bus Extension.

A petition to the public utilities commission of the state is being circulated about Gales Ferry for the extension of the bus service from the Submarine Base line, through Gales Ferry to Norwich.

Churches of this country raised $16,628,884 more in 1922 than in 1921, the total being $505,052,978.

Local Druggists Guarantee Rheuma For Rheumatism

What chance does any sufferer take when Rheuma is guaranteed to banish rheumatism, lumbago, gout and kidney ailments, or money back?

Why not investigate this offer? Talk to Lee & Osgood Co. about it. Rheuma must drive rheumatic poison from the system, bring swollen joints back to normal, and relieve all agony, or it costs nothing.

People so crippled with rheumatism that they could not walk have been absolutely freed from the iron grasp of the demon, rheumatism, with the Rheuma treatment. A few hours after the first dose Rheuma begins to drive the dangerous poisons that cause stiffness and pain in the joints and muscles from the body through the natural channels.

Everybody can afford Rheuma — it's not expensive, and money back if not entirely satisfied.

ANNUAL REPORT OF FIRE CHIEF STANTON

Owing to the more important recommendations being complied with, which have been brought to the attention of the citizens the past few years, I feel that the department is now on a better basis than at any time in its history, says Howard L. Stanton, chief of the Norwich fire department, in his annual report, which was presented to and accepted by the court of common council at its August meeting Monday evening. The chief recommends the erection of a new West Side station at the top of West Main street hill.

With regard to the operations of the fire department during the year ending June 30th, the report says:

The department responded to 225 alarms, 45 more than the previous year. Of this number 14 were for fires out of the city limits. The largest fire attended out of the city limits was at the Sacred Heart church at Norwich Town, April 1, 1923. A part of the church was saved but the loss sustained was about $20,000.

The fire with the greatest loss occurred May 30, 1923, in a frame storehouse located on Falls avenue owned and occupied by the Max Gordon & Son corporation and which was stored with bales of cotton. The loss on the building was $3,400 and on contents $13,800. January 1, 1923 the two remaining volunteer companies, Engine Company No. 2 and Truck Company No. 2 went out of existence. The station where these two companies were quartered has been repaired and changed over to meet the needs of a paid company.

The company known as No. 4 with the Pope combination machine was transferred to this station and is now known as Engine Company No. 2.

The so-called Main Street fire station was sold in April, 1923, to Abram Ableman for $20,350, and the proceeds turned over to the fire department for the purchase of a new pumping engine to be assigned to Engine Co. No. 3 and the balance of the amount to purchase a lot and erect a fire station in the Falls section of the city. The new pump has been ordered and is expected by September, 1923. It is hoped the new station will be erected within the year.

One new fire alarm box 263, was purchased and installed at Boswell avenue and Russell road.

Fire Stations

The station known as the Main street station was sold the past year and the company transferred to No. 2 station at Greeneville. No. 2 station was repaired and renovated after the disbandment of the two volunteer companies, January 1, 1923.

At this date there are four stations housing seven companies as follows: Central station with Engine companies Nos. 1 and 3, Truck 1 and Squad A; West Main street station, Engine 5; West Thames steet station, Engine 6; North Main street station, Engine 2.

A new station at the Falls section of the city has been authorized and will, no doubt be built within the coming year, and when completed will house Engine Company No. 3, now at the Central station.

Automobile Apparatus in Service

Three Seagrave triple combinations, two with 750 and one 600 gallon pump capacity, all with 35 gallon chemical tanks.

One Reo runabout used by the chief.

Apparatus in reserve: Two Metropolitan steam fire engines 500 and 600 gallon pumps. One Seagrave city size truck with 45 foot extension ladder.

All hydrants and cisterns remain in the same excellent condition as reported one year ago. Several old type of hydrants have been replaced with modern Corey type. At this date there are 565 hydrants, public and private.

There is distributed among the several companies 9,850 feet of 2 1-2 inch hose, 650 feet of 3 inch hose and 1200 feet of 1 1-2 inch hose.

In addition there are 50 feet of 3 inch hose on the aerial ladder and 100 feet of 1½ inch hose on stand pipe at headquarters. Also, all engine companies have deluge sets with the necessary hose attached.

All hose unfit for fire service is turned over to the street and water department for flushing, etc., 650 feet being distributed the past year.

Fire Alarm Telegraph

The fire alarm system remains in the same general condition as reported one year ago. One new box, number 263, was installed at North Main street and Russell road. Old pony boxes, of which there are several, purchased over forty years ago, should be thrown out and replaced with modern boxes. There is need of twenty additional boxes to properly cover the city. All wires are overhead, many poles with high tension wires which requires constant supervision.

Recommendations

Owing to the more important recommendations being complied with, which have been brought to the attention of the citiens of the past few years, I feel that the department is now on a better basis than at any time in its history.

The West Main street station, built in 1859, is in such condition and so located that it would be to the advantage of the department to sell the same for business purposes, and erect a station at the top of the hill, with the proceeds of such sale. Traffic in front of this old station with trolleys and automobiles is so great that several near accidents have occurred. At least twenty fire alarm boxes are needed in different sections of the city and all of the old type boxes installed in 1876 should be replaced with modern boxes.

MRS. HELEN MABREY CHAMPLIN DRIVES OVER 3200 MILE ROUTE

Automobile publications all over the country are writing up the recent trip of Mrs. Ernest G. Champlin (Helen K. Malvey) formerly of Norwich and her six years old son, Louis. Mrs. Champlin left Sharon, Penn., May 24th, driving her car to Seattle, Wash., to join Mr. Champlin making a non-stop, 3,200 mile trip in 13 1-2 days, and this without so much as a puncture.

There had been several storms and some of the roads badly washed, but mother and son had the good fortune to escape all mishaps. The motor magazines have been commenting on the trip as a remarkable record for a woman driver.

Aviators say that a wind that is 15 miles an hour at the ground is usually 20 to 30 miles at 500 feet.

Quezon Heads "Walk-Out" Of Filipino Officials

Manuel Quezon, head of the Collectivist party and President of the Philippine Senate, who headed the "general walk-out" of Filipino officials in protest against the methods of General Leonard Wood, this week. Senor Quezon cabled a report to President Harding, it is said, in which he declared that the resignations of the Cabinet were not a protest against Governor-General Wood, personally, but "a protest against the encroachment by the Governor General on the constitutional rights already enjoyed by the Filipino people."

HELD FOR VIOLATION OF LIQUOR LAW

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, August 8.—Edward Hess, proprietor of the store at 546 Main street, was taken into custody last night charged with violation of the liquor law. He was released on bonds of $300 for his appearance in police court this morning, Nathan Imel becoming surety on the bonds.

The arrest of Hess occurred when John Rourke was arrested by Martin Kane, special employe of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, following Rourke being found on the railroad property.

At the police station Rourke had in his possession a catsup bottle partially filled with home-made whiskey. Rourke stated that he purchased the whiskey at the store of Hess.

ITALY MOURNS DEATH OF PRINCE FABRIZIO COLONNA

Rome, Aug. 8.—(By the A. P.)—The death today of Prince Fabrizio Colonna, vice president of the senate and thirteenth successor to his title, plunges the majority of Roman patrician families into mourning as he was the head of one of the most noble of the old Roman houses.

Prince Colonna, who was born in 1848, became the head of his family in 1912 upon the death of his brother, taking the title of the Duke of Paliano. He was a brilliant cavalry officer and fought in the World War with the rank of general.

In the senate Prince Colonna was distinguished for his oratory and deep knowledge of political and administrative questions and in his private life he upheld the traditions of Italian aristocracy. His first born son, Marcantonio, is the prince assistant to the pontifical throne.

He also received a handsome army bugle from the Boy Scouts. These are given to any first class scout who can pass the merit badge in bugling.

The election of officers of the Army and Navy club was held Sunday at their club house on Dion street. This event was scheduled for August 12th, but because of the desire of many of the members to attend the annual meeting and outing of the Pioneer Boys of Taftville at Rocky Point, R. I., on that date, the meeting was called for August 5th. The following officers were elected: President, Arthur J. Roy (re-elected); vice president Archie Molleur; secretary, Leo Lemire; financial secretary, John Hurd; treasurer, Ernest Frechette (re-elected); auditors, John H. Murphy, Roderick Molleur, George Adams; janitor, John Hurd. When the regular routine business was transacted, a committee of five members was appointed to make preparations for the carnival which the club intends to hold in October. It is hoped that enough can be realized from the carnival to purchase some athletic and gymnasium supplies, and make the club a place where both the older and younger members can enjoy themselves.

MULTITUDE IN LINE IN MARION WAITING TO PASS THE BIER OF WARREN G. HARDING

At 7 O'Clock Last Evening the Line, Six and Eight Abreast Extended Six Blocks From the Harding Home—Some of Those in Line Had Waited Patiently For More Than Two Hours—Six Carloads of Flowers Arrived in Marion—Erie Railroad Alone Will Run Thirty Special Trains Into Marion Today—Employes of the Marion Star Will be the Ony Group That Will March in the Funeral Procession as a Body.

Marion, Ohio, Aug. 9.—(By the A. P.)—A one-time country editor came back today to sleep for a night again under his father's roof in Marion. And with him came the grief of the nation, of the world, that he was dead.

Warren G. Harding was back again among the neighborly folk of his home town. The brief day of his greatness was but a memory treasured by the nation. His life work was done; the aloofness of his high place ended. The home folk who had held back when last he came among them, awed by the majesty "that doth hedge a king," now came eagerly to look their last on his dead face, peaceful with the calm of eternity.

Big, Kindly Heart

It was easily to believe that the genial soul that has fled might even burst the bonds of death and move the still lips to happy greetings of these thronging old friends in the modest parlor of his father's house. To him they were always "Jack" and "Tom" and "Billy"; while he had been "W. G." and "the boss" in the glad, wholesome, simple days before a people claimed him for highest service to the flag. It was thus he would have hailed them today had the big kindly heart still stirred with life. Time was when he told them face to face of the "heavy heart" with which he realized that they held back from Harding the President as they had never kept aloof from Harding the man.

Harding, the Man

But it was Harding the man, not the President who came home today. And it is Harding the man, who will be laid to sleep tomorrow within a stone's throw from the plot where his mother lies. Where his final resting place will be is still undecided, for he is, too, Marion's greatest son. But no plan has been proposed that will take him from the close vicinity of his own deed in the pleasant, quiet burial ground with neighbors all about taking their long ease from life.

A thronged home town waited in silence today, for his second coming of a neighbor, called by destiny since he went out, two years ago, amid scouting and joyous acclaim to take his place in Washington and guide a mighty nation through troubled waters. Only one brief visit to help the home folks celebrate Marion's centennial had been possible for him before. But this coming was greater than that, for he came in the added dignity of death and weighted with sorrowful honors from all the world.

Arrival of Funeral Car

As the funeral car which had carried him home over the long journey from San Francisco rolled in, a few national guardsmen lined the way ahead to keep the crowding neighbor folk of Marion and of Ohio back a little way. The Guard of Honor sent by the nation to share in Marion's day of grief lifted the heavy burden down again and placed the casket in a gray hearse for the short trip to the boyhood home of the dead man. The cabinet members stepped down to the platform and then Mrs. Harding, coming thus again to Marion, in deep sorrow, for the second time since she left so blithly at her husband's side to share with him the highest honor the nation can bestow upon a citizen.

The resolute courage that has kept the stricken widow firm and calm through the long ordeal of the homeward journey and the trying days in Washington while the nation, with fullest circumstance said its mournful yet proud farewell to the dead, sustained her in the closing moments of her trials. She walked with head erect and on Secretary Christian's arm to the waiting motor car.

Father Was Waiting

Dr. Harding's home is only a few short blocks away from the station. There the father waited to receive his great son at the modest threshold, bowed but still unbroken by the weight of years and sorrows. There is a strong, quiet strain of courage and endurance in adversity in the Harding blood.

Ahead of the hearse, as it drew away from the station at last up the silent aisle the men and women and children of Marion had made, for this sad homecoming, walked the dead President's aides, Major Ballinger and Captain Andrews. Then came the cars with the cabinet and the others who had been with the funeral train all the way from San Francisco and who came to Marion at Mrs. Harding's personal request.

Flanking the hearse on either side, the soldiers and sailors and marines of the Guard of Honor named for this office in San Francisco, walked in column. Their uniforms and those of the two officers leading them way gave the only touch of military pageantry to the scene. Otherwise it might have been the homecoming of any dead and respected citizen, save for the crowds along the sidewalks and the guardsmen standing at salute.

Passed Marion Star Building

The route led around through East Center street and beneath the windows of the Marion Star building. Up there, a big, vacant desk stood in a book-lined room with a simple band of black and white stretched across its workmanlike surface. Beside it stood the draped office chair of the dead editor who was passing slowly below through the silent street. Here Warren Harding toiled long, hard but happy hours in fitting himself for the great task the years were to bring him. Here he endured the common joys, the common sorrows that all his countrymen know. Here he acnieved what you once, when he was a printer at the case, his highest ambition: the chieftainship of such a paper as the Star. Here, perhaps, the first thought of senatorial honors set his pulses pounding, here, perhaps, as he leaned back to rest a moment from his work in that crepe wound, vacant chair, the first dream of the presidency was born.

Certainly it was here that the qualities of human sympathy and patient tolerance and kindness for all men were refined from the experience of the years to set Warren Harding high in the love of his friends and the respect and honor of all of his countrymen. And now he was carried slowly by, over the road home his feet had known so well. Carried to the old father, waiting at the door.

At the house the hearse was relieved of its precious burden by the honor guard and the coffin was carried in through the doorway that held the great man in his home coming. With difficulty the bearers lifted it through white Mrs. Harding waited bravely to follow and the cabinet members stood facing inward on either side of the walk to add to the dignity of the homecoming of their dead chief.

Home Again in Father's House

Warren Harding was home again in his father's house. It was fitting that those he knew best should come to visit a space with him and that they should see again the face that now the whole world knows so well. In the front room to the left of the doorway his casket was placed. The furniture the dead man probably would have greatly missed had he known of its removal, had been taken away. Flowers banked the walls almost to the ceiling.

Again the armed guards of the dead took up their post beside the bier; the draping flag was laid back and the long cover lifted to show once more the still features. Then the doors was free to all who might wish to come and the sorrowful procession of old friends and neighbors, of men and women and children from all around began its silent walk. Until late in the night no check was placed in the way of the thousands who came thus and again tomorrow there will be opportunity for those who could not come today to pay their respects to a dead neighbor. Then will follow the simple religious service; the funeral that will be no more striking, save for the thousands who crowd to witness it and the great place in life, some among those thousands hold, than that of any other simple American, and the long days of the homecoming from San Francisco will be over.

Contrast With Washington

There was one striking contrast in the scene here in Marion today from that in Washington yesterday. There, no mournful drapery covered the great government buildings and the tokens of sorrow in houses and stores were a rarity. It was not that Washington felt no sorrow, but that precedent long established is against funeral draping on the nation's Capital.

Here in Marion, the flowing of black drapery is everywhere and hardly a house but has the pictured face of the dead President in the window, always with a bit of crepe or a mourning border about it. Far and wide over Ohio it is the same. In all nearby towns and hamlets there are ceremonial trappings of sorrow and everywhere the face of Warren Harding, last of the Presidents Ohio has given to the nation, fourth of the six from his state to meet death in that high office, looks down on passersby with friendly glances.

Waiting to View Body.

At 7 o'clock this evening, a line of persons, six to eight abreast and extending from the Harding home to the office of the Marion Star, a distance of six blocks, had formed in the line passing the bier of the dead president. Some of those in the line had waited patiently for more than two hours to get a final look at the face so familiar to them.

At 8.30 o'clock tonight the crowd waiting in line to see the dead president was so large that Mrs. Harding announced the body would continue to lie in state "until midnight, or later if necessary." Standing several abreast the line at that hour still extended for nearly six blocks and showed little signs of diminishing.

RIGHTEOUSNESS RINGS IN HARDING'S NEWSPAPER CREED

Marion, Aug. 9.—(By the A. P.)—Warren G. Harding's newspaper creed, pasted on the wall of the editorial room of his newspaper, the Marion Star, warns reporters and editors to "be truthful, be fair and above all, be clean."

Following is the text of the creed:

"Remember there are two sides to every question. Get both.

"Be truthful.

"Get the facts. Mistakes are inevitable, but strive for accuracy. I would rather have one story exactly right than a hundred half wrong.

"Be decent. Be fair. Be generous.

"Boost—don't knock. There's good in everybody. Bring out the good in everybody, and never needlessly hurt the feelings of anybody.

"In reporting a political gathering, get the facts, tell the story as it is, not as you would like to have it.

"Treat all parties alike. If there's any politics to be played, we will play it in our editorial columns.

"Treat all religious matter reverently.

"If it can possibly be avoided, never bring ignominy to an innocent woman or child in telling of the misdeeds or misfortune of a relative. Don't wait to be asked, but do it without the asking.

"And above all be clean. Never let a dirty word or suggestive story get into type.

"I want this paper so conducted that it can go into any home without destroying the innocence of any child."

OCCURRENCES IN MARION BRIEFLY CHRONICLED

Marion, Ohio, Aug. 9.—(By the A. P.)—Countless floral offerings reached the Harding home today. They were sent by people in every walk of life and from nearly every country in the world. There value was estimated in the thousands of dollars.

Two Carloads of Flowers

The funeral train brought two full carloads of flowers, and four other car loads arrived by express on another train. Other offerings continued to arrive during the day and throughout the night in great profusion.

Flowers soon filled every downstairs room and corner of the Harding home. It was not long before they were banked all over the front lawn. As evening approached they filled the side and back yards, and indications were that by tomorrow the yards of several neighbors would be needed to hold the floral tribute.

Most Beautiful Floral Piece

One of the largest and most beautiful of the floral pieces was sent by Henry Ford, Thomas A. Edison, Harvey S. Firestone and Bishop William F. Anderson of the Methodist church—members of the camping party of which Mr. Harding was a member last summer. This piece was placed in the room with the coffin.

George W. Van Fleet, general manager of the Marion Star, which was owned and published for years by Mr. Harding, arrived from Washington on the funeral train early in the afternoon, went to the Harding home with the body, and then returned to the Star office where he made up the regular afternoon editions of the paper. He was associated with Mr. Harding as editor of the Star for many years.

Railroad Yards Filled

Yards of the four railroads entering Marion were filled to overflowing tonight with several cars and special trains bringing distinguished mourners to the city. More specials are due tomorrow morning, including the one from Washington bringing President Coolidge, Chief Justice Taft and other high government officials.

Thirty Special Trains

The Erie railroads alone announced tonight that it would run thirty special trains into Marion tomorrow. Other railroads entering the city are the Big Four, the Pennsylvania and the Hocking Valley, and all will handle numerous specials.

Former Employes to March

Employes of the Marion Star, for years published by Mr. Harding, will be the only group that will march in the funeral procession as a body. Mrs. Harding's wish, they will meet at 1.45 P. M., tomorrow, at the Harding home. No editions of the Star will be published tomorrow.

Scenes of Interest

One of the scenes of greatest interest in Marion today was the private office of Mr. Harding in the editorial rooms of the Star. All day long visitors passed through the office, eager to see the draped chair and desk at which Mr. Harding did his editorial work.

Other points of unusual interest to out of town friends were the receiving vaults at the cemetery, the Harding home made famous by the front porch campaign three years ago and the Baptist church in which he worshipped.

Multitudes View Body

During the afternoon and evening an average of thirty-five persons a minute passed through the front room of the Harding home to view the body of the dead President. Secret service men estimated that at 10 o'clock tonight approximately 17,000 people had viewed the body.

Hordes of Newspapermen

Approximately 100 newspapermen from all sections of the country were in Marion tonight to report the news of the funeral. Scores of extra wires had been installed to handle the hundreds of thousands of words of press matter.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE EN ROUTE TO MARION

Washington, Aug. 9. — President Coolidge tonight speeds to Marion, Ohio, to take farewell at the grave of Warren Harding.

Yesterday at the solemn state funeral here the new president paid silent tribute to the memory of a statesman who had died serving his country. Tomorrow he will bow his head for Harding the man, the intimate, the plain American citizen.

Then on Saturday he will return to Washington to face the responsibilities heaped upon his shoulders by the death of his chief.

Leaving Washington at 10 p. m., the president's special train will reach Marion at noon. The party invited to travel with the president and Mrs. Coolidge includes Chief Justice Taft, General Pershing, the admirals and generals who yesterday escorted the body of Mr. Harding through the streets of the capital, a party of senators and members of the house, the governors of several states and a few intimate friends.

CINCINNATI'S FLORAL TRIBUTE FOR THE FUNERAL

Cincinnati, Ohio, Aug. 9.—As a tribute from the people of Cincinnati a oral wreath six feet in diameter will be sent to Marion for the funeral of the late President Harding. A card attached bears the following inscription:

"Cincinnati, bowed in grief, weeps with the nation on the death of our great and beloved president.",

(Signed)

"CITY OF CINCINNATI.
"By George P. Carrel, Mayor."

A HUSH WILL FALL OVER THE METROPOLIS TODAY

New York, Aug. 9.—Great crosses of light, towering the full height of twenty-five of New York's tallest skyscrapers, tonight ushered in the metropolis' full day of mourning for the late President Harding.

Outlined against the dark building sides by lights gleaming through hundreds of office windows, these unique symbols of the city's sorrow cause a subdued hush over the night crowds.

Tomorrow the whole business section of the city will be stilled. Stock and commodity exchanges, great banks and department stores, offices and factories—many of them draped in mourning—will be closed for the day. Presses and linotypes in a dozen evening newspaper offices will stand idle. Baseball parks will be empty. Motion picture, legitimate and vaudeville theaters will be dark, save where they are used for memorial services for the beloved dead.

A few theaters and the city's hundreds of churches will house the principal activities of the day—sorrowful services of prayer for the dead and for his brave widow.

At 5 o'clock, New York time, the hour set for the funeral services at Marion, a breathless hush will fall over all the city's millions, and every thought will be turned toward the little Ohio city, where the last chapter in Warren G. Harding's history is being written.

Subway trains will halt in their dark tunnels; elevated trains on their high trestles; trolley cars and automobiles on the street level; railroad trains wherever they are. Not a wheel will turn for two minutes.

At the same hour, telegraph and radio instruments will be stilled, and the city's thousands of telephone operators will forsake their switchboard plugs, sitting at attention with thoughts turned toward Marion.

In the harbor, hundreds of tugs will drift idly with the tide, while their crews pay tribute with doffed hats. Even ships at sea will join the outpouring of sorrow. Radio messages today directed captains of the ships of several lines to halt wherever they may be—provided due regard for safety permits—and call their crews to attention for a five minute tribute. Other lines ordered vessels run at reduced speed for a period with all available members of the crews at attention.

The White Star liner Majestic, the world's largest ship, now in port here, will pay homage to the memory of President Harding by dipping her British ensign with her crew standing at salute, and similar ceremonies will be held on many other foreign ships in port.

More than 1,600 aliens, from many European countries, held on Ellis Island, will be given their first chance to take part in the life of America when they attend memorial services which will be held throughout the morning for the late president. The detention station will be officially closed for the day, and those immigrants who are detained will spend the morning in the chapel.

A solemn high mass will be said by the Catholic chaplain. Protestant and Jewish services also will be held.

HARDING CARRIED $52,100 LIFE INSURANCE

New York, Aug. 9.—President Harding's life was insured for $52,100, with six companies, according to a statement made public today by the Insurance Press. The largest policy, for $15,000, was with the Mutual Benefit, on the fifteen payment life plan, and was taken out in 1914.

President Harding, the statement said, had taken out several policies from time to time, starting when he was nineteen.

Passive Resistance Boomerang to Cuno

May be Used in Berlin to Enforce the Resignation of Chancellor and Cabinet.

Berlin, Aug. 9.—(By The A. P.)—The communists again were active today. Prior to the sitting of the reichstag various workmen's deputations interviewed social democratic deputies and demanded the resignation of Chancellor Cuno and his cabinet. They threatened to strike or to adopt passive resistance to enforce their demand. It is not expected, however, that the move of the communists will have any effect on the vote of confidence in Chancellor Cuno, which probably will be taken tomorrow.

In the reichstag today former Chancellor Mueller said he considered the time had arrived for Germany to apply for admission into the league of nations, "but not in tow of British policies." Dr. Gustav Stresemann, leader of the German peoples' party, warned England that German bolshevism would mean British bolshevism, and declared that "if Germany dies Europe also dies." Dr. Stresemann concluded by saying the German spirit was not so poor as to tolerate forever the theft of the Rhineland. This declaration was received with thunderous acclaim.

PASSIVE RESISTANCE BY MERCHANTS IN BERLIN

Berlin, Aug. 9.—(By The A. P.)—Retail establishments of every kind in Berlin, except those dealing in foodstuffs, today gaven an exhibition of passive resistance of their own by remaining closed.

The protest demonstration was aimed at an official ruling which prevents retailers from adjusting their prices to the fluctuations in the mark, a condition which they claim leaves them without protection against currency depreciation or ability to replenish their stocks.

THREE MEMBERS FAMILY GRADE CROSSING VICTIMS

Kendallville, Ind., Aug. 8.—Mrs. Maura Thrapp, 38, of this city, her nine year old daughter, Josephine, and one of her twin sons, Jack, were killed at a grade crossing here today when a Grand Rapids and Indiana train struck an automobile in which her husband, Raymond Thrapp was driving. Jimmie, the other twin, is in a hospital here and is not expected to live. Raymon Thrapp is also in a serious condition.

MABEL NORMAND HAS BROKEN COLLAR BONE

Los Angeles, Calif., Aug. 9.—Mabel Normand, motion picture actress, broke her collarbone and suffered other injuries when thrown by a horse she was riding at Coronado Beach, Calif., last Sunday, it was learned today when she was found in a hospital here by the Los Angeles Times. She was brought back to Los Angeles last night in a special car.

Mrs. Harding Still Retains Composure

Meets the Home Folks Without Showing Any Sign of Collapse.

Marion, Ohio, Aug. 9.—(By the A. P.)—Florence Kling Harding was alone tonight with her dead. She awaited bravely and calmly the coming of tomorrow when he will be taken from her and placed in the nation's newest shrine, behind locked iron gates of an unpretentious receiving vault in the Marion cemetery.

The return from Washington to her girlhood companions, her friends and most intimate associates, failed to weaken her resolute determination to keep strength to the end. To the many who came to cheer and ease her burden of sorrow, Mrs. Harding spoke her thanks but firmly declined to pass on to them even the smallest of the troubles that were hers to bear.

Mrs. Harding Gives Assurance

Even to those of her companions who traveled on the funeral train from San Francisco to Washington and continued the journey to its ending here today, the brave widow let it be known that she was in no danger of a collapse and there was no reason for them to worry about her. This statement but increased the admiration openly expressed by her friends who in recognition of its truthfulness, stood quietly aside, ready to aid but lacking the opportunity.

Mrs. Harding was the last to step from the funeral car when the train arrived in the Marion station. The casket already had been transferred to the hearse. The eight cabinet officers and other Washington officials had taken their places on the platform. The remaining members of the group which accompanied the late President to Alaska had been requested by Mrs. Harding to "come to Marion," also had left the coaches and made their way to assigned posts in the procession.

Appearance of Mrs. Harding

Then Mrs. Harding came down the car steps and Marion saw her. She was not the smiling and cheerful woman Marion had grown to know so well in the past several years. Her black gown heavy veil of impenetrable weave and crepe borders, her slow step, and general demeanor told the story of her visit. It was read by instantly and sympathetically by the waiting throng.

George Christian, Jr., Secretary to the late President, stepped to her side and together they walked to the automobile and were driven slowly to the home of George B. Harding, Sr., riding in the third car behind the hearse. There she stepped to the curb. Mr. Christian offered his arm and together they entered the modest little homestead. Just as the casket was placed in the position in the parlor.

Talked About Women

To the Marion friends who visited her during the day, Mrs. Harding conversed but little on subjects concerning herself and her future plans. She preferred to talk about "Warren" and how he had devoted himself to the public duty in the thirty years past, mentioning at frequent intervals some of his achievements during that time and something of his ambitions for the future. Beyond her decision to make Marion her residence after her visit to Washington and to spend most of her time during the next year or two at the home of her brother, Clifford B. Kling, Mrs. Harding gave her visitors no definite ideas of her future plans. She was said to have expressed a desire to travel, to go to Europe on a tour, but realizes that such a proposal would meet with opposition on the part of her medical advisors and for that reason must be abandoned.

Referring to the residence where she and the late President had lived before they went to Washington to occupy the White House, Mrs. Harding told her callers that she would "keep her bargain" with those who had leased the property, and since the lease did not expire for more than a year she could live very happily during that time at her brother's house.

One of the changes made today in the plans for tomorrow's procession to the cemetery was said to have been made at the personal request of Mrs. Harding. As a result the employes of the Marion Daily Star will march in the procession, taking their place just behind the honorary pallbearers, immediately in the rear of the hearse.

It was in the office of the Marion Star, then published by the late president, that Mrs. Harding learned the newspaper business. She was the "circulation manager," at that time and worked with her husband in that capacity for several years following their marriage.

COMMICCIONERS EXONERATE HARTFORD DETECTIVE

Hartford, Conn., Aug. 9.—The special committee of the board of police commissioners, appointed to investigate the charges of Roman Stefano that he had been brutally beaten with a rubber hose by a detective sergeant who sought to make him confess that he had stolen $1,000, tonight issued a preliminary statement that the evidence showed that the beating had not been received in the police department. Their statement said that the evidence showed that Stefano had been beaten up by his wife five days before he was arrested on suspicion of taking the money because he had been drunk. A rubber hose was found in the detective room and, while this was not mentioned in the statement, it was said that it had been in the room for four years, "with other junk." The committee will probably make its formal report to the entire police commission sometime next week.

DAY LABORER SAILING IN STEERAGE HAS 30 TRUNKS

New York, Aug. 9.—Francisco Lama, a day laborer, sailed today in steerage accommodations on the liner Conte Verde, taking with him 30 trunks on which he made an excess baggage payment of $200.

In the smartest and most elegant cabin on the salon deck Count and Countess David Constantini of Florence, formerly Miss Frieda Frasch of Cleveland, Ohio, got away comfortably with 20 trunks.

NO SEPARATE ACTION BY THE ALLIES IS IMPENDING

A Long Reply is to be Sent by Great Britain to the French Government Dealing With All Points Raised by Premier Poincare on German Reparations—The Reply Also Will Strongly Restate Great Britain's Position.

London, Aug. 9.—(By the A. P.)—The net results of today's cabinet council which discussed the terms of Great Britain's reply too France and Belgium with regard to German reparations appears to be that the negotiations between the allies still are proceeding and that no approach has yet been made to anything like separate action by the allies.

A long reply will be sent by Great Britain to the French government dealing with all the points raised by M. Poincare, the French premier, in his recent note. The reply also will strongly restate Great Britain's position.

It is understood the note will intimate that Great Britain cannot advise Germany to withdraw her passive resistance decree absolutely and unconditionally, and that it also will remind France that British interests do not permit of waiting interminably.

In effect the situation seems to be that Premier Baldwin still is seeking to surmount the difficulties of the situation without endangering an open break with France, and it is supposed Belgium is engaged in trying to find means for accommodation between the divergent views of her allies.

INVESTIGATING MURDER OF LUIGI DE BIASE

Danbury, Conn., Aug. 8.—State police this afternoon centered their investigation into the murder of Luigi De Biase, a hat factory employe, of 55 Wildman street, Danbury, whose body was found under a motor truck on the Danbury Newton highway, about five miles east of this city this morning, on a letter found in the man's clothing.

This letter was addressed to Mrs. Antonio Diste, of 55 Wildman street, this city, which address also is the home of the slain man. The letter written in Spanish was from Mrs. Diso's father, Francisco Rimaldi, of California.

The woman and her husband and Catherine De Biase, a daughter of the murdered man, were brought to Danbury police station and questioned by the state police. Late in the afternoon all were allowed to go.

Officer John Kelly of the Ridgefield barracks is in charge of the investigation. Up to tonight no definite theory had been obtained as to the person or persons who fired two shots into the body of De Biase or a possible motive for the crime.

BODY OF MAN FOUND ON MILFORD TURNPIKE

New Haven, Aug. 9.—The body of a man about 25 years old, with a cloth gag in his mouth, was found early tonight on Milford turnpike in West Haven near New Haven county home. In an investigation Dr. Marvin Scarborough, medical examiner, found what appears to be two bullet wounds in the man's chest.

Nothing could be found that would aid in identifying the body. The man's hair was brown, weight about 150 pounds; height about 5 feet, 7 inches. He wore a brown striped suit and under one arm a chauffeur's cap was found.

Coroner Eli Mix will begin an investigation tomorrow morning.

15 YOUNG WOMEN WERE BADLY SCALDED BY STEAM

Nyack, N. Y., Aug. .—Fifteen young women, employed by the Christian Herald of New York, were injured, several of them seriously, tonight when they were enveloped in steam when a bus in which they were passengers crashed into a steam roller. The stop-cock of the steam roller was knocked off, releasing a burst of burning vapor. The women were taken to a hospital.

Passengers in the bus were attending the celebration of the thirtieth anniversary of the Christian Herald home in this city. Another bus, containing a group of women employes of the Christian Herald, had passed the roller a moment before.

TWO AUTOISTS CHARGED WITH RECKLESS DIRVING

Norwalk, Conn., Aug. 9.—The drivers of two automobiles were held by the police tonight on charges of reckless driving following a collision in Westport avenue in which one of the cars turned turtle. They are: John E. Carnegie, of North Chester, Mass., and Braston Tuttle, of New York city.

Both machines were being driven toward Norwalk when Carnegie attempted to pass Tuttle. The former's machine sideswiped Tuttle's car overturning it.

Tuttle was accompanied by. Paul Scott, Roger Middleton and Harold Brown, all of New York. The men were injured slightly.

HARVEY IN CONFERENCE WITH PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

Washington, Aug. 9.—George Harvey, American Ambassador to Great Britain, spent nearly an hour late today in conference with President Coolidge before leaving for Marion to attend President Harding's funeral. The Harding proposal for American participation in the World Court, Mr. Harvey said, was one of the subjects duscussed with Mr. Coolidge, but he declined to give any details.

The ambassador said he planned to return to his post at London early next month.

RELEASE OF COUNT PLUNKETT, IRISH REPUBLICAN LEADER

Dublin, Aug. 9.—(By the A. P.)—Count Plunkett, the noted republican leader, who was elected a Republican Deputy from Roscommon, today was released from the military internment camp at County Kildare. He was arrested last April when he was on route with Miss Mary MacSweeney to the funeral of Liam Lynch at Clonmel. No other releases were reported.

Count Plunkett (George Noble Plunkett) an Irish patriot and Sinn Feiner, has been a thorn in the side of the Irish leaders who brought about the free state ever since the reapproachment with Great Britain began. Until the time of the Easter uprising in 1916 he had been prominent in Irish and English politics but was best known as a man of high mental attainments, being a member of many scientific and historical associations. His title is a papal one.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS TO HAVE AUXILIARY FOR BOYS

Montreal, Aug. 9.—The launching of a movement for Catholic boys under the name of Columbus Esquires was decided on at today's session of the international convention of the Knights of Columbus. The knights sent a message to President Calvin Coolidge extending the good wishes of the 800,000 members of the order of his administration.

The organization of the Columbus Esquires will be carried on by the 2,800 councils of the Knights of Columbus. Approximately $60,000 will be spent in educating men in courses in boy leadership. Two prospective leaders will be selected from each metropolitan center for two year courses. It was estimated that there were nearly 2,000,000 boys eligible for membership.

FEAR LOSS OF MALLORY LINE STEAMER SWIFTSTAR

Fears that the Mallory line steamer Swiftstar had gone down with all hands were expressed in shipping circles here tonight following receipt at the government station of a radio message from Tampico, Mexico, stating that an ice-box with the word "Swiftstar" stenciled on it and containing the body of a man believed to be that of a member of the crew had been washed ashore on St. Andrews Island, 300 miles north of Colon, in the Caribbean sea.

TWO TRACK RECORDS ARE SHATTERED AT FAIRGROUNDS IN THURSDAY'S EVENTS

Two local track records were shattered by Bay state horses here on Thursday afternoon in the second days events of the Bay State meeting in races that were spectacular in every heat. The races of Thursday equally as good as those of the opening day and much faster, the slowest time made yesterday being 2.14 1-2 many of the heats being much faster.

The pacing record for the local track was hung up on Sept. 6, 1916, by Baron Hal piloted by Harry Brussie at 2.10 flat. Yesterday Colonel Bidwell, a bay gelding by Colonel Forrest, and boasting a mark of 2.03 1-2, driven in convincing manner by the veteran rainsman Joe Johnson clipped one full second off the mark doing the mile in 2.09 flat. This performance came in the second and final heat of the free-for-all pace after Colonel Bidwell had won the first event in 2.21 1-4 from Peter Kennedy piloted by Kingfisher Martin. The last heat was the big event of the afternoon and practically every person in the crowd of nearly 3,000 stayed for the windup.

Johnson said Wednesday that he would lower the mark and he made good. The heat started off fast with Colonel Bidwell hugging the rail and Peter Kennedy and Gam close beside. The first half mile was very fast and was announced as 1.03 1-2 and to the crwod it looked as though the final half would be even faster. When Colonel Bidwell swung into the stretch Peter Kennedy swung out in an effort to nose out the Johnson horse but in the brush down the stretch the Colonel had the staying qualities and flashed under the wire in the lead. It was as pretty a bit of racing as has ever been seen on the local track and this record will probably hang for some time to come.

The other record to go by the boards was the trotting mark which was lowered from 2.13 to 2.12 2-4 by Rochelle Maid, piloted by Flemming in the third heat of the 2.14 trot. Rochelle Maid was forced to extend herself in the heat in order to nose out Palestrina who eventually won the race.

The 2.17 pace with eleven starters furnished plenty of excitement as did the 2.14 trot. Spectacular driving by Crozier against Gibbons and Flemming featured all the heats in this event. Sparkle won the first heat after a brush with Irish Voter and then was nosed out in the second by Peter Florentine. The third heat Sparkle got away to a bad start and Crozier did not push his mount placing eighth. In the fourth heat Crozier drove through the field into the commanding position and held his advantage to the finish although pushed by Flemming's mount. In the final heat it was a neck and neck affair between Sparkle and Peter Florentine with the Crozier horse showing better at the finish.

Palestrina, a brown mare driven by Gibbons captured the honors in the 2.14 trotting event but not without opposition from Billy Flemming's mare, Rochelle Maid. It took five heats to decide this race and the finish was a beautiful drive with the Gibbon's mare having the advantage in the stretch in which the race was fought out.

Peter Look, a bay gelding with a mark of 2.03 3-4 driven by Gibbons had little difficulty in taking the race after the first heat, although Guesswork and Robert M. were favorites over the Gibbons horse. Both Guesswork and Robert M. furnished a little opposition in each event but were not dangerous.

There will be no racing today out of respect to the late President Harding but on Saturday there will be three good events to mark the getaway day. The Saturday card will include the 2.19 trot, the 2.22 pace and the 2.11 trot in this last event it is possible that the new track record for the trot will again be lowered as some of the fastest horses in the circuit are entered.

BALTIC-TAFTVILLE SERIES OPEN UP ON SUNDAY

The much talked of Baltic series will open on Sunday at Baltic and Manager Harry Collins of the Baltic team is out to show Manager Troland that the Taftville team is not such a world beater after all. Art Coullard will be with the Baltic team and Collins has secured one of the best semi-pro pitchers in the state to do the twirling. The infield has also been strengthened and from rumors that come from the little village of Baltic, Taftville is due to drop its third straight game.

Last Call for Jingles

$1000 in Prizes

Make no mistake—eat Mapl-Flake
You'll find it most delicious.
It is supreme with fruit and cream
Because it's so nutritious.

Write a jingle—win a prize. Ask your grocer for a box of Mapl-Flake, eat a big heaping bowlful of these crisp, tasty flakes, and you'll be ready.

Then write a four-line jingle like the one above (only better), and mail it on or before August 15, 1923. First prize for the best jingle—$250. 165 prizes in all.

Mapl-Flake is a whole wheat flake—with all of the bran left in. Selected wheat is sweetened, flaked and toasted to a delicious brown. You would never know the bran is there—yet it acts as a natural, harmless, "regulator." It's good to eat, and good for you. Read the rules—mail your jingles.

CARDS TAKE WEIRD GAME FROM GIANTS

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 9—Pitcher Lou North's single in the fifteenth inning won one of the weirdest major league ball games ever played here, in which the Cardinals defeated the league-leading Giants today, 13 to 12. McGraw sent in six pitchers and the same number worked on the hill for the locals, the most effective being North who held the visitors hitless during the last four innings.

The visitors got off to an early lead in the opening inning when they scored four runs off the veteran Bill Doak, who was unable to get a man out. Frisch's home run brought in three of the Giants' tallies in the opening inning. The Cardinals tied the score in the third at five-all and later took the lead until the ninth when the Giants put over three runs. Again in the eleventh the teams scored two runs each, the Cardinals' two tallies being driven in by Hornsby's fourteenth circuit drive of the season. North's single in the fifteenth pushed over Ainsmith with the deciding run.

The Giants played a listless game, in all, eight errors were charged to the league leaders while the Cardinals had four. Twenty players of the Giants got into the game, three more than Rickey trotted out. The score:

TIGERS WALLOP MAYS AND HOYT, BEATING YANKS

New York, Aug. 9—Detroit slugged pitchers Hoyt and Mays hard today and defeated New York in the first game of the series, 11 to 3. Hoyt lasted until the seventh, when he was relieved by Mays, who was hit even harder. Detroit made fourteen hits, including four triples and three doubles. Manush hit two doubles and a triple. New York tallied only in the third when Smith singled with the bases full, two runs scoring on the hit and a third on Cobb's fumble. Score:

REDS DROP CLOSE BATTLE TO BRAVES

Cincinnati, Aug. 9—Genewich pitched brilliantly for Boston today shutting out Cincinnati 1 to 0. Rixey also was effective, except in the seventh inning when Southworth's triple and a single by McInnis gave the Braves their only run. Both teams fielded with great speed. It was the sixth straight defeat for the Reds and the first victory of the season for the Braves at Redland field. Score:

AUSTRALIANS AND JAPANESE TENNIS STARS DIVIDE DAVIS CUPS HONORS

Chicago, Aug. 9.—Australia and Japan divided honors in the final round of the American Zone Davis cup tennis play today when James O. Anderson, captain of the Australian team, defeated Masanosuke Fukuda, while Zenzo Shimizu, pilot of the Nipponese team, triumphed over John B. Hawkes the youthful Australian.

Shimizu playing excellent tennis and displaying clever court generalship defeated Hawkes 6-4, 3-6, 2-6, 6-1, 6-4. In defeating the youthful southpaw from the Antipodes, Shimizu met a worthy opponent, and was forced to extend himself to the limit at every stage of the battle.

Hawkes started strong by winning the first four games, but got no farther as Shimizu braced and began hitting the stride that won for him international fame. Hawkes' service, a fast, twisting overhead stroke, was responsible for his early victories, and had the Nipponese leader completely bewildered.

Shimizu displayed the best tennis of his career in winning the last two sets which was a necessity as Hawkes was pressing him to the limit. Shimizy's greater tournament experience aided him greatly in putting Japan in the American Zone finals.

Anderson made quick work in disposing of Fukuda, winning by scores of 6-1, 3-6, 6-2, 6-1. The tall Australian was master of the play at every stage except the second set when Fukuda struck a winning streak.

Anderson hammered Fukuda's service and drove his own into corners, taking the first five games by sheer speed. The Australian's service was hard and bewildering and paved the way for frequent rushes to the net where he scored in clever stop volley.

Fukuda's play was wild and erratic except in the second set when he kept his hard hit ground strokes within the lines by narrow margins. He was also guilty of making many double faults and missing his shots by yards.

In the fourth set Anderson let loose with a burst of speed, completely outclassing his opponent. He employed three kinds of services and displayed great improvements on his backhand stroke. Another factor in his victory was his superior height, which enabled him to reach balls his shorter opponent could not touch.

Today's matches were played on a grass court made slightly heavy due to recent rains. The matches scheduled for tomorrow were postponed until Saturday in respect of President Harding.

The drawings for the doubles matches Saturday will be made tomorrow.

ATHLETICS SWAMP CHISOX IN BATTING RAMPAGE

Philadelphia, Aug. 9—Winning the final game of the series from Chicago 21 to 5 today gave Philadelphia three out of four from the visitors and ended a protracted slump.

Hale and Welch led the attack for the locals with four hits apiece while Hale and Schang each had homers.

Gleason used five pitchers but none were effective against the home team yielding 22 hits for 33 bases. Score:

RED SOX BEAT OUT BROWNS IN THE EIGHTH

Boston, Aug. 9—Doubles by Burns and Harris and an error by Gerber on McMillan's grounder gave Boston two runs in the eighth inning today and enabled the home team to defeat St. Louis, 4 to 3. The hitting of Burns, with two doubles and a triple to his credit, and a running barehanded catch in deep left center by Jacobson off Collins in the first inning were the features.

MORAN AND BERNSTEIN FIGHT TO A DRAW

New York, Aug. 9—Pal Moran, of New Orleans, and Jack Bernstein, of New York, junior lightweight champion, fought ten rounds to a draw in the New York Velodrome tonight. Outpointed in the early rounds, Moran opened a two fisted attack on the champion in the seventh round and had him holding as the contest ended.

Bernstein worked his famous left hook effectively in the first four rounds and had Moran dizzy from the blows. The New Orleans boy tried in vain to get inside the junior titleholder's jaw in these rounds. In the fifth, countering Bernstein's hooks with left Bernstein's mouth and left eye.

They fought on even terms through the sixth, exchanging heavy body blows Moran rocked his opponent with stiff lefts and rights to head and body in the seventh. The eighth was even and the ninth and tenth were Moran's by a shade.

The judges' decision of a draw met with the approval of a majority of the fans.

Moran, having failed to make 134 pounds, the weight stipulated in his agreement with Bernstein, was forced to give the champion $500 forfeit money. Moran weighed 135 1-2 pounds and Bernstein 130.

Frankie Jerome, of New York, received the judges' decision over Danny Edwards, negro bantamweight of San Francisco, in ten rounds.

In the scheduled ten-round semi-final between Kid Kaplan, and Tommy Noble, Kaplan was awarded the decision at the end of the seventh round when the judges stopped the fight. Noble, with both eyes closed, had to be led to his corner.

J. B. MARTIN PLAYS TWO GAMES THIS WEEK-END

This week end the J. B. Martin baseball team plays two games, the Saturday afternoon game will be played out of town and Sunday the team will play off the home diamond, an ideal place to spend the afternoon. This diamond has all the advantages of comfort on a hot day, plenty of shade trees and a good roomy grand stand.

The Sunday attraction will be the Hartford Federals, which team has lined up against the J. B. Matin team once before this season and played what was considered the snappiest and best game that was played on the J. B. Martin diamond this year.

There is no question but Sunday's game will be equally as good for the Federals and J. B. Martin lineup is practically the same as the last time the two teams clashed. The lineups:

Federals—Sayers, p; Welch c; O'Leary 1b; Maier 2b; Parker 3b; Catter ss; Charron lf; Sullivan cf; Baurle rf.

J. B. Martin—Lemieux p; Eccleston c; J. Joubert 1b; E. Murphy 2b; F. Giley 3b; DeCelles ss; Seidel lf; R. Pilling cf; E. Joubert cf.

The J. B. Martin manager would like to arrange for an out of town game for next Saturday afternoon. Call 1094-2 after 3.15 p. m. or write E. B. Manager, J. B. Martin, Norwich, Conn.

GILLESPIE'S FOUR HOMERS WIN FOR BRIDGEPORT

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 9—The Bridgeport Fishermen won the verdict over the Hampdens here today after 10 innings of hectic baseball, the score being 10 to 9. Four home runs by John Gillespie, the Bridgeport hurler, the last one coming in the tenth, won the game for the Fishermen. Gillespie's four homers constituted a new Eastern league circuit clouting record for a single game. After Gillespie socked his final one over the fence, Abrams went in to pitch and checked the Hampdens in their half of the tenth. The score by innings:

PROFS WIN PROTESTED GAME FROM HILLIES

Pittsfield, Mass., Aug. 9—New Haven defeated Pittsfield 13 to 10 here today, making a clean sweep of the three games played in two days. Both clubs played the game under protest as the result of a decision by Umpire Kuhn in the third inning. With two out and Withrow at bat a pitched ball got past Catcher Wilson and O'Neil went across the plate. The umpire after a lengthy argument ruled that Withrow had interfered with the catcher and sent the runner back to third base. He refused, however, to call the batter out, which would have retired the side and New Haven later scored five runs in that inning. Score by innings:

THE COOLIDGE PERSONALITY.

In some respects President Coolidge is said to be an enigma to public men. Practical politicians feel that they do not know the temper and quality of his mind.

Calvin Coolidge has the traditional New England conscience, which follows the inner light of conviction and principle. He has been called upon to display courage upon notable occasions and he has met the test in a way which impressed the whole nation. To some his opinions may seem old-fashioned, but it should be borne in mind that many old-fashioned principles have not ceased to be intensely modern. The ten commandments, the sermon on the mount and the golden rule are modern enough for Mr. Coolidge and he has admiration for the common sense aphorisms of Benjamin Franklin. Indeed, there is a discoverable similarity to the style and substance of Poor Richard in the incisive sentences in some of the speeches and messages by Mr. Coolidge to the Massachusetts legislature and on other occasions.

President Coolidge believes in the essential virtues—self-reliance, thrift, loyalty to truth, subordination of expediency to righteousness. He has no sympathy with paternalism or undue dependence on the grandmotherly state. He is a staunch upholder not only of state rights but of local autonomy, of local initiative, of neighborly co-operation. He admires the original plan of town government, a government of the citizens and by the citizens. He has faith in the plain man, such faith as Lincoln had; but he is aware that the average man longs for high-minded guidance and rational leadership.

To the complex and difficult problems, national and international, now facing the Coolidge administration the president may be trusted to apply the cardinal principles which have inspired and governed him throughout his public life. He has risen from the ranks; he has known toil and hardship; he has overcome obstacles. He is a steady, careful thinker and a strong man.

GERMANY'S WEALTH.

The idea of a Germany "on the verge of ruin" is shown to be pretty much of a myth by the report of American commercial attachés who have made a visit of inquiry to the Ruhr. Their observations throw an interesting light upon the extent to which the Germans there have been applying their energy to the building up of economic resources and capital improvements to the neglect of the production of marketable goods. This work has included railroad, canal and highway improvements, extending the capacity of coal mines instead of mining coal, and bettering the means of production. All the energies of municipalities, labor unions and industrial employes, with the backing of government subventions have been concentrated towards this one object, and the same has been true of other parts of Germany.

All of which indicates that when Germany does eventually emerge from its currency muddle, the nation's industrial resources will be greatly strengthened. The wealth-producing mechanism of the nation will be stronger than ever.

The mad activity of the German printing presses has brought disaster to thousands of the German people but the real wealth in lands, goods and machinery of production has not been damaged. The tangle is wholly one of chaotic currency, which might be called "a mere matter of bookkeeping" as far as the practical effect is concerned. As a matter of fact, it has been admitted by a well known German economist that the community as a whole has profited by the misfortune of the individual. The potential capacity to pay is there yet and its tremendous resources are being steadily augmented from month to month. The problem is to find some way of levying upon them for the payment of outstanding obligations.

ADVERTISING MAINE.

With the object of advertising Maine and the port of Portland to the United States and Canada, the Maine state chamber of commerce is making plans for a transcontinental trip this fall which will cover approximately 10,000 miles and cost about $60,000. It does not appear that the state chamber of commerce is providing $60,000 worth of free travel for persons eminently qualified to profit by it, but if it induces enough Maine people to join the party to make it a financial success it will be achieving a feat of no small magnitude at the outset.

How much the results of the advertising tour will meet the expectation of its promoters is another matter. The touring party will be entertained at various cities along the route and by speeches and interviews and press statements will impress upon thousands of minds the existence of such a State as Maine with the advantages of its admirable seaport. Maine's remarkable attractions for the pleasure-seeker will probably be broadcast by the distribution of pamphlets, maps and literature printed by Maine railroads and publicity bureaus.

One certain result of the trip will be the pleasure and instruction derived by individual members in sections of the United States and Canada with which they are unfamiliar. If state and city chambers of commerce can arrange such tours upon which their members volunteer to go there seems to be no good reason why they should not do so as long as participation in them shall be purely voluntary on the part of the individual members. It will be instructive to know what will be their appraisal of the results when they return from their tour of sight-seeing, instruction and entertainment.

A GRANGER'S VIEWS.

As representative of the large body of farmers who have membership in the grange, the words of Sherman J. Lowell of Fredonia, N. Y., master of the national grange, may be taken as fairly interpretive of their views. In a recent address at Columbus, Ind., Mr. Lowell expressed his conviction that there is no place in America for a farmer-labor party.

He said: "A farmer-labor party is a mistake, and it is a mistake because vocational government is always such. We do not want a political party which represents but one element of our population. A party must be universal in its appeal and considerate of all in its actions. Special privileges have no place in our form of government."

Mr. Lowell sees nothing desirable about government ownership and opposes it on the ground that public expenses would increase and the tax collectors would continue their search for new sources of revenue with the result that the burden would fall ultimately with greatest weight upon the farmer.

Magnus Johnson, the new senator from Minnesota, is characterized by Mr. Lowell as a radical similar to La Follette, but "with one-third of La Follette's brains. He impresses his followers with his aggressive, heavy, bull-like manner and voice, which when sounded in Minnesota is heard in Washington, but which when sounded in Washington will never be heard as far as Minnesota." As master of the National Grange, Mr. Lowell doubtless speaks the views of many thousands of farmers who feel that times have been hard and that in a measure discrimination has been practiced against them. But they are clinging to the old ideals of government in America, confident that a better day will come. There is nothing of the revolutionist about the farmers. They, after all, are the backbone of the nation.

COMMERCE CHANGES.

Since the beginning of 1922 an analysis of our foreign trade shows a shift from Europe to other continents; until now the greater part of our foreign trade is with parts of the world other than Europe and each month shows the tendency more prominently.

It is not alone in volume of trade that there is significance, but also in its nature. Our manufacturers who import raw material are doing more direct dealing with producing countries, rather than buying through European commercial markets, and there is a reciprocal tendency in the increased buying of American products by these countries. Our exports to countries other than Europe have increased more than 25 per cent in a year, while our imports have grown about 30 per cent.

It is probable that various factors combine to set up this tendency. Europe is suffering a reduction of commerce with the United States as well as with other land because of the economic situation there, while our increased commerce with other lands may be largely influenced by the stability of the American dollar and further by the fact that our new merchant marine is opening up new channels of trade.

Whatever may be the causes of the tendencies now fully marked in our foreign commerce, it is evident that they are not causes of concern for our future industrial life and it is evident also that, while the economic situation in Europe seriously affects us, it is not as serious as some may think. As matters stand the restoration of peace and economic stability in Europe is vastly more important to Europe than to America.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Diplomatic discussions on the 13-mile limit are not conducted on lines that lead to reproof for boisterousness.

Conan Doyle is homeward bound without having convinced many skeptical Americans that appearances are deceptive in "spirit" photographs.

Now and then the boll weevil asserts itself sufficiently to show that the middleman is not the only foe of those who cultivate the soil.

Senator Brookhart, it seems, was so carried away with admiration for soviet Russia that he lost no time in hustling back to a civilized country.

Dispatches announce that the price of German dinners rises while the diners eat. They need to adopt the American quick-lunch habit.

Thomas A. Edison has been suggested as a political leader. His bandwagon would not be complete without a phonograph.

The man on the corner says: Only about six weeks more for the tired college students to muster strength enough to tackle another year's studies.

New York grand jurors suggest fourteen ways to avert automobile accidents. And there are about fourteen hundred ways in which they may occur.

THE WEDNESDAY CLUB

"There's an article in this month's Pacific Monthly that I want every one of you girls to read," announced Carrie Burke in the half hour of discussion that usually follows Wednesday club bridge. "It told me something about Tom that I have been waiting all my life to find out—a thing that has really and truly worried me that I've lain awake nights over, and simply could not understand. I'll never forget the first time it happened. We were in a restaurant. It was when we were engaged, and in those days gentlemen didn't smoke when they were with you in a public place without asking permission."

"Heavens and earth," murmured Marjorie Davis, round-eyed with wonder. "Have you been married that long, Kit?"

"I have—since bor! And when I remember what an unbearable little prig I was, it seems like another life. I wonder Tom ever thought he wanted to marry me. But he seemed to—in spite of some fixed ideas I had on etiquette. I intended to begin right with Tom, so when the waiter lit a match and held it to Tom's cigarette, and Tom raised an eyebrow carelessly at me and asked 'Mind if I smoke?' I answered him gently but firmly, 'I'd a little rather you wouldn't, dear.' And waited."

"Well?" chorused the Wednesday club, when it became evident that Carrie was lost in her memory. She came back with a start.

"He lit it. And he smoked three or four puffs—just until that waiter had moved away. And then, of course, he put it out. But I didn't speak to him for three days."

"Really," sniffed practical Stella Van, "I don't see anything to agonize over in that, Kit."

"Oh, I do," Sallie Kendal, born and raised in Virginia, took this problem seriously. "Why, if Pete did that to me, I'd just die. Don't you see, it simply meant that Tom cared more about the waiter than he did about Carrie."

"That was the way I looked at it," Carrie admitted. "I cried all night, and I can't say I've ever forgotten, although we finally made it up. But this article in the Pacific—you must read it—that's all. It's called 'The Bashful Sex.' It says men are naturally dreadfully shy, that they suffer agonies when we make them conspicuous, that they are horrible, self-conscious and are frightened out of their wits when we make them walk down a long aisle to a front seat—though they'd die rather than admit it, of course. After I read it I came to the conclusion that Tom didn't really care more for that waiter's opinion than he did for mine. He was just plain scared of him!"

Silently, the Wednesday club assimilated this idea. Then—

"Perhaps that's why they hate carrying packages and bundles. It calls attention to them," mused Bertha Gordon.

"And why they simply will not ask a policeman or anybody else the way to anywhere," said Kate Pratt, bitterly. "Sam would walk in the wrong direction until his feet dropped off, and drag me with him, before he'd ring a doorbell or stop a stranger and ask which way to go."

But Stella Van was unconvinced. "If that's all true," she demanded, "How do you explain these parades that fraternal orders and brotherhoods are always getting up? Would any man who was shy and timid put on, of his own free will, a fancy dress ball haf with feathers in it, strap a sword on himself in times of peace, tie on a dinky little apron, or cover his bald spot with a blue stocking cap and march through the street? He would not. Not one could ever make me believe it."

"Perhaps that's their sense of duty," Kate surmised. "They have one, you know. It's a terrible thing."

"Not much. It's simply because they adore being looked at. And it just naturally contradicts every word you've just said."

But Carrie was too absorbed to be drawn into debate. "I guess we'll have to leave it at that," she sighed. "Men are queer, anyhow. I suppose we never will really understand them."

"I hope not. I'm sure," reflected Sallie Kendal. "Wouldn't it be deadly if we did? Half the fun would be gone from life. I can think of just one thing worse—for them really to understand us."

"Oh, but they never could," said Marjorie Davis.—Exchange.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Francisco de la Barra, who has been appointed a member of the executive council of the Carnegie Foundation in Europe, served as Provisional President of Mexico following the fall of the Madero regime in 1913. He has had a long and distinguished career in public life, and is rated as one of the strongest men in the Mexican Republic today. He has made a specialty of international law and successfully negotiated treaties between Mexico and various countries of Europe. De la Barra is no stranger to the people of the United States, having served as ambassador at Washington from 1908 to 1911. Previously he had been minister plenipotentiary to the various republics on the Atlantic coast of South America, and in 1904 was ambassador to Belgium and the Netherlands. De la Barra is now in his 66th year. His father was born in Chile and was a general in the army of that country. Later he settled in Mexico and rendered valuable services in the army of his adopted country.

Stories That Recall Others

Thought Ennie Could, Too

Alice was only three years old and Ennie, short for Edna, her sister, who had reached the mature age of six and had entered school, was her idol. It was the custom in the family to say grace before each meal, this duty being performed by the mother.

After the mother had said grace before one meal Alice turned to Edna and said:

"Ennie, seems to me you could read off your plate, like mommy does."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Correction.

Mr. Editor: May I correct your statement of today under "Editorial Notes" reading as follows: "New England has its first president since John Quincy Adams."

Franklin Pierce, the fourteenth president of the United States was a native of New Hampshire and Chester A. Arthur, the twenty-first president, was a native of Vermont.

Cordially and sincerely,
READER.

Norwich, Aug. 8, 1923.

The editorial note should have said Massachusetts instead of New England. Chester A. Arthur is credited to New York in the list of presidents as he was living in New York city when he was elected vice president.—Editor.

Wonderful for Piles Says Peterson

If you received every week a dozen or more letters like the ones below from people who have suffered torments from piles, wouldn't you feel happier than the man whose life is devoted to money grabbing?

"Gentlemen—I have been suffering with a fistula for the past twenty years. During that time I have tried numerous remedies, all of which have failed.

"Two months ago I determined to give Peterson's Ointment a trial. The improvement was so decided after using one box that I have continued, and on the completion of the fifth box am now entirely cured.

"This is written with the view of passing along the good word to other sufferers." Very truly yours, Chas. E. Caswell, 252 Third St., Albany, N. Y.

Here's another from Mr. Edgar Thomas, age 76, of Hemlock, N. Y. He writes: "I had the itching piles, also high blood pressure. I saw Peterson's ad in the paper. I used one box and a half of Peterson's Ointment for itching piles and the piles disappeared, also the high blood pressure."

35 cents a box at all druggists.

Piles

Can't Be Cured From the Outside.

External treatments seldom cure Piles.
Nor do surgical operations.
The cause is inside—bad circulation.
The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.
The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.
To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through the stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method.
J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., set at work some years ago to find a real internal Pile remedy. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEMM-ROID, and tried it in 1000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEMM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It's easy to take, and can always be found at Lee & Osgood's, who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.

ECHOES

Each lovely sound that drifts along our way
  Echoes from ancient tones of yesteryear—
  Dim strains that folk long turned to dust held dear.
Whose wistful rhythms down the ages stray,
Striving to merge within some sad or gay
  Dance tune or song or surging symphony,
  The hunger of their ghostly melody
To find a shelter in some heart today.

All wonders that for revelation crave
  Are reminiscent of the long ago.
There is no new thing in the whole world save
  Sometimes a voice that seems to make it so—
Whose understanding may with clearer stress
Repeat the yearning cry of loneliness!

LACE CURTAINS WASHED LIKE NEW WITH HALF THE WORK

New Discovery Makes It Easy No Matter How Grimy They Are

Housewives will welcome the new discovery, MACO, especially at this time of the year. Just a little of this marvelous liquid added to the wash water and your lace curtains turn out fresh and dazzling white as when new, with half the usual trouble.

This is the preparation now used by laundry manufacturers to give their white linen and cotton goods that brilliant lustrous white sheen. You can now bring it into your wash-day with the aid of MACO.

MACO is especially effective in removing stains and spots from table linen and from linen and cotton garments of every description. Fruit stains, coffee stains, perspiration stains, even ink stains, all disappear as though by magic with its use. And not only does it itself attack and loosen the grime and grease, but by softening the water is greatly increased the cleansing power of the soap. In this way, by eliminating the necessity of hard rubbing, it adds considerable to the length of wear of the clothes.

In the scrub bucket MACO is almost as useful as in the washtub. The grease and grime on the floors and walls and woodwork, as well as in wash-bowl, bathtub and sink, yield much more quickly when MACO is present to aid. You can get MACO at your grocers—15 cents per bottle.—adv.

OBITUARY.

Christian Lang.

After a long illness the life of Christian Lang came to a close Wednesday at his home in Taftville. Mr. Lang was born in Germany in 1837 and came to this country in March 1885 with his family, making his home in Taftville for the past 40 years.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Catherine Lang, and four sons, Martin Lang of this city, Samuel Lang of Providence, John Lang of Lewiston, Me., and George Lang of Pawtucket, R. I.; two daughters, Mrs. Henry Liepold of Norwich and Mrs. George Seidel of Lisbon. There are also 21 grandchildren.

Mr. Lang was a loving husband and kind father and had many friends. He was a member of the German Lutheran church.

Mrs. Bartholomew Haggerty.

After an illness of six months Sarah O'Connor, beloved wife of Bartholomew Haggerty, of Providence, died at 6.55 o'clock Thursday morning at the home of her sister, Mrs. James Sigerson of 104 School street, where she had been visiting.

Mrs. Haggerty was born in Ireland and was the daughter of Peter and Sarah McGill O'Conner, and most of her life has been spent in New England.

In St. Joseph's church, Providence on June 11, 1901, she was married by Rev. Austin Dowling to Bartholomew Haggerty and besides her husband is survived by three children, Madeline, a teacher in Providence, and Anna and John Haggerty, a brother, John O'Connor of Norwich and four sisters, Mrs. James Kearney, Mrs. James F. Sigerson and Mrs. John Morley of Norwich and Miss Katherine O'Connor of Providence.

Mrs. Haggerty was a woman who loved her home, and was a loyal helpmate to her husband. She readily made friends and news of her death will be received by her many friends in this city, with sorrow.

Mrs. Timothy J. Buckley.

Mary Good, widow of Timothy J. Buckley, died Thursday morning at her home at 15 Tanner avenue after an illness of three weeks. Mrs. Buckley was 72 years of age and was the daughter of Richard and Mary Murphy Good. Practically all her life had been spent in Norwich. She is survived by three sons and two daughters, Richard, John and Michael Buckley, Miss Agnes Buckley and Mrs. Bertha Dugan. There are also grandchildren.

CONTINUES TEMPORARY INJUNCTION IN CORTICELLI-SLOSBERG CASE

On application of the Corticelli Silk Company, the superior court has ordered that the temporary injunction issued last August in the case of the Corticelli Silk Company against Jacob R. and Hattie F. Slosberg of this city be continued. The temporary injunction enjoins the defendants from further occupying the disputed triangular strip described in the pleadings and from further erection of buildings thereon and from interfering in any way with the occupation of the said disputed strip of land by the defendants.

The case was heard by the superior court and judgment was rendered adverse to the plaintiffs July 27th. The application for the continuance of the temporary injunction says: The plaintiffs are desirous of taking the case to the supreme court of errors and asks that the temporary injunction be continued until a final decision in said case is rendered by the supreme court.

The order continuing the injunction was filed Thursday with the clerk of the superior court in this city. The case is a dispute over a certain tract of land sold by the plaintiffs to the defendants.

After the deed had been passed the plaintiffs discovered that the dimensions of the boundary line of the lot on the Shetucket river was stated to be 75 feet instead of 60 so that the description in the deed included a portion of the plaintiff's mill building. They claimed an error had been made in the dimensions and that they had requested the defendants to correct the mistake and reform the deed. They then sought relief through the superior court which upheld the defendants.

FAVOR APPOINTMENT OF DR. STANLEY

Mrs. Ann Dennis Bursch, chairman of the living costs committee of the Connecticut League of Women Voters, attended Farmers' Week at Connecticut Agricultural college. She has returned to the Hartford state headquarters having received much valuable help from contacts made with the extension service of the college and with women from all over the state.

Mrs. Bursch says that questions involving the producer and the consumer are women's daily housekeeping problems. There is no other group more affected by conditions in production and consumption than the housekeeper.

It is not surprising therefore that Mrs. Bursch and the Connecticut League of Women Voters welcomes the establishment of a bureau of home economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Dr. Louise Stanley, appointed by U. S. secretary of agriculture, has been for several years the dean of home economics of the University of Missouri and holds the respective position in the Missouri League of Women Voters which Mrs. Bursch holds in the Connecticut League.

Mrs. Edward P. Costigan, chairman of the living costs committee of the National League, commenting on the appointment said:

"Dr. Stanley is a distinguished expert, and we hail with enthusiasm the news that the whole nation will receive the benefits of her knowledge and abilities. Ever since the announcement was made last summer that a department of home economics with a woman as chief, would be established, we have been observing with interest the development of the situation. We are gratified to realize that the appointment was based entirely on considerations of efficiency and training, and that political considerations in no way controlled it. We are gratified, too that a woman should be chosen for this important post."

Acting Secretary C. W. Pugsley of the department of agriculture said:

"The nation is to be congratulated in securing Dr. Stanley to head the newly created bureau of home economics. There is no more important work than that devoted to the homes of the country."

Dr. Stanley was born in Nashville, Tenn., and was graduated from the University of Nashville. She was on the board of education of the University of Chicago (1906) and Ph. (1907) received her M. A. degrees at Columbia University. She was awarded the Ph. D. degree at Yale in 1911. In 1913 she was a delegate to the international conference of home economics teaching, at Ghent, Belgium, and she is at present chairman of the legislative committee of American Homes Economics Association.

LIONS CLUB PAYS TRIBUTE TO PRESIDENT

The Lions club met in regular session at the Wauregan house Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock, Field Director H. M. McKinnon and a visiting brother, Lion Jones, of New London, being guests.

Out of respect to the late president, Warren G. Harding, the meeting was quiet this week. George A. Finn, organizing president opening the meeting with a few brief remarks as a tribute of respect for President Harding, in part as follows:

Since our last meeting one week ago, a great blanket of sorrow has been spread over the world in the death of our beloved President Warren G. Harding, who gave his all while serving faithfully, the country he loved. We deeply mourn his untimely end and our heartfelt sympathy goes out to Mrs. Harding who, unwell herself, was unremitting in her devotion and attention to the president during all the trying hours of his sickness.

Following the memorial address by President Finn all members stood with bowed heads as the strains of America were softly played by the pianist.

Luncheon was then enjoyed and plans talked over. Many members are to attend the meeting of the Lions club at New London next Tuesday. The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

CAMPED WITH ESCAPED SHELL-SHOCKED WAR VET

A Providence despatch in a Boston paper says:

Peter J. Finley, shell-shocked war veteran, who escaped from the Butler hospital recently and with a younger married nurse and her younger brother pitched camp on Pons Island in the bay off Warren, was captured after Warren police charged the camp in the face of a shotgun leveled by the veteran.

Before he was captured, the police say, Finley tried to kill Mrs. Irene Blanchard, his former nurse who had shared his camp. She thrust aside the barrel and the shot went wild.

After the trio went on the island to live, all went well until Eugene Blanchard, of Central Village, Conn., heard of his wife's whereabouts. When he approached the camp, however, Finley's shotgun warned him off.

Blanchard returned to Warren and sought police aid. Captain Hull entered the tent, grappled with Finley and succeeded in taking the gun from him. The veteran was returned to Butler hospital. Mrs. Blanchard returned to this city with her husband.

NORWICH CHAPTER OF HADASSAH GIVES WHIST

Members of the Norwich Chapter of Hadassah although away at the seashore are not forgetting their promise to give financial support to the Medical Unit in Palestine and on Thursday night at Ocean Beach members of the local chapter engaged the Ocean View Hotel and gave a whist, realizing a profit of $50 to go into the fund. The affair was in charge of Mrs. Samuel Herts and Mrs. I. Beckenstein assisted by Mrs. H. Goldfaden.

Members of the chapter attended the whist, going down to the shore from Norwich by automobile.

Efforts to grow cotton in New South Wales have been unsuccessful because of drought and insect pests.

NORWICH PAYS TRIBUTE TO PRES. HARDING TODAY

Today (Friday) will be a day of mourning in Norwich in memory of President Warren G. Harding, whose funeral is to be held at Marion, O., this afternoon. The wheels of industry will be silent and business in general will cease this afternoon at 1 o'clock as a mark of tribute to the late president. The courthouse will be draped in black and the courthouse bell will toll at 3 o'clock, the hour set for the funeral service at Marion. At the same hour the chimes at Park church will ring the strains of the late president's favorite hymns. Churches in Norwich and vicinity will hold memorial services during the day.

Practically all industrial plants in the city and vicinity will be closed by 1 o'clock, some of them closing for the entire day, and stores in general will close their doors at 1 o'clock.

Union Service at United Church.

The largest service in the city will take place at the United Congregational church at 3 o'clock this afternoon when all denominations will gather beneath one roof in a united service in memory of President Harding.

The service will start when Organist F. W. Lester begins playing Chopin's funeral march, and with the strains of the march the ushers will close the entrances to the church, not allowing anyone to enter the edifice until after the selection is completed. People coming in late will be asked to stand in the vestibule until after the music stops; then they will be shown to seats within. Special request, however, is made that everyone be in their seats before the funeral march is played.

City Government to Attend.

Mayor Milo R. Waters has issued a request to the entire city government to attend the service. The city officials will meet in the mayor's office at 2.45 o'clock and headed by the mayor and members of the court of common council will go in a body to the service across the streets, seats being reserved for them.

The programme was announced in The Bulletin of Thursday morning. There are these additions: The invocation will be made by Rev. Mr. McDonald; the president's message read by Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey; Scripture reading by Rev. R. R. Graham.

In addition to the city officials several other local bodies will attend. A request has been issued to employes of the U. S. postoffice to attend the service and about 50 will do so. Members of the recreation commission and attendants at the playgrounds are also to attend and several local societies will be present.

Local Institutions.

Although there are to be no services at the Backus hospital, Norwich Tuberculosis Sanatorium, or the Norwich State Hospital the hour of the funeral services at Marion will be observed. In several there will be quiet hours and in others nurses will continue on duty, but office employes will not be on duty. At the New London County Home and Rock Nook Home the quiet hour from 2 to 4 o'clock will be observed.

German Lutheran Church.

At 10.20 o'clock this morning a memorial service is to be held at the First German Lutheran church. Rev. Herman Hunsinger, pastor, will deliver the address and the choir will sing special hymns, among them the several favorites of the late president.

High Street Synagogue.

People of Hebrew faith will gather at the High street synagogue at 6.30 a. m. today and Rabbi Max Stamm has requested that all members and their friends attend the service. There will be special singing by a quartette from New York.

Brothers of Joseph Synagogue.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Brothers of Joseph Synagogue on West Main street Rabbi Max Stamm will hold a memorial service and there will be special music by a New York choir.

Christian Science Service.

The Christian Science society has sent out notices of a memorial service to be held this morning at 10.45 o'clock in room No. 215 in the Thayer building. There will be music and a message of tribute to the martyred president.

Bells to Toll.

Upon orders from Mayor Waters the big bell of the court house will send out its message of sorrow this afternoon commencing at 3 o'clock, the hour set for the funeral at Marion. Other bells in the city in towers of local churches will also toll out the slow beats in memory of President Harding.

Chimes to Play.

From Park church this afternoon, beginning at 3 o'clock the sound of chimes playing the favorite hymns of President Harding will be heard reaching in all sections of the city, reminding people of the funeral at Marion, and of the hour of silent tribute. The chimes will be played by Ebenezer Learned, Jr., and the service will close with the playing of America.

Stores to Close.

Many of the stores will be closed today in memory of President Harding, the hour for closing having generally been set for 1 o'clock in the afternoon. Stores having business requiring them to remain open have announced that they will observe the hour from 2 to 4 when doors will be locked. Offices buildings will remain closed, many for the day, and throughout the city, stores big and small, will be closed a half day, or for one hour as tribute to President Harding.

Trolleys to Stop.

Announcement has been made by the Connecticut company that all work possible will be suspended for the entire day, today, as a mark of respect to President Harding. This will include offices, repair shops, line work, and track work. Promptly at 5 o'clock, daylight time, every trolley of the Connecticut company will come to a dead stop, wherever it may be and remain so for five minutes. Passengers are requested to remain in their seats and observe a moment of silent prayer in common with thousands of people wherever the flag of the nation floats. The regular running schedule will be resumed at the end of the five-minute period.

Trains Not to Stop.

The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad company has issued orders that promptly at 4 o'clock, standard time, all office work, line work and track work will be stopped for a period of two minutes in respect for the late President Harding. Trains in motion at that hour are to continue on regular schedule, however, to avoid confusion.

Telephone Service.

Orders have been issued from the New Haven headquarters of the Southern New England Telephone Company that throughout the state all telephone service will be suspended for one minute beginning at 4 o'clock, standard time, 5 o'clock, daylight time, this afternoon. Business offices are to be closed in time for employes to attend church services in memory of President Harding.

Post Office Closes at Noon.

As Friday has been appointed a day of mourning and prayer by President Coolidge, the post office will close for the day at 12 noon, standard time, one full delivery will be made by all carriers, both city and rural, all mails will close as usual, collections from the street letter boxes in the business section will be made for these mails.

Y. M. C. A. Building Closes.

The Norwich Y. M. C. A. building will be closed from 1 to 6 p. m. on account of the funeral of President Harding.

Christ Church Service Cancelled.

The special memorial service for President Harding at Christ church, of which notice was given last Sunday, has been cancelled on account of the union service to be held in the United Congregational church.

At Grace Church.

A memorial service will be held at Grace church, Yantic, at 2 p. m.

Playgrounds to Close.

Chairman W. J. Fitzgerald of the Norwich Recreation commission announced that in memory of President Warren G. Harding, all playgrounds in the department will remain inactive on Friday, Aug. 10th.

The playground instructing force will be in attendance at the usual hours to inform all children of this order and to bring home to them the fact that the president has passed away.

Mayor Waters requests the members of the playground commission to meet at the mayor's office, Friday afternoon not later than 2.45 for the purpose of attending the President Harding memorial services in the United Congregational church.

Otis Library.

Announcement was made Thursday that the Otis library will close today (Friday) from 1 o'clock until in the evening, out of respect to the late president.

Service at Lebanon.

At 2 o'clock there is to be a community memorial service at the Congregational church, Lebanon, as a memorial to President Warren G. Harding. Rev. W. O. Foster will conduct the service assisted by Mrs. F. N. Taylor who will have charge of the music. All places of business will be closed from 3 to 5 o'clock.

Plainfield Service.

A memorial service will be held at St. Paul's church, Plainfield at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon as a final tribute to President Warren G. Harding. The public has been invited to attend the service.

COLCHESTER AS IT WAS 80 YEARS AGO

From a letter written by a young man dated October 24, 1842, a clerk in a store in Colchester, to his older brother in Massachusetts, are taken the following items of general interest regarding affairs in that village at that time.

"Colchester has altered very much since you have been here. We now have three new churches, two temperance hotels, nine stores. The Washingtonian Temperance society has done wonders here, we are to have a grand temperance celebration on the 2nd of November at which time an ode will be delivered by George C. Catlin, Esq. (who you recollect a few years ago was a complete sot, but is now a thorough going Washingtonian) after which comes a big dinner at Mr. Downes' Total Abstinence Hotel, big guns, big toasts, etc.

The Millerites have been lecturing here the week past to crowded houses in the new Methodist church. There seems to be considerable excitement on that subject but principally among that denomination; there are but few who give evidence of being fully convinced of the truth of the doctrine. They held a camp meeting six miles west of this place a few weeks ago at which time they raised the wind somewhat and they are now trying to make a hurricane of it if possible. Our ministers take the opposite ground. I do not believe that they can see much farther into a millstone that those that peck them.

Our annual town meeting was held a short time ago at which time the loco's swept the decks, but it was no test of the strength of parties as not more than half the voters were out. We mean to ship them on board some fast sailing craft and pay their passage smack up to the head of Salt River (as we have usually done) at the spring election.

A. B. Isham has built a splendid house on the corner where the old tavern stood into which he will move as soon as he is able. There is a store in the south part of it which he intends to fill up in good style soon. The old store is to be taken down and cast into the fire.

Both the writer of the letter and the one to whom it was addressed were originally from Hebron, the family living at the Furnace, afterward Turnerville. The Furnace is at present doing nothing says the letter. There has been no sale at all for pig iron for some time past but the prospect is I think growing brighter. Iron has already advanced a little in the market in consequence of the new tariff to which the Messrs. Pette (owners of the Furnace) and their party, contrary to their own interest, have so bitterly opposed. They have advertised the Furnace and their other property in Hebron and vicinity for sale but as yet have not found a buyer. Seneca Pette, Jr., is in Hebron most of the time, and they are getting in coal, oyster shells.

Reverting to Colchester again, the writer says: Col. Isham has lost his only son, Gen. Jirah Isham of New London who was mayor of the city, state's attorney, etc. He feels the loss heavily. Business has been rather dull here, but is now getting a little more lively".

WASHINGTON PRINTERS WIN BASEBALL TITLE

New York, Aug. 9—For the second year in succession Washington won the championship of the Union Printers International baseball league and by defeating the Chicago nine 11 to 2 retained the Garry Herrmann trophy in the final round of the thirteenth annual tournament at the Polo grounds today.

Washington advanced to the final by eliminating Hamilton, Ontario, in the morning, 12 to 2, while across the river in the Yankee stadium the windy city outfit took the measure of the St. Paul nine by 9 to 0.

Weavers Beat Officials

A game that created quite a little interest last night was played on the J. B. Martin diamond. The Big Loom Weavers of the J. B. Martin won from the Officials of the J. B. Martin team, by a 7-6 score.

Poor ball playing on the Officials' part, and being handicapped by "Snakeball" Erlbeck being unable to pitch made things go the wrong way.

R. Gley of the Big Loom Weavers featured with his star one-hand catch and wonderful acrobatic stunts of Wunderlich and Erlbeck kept the crowd on edge all the time.

The deciding game of the series will be played some night next week.

TIRED, NERVOUS MOTHERS

are the direct cause of much unhappiness in our homes; their condition irritates and wears upon the husband and often ruins a child's disposition. This condition of the mother is often due to some weakness which makes her entirely unfit to perform her household duties and bear the strain upon her nerves that goverang children involves. Every woman who finds herself in this condition should remember that statistics prove that 98 out of every 100 women who suffer from female ills are helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and lose no time in giving it a fair trial.

Watch His Smoke

Ed Roush, star centerfielder of the Cincinnati Reds, whose sensational batting has made him the eyesore of all eyes in the National League, where he is one of the leaders with the big stick. No wonder the Reds are hanging right on the heels of the League champions. It might not cause much surprise if the pennant is taken to the Middle West this year.

Next Monday, Amos H. Armington, president of the First Rhode Island Light Artillery Veterans' Association, will entertain the remaining members of this battery. When this company was called into service, August 13, 62 years ago, it had 141 members. Today the number of men is only 13, 12 of whom are now living in Rhode Island and one in Connecticut. During the second and third of July, 1863, the battery took a prominent part in the Battle of Gettysburg.

In this famous battle 34 members were killed and wounded, Lieut. Fred Brown being one of the wounded. It is of interest to note that the First Rhode Island Light Artillery had the largest per cent of loss of all the batteries, except one in the entire Civil War. It will be impossible for all the members of the company to attend this reunion, but those who do will take a special bus from Providence to the G. A. R. hall where they will be entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Armington. In the afternoon the veterans will go to Alexander's Lake where a picnic will take place.

At the meeting of Danielson Rod and Gun club held Wednesday night in the Central Fire station, Robert Pellerin was appointed to arrange dates for two trap shoots between the local club and the Plainfield Gun club. A cup will be awarded the winning club. This year the Danielson Rod and Gun club has released 72 cans of fingerling trout and 175 pheasants.

PUTNAM

The fire department was called out just before the town clock struck 3, Thursday morning, for a fire near the barn of William Killian, Woodstock avenue. The fire was in a pile of rubbish and had set the end of the barn on fire. It was soon extinguished after the firemen arrived. The blaze was discovered by Mrs. Harry Callis who lives close by. It is believed that spontaneous combustion in the pile of refuse started the fire. The Killian family are not occupying their home as it is being repaired and remodeled, following a fire that partially destroyed the house early in the summer.

There was a sweepstakes golf tournament for women members at the Putnam Country club, Thursday afternoon. There was a good list of entries. Those not caring for golf played whist on the clubhouse piazza. There will be no sport at the club today (Friday) in observance of the national day of mourning.

Miss Edith Pease is entertaining Miss Harriett Harlon of Shrewsbury, Mass.

Putnam firemen are to receive more pay. The common council has voted to increase the salaries of officers and men as follows: Chief, $350 a year, an increase of $50; two assistant chiefs $150 a year, increase $50; superintendent of fire alarm system, $250, increase $50; fire police $15, increases $5; three foremen $70 each, increase $20; six first drivers, $135 each, increase $20; two second drivers $75 each, increase $20; forty-four firemen $60, increase $20. This makes a total increase for the department of $1330. There was considerable discussion when the matter came up for action the more conservative members thinking that it might be well to wait until the new budget is made up so that the increased appropriation necessary could be made. The vote, however, was unanimous.

The city court is making a record in the amount of money turned into the city treasury in fines. The total for July was $1099.76. The increase is due to heavy money penalties imposed for convictions of liquor law violations. The limit, $20, is also usually imposed in intoxication cases. There were 40 arrests during July and over half, 27, were for intoxication.

As President-General she requests the suspension of all social activities of the society until an appropriate time, not earlier than two weeks after the President's death. Mrs. Bissell joins with the President General in this request. In the name of the Connecticut Daughters, Mrs. Bissell sent a telegram of sympathy to Mrs. Harding last Friday. The flag is at half mast at the local chapter room over Slater Library.

Since the story appeared in Monday's Bulletin, of two young girls, in a moment of indiscretion taking a joy ride with two strange men, and being compelled to take a walk of eight miles back to the home town, sadder and wiser, stone-wall results have closed out all efforts by the self-invested detectives of the borough today as to the identity of the culprits.

First off, tremendous pressure was brought to bear, by certain of the younger set, upon Judge William R. Palmer, but there was nothing doing.

The next move, when it was learned that the case was to be tried either in the adjoining town of Preston, or in North Stonington, was the organization of secret scouting parties. Sherlock Holmes, would have had serious concern about his record, if he could hvae witnessed the classy hands and knees slueth jobs that were pulled off down along the Preston border. But no robe of judge was sighted, nor yet a more than ordinarily suspicious looking lawyer.

The next move, the weakest of all, was to discredit the whole story.

Late Wednesday afternoon, Judge Palmer, was accosted on the street and gave out the staggering verdict, that the case had been "settled out of court."

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Lindell, Herbert Lindell and Master Albert Lindell motored to Mystic shore Saturday and spent the day quohoging.

WESTERLY

An electric car on the Watch Hill line and a Nash touring automobile, 41-062 R. I. and operated by Lewis Solomon, 25 Elm street, came together just below the ice plant at Avondale, Thursday afternoon, resulting in damage to both cars but no injury to the occupants.

As the electric car which left Watch Hill at 4.45 in charge of Conductor E. J. Maloney and Motorman Benjamin Richmond, Jr., approached the gas filling station of Joseph Dussault the touring car driven by Mr. Solomon came out of the driveway, also headed for Westerly. The operators of both car and automobile claimed that they did not see each other until it was too late to avoid the collision. The left running board of the electric car was broken and splintered when it came in contact with the right hand rear mud guard of the automobile which was bent and twisted. The right rear wheel was bent as the trolley car pushed the automobile along the soft dirt, and the rear of the auto body was split open. At the time the cars were proceeding slowly. A bystander attempted to warn Mr. Solomon of the approaching electric but was not successful. Mrs. Solomon was the only passenger in the automobile at the time and was in the front seat with her husband. The automobile was able to proceed to Westerly under its own power.

James E. Kennedy, janitor of the Wilcox Memorial and Public library, returned to his duties this (Friday) morning after two weeks' vacation passed in and about Westerly.

Out of respect for President Harding, as announced by Director Charles O. Gavitt of the Westerly band, there was no band concert in the summer series being given in Wilcox park on Thursday night.

Today (Friday) places of business in Westerly will be closed generally for a short or longer period. The committee from the Westerly town council and Pawcatuck selectman has directed that all places be closed from 1 to 6 p. m. The Westerly town hall will be closed all day and such cases as may have to come before the Third district court will be heard in the Third district judge's office in the town hall. The Washington Trust and Industrial Trust companies will be closed all day as Governor Flynn has issued a proclamation making the day a legal holiday in Rhode Island. The Pawcatuck Bank and Trust company will be closed all day. The Westerly post office will have its stamp and postal savings windows closed from 12 o'clock, with but one carrier delivery in the morning; outgoing mails will leave the post office as usual. The trains on the New Haven road will be operated as the Labor day schelule. Groton, Ashaway, Watch Hill and Pleasant View electric cars will be still for a period of three minutes at 3 o'clock and other employes of the electric lines will stop work for that period. No matinee will be held in the theatres. Beach resorts will be closed from 1 to 6. Clothing, shoe and furniture stores will be closed all day. Drug stores will be closed from 13 to 6.

At the Catholic churches special masses will be said this morning. A union service of the evangelical churches takes place at 3 p. m. in the First Baptist church.

Charles P. Cottrell and Arthur Trotman have been announced as the chairmen of the industries committee and the memorial committee respectively in the campaign to be begun next week for a hospital in Westerly. Mr. Cottrell's work as chairman of the industries committee will be to obtain subscriptions from the numerous textile mills and other industrial establishments in Westerly and vicinity.

Mr. Trotman's committee will seek subscriptions from individuals who may wish to create particular parts of the new hospital building as memorials.

With the appointment Thursday of David Novogrod team captain, the full list of the thirty team captains in the Westerly-Pawcatuck district was completed.

NEW LONDON MAN SELLS WHISKEY TO AGED CUSTOMER WHO SQUEALS

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Aug. 9.—Harold Vincent Mahoney of Hartford who had been spending a part of the summer at Sound View, had his recreation period cut short yesterday when arrested by Deputy Sheriff J. H. Tubbs, charged with bastardy. Mahoney was taken to Hartford where he was held in bonds of $1,000 for his appearance in the court of common pleas or Hartford county. When Mahoney was taken into custody he escaped from the officers, but was finally captured.

The funeral of Mrs. Elizabeth, widow of John Nagle, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church. A solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. J. J. McGrath, with Rev. Dr. Timothy M. Crowley deacon and Rev. William J. Fox of Groton sub-deacon. The bearers were John Foley, Thomas Sheridan, Michael Corcoran, Walter W. Philbrick, William McGuire and Michael White. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Thomas A. Clark, eleven year old son of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Clark, of No. 2 Bellevue place, died late last night at the home of his parents. Master Clark had been ill but three days.

Patrick T. McCaffery has sold a house and lot on Shapley street to John Schutz.

Decorators completed the work of draping the entire front of the municipal building with American flags and bunting, this afternoon as a further tribute of respect to the memory of the nation's chief. The officer in the building will suspend business tomorrow noon for the remainder of the day.

Francis Adams, United States Coast Guard Academy, Margaret, John and Charles Liquora of Westerly, Mrs. George Wilenski of Niantic, Miss Julia Moore of Crystal avenue, Miss Dorothy Wilcox of New Jersey, Mrs. Daniel Davis and infant son of Gales Ferry, Master Harry Winslow of Squire street and Mrs. Edward Sisson and infant son, were patients discharged at Lawrence hospital today.

The funeral of Timothy P. Sheehan, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. John's church, the assemblage of mourners including delegations of Knights of Columbus and Pequot Hose company. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. William C. Fitzsimons, pastor of the church. The bearers were John Tansy, Benjamin Boyton, Donald Bain, John Silva, William Corkey and Thomas Perkins, members of the hose company. During the service Miss Alice Marooney of New Haven sang Some Sweet Day. The committal service in St. Mary's cemetery was conducted by Rev. John J. McGath.

Emil Brewer, a carpenter, residing in Niantic, was arrested at his home this morning by Deputy Sheriff J. H. Tubbs and M. J. Martin, charged with breach of the peace, beating his wife, using indecent language, intoxication and resisting an officer. He was taken before Justice of the Peace James Floyd and was fined $5 and costs on the charge of breach of the peace and sentenced to ten days in jail. Judge Floyd remitted the costs and suspended the jail sentence for six months, so all that Brewer had to pay was the costs of the court. Brewer was arrested Tuesday night, but while the officers were waiting for Brewer to dress he made his escape, running through a rear door and disappearing in the darkness. The officers returned to the Brewer home this morning and made sure that the accused would not get away from them again.

Mrs. Bridget Chanitsky of Douglass street, became intoxicated from overindulgence in hootch this afternoon and when she created a scene near her home was arrested by Patrolman Augustus Ray. When locked up at the police station the woman had a half pint of hootch about her person.

Joseph P. Connell, 163 Bentley avenue this afternoon was ordered to appear in the police court tomorrow morning by Motorcycle Officer William Babcock, charged with violation of the automobile law. Connell was detected by the officer operating an automobile without the driver being possessed of a license.

Mrs. Saunders of 23 Blackhall street complained to the police this morning that her son's bicycle was stolen from the yard.

An automobile owned and operated by Nathan Traystram, No. 12 Shaw street, was slightly damaged late last night when it collided with a machine, owned and operated by Charles J. Wyant, No. 151 Bank street. The accident occurred on Bank street, near Howard when Traystram operated his machine from the rear, Wyant's car hitting it from the rear.

Edward F. Hess stepped into the limelight this forenoon when he was charged with selling liquor contrary to provisions of the Volstead act. Hess is the proprietor of a little store on Main street, where paints and varnishes for wood work and not for the stomach are dispensed. John Rourke, a man of advanced years who was taken into custody on the railroad tracks where he was in danger, accused Hess of having sold him about a half pint of whiskey for the extravagant price of $1.75 yesterday. Rourke said he went to Hess' place and asked for and received the liquor, it being served to him in a soda bottle. He even went with officers and pointed out the Hess place and accused Hess to his face. Hess denied that Rourke was his customer, but represented that Rourke appeared at his place and left the bottle he had when arrested on the railroad tracks. He later came after the package, the contents of which Hess represented he did not know and it was given to him. The court thought it passing strange that Rourke should be so anxious to buy liquor at $1.75 a half pint when he was already possessed of the booze he sought. Hess could not explain that, but offered the suggestion that Rourke might have forgotten that he already possessed the liquor. The newspaper the bottle was wrapped in was daubed with gilt paint and Hess admitted that he was using gilt paint and had thrown papers on the floor when Rourke appeared. It developed in the testimony that the business between Hess and Rourke was all done in a back room at the Hess store. Policeman Cavanaugh, who made the arrest of Hess put a hydrometer into the bottle and found that there was 40 per cent. of alcohol in the liquor. Hess appealed and gave a bond of $500 for his appearance in the common pleas court at its next session.

Thomas Milliaries of Tilley street, was nabbed by State Policeman Curran on the Norwich turnpike last evening when shooting over the road at a speed of 35 to 40 miles an hour in a Studdon coach. He is a peddler and a hustler, but he was hitting a pace by unreasoning streets that attracted the attention of the officer, who followed until he overtook him. Then he ordered him into court. Judge Prince attached a fine of $25 to the accused and the latter paid it, though it made him groan.

H. L. Low, a Japanese from the submarine base, clear cut and intelligent, was found operating a car yesterday without having an operator's license. He said the experience with the automobile was his first in the buzz wagon and he didn't secure any license, though he had the papers of registration that are required. He paid $10

Lewis Villano, auto truckman, drove down Pequot avenue at a speed that Officer Babcock, who was on a motorcycle, thought was reckless as there are tents erected opposite the bathing beach near Converse lane where children are continually going to and fro. Villano admitted he was guilty of carelessness, if nothing more, and paid a fine of $10.

The fire department was called out shortly after 4 o'clock this afternoon when the city dumping grounds adjoining the wharf of the Whitcon Machine company off Howard street became ablaze. It was believed the fire might spread to nearby property, so an alarm was rung in from Box 44, corner of Hamilton and Howard street. The blazing refuse was quickly extinguished by chemical.

Edmund William, 28, who had been missing several days from the home of Hubert Rogers of Montville, where he had been visiting several days and whose disappearance was reported to the New London police yesterday afternoon. Mr. Rogers fearing that his visitor might have drowned in the Thames river, put in an appearance at the Rogers home this morning. The youth accounted for his absence by the fact that he had been out of town.

Edwin Keeney, who suffered a heart attack about a week ago, remains at his home in an extremely weakened condition. Mr. Keeney is in his 94th year.

There will be memorial services for President Harding at the First Church of Christ this (Friday) noon at 12.30 to continue but half an hour, to give business people and others an opportunity to attend. Rev. J. Remeyn Danforth, the pastor, will conduct the service.

At the First Baptist church, Rev. George R. Aatha of Groton, will hold services at 4.30. The bell will be tolled for half hour beginning at 4 o'clock and W. H. Bush will render especial music on the organ. The service will conclude just as the body of the president is being placed in the mausoleum at Marion.

The funeral of Miss Rosa Spadaro, daughter of Joseph Spadaro, of No. 21 Shaw street, was held this moning at 8 o'clock at St. Joseph's church, when a mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Thomas J. Drennan, of Hartford. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Thomas F. Robertson, who underwent a blood transfusion at Lawrence hospital a week ago, appears to be weakening.

Mrs. Henry A. Bergman was summoned to East Grandby this morning because of the death of her mother, Mrs. Fannie Elsenberg, 81, who had been ill but about a week.

Misses Annie Graham and Brace Chapman, teachers in the Groton Heights school, have returned home after spending several days at Yale where they were engaged in observation.

Mrs. Nelson Holdridge, who has been ill at her home in Groton several days, is considerably improved.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank V. Chappell and their children, Hunting, Adelaide and Elizabeth, have returned to their home on Huntington street, after a two week's automobile trip through New Hampshire and Massachusetts.

Luther G. Stebbins and son Russell are spending a few days in New York.

Master William D. Connor, son of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Connor is visiting his aunt, Miss Mamie Carroll of Tariffville.

Mrs. Joseph E. Fitzpatrick, wife of Prohibition Enforcement Agent Fitzpatrick, is entertaining Mrs. James Lynch of Providence.

Mrs. Florence Lyon has returned home concluding her visit with friends at Pompton Lakes, N. J.

Miss Mary Delaney of Hoboken, N. J., is the guest of Mrs. Henry Comeau.

Dr. Nelson MacArthur of Detroit, Mich., has arrived at Ocean Beach, where he will remain the balance of the summer. Mrs. MacArthur and their children have been at the shore for several weeks.

Miss Ruth Goddard a student nurse at Joseph Lawrence Training school, is visiting her sister, Mrs. D. A. French, of Willimantic.

Mrs. Steve Ushkivich of Potter street and Max Rosofsky of Belden street, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were able to return home today.

Patrolman Michael Dorsey believed last night that he had discovered one of the petty thieves that have been operating in New London, without detection for some time. The officer observed a youth at Ocean Beach spending considerable money for one of his years and informed Probation Officer Richard Mansfield of his suspicion. An interview with the lad revealed that he had found a pocketbook on a trolley car with $5 in it and had started out for a good time. When halted in his spending, the lad had used $2 of his find for eatables and amusements.

Two more nominating petitions for member of the council were received at the office of City Clerk Julian D. Moran today, when Charles W. Boothe, a Main street merchant, filed a petition for George W. Sisson of Cole street, and John V. Williams handed in the petition of Edward L. Streeter, Jr. A petition was also received for Howard B. Marshall member of school board. As there is no such office within the gift of the voters the petition is invalid for the office that the circulator evidently desired Mr. Marshall to fill is that of school visitor. Besides the title of the office named in the petition invalidating the nomination, the document was otherwise invalid for The petition did not contain the street address of the signers nor the dates when the signatures were affixed. Mrs. Annie S. Bailey of No. 3 Union street was the circulator.

The petition by which it is hoped to secure signers to compel the city council to cause a special city election to be held next month, to give the voters an opportunity to say whether the present city manager form of government shall be abolished and a return to the former government take place was put in circulation this afternoon and it was stated this evening that several hundred signatures had already been obtained. The document must contain approximately 3,400 signatures to make it valid, but the circulators declare that there will be no difficulty in obtaining the necessary signers. Elmer E. Kenerson, a former member of the council, is one of the advocates of the present form of government being dispensed with and is circulating one of the petitions. Mr. Kenerson is enthusiastic over the large number of signers thus far obtained and believes that the petition will be in the hands of the city council not later than the 20th inst.

The police started tonight to round up the unusually large number of drunks that have been about the city the latter part of today and as a result of their operations the police have landed five victims at the police station.

PRESCRIBING CUREALLS FOR THE FARMER.

(Written Especially for The Bulletin)

I am usually amused, but occasionally a little bit bored by the various and often quite dissimilar prescription which different wiseacres put out as gramnytive cures for all farmerdish ill. I see some of these in various papers and magazines. Readers of these "Talks" and personal friends send me others. The never too orderly shelf of my typewriter desk is sometimes deeply littered by these clippings.

It certainly isn't from lack of outside advice or criticism that the farmer suffers. He's getting enough of those to float a many-thousand ton battleship, if they could be melted down into more useful sea-water. The only trouble with them is that most of them aren't any good. Some of them sound beautiful in words but utterly fail in deed. SCome of them read like charms—and work out like hoodoos. They are like altogether too many of the over-advertised goods of the day, made to sell, not to use. They are like the famous boots which the customer returned with the complaint 'hat they burst open the second step he took in them. "Vot," cried the seller. "You try to valk in dem boots? Dem vas 'im' boots."

That's about the case with most of the cure-alls put forth as panaceas for agricultural defation, depression, loss and menacing bankruptcy. They are all good enough to ride in, maybe, but when it comes to walking on solid ground the seams rip, the soles fall off, the toes gape, and the vamps wilt into brown paper.

I have two more of these disqualifiers before me as I write. One is in Financial America, a journal devoted, as its name implies, to the discussion and possible elucidation, of financial problems. The editor frankly admits, at the start-off of his sermon, "that most of the prescriptions he has seen offered are "superficial suggestions couched in catch-phrase language, calculated to please yet confuse." "Our tillers of the soil," he goes on, "are being treated for an improvement of their political complexion rather than economic indigestion." And he notes that a cure of indigestion is rarely accomplished by the beauty doctor "Good old fashioned remedies have more lasting effects" he opines.

In other words, a dose of honest tea is sometimes better for what ails you than a dabbing of nose powder. A good many of us will agree with this.

The editor then goes right on to set forth his idea of the proper medicine. Co-operative action. That's the idea. "Proper marketing will solve many, if not all of their (the farmers') troubles. But it must be accomplished with business methods free from the blighting hand of political direction."

Well, you and I have talked over this idea of co-operation many times. Theoretically, it is a desideratum. I used to believe that it was as practicable for the farmers of the United States as, say, for the farmers of Denmark or the co-operative societies of England and Scotland. I have preached it, in season and out of season. What is more to the point, I have tried to put it into practice in a small way and among my own neighbors.

Eight years of a persistent, sincere, self-sacrificing, wholly non-political attempt at making co-operation effective among a bunch of sixty to eighty New England farm families proved itself a big-money-saver to all participants—except the organizer. He came out at the small end of the horn. It is all over now, and I look back on the experiment with more amusement than irritation. But those eight years of attempted co-operation in a New England farm community drove me to the conviction that said community was most emphatically not ripe for it.

The idea was splendid; the organization was efficient; the monetary results were gratifying. But—to put an unpleasant truth bluntly, there 'wasn't good over half-a-dozen in the whole bunch who were willing to take trouble to do work themselves—except solely for their own sakes. They accepted the benefits accruing to themselves with some eagerness. But when it came to a question of the welfare of the whole, or the benefit of their fellow-members, that was a very different proposition. They simply couldn't comprehend the idea conveyed in the phrase "Each for all and all for each." They were invariably willing to have the others co-operate with them for their advantage. But not over half a dozen were willing to take trouble, to make sacrifice, even to put on themselves temporary self-restraint for the advantage of the others.

Now co-operation doubtless requires to be founded on sound business principles. But it also demands the practice of some qualities which are not always listed as "business assets," to wit, namely, conscience, mutual good will, high regard for others' interests, willingness to suffer temporary inconvenience for future benefit, etc., etc. Until any community is educated or trained into some sort of adherence to these more or less un-businesslike tendencies, practical co-operation will remain a delightful dream.

There never was and never will be a better, a more universal, a more effective rule for life set before either farmers or their protagonists than the simple Golden Rule enunciated almost two thousand years ago by Jesus of Nazareth. Obedience to that one plain, easily understandable rule would end instantly all the financial and economic and political and social and domestic troubles of the whole human race.

Why hasn't it done so?

When you answer that question, you'll also have answered the question why co-operation doesn't work, except in under special circumstances and among special groups.

Probably your answer will express or imply a rather harsh criticism of the disgusting hoggishness which is euphemistically called "human nature."

Well, there's just as much "human nature" among farmers and their wives as among other folk. Nobody but a confirmed jackass would pretend that farmers are any more saintly or angelic than blacksmiths or bankers. We've all tarred with the same stick. We may not be any worse than our fellowmen. We're certainly no better. A realization of the beautiful ideals involved in co-operation and the Golden Rule will come, to us as to others, only when we have attained in ourselves the condition which feels in both the irresistible compulsion of all powerful righteousness. The fault is not in these ideals. It rests in our inability to rise to them.

A second remedy which is said to have an increasing number of devotees in such western states as Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri, lies in the adoption of more diversified farming. A writer in The Chicago Tribune who has recently travelled extensively among the farmers of those states says they generally see the futility of governmental price-fixing and are coming to the strong opinion that "exclusive wheat raising itself is all wrong and nothing short of an agricultural vice." They are beginning to see the necessity of more diversified farming, of raising other things besides just wheat.

Again we shall have to admit that there is a vast deal of sense in this. Why on earth should intelligent farmers persist in raising wheat to the exclusion of other crops, when there's already so much wheat raised that the price has fallen below production costs? It's neither good farming nor good business nor good sense to keep on shovelling wheat into an already overflowing bin. Yet the assessors' reports for the state of Kansas, 1920, show that, of the 165,386 farms in the state, there wasn't a dairy cow on 54,153; not a beef animal on 74,000; not a pig or hog on 49,000; not a garden on 41,711; not a chicken or hen on 28,000. Doubtless the reports would have shown even more astounding one-sidedness if they had gone into details of other subsidiary farm products. But think of a confessedly agricultural state in which 35 per cent. of the farmers bought all their butter; 44 per cent. bought all their beef; 33 per cent. bought all their pork; 35 per cent. bought all their garden vegetables, and 28 per cent. bought all their eggs! Then reflect that, to buy these supplies, they had to rely on the income from a wheat crop which cost more to raise than they could sell it for! If this isn't trying to make bricks without straw, or clay either for that matter, then what is it?

Diversification of products? Why, of course. That's the very A B C of farming. The farmer's business is to raise what he can sell, i. e. what other people want to buy. Not what he wants to raise nor what he has been accustomed to raise nor what he may think his farm produces best.

What would be thought of a merchant who opened a fur store in the Fiji Islands where even fig-leaves are a burden in the tropical heat? Or of a manufacturer who should start an ice-making plant for the Esquimaux of Upernavik? The farmer shows no more wisdom in raising unwanted goods for his market than the merchant would in stocking his store with stuff no customer could be hired to take away.

All this is as undeniable as the point of a pike-staff when it's half-way through your abdomen.

But, when you come down to its practical application, just exactly what is Mr. Farmer going to diversify with? Pigs and chickens and vegetables for his own consumption, of course. But he wants to raise things to sell, doesn't he? And what is he going to raise, instead of his everlasting wheat, which will give him a profit on his outlay? Not of course, a profit comparable to that which building contractors make on their materials, nor that which $24 a day plasterers make on their labor. But a reasonable, decent, human profit? He certainly can't make it off beef or pork or butter or eggs or potatoes at present prices of those products. (I don't mean at prices such as you consumers pay dealers, but such as those dealers pay him.)

There are undeniably some minor farm products, such as broom-corn and mushrooms and brook trout and the like, for which there is a greater demand than the supply, and for which prices are high. But all the major crops farmers can grow are already low-priced—too low to justify any hope of profit. If there should be any considerable increase in the production of broom-corn and mushrooms and brook trout the prices of these, too, would go down like pigiron in the deep sea.

There is no doubt that co-operation will be beneficial, whenever and wherever it is practicable. There is no doubt that diversification of crops will be a help, so long as it isn't run into the ground.

But these are both treatments for symptoms, not for the root of the disease. They may alleviate. They may palliate. But they won't cure.

The only cure lies in a reformation of human nature itself. Such a cure has been at its hand for two thousand years. If it has steadily refused to take the prescription during all those centuries, I, for one, don't see much likelihood of its doing so in the next twenty minutes. We shall probably continue to flock to the manicurist for rouge-pots and powder-puffs to make us look well, instead of the physician for medicine to make us really well.

Under which circumstances, whom to blame if we continue sick?

THE FARMER.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

Total stock sales, 382,800.

Twenty industrials averaged 98.67, net gain .04. High 1923, 105.38; low, 96.21.

MARKET IRREGULAR, DULL.

New York, Aug. 9.—Price changes in today's stock market were irregular and inconclusive with trading unusually dull because of the holiday tomorrow.

Germany's determination to continue passive resistance in the Ruhr, as set forth in Chancellor Cuno's speech to the reichstag, which resulted in further weakness of the continental exchange rates, cast a shadow of gloom over the market at the opening. The decrease of 475,498 tons in the unfilled orders of the U. S. Steel Corporation, which was about 75,500 tons more than was expected, and the final meeting of the general chairmen of two railroad brotherhoods to consider wage increases also had a somewhat depressing influence on speculative sentiment.

Selling pressure was most effective against the Leatcch, Chemical, low priced oil and Motion Picture Company shares. New low records for the year were established by Central Leather, American Hide & Leather preferred, Allied Chemical, Famous Players preferred, Manhattan Electrical Supply, Burns Brothers, A and B, Transcontinental Oil, General Asphalt, Maracaibo, Invincible, St. Paul preferred and "Nickel Plate."

Two of the most domestic develpments of the day were the placing of American Locomotive no par common on a $6 annual basis and the establishment of a new high record of car loadings in American railroad history in the week ending July 28, when 1,041,044 cars were loaded with revenue freight. American Locomotive teucher 72 1-2 after the dividend announcement but dropped back a point later for a net gain of 3-4 on the day. Baldwin also crossed 3-4 higher at 113 1-2 after having crossed 113. U. S. Steel dropped to 96 3-4 on a flurry of selling after publication of the tonnage statement but snapped back later to 97 3-8 up 1-4.

Selling of Famous Players issues was predicated upon reports of high bank loans which were explained as due to the fact that this was the heavy production season and the quiet theater season, involving heavy expenses and reduced revenues. General Motors was the most active stock on the list, apparently in anticipation of an extra or increased dividend. But the directors, who met after the market closed, declared the regular disbursements.

French and Belgian francs established new lows for all time, the former at 5.55 cents and the latter at 4.22 cents. Demand sterling improved slightly, being quoted just under $4.56 3-4. German marks also showed slight improvement despite an increase of nearly twelve trillion marks in note circulation and a decrease of 20,000,000 marks in gold holdings.

Call money opened at 4 1-4 but softened to 4 1-2 before the close. The time money and commercial paper markets were again quiet with no change in rates.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Aug. 9.—Estimates that Kansas and Nebraska this season have no surplus wheat and have only raised enough for their own mill and seed requirements did a good deal today to lift wheat values here. The market closed firm, 5-8@3-4 to 1 1-8 dent net higher with September 99 1-2@1-4 to 99 1-4 cents and December 102 1-2 to 102 5-8. Corn finished at 3-8 to 5-8 cent gain. Oats 1-2@5-8 to 3-4@7/8 cent up, and provisions unchanged to 7 cents down.

At first, the wheat market had a downward tendency, the result of hedging sales and the fact that buying appeared to be of a scattered character. Later, however, it gave evident that offerings were passing into strong hands. At this juncture, reports from Kansas City indicated that domestic millers were actively purchasing choice hard winter wheat. Millers also were said to be good buyers of wheat on track in Chicago. The reason given, that Kansas and Nebraska were no longer to be counted as among the 1923 producing states, soon was followed by an upward swing in prices to a new high level for the week.

Continued bullish crop reports from the Canadian Northwest aided the ascent, according to current advices. Damage to Canadian wheat has been much heavier than was looked for, and serious further curtailment by frost seems likely. Some notice was taken also of reports that differences between United States vessel owners and the Canadian government might interfere with prompt handling of the Canadian wheat by way of the Great Lakes.

Corn and oats rose with wheat. Shipping demand both for corn and oats was well maintained.

Likelihood of liberal receipts of hogs here tomorrow, eased the provision market.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Aug. 9.—Irregular price changes took place in today's curb market with trading almost entirely of a professional nature.

Most of the active oil shares fluctuated within narrow limits but gains of 2 to 3 points were recorded by Ohio, South Pennsylvania and Ohio Oils. Standard Oil of Indiana closed nearly a point higher at 53 while Cities Service dropped back 1 1-2 on a small turnover. The Wyoming issues improved fractionally.

New Jersey Zinc sold two points higher on reports of improved trade conditions and a similar gain was recorded by Gillette Safety Razor. British American Tobacco issues were also active.

Weakness of the continental exchanges caused some heaviness in the new Swiss government 5s, which have ben traded in on a "when issued" basis.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Aug. 9.—High grade investment bonds held firm in dull trading to day and net changes among the more speculative issues were relatively small.

Active United States government bonds closed around yesterday's final levels. Foreign government bonds moved in small volume. Most of the French and Belgian issues moved upward.

Railroad moragges moved irregularly within narrow limits, losses of a point each by St. Paul 4s, of 1925, and Chicago & Alton 3 1-2s. Industrial liens were mixed. Virginia CVarplina Chemical 7 1-2s, with warrants, advanced 1 3-8, and Pacific Telephone & Telegraph refunding 5s, 1, while Marine 6s eased 1 1-2 and Pierce Arrow 8s slumped 1.

METAL MARKET.

New York, Aug. 9.—Copper easy; electrolytic, spot and nearby 14 1-4@14 3-8; futures 14 1-4@14 1-2. Tin steady; spot and futures 39.00. Iron steady; prices unchanged. Lead steady; spot 6.50@6.75. Zinc firm; East St. Louis spot and nearby delivery 6.15@6.30. Antimony, spot 7.75.

MONEY.

New York, Aug. 9.—Call money; high 4 3-4; low 4 1-2; ruling rate 4 3-4; closing bid 4 1-2; offered at 4 3-4; last loan 4 1-2; call loans against acceptances 4 1-4. Tone steady.

COTTON.

New York, Aug. 9.—Cotton — Spot quiet; middling 24.25.

Thought for the Day.

When some of us get what we want, we don't know what to do with it.

Opening for the "Dead Ones."

THE MIDGET VILLAGE

In his travels, Little Jack Rabbit soon came to Midgetville or "Tinytown" as some people call it.

Suddenly a clock began to strike thirteen and along came a little dwarf in a wagon. Unharnessing his horse, he slipped the bridle off and led him into a field to eat the fresh green grass. After that he invited the bunny boy to the village.

Dear me, the tallest church steeple reached no higher than Little Jack Rabbit's waist and the clock on the town hall wasn't as big as the watch dear Uncle Lucky had given him.

"This is no place for me," said the bunny boy, with a grin. "I'll have to sleep under a tree for there's no house large enough for me to squeeze into."

"About a mile from here is a poor laborer's cottage," answered the little dwarf. "He has a room to spare. Maybe he'll give you a night's lodging."

So off hopped the little bunny and when he reached the cottage, he tapped on the door.

"Can you give me a bed in which to rest my tired limbs?" asked the weary little rabbit.

"Come in," answered the laborer. "I have a straw cot to which you are welcome."

After supper, the little bunny boy went to bed in a little room at the head of the stairs, and when the town clock in Tinyville struck midnight, a little fairy flew into the window:

"Wake up, little bunny, the moon is so bright,
It hangs from the sky like a lantern all white,
To shine in the dell where the fairies will come
With wild trumpet flowers and buttercup drum,
Ho he! and ha ha! by the moon and the star,
You must come to the dance where the wood fairies are!

Rubbing his eyes, Little Jack Rabbit pulled on his shoes and hopping softly down the stairs so as not to waken the tired laborer, he followed the fairy to the dell.

Now the little bunny boy had never seen a fairy dance for it is always held at fifteen o'clock and nobody I ever knew is wide awake at fifteen o'clock.

Sitting down on a fallen tree, the little rabbit waited for the fairies to come to the dell. Some rode on moths and others on dragon flies and in the dark places tiny fireflies with their lanterns flitted to and fro.

By and by, the King of the Fairies stepped off his throne and came over to Little Jack Rabbit.

"Nearby in this wood lives a wicked ogre who has cast a charm over the queen's son. Now I have no charm which will set him free, for the ogre and I are great enemies and his enemies and his charms are as strong as mine. Have you a magic charm that will subdue this wicked ogre?"

"I have a flaming feather!" answered the bunny boy and in the next story you shall hear of a great deed that Little Jack Rabbit performed.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"I understand you have an efficiency expert over at the place where you work."

"Have is wrong; had is the word."

"What was the matter? Was he incompetent?"

"No, he was too darned competent. He discovered that the boss was wasting half our time telling us things that we knew better than he did."—Boston Transcript.

"Cheese, sir?" inquired the slapdow-muscled waiter.

"Certainly!" replied the diner. "Catch me a Limburger!"

The waiter made a grab at the sideboard and seized one in the nick of time.

"Now, catch me a Gorgonzola!" said the diner.

Grappling with it violently, the waiter brought it over.

"Now," said the diner, "let 'em race across the table to me and I'll take home the winner."—Savannah News.

"Yes, I was in Paris."

"Could you speak French?"

"You don't need it. At the station you hop into a taxi and the chauffeur drives you to the nearest bar."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Two negros were lying behind a packing case on the docks at Brest taking the labor out of the alleged labor battalion. Said one boastfully:

"Boy, Ah come fum a tough breed. My old man done cut his nail wif a ax an' brush his teeth wif a file."

"Huh, ain't so tough. Mah ole man am a plumber an' twice a week he done shave hisself wif a blow torch."—American Legion Weekly.

From an examination in a Bombay school:

Question—Give the names of the parents of Jonah.

Answer (Boy of Thirteen)—He has none. He was brought up by a whale.—Boston Transcript.

Mother (about to start a shopping tour)—When I come back, if I find you have finished playing ball, washed your face and hands, brushed your hair and had a nice rest before dinner, it will make me very happy.

The enlargement of the spinal cord which controlled the powerful hind legs of the stegosaurus, a gigantic armored lizard of prehistoric times, was twenty times as large as its brain.

The per capita consumption of sugar in the United States has been increasing since 1915, with the exception of 1917, and it is estimated that the 1923 consumption will slightly exceed 104 pounds for each person.

Begasse is the residue of the sugar cane after the cane has been crushed and the sugar-containing juice has been squeezed out of it. In a mill in Louisiana begasse is now treated with chemicles, pulped and then rolled into boards that, when dry, make a very acceptible substitute for lumber.

Now that aluminum has become available in any desired quantity, its use in electrical installations, especially for long distance conductors of electric power, is rapidly increasing. For equal conductivity only half that weight of aluminum is required that would be required if copper were used.

Hitherto all shops in Japan kept open seven days a week the year round, so that the employes have had only a few days off at New Year's and during the Feast of the Dead in summer. One of the leading shops in Osaka, now, however, has adopted the plan of a weekly day of rest and has set an example that other stores are likely to follow.

The Yana language of northern California represents a distinct linguistic stock and had formerly three dialects, one of which is now extinct. It possesses two forms of speech, one of which is employed by men speaking to men, while the other is used in all other cases. Practically the language has only nouns and verbs, the adjectives, adverbs, numerals, interrogative pronouns and conjunctions being formed from the verbs.

NEW AUTO PUMPER IS EXPECTED SOON

Word has been received from the manufacturers by Chief Howard L. Stanton of the Norwich Fire Department, that the new automobile pumper ordered by the fire commissioners for the Greeneville station, has been shipped and will be in Norwich by the first of September.

The pumper was ordered by the fire commissioners and Mayor Milo R. Waters following the city meeting which authorized the payment of a new pumper from the proceeds of the sale of the old Main street fire station.

With the addition of the new pumper the Greeneville section will be protected by one of the latest models of fire fighting apparatus manufactured in this country.

Says Report Was Exaggerated.

With regard to the near fire at the West Side Silk mill early Tuesday morning when it was reported that the watchman at the mill fell on the stairs while hurrying to a telephone to notify the fire department of the Max Gordon storehouse fire the watchman said Thursday night that the report was somewhat exaggerated. He said that while he fell the lantern he was carrying did not set fire to the mill.

MYSTIC PROUD OF EXHIBIT OF PICTURES BY CHAS. H. DAVIS, N. A.

The opportunity of a lifetime—to see gathered together a collection of the paintings of one of the greatest of American artists, Charles H. Davis, N. A., is attracting visitors daily to the Broadway school, Mystic. As modest as he is famous, Mr. Davis only consents to any public showing of his work when it is for some special project outside of any interest of his own; and he added this exhibit to the annual exhibition of the Mystic Art Association through pure disinterestedness. The great public benefits accordingly.

Proud of its artists' colony, the old and aristocratic village of Mystic has made the current exhibit its own, and daily since the 7th of August groups of the leading women of the village have devoted their effort to making the exhibition a success, serving tea hospitably in an attractively decorated room of the building. Miss Edna Wheeler has arranged the strikingly harmonious adornment of decorative evergreen trees, smaller trees in pots, vases of charming summer flowers and the like. Carrying out the primary idea, Mr. Davis has loaned a number of rare Japanese prints to adorn the walls.

A good number of paintings from the original exhibit of the Art Association, Aug. 7-18, remain on the wall on the main floor and among them is a group of particular Norwich interest, the work of G. Albert Thompson, who came from New Haven to put in a number of valuable years as director of Norwich Art school. Falling in love with the beauties of Mystic, Mr. Thompson went from Norwich to join the permanent colony of artists located there and has since done exceedingly successful work, both on canvas and as instructor of art in the schools of the town of Groton.

He has six pictures hung in the exhibit—Spring, Mason's Island, Rose Time, October Morning, December, A Calm Morning and an enticing canvas of a grandmother's garden in the door-yard of a typical Mystic colonial house, which he entitles "Hollyhocks." Mr. Thompson has lost none of his cunning or skill, since several of his paintings were purchased—as typical North American pictures—by the government of Ecuador, to be hung in the national museum of art.

The entire upper floor of the school building is given over to the twenty-nine paintings by Mr. Davis. But before mounting to that room, most visitors find much to admire in the delicate coloring and graceful pose of the figures in the three small paintings by his wife, Frances Darby Davis, who is a member of a Philadelphia family prominent socially and in art. They are An Idly, Simonetta and Youth.

Reference has already been made to the subjects of Mr. Davis's paintings as shown at this time. The importance of the exhibit is indicated by the fact that no less an art authority than R. W. Macbeth, the New York critic and connoisseur, comes to Mystic and wrote the sympathetic foreward for the catalog. Mr. Macbeth speaks admiringly and fondly of Mr. Davis as a "painter of the Connecticut landscape as it has never before been painted; but he is more than that—he is an interpreter of Nature. His landscape forms are used as an expression of her moods. He paints, not a tree or a hillside in Spring, but the spirit of Spring itself. He gives us Nature and the spirit of Nature at the same time; and while one cannot exist without the other, we find the combination all too rarely. And we find it most often in the best of the work of the past that has survived."

Although he purchased his unpretentious yet cosy riverside home at Mystic by cable years ago, while abroad, when some artist friend had notified him that the property was in the market and suggested that it would doubtless prove exactly to his liking, Mr. Davis comes and goes so modestly that very few except his intimate friends know much about him personally except that he is very, very famous in the art world and that his pictures always bring an amazing price.

He was born in Amesbury, Mass., Jan. 7, 1856, and was a pupil of Otto Grundmann and Boston Museum School; also of Boulanger and Lefebvre, Paris. He is a member of the National Academy of Design, New York.

Mr. Davis is represented by paintings in the Pennsylvania Academy, Philadelphia; Corcoran Gallery, Washington, D. C.; Metropolitan Museum, New York; Art Institute of Chicago; Wadsworth Athenaeum, Hartford; Art Gallery, Omaha; Boston Art Museum; Syracuse Museum; Cincinnati Museum; City Art Museum, St. Louis; Institute of Arts, Minneapolis, Minn.; Worcester Museum; Carnegie Institute, Pittsburgh; Hackley Gallery, Muskegon, Mich.; Butler Art Institute, Youngstown, Ohio; Bruce Museum, Greenwich, Conn.

His honors include: Honorable Mention, Salon, Paris, 1937; Silver Medal, Exposition Universelle, Paris, 1889; Palmer Prize Art Institute of Chicago, 1890; Medal, Columbian Exposition, Chicago, 1895; Grand Gold Medal, Atlanta Exposition, 1895; Gold Medal, American Art Association, New York, 1896; Potter Palmer Prize, Art Institute of Chicago, 1894; Bronze Medal, Exposition Universelle, Paris, 1900; Lippincott Prize, Pennsylvania Academy, 1901; Silver Medal, Pan-American Exposition, 1901; Silver Medal, Universal Exposition, St. Louis, 1904; Silver Medal, International Exposition, 1910; Gold Medal, Panama-Pacific Exposition, 1915; Second W. A. Clark Prize and Corcoran Silver Medal, Corcoran Gallery, Washington, 1920; Saltus Medal, National Academy of Design, 1921.

During the social hour Thursday afternoon, at the exhibit, tea was served by the following committee:

Mrs. A. B. Cole, chairman; Mrs. William Brand; Mrs. John Crandall; Mrs. William Beckwith, Mrs. Roland Brown and Mrs. Harley Markae.

Throughout the exhibit Miss Anna Ketchum has greatly assisted the association by taking charge of the ticket and catalog desk in the entrance hall of the building.

FIGURES FROM NORWICH BUREAU ARE INDEFINITE

A slacking up of demand for help was indicated by the figures of the July report of the bureau of labor of the operation of the five free employment bureaus issued Thursday. As for several months the figures from the Norwich bureau are indefinite, the number of application for employment, held and situations secured being the same—195, with the same division between males of 1.9 and and females 16.

In the other bureaus of figures were as follows:

Situations secured were: Hartford 594; New Haven 835; Bridgeport 769; Waterbury 639.

Including Norwich figures the percentage of applicants for employment who were supplied with situations was 78.9 as compared with 87.5 per cent. in June, while the percentage of help furnished was 85.3 as against 89 per cent. in June.

In the City Court.

In the city court Thursday morning one local man charged with intoxication did not have money to pay his fine and went to jail, while a more fortunate brother in drink paid his and went free. A breach of the peace case went over for six months.

M. Ludiga of 180 West Main street, charged with violation of the liquor laws, paid a fine and costs amounting to $244.62.

Will Occupy Pulpit Sunday.

Rev. P. C. Wright will be the preacher at the Central Baptist church again next Sunday, both morning and evening.

HOBART AVENUE GIRLS GIVE CHARMING PLAY

At the Rockwell street entrance to Mohegan park Thursday evening the girls' department of Hobart avenue playgrounds under the direction of instructor Katherine Farrell presented Grandpa Maypole. Over 300 people witnessed the performance which was the second event in the dramatic program of the local playground commission.

At 7.15 Instructor Farrell announced to the large and enthusiastic audience the synopsis of the play which was the story of the rejuvenation of old Grandpa Maypole by the children of today.

Miss Catherine McVeigh in the title role of Grandpa Maypole, costumed appropriately for the role, interpreted her lines very well. Miss Frances Henault as the Fairy Queen made a pleasing picture and captivated the audience by her charming manner, while little Miss Regina Fenton as Judith showed real dramatic talent by her clear voice and natural gestures.

Mr. Fitzgerald, chairman of the recreation commission was among those present and at the close of the performance congratulated Instructor Farrell on the success she had achieved.

The cast was as follows:

Grandpa Maypole	Catherine McVeigh
Queen of Mays	Frances Henault
May June	Cora Larivierre
Maybelle	Blanche Lacombe
Judith	Regina Fenton
April May	Hannah Ogulnick
Maybe May	Dora Letendre

Colonial Lassies—Costi Constandi, Marion Constandi, May and Madeline Donnelly, Julie and Annie John, Semo Alex, Anna and Ruth Bundy, Sophie Alex, Alice Cote, Rita and Alice Larivierre.

Miss Edna Foote was tendered a birthday party Tuesday evening at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph G. Foote, on Mount Pleasant street. Musical numbers were given by Edward Capron and George Thomas, after which refreshments were served by Mrs. Foote, assisted by Mrs. William Donohue. A very enjoyable evening was spent by all.

CONDUCTED RACES AT GREENEVILLE PLAY CENTER

Wednesday afternoon, Instructor May Kelley conducted races at the Greeneville playground. Prizes were awarded to the winners. The successful contestants in the various races were:

Three-legger race—won by Beatrice Clang and Ida Gromko; obstacle race—won by Mary Zachar, Emily St. Lawrence and Alvia Midzwicki.

Bishop Shahan Has Audience With Pope

There is Norwich interest in the cabled message from Rome Thursday that Pope Pius received in private audience Wednesday, the Right Rev. Thomas J. Shahan, rector of the Catholic University of America at Washington, and expressed himself as greatly pleased with the published reports showing the progress the university has made in the last ten years.

His Holiness was gratified particularly by the exhibit of work accomplished on the national shrine of the Immaculate Conception, declaring that were it possible he would rejoice in personally consecrating this great church in honor of the Mother of God. Failing in this, he bestowed upon Bishop Shahan a considerable gift of money for the national shrine, which had just been sent to him, and he blessed all the faithful who have helped in the construction of the great edifice.

Pope Pius manifested great interest in the new school canon law and in the new Bashelin college for the training of youths in sacred oratory.

The Pontiff expressed gratitude to the editors of the Catholic Encyclopedia for the copy of the Vatican edition which he has just received for his private library, and he was deeply interested in plans being made for the enlargement of the original work.

STATE ZIONISTS TO MEET IN WATERBURY

At a conference of the state Zionist executives held in Hartford, which was addressed by Dr. Leo J. Frachtenberg, field secretary of New York, it was decided to hold the 10th annual convention of the state Zionist body in Waterbury on Sunday, Sept. 16th.

The national officers of the American organization will address this convention which will hold three sessions. In conjunction with this convention, there will also be held a state conference of Keren Hayesod (Palestine Foundation Fund) committees of twenty communities in Connecticut. The new director for the 1923-1924 campaign will be introduced to the convention on this occasion.

LOCAL DOCTORS HAVE OUTING AT SAYBROOK

The members of the Norwich Medical association held an enjoyable outing Thursday at Saybrook, making the trip by automobile. Those who made the trip were Dr. Lester E. Walker, Dr. J. H. Allen, Dr. W. T. Brown, Dr. C. C. Glidersleeve, Dr. George Thompson, Dr. Clarence Thompson, Dr. David Sussler, Dr. W. K. Tingley, Dr. F. J. Harper, Dr. W. T. Brown, Dr. Louis Cassidy, Dr. Paul F. Gadle and Dr. J. J. Donohue.

Physicians from Putnam, Jewett City, New London and Montville, were also present.

SURPRISE SHOWER FOR MISS ANNA SOLOMON

Miss Anna Solomon of 30 Summit street was given a delightful surprise Thursday evening when she was called the High Street synagogue, supposedly to attend a service, and found upon her arrival that over 100 friends had gathered to tender her a miscellaneous shower in honor of her approaching marriage to Samuel W. Jennes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Moses Jennes of Summit street, which is to take place early in September.

When Miss Solomon entered the hall all light swere out, and suddenly there was a deafening dim, the noise of over a hundred paper bags being burst, and the room was flooded with light, disclosing the real purpose of her summons.

Miss Solomon and Mr. Jennes, who had also been requested to attend, were escorted to the center of the room and surrounded by guests opened the gifts, which were piled high on the floor, including silver sets, cut glass, linen, gifts of gold, kitchen utensils and household furniture.

After the gifts had been opened refreshments of ice cream, cake, cookies, candy, soda water and fruits were served by the committee in charge, comprising Miss Goldie Segal, president of the Y. W. H. A. and Miss Dorothy Jennes, sister of the prospective groom.

During the evening there were two surprises, the first being the presentation of a silver loving cup, the gift of the Y. W. H. A., bearing the inscription, Norwich Y. W. H. A., September 2, 1923, the second being a mock marriage taken part in by the following: Miss Evelyn Blinderman as groom, Miss Bessie Yalen as the rabbi and Miss Marcia Goldblatt as the bride.

Music was furnished on the Victrola and dancing and games were enjoyed, all ending when three cheers were given the bride-to-be.

Among the guests from out of town was Mrs. Benjamin Weingrow of Hartford, an aunt of Mr. Jennes.

TAFTVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. David Lambert observed their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary Wednesday, a mass being celebrated at Sacred Heart church. A few friends were entertained at dinner in the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Lambert received many gifts of silver, and the wishes of their host of friends for continued happiness in their married life Mr. and Mrs. Lambert were married twenty-five years ago at Sacred Heart church by Rev. Father Sinnott, and have lived most of their life in Taftville. They have four children, the Misses Eva and Ida Lambert and Eugene, and Thomas Lambert, one of whom live at home. Mr. Lambert is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lambert of North B street, and is very popular locally, being president of the St. Louis society, one of the large fraternal French benefit organizations. He also is an enthusiastic member of St. Jean Baptiste society, and of Court Wequonnoc, No. 58, Foresters of America. His record in obtaining new members for the Foresters stands unequalled in the United States. Mrs. Lambert was before her marriage, Miss Hermine Lambert of Taftville. Her mother at present resides in Canada. One of the remarkable features of this family is that the grandfather of Mr. Lambert is still living. He is Edward Peltier of Natick, R. I., who not only saw his daughter celebrate her fiftieth wedding anniversary and his grandson his twenty-fifth, but with his wife observed his own sixtieth wedding anniversary. Mrs. Peltier died a few years ago, but Mr. Peltier is still hale and healthy in his 91st year.

John P. Plante of Norwich avenue has returned from a four weeks' stay at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Vergason of North Stonington.

Miss Ethel Graham who has been a patient at the Backus hospital has returned to her home in Lisbon.

Jerry Peltier, U. S. N., who has been stationed on the Pacific coast has returned to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Octave Peltier of North A street.

Nelson Boileau of Woonsocket, R. I., is the guest of his parents, Mr and Mrs. Desire Boileau of Providence street.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Archambeault of Norwich avenue are having their residence painted.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dugas who are spending a few weeks at Lord's Point spent a short time this week in town.

Sheriff George Stanton of Norwich was a business caller in the village Thursday.

Troop 4, Boy Scouts met Monday evening in their rooms in the Sacred Heart School building. The scouts are brushing up on their drum corps practice, as they will take part in the big Taftville Field Day celebration on September 8th.

Henry Chenette, Aime Pepin and Omar Rondeau are at Oakland Beach, R. I., for the coming week.

Among the out-of-town people in town for the Lippi-Benoit wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Cofsky and Paul Beadoin of Worcester, Mass.

Early in the spring a pair of strange birds which were seen about town were believed by local naturalists to be European ring doves, probably escaped from a cage. On Sunday one of these birds was sighted on the fence along the Occum road. It appeared sick and did not flu until observers were quite close to it.

MARION ENTOMBS THE BODY OF ITS MOST HONORED SON WITHOUT OSTENTATION

Throughout the United States, on Ships at Sea, and in Foreign Lands, Memorial Services Were Held For Our Late President—New York Experienced a Stillness Unparalleled in Its History as a Metropolis—Millions Were in Attendance as the Myriad of Churches Echoed the Sad Ceremonies at Marion—Chimes of Old Trinity Rang Out With the Strains of Harding's Favorite Hymn, "Lead, Kindly Light".

Marion, O., Aug. 10.—(By The A. P.)—Harding, of Ohio, is home tonight; sleeping time away near the mother at whose knee his first childish dream of greatness was prattled.

Before his tomb, as the chiming verses of the choirs sang softly among the trees, "Nearer, My God, to Thee," another tender, brave woman stood with aching heart, her veiled face lifted to the sky. A moment later she stepped a meagre moment into the dim vault where the dead husband's journey of life had ended. Then she turned away, brave to the last, to face the lonely years ahead. She waited not to see the iron gates close softly upon her dead.

Harding is home forever from life's high places, where the restless, heady winds of ambition blow; home beneath Ohio soil, far above him the vaulted roof is mantled with grass grown sod; home among the friends and neighbors of his youth, the kindly people of a kindly town. Time is ended for him, and the shouting and clamour that surrounds the great is done.

It was a long road to that silent vault about which there mused tonight a guard of the citizen soldiery of his own state. There was endless ceremony of the nation's and the people's making to mark the way. But it ended simply, calmly and as the dead would have had it end.

Funeral Service Simple.

Aside from the multitude that walled the long way from his father's home to the vault and those others close packed to make a living setting for the funeral rites, there was not much to mark it as the burial of one who had held highest power in his grasp. There were the tanned men of his guard from the later services of the nation, the admirals and the generals who formed his honor escort, the friend and comrade who now is president in his stead, the colleagues of his brief-stricken cabinet. That was all, except at the last, the distant gun-fire as he came to his tomb and the soft tones of a bugle sounding a soldier requiem as the gates were closed.

Otherwise the funeral service was that of a simple and much loved citizen of Ohio. For all Ohio seemed to have come today to bid him farewell. Throngs whose number will never be known passed beside his casket and looked their last upon the dead face before the time for the last journey came.

From his father's house he went out again carried by the steadfast men who have stood constantly to guard a dead commander. No solemn music of bands or military pageant marked his going save the great flax of the president drooping in mourning and carried before him to the gates of the tomb as he went.

The Cortege.

In cars behind the simple hearse that carried now this honored leader came President Coolidge and the cabinet and the friends and close kin. There, too, came Chief Justice Taft, and General Pershing. Last to leave the memoried house was Mrs. Harding in black and with veil drawn close, and just ahead of her walked the old father, his face plainly showing the agony of his grief. Through the silent, face-walled street the cortege passed and around the corner to the quiet cemetery. As it came towards the gates the guns spoke afar in honor.

The vault stands ivy-wrapped and set back into the gentle hill with little space before it. So the funeral train was halted at a distance and the casket lifted down to be carried to a resting place before the open entrance of the tomb. Already a group of senators, who knew this dead president under the capitol dome before he passed to the White House were already gathered in waiting, in line across the roadway that runs before the entrance. Before them stood the comrades of camping days, Ford, Edison and Firestone.

The cabinet family came to stand closer, at the foot of the casket with their new chief standing sorrowfully among them. The admirals in gleaming white lined the way to the left, the little party of intimates and friends who made the Alaska journey that death broke so suddenly.

Then came Dr. Harding with the snows of his eighty years showing on his bared head, and then the brave widow walking to her place at the right of the casket with Secretary Christian and the members of the grief-bowed family.

Within the shadow of the doorway of the vault, the churchmen took their place and from the shrubbery that screened them the choir sang "Lead Kindly Light."

Last Service For Warren Harding.

The last service for Warren Harding had begun.

Prayers followed, spoken by an old friend of the dead president, the Scriptural passages that hearten men in sorrow were read and again the choir sang. The last hymn of this simple, reverent service was "Nearer, My God, to Thee," and as the softly blending voices came to the last chords, Mrs. Harding slowly raised her veiled face and stood as though in prayer to Him above that the dead husband who in a moment would be shut away from her forever might know that peace beyond understanding which God's mercy holds out to humanity at the last.

The voices died away and with lifted hand, Bishop Anderson of the Methodist Episcopal church pronounced the benediction:

"Now unto Him that is able to keep us from falling, and to present us faultless before the presence of His glory, with exceeding joy, to the only wise God, our Saviour, be glory and majesty, dominion and power, both now, and forever more, amen."

The funeral party and the hundreds who ringed them about stood motionless and silent a momen. Then the soldiers and sailors and marines who have kept honor watch all the way from San Francisco and who have carried this casket, stepped forward, facing the tomb, they lifted it gently and slowly bore it through the shadowy doorway, and at that moment the nation stood silent in sorrow.

Body Placed in Crypt.

Back to the dim depth of the crypt of stone and earth the bearers went with their burden, then turned to file out again and stand stiffly at attention in double line forming a corridor of honor.

Mrs. Harding raised her veil slightly and swept the moisture from her brow and lips. It was still and hot where the light breeze was shut off by the crowding, sorrowful people about her, but it did not seem that even now it was tears she wiped away.

As the bearers came out, she leaned to whisper to Secretary Christian. Then she stepped forward on his arm to pass just within the ivy-grown doorway beyond which lay the flag-draped casket, hardly visible in the dim vault. She halted but a moment in this final farewell, then turned to walk slowly down the roadway to the waiting motorcar that rolled her swiftly away.

After she had gone, President Coolidge with Mrs. Coolidge stepped to her place within the doorway, they too standing but a moment. As they turned to pass out the great iron barrier was swung softly shut and Warren Harding was at home forever in the town he loved.

Closing Scene.

Down beyond where a green lawn stretched under the trees, the khaki tents of the guardsmen gleamed. As the sorrowing company before the vault moved away to the waiting cars, the guardsmen again took their places before the vault, flaming with the beauty of flowers that banked it about. And the hundreds who had stood to watch the simple ceremony that committed a simple American to the keeping of God, drifted slowly away to leave him alone when dark fell for the sleep that will never end.

How many were in the cemetery will never be known. They numbered in the thousands. Only a faint sound as of a distant echo, now and anon, could be gathered of the funeral service by those holding the most distant position from the tomb. Detachments of infantry kept the surging throng back from sacred plot in front of the tomb where Mrs. Harding made the final surrender of her life's helpmate and the nation surrendered her leader.

An Orderly Crowd.

But through it all it was a most orderly crowd. Whether in the downtown business sections, in the vicinity of Harding home, the lanes of the cemetery or elsewhere, it was a crowd of mourning. Soldiers were needed badly, but only to keep the line straight and to direct the throng along routes laid out for them. Boy Scouts locked their hands and aided the soldiers in keeping the crowd back on the sidewalk opposite the Harding home when the coffin was borne tenderly to the waiting hearse.

Distant outposts of soldiers were withdrawn soon after the funeral and from the business section as speedily as possible. By morning it was expected that practically all soldiers would be gone or leaving.

Special trains bearing the nation's mourners back to their homes began to pull out within a few hours after the funeral and long streams of automobiles literally crowded the highways in all directions on the homeward journey. Never was such heavy automobile traffic carried over the roads of the central west, as that which came and went from Marion yesterday and today.

OFFERS TO ERECT A SUITABLE MAUSOLEUM

Marion, Aug. 10.—(By the A. P.)—Granite to erect a suitable mausoleum for the body of the late President Harding was offered tonight free to the city of Marion by Guy M. Walker of New York City. The only cost to the city will be that of getting the marble out.

Mr. Walker made his offer in a telegram to E. B. Durfee, owner of Indian Mound, lying just east of the Marion cemetery where Mr. Harding's body is entombed, and which has been suggested as a suitable site for the erection of a proper memorial for the late chief executive.

The granite used in the erection of the McKinley memorial at Canton, Ohio, and the Perry memorial at Put In Bay, Ohio, was obtained from the same quarry, Mr. Walker said.

TRIBUTES TO HARDING IN FOREIGN LANDS

Montevideo, Aug. 10.—The Uruguayan government and people joined with the American colony today to pay tribute and homage to President Harding. Guns at Montevideo forts boomed five times every fifteen minutes from midday to sunset.

A memorial service was held and American business houses closed their doors for the day and everywhere flags flown at half mast.

Lima, Peru, Aug. 10.—(By the A. P.)—Today was observed as a national day of mourning. Business was entirely suspended. Memorial services for President Harding were held at the American embassy.

CONVICTS WERE MOVED BY SERVICE AT SING SING

Ossining, N. Y., Aug. 10.—Tears welled into the eyes of many soul-softened Sing Sing inmates who crowded into the prison chapel today to participate in memorial services for the late President Harding.

The Rev. Father William E. Cashin eulogized the life and accomplishments of the departed one, the prison band mournfully played a funeral dirge, and the convicts, gathered to pay their need of tribute to the nation's fallen chieftain, chorused if not in perfect harmony, in sincere devotion the hymns that Mr. Harding loved best.

All work, athletics and amusements which are part of the prison routine, were suspended during the day.

THREE DRY AGENTS SLAIN IN MOUNTAINS OF KENTUCKY

Gayheart says the men were trapped in a small valley by the moonshiners and surrounded in this, the most remote and inaccessible section of the mountains of Breathitt county, and widely known as a haven of moonshiners and fugitives.

The prohibition band was practically at the mercy of the moonshiners, Gayheart said, who were in the rear and on all sides of the mountains and who kept up a constant fire until early this morning.

During the battle in which Gayheart lost track of all the remaining force with him and at which time the moonshiners were attacked from the rear by a sheriff's posse, the wounded man took advantage of the opportunity to escape. He expressed little doubt that any of the prohibition officers were left alive. Gayheart was taken to a hospital in Hazard.

SHOT DEAD ON STEPS OF SYNAGOGUE IN NEW YORK.

New York, Aug. 10.—While 200 Jewish worshippers were praying in the Rutgers street synagogue for the repose of the soul of the late President Harding, two gunmen drove up in a taxi, opened fire at Louis Schwartzman, who was sitting on the steps, and sped away as he dropped dead. The murder was witnessed by the victim's mother and three sisters, who were at an upper window.

Schwartzman's sweetheart, Miss Edna Churgin, was seated beside him on the steps when the gunmen drove up. As they fired she jumped up, and running across the sidewalk tried to detain them, but they pushed her aside, and levelling their revolvers at members of the congregation, who rushed from the synagogue, held them at bay while they made their escape.

Three shots were fired, two of them going wild, and the last one hit Schwartzman in the left breast and entered the heart, killing him instantly.

Police, who have a description of the murderers and the license number of the taxi, said they believed the crime had been committed by a former admirer of Miss Churgin, for whom a search has been started.

SWIMMER WITHOUT FUNDS TAKES HIS OWN LIFE

New York, Aug. 10.—Despondent because of failure to raise funds to defray expenses of a proposed trip to England and attempt to swim the English channel, Herman Hunt, of New Haven, Conn., a New York Central railroad brakeman, shot and seriously wounded himself today in the home of Dorothy Ashford, a friend. He was taken to the knickerbocker hospital.

In his pockets Hunt carried newspaper clippings telling of some of his aquatic achievements and of an effort being made by some of his friends to raise funds for his trip abroad.

DEATH IN NEWPORT OF RAPHAEL PUMPELLY

Newport, R. I., Aug. 10.—Raphael Pumpelly, widely known author and geologist, died at his home here today in his 86th year. He had been in failing health for some time. With him when he died were his daughter, Mrs. Smith, wife of Professor Henry Lloyd Smith of Harvard, and his son Raphael, Jr. A second daughter, Mrs. Cabot, is in Europe.

Dr. Pumpelly was born in Owego, N. Y., in 1837. He studied science and mining engineering in Paris and at Friberg, Saxony, later taking his doctor's degree at Princeton. He was professor of mining at Harvard from 1866 to 1873.

PROCLAMATION OF WARNING BY PRESIDENT OF GERMANY

Berlin, Aug. 10.—(By the A. P.)—A proclamation issued by President Ebert this evening forbids the circulation of phamphlets demanding the overthrow of the constitutional government or excitement to acts of violence or acts that are likely to endanger public order.

The penalty mentioned in the proclamation for the violation of the decree is three months imprisonment and a fine not exceeding 500,000,000 marks.

DEMONSTRATION AGAINST THE SCARCITY OF FOOD

Crefeld, Germany, Aug. 10.—(By the A. P.)—German police today fired on a crowd of several thousand who were staging a demonstration against the scarcity of food and the high cost of living, killing one and wounding ten.

COLLISION OF AUTOS CAUSED BY BUMBLE BEE

Taunton, Mass., Aug. 10.—A bumble bee caused a head-on collision of two automobiles here today. It stung Henry St. Yres, of Fall River, causing him to lose control of his car which crashed into a machine driven by Luigi Vanantzi of Mansfield. Both men were slightly injured.

Crisis Imminent in German Government

United Socialists to Support "No Confidence" in Chancellor Cuno and His Ministry.

Berlin, Aug. 10.—(By the A. P.)—The early retirement of Chancellor Cuno and his ministry seems foreshadowed in consequence of the decision of the United Socialists to support the "no confidence" motion introduced by the communists, which will come up for a vote in the Reichstag on Monday.

DISCREPANCY BETWEEN PRICES AND WAGES

Berlin, Aug. 10.—(By the A. P.)—The strike movement, which is bringing about a tremendous discrepancy between increasing food prices and the wages of workmen, threatens to become exceedingly serious. However, the strike at the state printing works, ended by agreement today and the presses again are turning out billions of paper marks.

The strike, which tied up the Reichsbank, was in violation of the decision of the ministry of labor which awarded a wage of approximately 6,500,000 paper marks weekly to the men who demanded 20 per cent.

Nearly all the Hamburg shipyards are closed because the managers have been unable to accede to the workers' demands for immediate increase in wages. Among the workers generally there is no disposition to take recourse to the strikes unless wages are substantially increased. Even in the big factories, where the strikes have not occurred there is a disposition to adopt the tactics of "cacanny," or passive resistance.

The average wage of the workers is between ten and fifteen gold marks monthly, but butter, for example, costs one million paper marks per pound.

Although the United Socialists originally concluded that they would abstain from voting when the issue came up, the internal situation now is fast drifting to a point where the socialists face the necessity of saving their political prestige with the workers in order to prevent the workers from deserting to the communists.

The socialist leaders tonight are conferring with Chancellor Cuno in an effort to induce him to resign. In the event he acquiesces, Dr. Gustav Stresemann, leader of the German peoples party, would be asked by President Ebert to reconstruct the government of the basis of a big coalition, which would include the United Socialists.

The panicky feeling which has marked Germany's internal situation during the past few days and which is being converted into political capital by the communists, late tonight seized the Reichstag, where symptoms of a Cuno crisis developed because of the decision of the socialists to retire from their position of "benevolent neutrality" toward the present non-partisan, or businessmen's cabinet.

Despite the new tax and financial program promised by Chancellor Cuno, the United Socialist leaders on the party's moderate wing have been unable to stand off their radical comrades who are clamoring for the chancellor's retirement. The communists craftily turned the party disunion to their purpose by introducing the "no confidence" motion in the Reichstag late this afternoon. This was so worded that the socialists either had to accept it in view of its moderate phrasing, or go before their following and having given the Bourgeois government their approval.

The motion simply stated that the chancellor's policies do not represent the Reichstag's views.

The parliamentary storm came unexpectedly tonight while the House was still voting the government's stabilis. The United Socialists have now alienated themselves to such an extent from the Cuno cabinet's programme that the ministry's retirement appears inevitable.

PASSIVE RESISTANCE AGAINST GERMAN GOVT

Berlin, Aug. 10.—The workmen in the Vulkan yards at Stettin have adopted passive resistance and the workers at the big chemical factory have struck. At Leunig work has ceased in virtually all the factories, the workers demanding pre-war wages on a gold basis.

NEW HOLLY INN BURNED; 400 GUESTS ESCAPED

Christmas Cove, Me., Aug. 10.—The new Holly Inn, a four-story wooden structure was destroyed by fire today. The 400 guests escaped without injury. The loss was estimated at $150,000.

The Holly Inn, the predecessor of the New Holly, was destroyed by fire 18 years ago.

MOURNING FOR WARREN G. HARDING UNPARALELLED IN WORLD'S HISTORY

BRIEF TELEGRAMS

David Lloyd George, former premier of Great Britain, will sail from Liverpool, Toronto, on October 3.

City officials in Lima, Ohio, estimate that automobiles en route to the Harding funeral stretched out to a distance of eighty miles from Marion.

Callers on President Coolidge gained the impression he was determined to carry out the prohibition enforcement policies of the Harding administration.

A red squirrel—one of the kind known to every tourist who has visited the state reservation at Niagara Falls, N. Y., and saved itself from going over to the cataract to death.

Christopher Reilly, a mechanic, was held in $200 bail at Mount Vernon, N. Y., charged with disorderly conduct, on complaint of his employer, who stated he had scoffed at a request to suspend work in observance of the funeral of President Harding, in Marion.

The choice of William Randolph Hearst for the presidential nomination in 1924 is Senator James A. Reed of Missouri for the democratic ticket and Senator Hiram Johnson of California for the republican, the publisher is quoted as saying in a letter to the Jewish Tribune.

A Chamonix, France, dispatch says: Four persons, two of them Alpine guides, who were ascending the Giant's Needle were seen falling into space by other guides.

Louis Marino, 2 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfredo Marino, of Torrington, Conn., was drowned in a spring near the home yesterday. The child was playing when he fell into the water which was two feet deep.

Fearful that the giggling of a three-year old boy would endanger them, two armed holdup men in New York gagged the child after trussing up Charles Goodwin, a jeweler, father of the youngster, in his store. The robbers escaped with $3,000 in jewelry.

Unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation on July 31, made public today, totaled 5,910,763 tons, a decrease of 475,498 under those at the end of the preceding month, and the smallest since July 31 of last year when the total was 5,776,161 tons.

The ancient Jugo-Slav port of Dubrovnik, (Ragusa), from which came the seamen who sailed the Isabella to America in 1492, under Columbus, is to be rebuilt, and soon ships will again be sailing between that port and the United States.

Railroad earnings during June amounted to $87,742,009 as estimated today by the American Railway Association and represented an annual return rate of 5.47 per cent of the theoretical value of the property investment in transportation.

Conductor R. E. Smith, of the train that brought President Harding's body to Marion is a son of W. H. Smith, who conducted the funeral train which brought the body of President McKinley to Canton, Ohio, from Pittsburgh for burial in 1901.

MADDOCK AND WIFE HELD FOR FORGERY

New York, Aug. 10.—Harold Maddock and his wife, Viola, of Roxbury, Conn., were held without bail by magistrate Sweetser today pending a hearing on August 23 on a charge of forgery in connection with which they were arrested here last Monday. Adjournment was requested by their counsel on the ground that he had insufficient time to acquaint himself with the case.

A county prosecutor, appearing on behalf of the city of Litchfield, Conn., was present today to question the couple in connection with the murder of a taxi driver near Litchfield on July 28.

TO HAVE A NEW FACTORY AT WETHERSFIELD PRISON

Hartford, Aug. 10.—Work will soon start on a new factory building at the state prison at Wethersfield, in which, after its completion an experiment will be undertaken to determine what work the mentally defective prisoners are capable of doing.

The new factory building will be two stories high and of brick construction. The last general assembly voted an appropriation for the work, which will be done by prison labor under the direction of the architects.

Only Distant Gunfire and the Soft Tones of Bugles, Sounding a Soldier Requiem, Were Heard as the Gates of the Crypt Were Closed on the Body of Warren Gamaliel Harding—Other Than Distinguished Attendants, the Funeral Service Was That of a Simple and Much Loved Citizen—Mrs. Harding Maintained Her Quiet Demeanor, Her Grief Seemingly Too Deep to Share With Others.

New York, Aug. 10.—Hushed with a reverent stillness unparalleled in her history as a metropolis, New York today paid sorrowful tribute to the memory of Warren Gamaliel Harding.

Her great banks, her brokerages, her stores, her harbor deserted, the city turned to her myriad churches where the sad ceremonies at Marion, Ohio, for the dead leader, were being echoed.

It was more than a Sunday hush that fell.

Sunday, to New York's hurrying millions, is a day as much for relaxation as for worship. It is a day for the beaches, the parks and the country; a day for motoring, car rides and golf.

Today it was almost as if there were a funeral in every home. Broad thoroughfares were stripped of their traffic. Subway and elevated trains, running on reduced schedules, were sparsely occupied. Trains to the shore resorts were almost empty. The resorts themselves were as quiet as in winter.

Millions in Churches

The apex of the day of mourning came at noon when, with millions assembled in the city's churches to do sorrowful homage to the dead president, with the guns of the surrounding forts and militar posts booming the presidential salute, and with hundreds of church bells tolling, the city's transit lines ground to a halt and her connections with the outside world were temporarily snapped.

Subway, elevated and railroad trains trolley cars and automobiles stood motionless for two minutes. Telegraph and cable instruments were stilled for a like period. Radio ceased to crackle. Telphone operators sat motionless at their switchboards. All thoughts turned toward Marion.

Wire Flashed "Taps"

Another climax came at a few minutes after 5 o'clock when the wires of the Associated Press, connecting the nation with Marion, flashed "taps," then subsided for two minutes into an unaccustomed silence. A vast hush filled the city. Crews of ships and tugs in the harbor stood rigid at attention. Foreign vessels dipped their colors. The Stars and Stripes of the American lines fluttered sadly at half mast.

Far away at sea this moment was similarly observed. Many vessels halted in their course for two to five minutes. Others slowed down to funeral speed. On all crews stood at attention.

Theatres Were Closed

Even after the president's body had been consigned to its tomb, the mourning continued here. Legitimate theatres and vaudeville houses were closed. Broadway was almost dark. A few of the motion picture theatres—all closed during the day—opened this even, but their crowds were small. Some gave a touch of mourning to their programs by displaying the late president's features on the screen while organs whispered his favorite hymn.

The period of mourning, ushered in last night by the appearance on skyscraper sides of great crosses of light which gleamed from office winds, began to take definite form at 10 o'clock this morning, when priests in the hundreds of Catholic churches of this archdiocese began celebrating votive masses for the dead. Services were held in virtually every church in the city between that hour and 1 o'clock.

At St. Patrick's Cathedral

Governor Smith, Mayor Hylan, and other dignitaries mingled with the thousands who thronged St. Patrick's cathedral for a ceremonial presided over by Monsigneur John J. Dunn, Dunn, vicar general and auxiliary bishop. Representatives of the American Legion, Organied Reserves of the 77th Division, Military Order of the World war, New England Society, American Daughters of the British Empire, Union League club and Boy Scouts were present.

Chimes of Old Trinity

At 11.30 o'clock the rich chimes of Old Trinity boomed forth the strains of the late president's favorite hymn, "Lead Kindly Light." Although there were few to hear in the deserted canyons of the financial district, the chimes sang on with other favorites of the dead president—Nearer, My God to Thee, Abide With Me and Jesus, Lover of My Soul.

The starins had scarce died away when the thousands making their way to the historic old church for the simple burial service set for noon, heard the reverberations of cannon, thundering the presidential salute of 21 guns on Governor's Island.

By noon, solemn, sorrowing congregations had assembled in more than a thousand churches in the greater city.

Services were held in every Baptist church—of which denomination President Harding was a member; in every Episcopalian church and in hundreds of churches of other denominations. Methodists gathered in a union service at St. Paul's chudch, where Bishop Wilson officiated. Lutherans held union services in Holy Trinity church. Orthodox and Reformed Jewish synagogues throughout the city were crowded for the ceremonies for the dead.

The New York Federation of Churches held a memorial service for all creeds in the Palace theatre which was packed.

Boy Scouts held at open-air memorial at City Hall, trumpters sounding "taps" while the Stars and Stripes and the scout flag were dipped.

On Ellis Island, nearly 2,000 future Americans bowed in deference to the grief of their chosen laid. At services conducted under the direction of the Immigration Commissioner Curran.

Even the city's jails joine din the general mourning. Services were held in all.

Prisoners in the grim Tombs, who might have been tried and freed today had not the courts halted along with all other activities of the city, joined with hardened offenders in singing the president's favorite hymns. There they sat with bowed heads as the chaplain, Rev. J. H. Ivie sought to draw them, by Warren G. Harding's example, closer to Warren G. Harding's god.

FIVE MINUTE SILENCE THROUGHOUT WASHINGTON

Washington, Aug. 10.—Silence prevailed throughout Washington today for five minutes as the funeral service for Warren G. Harding was held in Marion.

On the east steps of the Capitol where Mr. Harding had taken the presidential oath, a bugler sounded "taps" and the call was picked up and echoed by trumpeters in other sections of the city.

Street cars stopped, telephone service was suspended, electric power was shut off—for five minutes practically all activity was at a halt and men, women and children on the streets stood with heads bowed.

Coincident with the brief Marion ceremony, memorial services were held here in various churches and by a number of organizations during the business houses and theatres were closed as were government offices. Golf links were deserted, the municipal bath beach was closed and no baseball games were played.

SEVERAL THOUSAND ELKS AT SERVICE IN CHICAGO

Chicago, Aug. 10.—(By the A. P.)—A people with a better understanding together was the wish of the heart and mind of President Harding, James G. McFarland, of Watertown, S. D. grand exalted ruler of the benevolent and protective order of the Elks, said in addressing several thousand Elks and members of the American Legion and other patriotic organizations gathered in Grand Park here. President Harding was a charter member of the Elks lodge of Marion, Ohio.

Quoting the President's words upon his election, "My job will be to get the people of the United States together in better understanding," the ruler of the Elks said:

"Let the thought sink home and be burned into our consciousness that his great mind knew what we needed. No creeds, no sects, no blocs, no differences, no interference with our personal rights, but as a nation and a people—a better understanding together."

"Good-bye! Good-bye!" he said in conclusion, 'until the hour of eleven shall regularly return—to set the bells of memory a-chiming—thou art I and I am thou, for thy name I have as a talisman upon my heart."

HOMAGE FOR HARDING IN WESTMINSTER ABBEY

London, Aug. 10.—(By the A. P.)—While America today paid her last tribute to Warren G. Harding, England mourned him as if he had been her own. Her chief expression of sympathetic grief was in a stately memorial service in Westminster Abbey, an official function at which high officers of state in their regalia and American officials abroad stood in formal attire and marched side by side with American tourists in expressing the common sorrow for the departed president.

Hundreds of American and British applicants who had to be refused tickets to the service because of the limited room went to the abbey and remained outside in a silent throng until the ceremony was over and then attended a special memorial service held at St. Margaret's church for those who could not be accommodated in the cathedral.

CEREMONY ABOARD THE S. S. MARTINIQUE

Aboard the S. S. Martinique, Aug. 10.—(By wireless to the A. P.)—Out of respect to the late President Harding, the Martinique came to a stop in the Atlantic, for five minutes at noon day while Captain Higgins presided over memorial services. The steamer's flags are at half-mast.

THE CITY OF ST. LOUIS STOPPED IN MID-OCEAN

Aboard the S. S. City of St. Louis, (By wireless to the A. P.)—Aug. 10.—The City of St. Louis stopped in mid-ocean at four P. M. today while the 400 passengers aboard paid tribute to the late President Harding. Fred T. Barnett, after which "Nearer My God to Thee" was sung.

A GLOWING EULOGY BY GOVERNOR TEMPLETON

Waterbury, Conn., Aug. 10.—Governor Templeton delivered a glowing eulogy on the late President Harding at the union memorial services here at 5 o'clock this afternoon.

"In the hour of universal mourning when a universal wave of grief and

OLD NEWSPAPER MAN DIED IN HIS SLEEP

Union Hill, N. J., Aug. 10.—Joseph Young, 62 years old, one of the best known newspapermen in Hudson county, died in his sleep this morning.

Mr. Young had been connected with the Hudson Dispatch for nearly thirty years.

After serving as reporter for a number of years, he became city editor of the Dispatch, and about fifteen years ago was placed in charge of one of the business departments.

WILLIMANTIC

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office
11 Church Street Telephone 1062

At 2 o'clock Friday afternoon, the first of fifty-seven strokes was sounded on the bell at the Bank street engine house by Electrician Amos Barker and the chimes in the belfry of St. Joseph's church were rung by Sexton Pierre J. Fournier. Work of every description was halted and silent prayers were offered for the nation, its people and the soul of the departed president. All stores and business houses in the city were closed from 3 to 6.

Memorial services were held at Kelly Park, with more than a thousand people in attendance. In the center of the park the stage was draped in mourning. A canopy stood in the center of the stage with a picture of President Harding and the words "America First." A large handsome photograph of President Harding occupied a pedestal at the northwest corner of the stage, draped in black and purple. On each side of the platform were American flags at half mast. Potted plants filled in the entire center of the stage.

Mayor Charles A. Gates presided at the services. With him were the members of the common council, Corporation Counsel William A. King, City Clerk John B. Edgarton and the speakers. On the right was a volunteer choir directed by Edwin F. Cross of the Methodist church and on the extreme right, occupying seats on the ground was the S. P. O. E. band. Company C, 169th Connecticut Infantry, marched from their quarters in the state armory to the park at 2.45 o'clock and came to attention in front of the speakers' stand. The Boy Scouts of St. Joseph's church, commanded by Assistant Scoutmaster Arthur McCarthy, distributed programs. The audience filled the space on the knoll at the north of the grove and had a commanding view of the platform.

The program opened with Nearer, My God, to Thee, by the B. P. O. E. band, the choir singing the first, third and fourth stanzas of the hymn, which was followed by Scripture reading from Micah, 6-8, by Rev. Edward A. Mathieu of St. Mary's Roman Catholic church. Revelations, twenty-second chapter, first to fifth verses was read and the 23rd Psalm was sung in unison by the assemblage. Prayer was offered by Rev. Charles M. Kelley of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church, followed by the recitation of the Lord's Prayer in unison. The hymn, Lead, Kindly Light, was softly played by the band, the choir singing the first and third stanzas.

Then followed the tributes delivered by Captain Frank P. Fenton, Rev. John E. Clark, pastor of St. Joseph's church, Rev. J. J. Papillon, pastor of St. Mary's church, and Rev. A. Stanley Muirhead, pastor of the Methodist church. Each speaker extolled the virtues of President Harding as a man and as a leader.

The playing of the Star Spangled Banner by the band with the sounding of "taps" brought the services to a close. The committee of arrangements included: Mayor Charles A. Gates, chairman, William P. Jordan, John E. Brick, P. D. Donohue and Rev. Andrew S. Muirhead.

Mrs. George C. Thomas, her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred R. Morehouse, their little daughter, Cyra, and Miss Genevieve Waldo, of Scotland, sailed for France Thursday on the Rochambeau. The trip was postponed on account of the illness of Miss Cyra Morehouse, who has now recovered from a surgical operation. The party will make a lengthy stay in Europe, studying and sightseeing.

The funeral of Miss Florence Boyer was held Friday morning from the home in South Coventry. Requiem high mass at St. Mary's church, South Coventry, at 9 o'clock, was sung by Rev. William H. Kennedy. Miss Celia Day was at the organ. Special music was by a trio—Misses Celia Day and Annie Wellwood and Joseph Clark. Burial was in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery. The bearers were Thomas Flaherty, Jr., Joseph Clark, Austin Furlong, Roger Moran, Joseph O'Brien and Harold Hall. Kilcurry Brothers were in charge of the arrangements.

A miscellaneous shower was tendered Miss Edna Dunham Thursday night at her home, No. 339 Ash street in honor of her approaching marriage with David E. Congdon of East Hartford. Twenty-eight friends and relatives were in attendance. Games were played and vocal and piano solos were enjoyed. Candy, ice cream, soda, cake and fruit was served. Those present were Misses Mae Curran, Alice Chasse, Rita Shea, Julia Moriarty, Hattie Cady, Mary O'Day, Loretta Robarge, Evelyn Martin, Alice Sweet, Mildred Pickett, Mabel Sweet, Margaret Kelrans, Ruth Kelrans, Lena Allair, Mae Shea, Stella Salveggio, Violet Whitman, Beatrice Holland and Mildred Dunham, also Mrs. Edith Koski, Mrs. Dorothy Fogarty, Mrs. Lillian Depathy, Mrs. Evelyn Walker, Mrs. Eva Lowe, Mrs. Louis Dunham, Mrs. Mack, Mrs. Maud Twomey and Mrs. Delia Angelson.

Owners of cottages on the shores of Lake Wangumbaug, South Coventry, and others who have interests there are to have a legal investigation of the shutting off of their bathing privileges by the state department of health. The following committee of seven has been appointed to arrange for this: Dr. William P. S. Keating, Willimantic, chairman, Dr. William E. Hendry, Willimantic; Edgar Morgan and Charles W. Staye, South Manchester; William A. Dawson, Willimantic; Louis W. Daniels, South Coventry, and James H. Fitzgerald. This committee has been authorized to secure an attorney and proceed with the investigation each of the cottage owners, numbering one hundred and twelve, has agreed to stand an equal share of the cost. A meeting of the cottage holders to hear the report of their committee will be held at Killourey's Lakeside Casino Monday evening next.

A representative of the state department of health has used up all of his warning placards in posting the lake. The shore is over six miles in length so that a considerable portion of the land is yet unposted. It is said that bathing continues at the upper end of the lake in spite of the edict that has set the colony in an uproar.

Albert Milevitz and Miss Miriam Salz of this city were married in New York last Tuesday, August 7. The ceremony was performed by Rabbi Abraham Abramson. The groom conducts a dry goods store here and for a number of years previous operated grocery stores on Jackson and Union streets. The bride until a few months ago was manager of the local Pasnik store. Mr. and Mrs. Milevitz are making their home at No. 11 Union street.

The two young peoples' societies of the Methodist and Baptist churches, The Christian Endeavor and Epworth League, are planning an outing to Columbia Lake.

In the police court Friday morning, John Farrell of Storrs was presented for performing in the role of traffic officer, stopping automobiles at the Jackson and Ash street intersection on Thursday afternoon. William Messner created a disturbance in the yard of an Ash avenue home about 11 o'clock Thursday night. Both men pleaded guilty and were fined $5 and costs, amounting to $12.25 in each case which was paid.

A very enjoyable community picnic was held at Eagleville Wednesday. A basket lunch was carried and ice cream and cakes were furnished. About thirty-five were in attendance. Then came of baseball were played, the men playing before lunch and the men and women making up nines after lunch. The spectators enjoyed the games immensely. Mrs. Edwin Slate and Mrs. George E. Reynolds composed the committee of arrangements.

Brief Mention.

WESTERLY

The observance of Friday as a day of mourning followed arrangements announced. At 2 o'clock there was an entire suspension of social and commercial activity. At the First Baptist church chairs had to be placed in the aisles to accommodate the large number in attendance.

From 2 until 4 o'clock one-half minute strokes were sounded on the Westerly fire bell. Following a vote taken at Merrill post meeting Thursday evening the members attended church in a body, being seated in the gallery.

Following was the programme of the memorial service at the First Baptist church, Friday at 3 o'clock:

Organ voluntary, Miss Clara Pashley; reading of Proclamation, Rev. C. A. Burdick, D. D.; Scripture reading, Rev. M. S. Stocking; selection, Lead Kindly Light, quartette, Harry Coleman, Walter S. Price, Edgar P. Maxson, Ralph Koelb; prayers, Rev. G. Edgar Tobin; address, Rev. Byron U. Hatfield; selection, Abide With Me, male quartette; Harding's Own Words, Clayton A. Burdick, D. D.; Star Spangled Banner, audience joining in the singing; benediction, Rev. G. Edgar Tobin; postlude, Miss Clara Pashley, organist. The meeting was under direction of the Westerly Ministerial association, Clayton A. Burdick, D. D., president.

At the church Rev. C. A. Burdick, pastor of the Pawcatuck Seventh Day Baptist church, presided. Rev. Byron U. Hatfield in his address paid tribute saying in substance:

"We are all mourners here today, therefore our words should be few. Words are to our thought what the waves are to the sea. They ruffle the surface, but do not reveal the depth beneath. Instinctively we feel that silence is the true companion of sorrow. While our words shall be few the things concerning the life and character of our late beloved President Harding, they shall not go unspoken for being dead he yet speaketh, and through the years his righteous life, his high ideals, is devotion to duty, is sympathy for the masses and his reverence for law shall continue to speak.

"President Harding was a man of faith. He served his God by serving the best interests of his fellow men. Like the Lawgiver of old, he belonged to God. And like Him he was made strong to bear heavy burdens. The spirit of God was upon him to give potency, purpose and power. To be chosen by God for great service is to be clothed with a dignity that shall not be diminished and given a place among those who live in thought and deed as truly as in heaven.

"It was not given to Mr. Harding to finish his work, but the work for which he gave his life shall go on. Another hand will hold the sword, but the battle for righteousness, world-brotherhood and reverence for law will go on. On the medallion in Westminster Abbey is inscribed: 'God buries His workmen but carries on his work.' There is no better way to honor those whose death we mourn than by giving ourselves to the work for which they lived. This is a better way to show our love and loyalty than by weeping at their grave, or placing garlands on their sleeping dust."

A 100 per cent. organization has been achieved by the Westerly-Pawcatuck Women's division in the hospital campaign; every one of its fifteen teams has been recruited up to full strength of ten members and a captain. The membership of two of the three women's divisions has already been announced; the names of those comprising Mrs. Frank A. Sherman's division, which has just been completed follow:

Mrs. Wm. H. Browning, captain; Mrs. J. C. Archie, Mrs. A. M. Blake, Mrs. William Broadfoot, Mrs. Herbert Cooke, Mrs. Lewis Stanton, Mrs. Clarence Vars, Mrs. Farquhar Smith, Miss Elizabeth Hiscox, Mrs. George Stillman, Mrs. Frank Furness.

Friday generally was without the average travel on both steam and electric cars and by automobile.

Before Judge Michael J. Turano Friday morning, in a special session of the Third district court, held in the quarters of the chief of police, also characterized by the lack of resolutions not only on the birth of a daughter the previous day to the judge, but also that no mention was made that it was the birthday of one of the reporters (the two present being the entire ensemble beside the two court attendants and two defendants) two violations of the automobile traffic laws were disposed of.

Alvin J. Gagnon of Fall River, 24, was presented by Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, charged with approaching the intersection of the Bradford and Weekapaug roads with the Post road at Dunn's corners with a failure to slow down and give timely warning Aug. 5th. The defendant pleaded guilty and was fined $2 and costs amounting to $4.90, which he paid.

Clarence A. Dion of Westerly, 18, was presented on a similar charge in which Town Solicitor Ferguson stated the facts to be as above. On the defendant's plea of guilty he was fined $2 and costs amounting to $4.90, which was paid.

No civil cases were called and all other cases were continued to Friday, August 17th, in the observance of the day of mourning for President Harding.

In a special session of the Third district court Wednesday evening, Aug. 8th, before Judge Turano, Edward H. Greenhalgh of Bradford; Ralph B. Pickles of Pawcatuck, Charles Brenen of Westerly and Walter B. Hass of Mystic were fined $2 and costs each, amounting to $4.90 to $4.90 for traffic law violations at Dunn's Corners on the Post road.

In the custody of Chief of Police Brown, while a social workers of the Oakwlawn school for girls investigates her case, is a 17 year old girl who came to Westerly some time ago. Complaints have been made to the authorities concerning the girl.

A special meeting Merrill Post, World War Veterans, was held at the post rooms Thursday evening, September 7th and 8th the state World war veterans are to hold their annual convention in Westerly. The meeting Thursday evening with the general committee, Franklin Smith, Geo. Kemp, Louis Rossi, Edwin Barber and Rogers Trainer showed much enthusiasm for the forthcoming convention. Beside a dance committee a committee on entertainment and refreshments was named as follows: Louis Rossi, George Kemp, John Neild and Daniel Larkin. To properly care for the reception a subscription is to be taken locally.

Miss Yeoune Loeh of Henderson, Md., who has a record as a hiker having walked to California and back, was a Westerly visitor Friday morning, en route to Pleasant View to join a girl chum who is an artist. Together they will hike with Canada as their objective. Miss Yoeune is familiar with the environs of Westerly having visited Pendleton Hill on a former trip which location she declares is second to none in the country.

The field day and clambake committee of Westerly Masonic club, Samuel Bailey George H. Harper, Henry J. Goulet, Herbert P. Clark and Frederick W. Lock which holds its annual event this year at the Wequetequock casino, next week, reports that 200 reservations have been made. Harold D. Livingstone is manager of the sports and game. A chowder is to be served at 1 o'clock and the bake will open at 5 o'clock.

The resignation of Umpire Tucker of the Interstate Amateur Baseball league has been received by President Christy, who has signed Al Myers of Worcester, Mass., who will remove his hat and announce the batteries at the Westerly Independents vs the Potter Hill nine at Potter Hill this (Saturday) afternoon at Potter Hill.

MYSTIC

Funeral services for James Watrous were held at local undertaking parlors Friday afternoon at 2.15 and at Quakertown chapel, at Ledyard, at 3 o'clock; there his friends spoke endearing words of him. Burial was in Quakertown cemetery, Ledyard.

Friday a memorial service was held at the Strand theatre. Rev. J. P. Beauchamp, rector of St. Mark's Episcopal church, Rev. Father William J. Fitzgerald of St. Patrick's church, Rev. George Fanaham of the Congregational church, Rev. J. B. Osborne, of the Union Baptist church and Rev. Geo. Jones, a Methodist minister, representing the local Methodist church, all took part and eulogized President Harding. Members of the different choirs of the village rendered the president's favorite hymns and the service was most impressive.

The members of the Women's Relief corps had a picnic this week at Mrs. Herman Eldredge's home, and entertained royally members of the New London corps as well as the veterans of Williams post, and the Connecticut department officers. A chowder dinner was served on the lawn and was followed by speeches by the veterans. Old fashioned songs were sung by George W. Keigwin, and Mrs. Ellery Burdick gave entertaining recitations. Ice cream and cake were served later in the day. About fifty members were present from New London, and the following department officers attended: Mrs. Eva Ruoff, Glastonbury, president; Mrs. Myrtle M. KNIGHT

POETRY

Warren Gamaliel Harding

I shall arise when suns have burnished red
The purple vestige of recently slaughtered troops;
My soul will linger on these still plateaus,
Communing with the white worlds overhead.
Which echo not with dirges of the dead.

I shall arise, on some resplendent dawn,
And feel the surge of unsuspected wings,
More mighty than the hurried hosts of kings;
As living incense shall my breath be drawn;
And yet . . . to humans I shall just be
. . . gone!

Jeanne Loscone in Philadelphia Ledger.

Waiting

Sorrow, I bid my hands and wait,
Nor care for wind, or tide or sea;
I rave no more 'gainst time or fate,
For lo! my own shall come to me.

I stay my haste, I make delays,
For what avails this eager pace?
I stand amid the eternal ways,
And what is mine shall know my face.

Asleep, awake, by night or day,
The friends I seek are seeking me;
No wind can drive my bark astray,
Nor change the tide of destiny.

What matter if I stand alone?
I wait with joy the coming years;
My heart shall reap where it has sown
And garner up its fruit of tears.

The waters know their own and draw
The brook that springs in yonder height
So flows the good with equal law
Unto the soul of pure delight.

The stars come nightly to the sky;
The tidal wave unto the sea;
Nor time, nor space, nor deep, nor high
Can keep my own away from me.

—John Burroughs.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"Does your husband talk in his sleep?"

"No, but I'm trying to train him."—Life.

"What is the dear little boy going to be when he grows up?"

"I don't know," replied the weary mother.

"Judging from the wall paper and everything else he touches I think maybe he's going to be a finger-print expert."—Washington Star.

A feminine voice over the telephone:

"Hello, the Club! Is my husband there? Not there, you say? But wait—I haven't even told you my name."

"Say, lady; there ain't nobody's husband here never!" was the darky's reply.—Black and Blue Jay (Johns Hopkins).

Visitor (to child of the house)—Such a pretty doll! And does it call "Mamma" when squeezed?

"He did, eh? What's his duties?"

"You know the guy that runs along and tapes the axles with a hammer? Well, Kelly helps him listen."—Omaha World Herald.

Mrs. Exe (at summer hotel)—It is too bad you had to leave your poor husband chained to his work in the city.

Mrs. Wye—Chained! I'm only afraid that he is too much at large.—Boston Transcript.

Agent—One good thing about this car is, you can get repairs for it in every village.

Mr. Cauggins—And shall I have to?—Ottawa Citizen.

BAY STATE MEETING CLOSES TODAY WITH THREE FEATURE RACING EVENTS

Already two track records have been lowered by the Bay State horses and there is a strong possibility that they may again be brought down in the final events of the Bay State meeting today at the local track. Today is get-away day and after the races the horses will move on to the Medford track at Combination Park, where some fast racing is expected. If any track in the country can show any better racing than was seen here during the first two days of the meeting Norwich people want to know about it. Not even the Grand Circuit can show better finishes or more spirited competition than was shown in every event run off, maybe the G. C. can show better time but fast time does not always bring the crowd to its feet for there must be a little competition to make things interesting.

Today's racing events will be equally as good as the preceding days, according to those who know the horses that are entered. The events for today include the 2.19 trot, the 2.22 pace and the 2.11 trot. It is this last event that it is expected that the trotting record hung up Thursday by Fleming's Rochelle Maid a 2.12 3-4 will be lowered. Horses with marks of 2.09 and better are entered in this event and without doubt the record will fall as all that is necessary is to make the time of the class to cut off a second and over.

Among the horses entered in this last event is Doctor Nick, a black gelding by Doctor Igo, with a mark of 2.04 1-4; owned by Joe Roberts, of Worcester. Doctor Nick had a great season last year and is expected to show well today. Another horse that will show well is Grace Dawn, a bay mare owned by Fred C. Tobey of Plymouth, N. H. The mare was entered in the 2.14 trotting class on Thursday and took fourth money, placing third in three heats and giving the heat winners a hard rub.

In the 2.22 pace local interest will be stirred by the entry of Camerton owned by George E. Bates of Norwich. Camerton has been going strong this year and has done the mile unofficially in very fast time. Several other fast horses are also entered in this event.

Among the horses entered in the 2.19 trot is Peter Whitlock, 2.08 3-4, who won the 2.25 trot on the opening day. Another is Plain Mary who finished second in the same event, giving the Burke horse a hard run. Benzol is another entry that will show well in this event as the horse won fourth money in the 2.16 trot on the opening day. Other fast horses are also entered and another day of exciting finishes is expected.

Never before has Norwich seen such a class of racing and it is hoped that the Bay State circuit will include Norwich again next year. Everyone has been more than pleased with the racing and only praise is given the local committee in getting the horses here. Today is the last opportunity to see the horses in action.

MANAGER DONOVAN BALKED IN SUB BASE SERIES

Sporting Editor: Manager Bill Donovan of the Riverview club was stopped short in his effort to arrange a series of games with the Sub Base nine. Last season the Riverview club defeated the Sub Base nine twice in two very interesting and sensational games. Local fandom has been anxious to see these two clubs in another series this season, but Mr. Corcoran, athletic director at the Sub Base, informed Manager Donovan that he (Mr. Corcoran had his schedule completed for the entire season. Judging from this statement, he has very near to 48 games scheduled in advance. This may be true, but a series with the Riverview club would be far more interesting than the games the Sub Base have scheduled with the New London High School All Stars, New London Independents and other amateur clubs. If Mr. Corcoran is very anxious to play the Riverview club he could find a few open dates in his schedule.

CORBIN RED SOX AND RIVERVIEW IN FINAL GAME

The Corbin Red Sox of New Britain will be the attraction at the State Hospital today. This game will be the third and deciding game of the series, each nine having won a game. The Red Sox had an easy time with Taftville last Sunday and are out to trim everything in this section of the state. This is a hard hitting aggregation, they carry four first class twirlers and play heads-up baseball at all times. They hit "Tony" West hard on their last trip here, and at "Tony's" request the management booked the Red Sox for today so that he could show local fandom that he can stand them off as he did Taftville, et al. Manager Tobin of the Red Sox will start either Berg or Hines on the mound against the Riverview club, with Clinton on the receiving end. The rest of the lineup will be: Blanchard 1b, Preisser 2b, Barnett ss, Wojack 3b, Snyder lf, Corbin cf and Huber rf.

Manager Bill Donovan will present his regular lineup: Reddy c, West p, Fay 1b, Hart 2b, Massey ss, Mills 3b, Clabby lf, Couillard cf and Walsh rf.

This game will start at 3 p. m., daylight saving time, sharp.

NO SPORTING ACTIVITIES IN COUNTRY YESTERDAY

Chicago, Aug. 10—Sportsmen today laid aside their golf clubs and fishing tackle, deserted baseball and other favorites to pay homage to another sportsman who had laid down the duties of a nation.

Golf courses, where the president gained most enjoyment in outdoor exercise were deserted throughout the nation today.

Baseball parks, usually thronged with millions of the national pastime devotees, were deserted today in respect to the fan who always supported his home team loyally but couldn't forget his first love for the Cincinnati Reds. Even during the illness in from he never recovered, President Harding's frequent query was "How did the Reds come out?"

Horse races, boxing exhibitions, and sports of all kinds, were cancelled as a measure of respect to one who always had stood for the best in sportsmanship.

WEST WILL PITCH FOR BALTIC AGAINST TAFTVILLE

On Sunday the first game of the series between Baltic and Taftville will take place at the Baltic diamond. There will be one that will prove of interest to all the fans in Eastern Connecticut.

Baltic will put a strong team in the field with Tony West of the Riverview club on the mound and Harkey of the Sub Base behind the bat. Taylor will play first and Masse will be at second with Harry Mills at short. Nolan will be at third. In the outfield will be Coullard, Red Charron and Sullivan. This team has a striking similarity to Riverview club which beat Taftville a week ago.

Taftville will depend on Mike Morin to do the pitching with Belair or Liberty on the receiving end. The rest of the Taftville lineup will be composed of strictly Taftville boys and a representative team of the village.

FOUR SWIMMERS TO TRY CHANNEL SWIM TODAY

Dover, Aug. 10—(By the A. P.)—Four swimmers will attempt to cross the English channel tomorrow, three from the English side and the other from the French.

Two of the trio that will start from Dover are Americans, and both are from Boston, the city in which Henry Sullivan, who last week became the third man to swim the channel is a shoe salesman.

They are, Charles Toth, who made two unsuccessful attempts to swim the channel last year, the first time getting within four miles of his goal, and the second time within five miles, and Sam Richards who surrendered in his attempt when four miles off the Dover coast last year when taken ill with a fit of coughing. They will start at six o'clock.

An hour later Romeo Maciel, of the Argentine, will start off on his first attempt and at the same time from Calais Enrique Tirabocchi will start on the difficult task.

FIRPO AT PHILLY FOR BOUT WITH WEINERT

Philadelphia, Aug. 10—Luis Angel Firpo, the Argentine heavyweight, who is scheduled to meet Charley Weinert, of Newark, N. J., at the Philadelphia National league baseball park Monday night in an eight-round, no decision bout, arrived here tonight. He came from Indianapolis, where his bout with Joe Downey was postponed owing to the death of President Harding.

Firpo, who was accompanied by his New York representative, William McCarney, was met at the railroad station by a large crowd of boxing fans. The Argentine boxer appeared to be in excellent physical condition.

SHIMIZU AND FUKUDA AGAINST AUSTRALIANS

Chicago, Aug. 10—Captain Zenzo Shimizu of the Japan Davis cup tennis team, and Menanoskue Fukuda will meet Captain James O. Anderson, and J. B. Hawkes of Australia in the only match of the American zone Davis cup play tomorrow.

This announcement was made today after the drawing for the only doubles match of the final round. The match, scheduled for today, was postponed in respect to President Harding's entombment.

Black Draws With Kupchik

Lake Hopatcong, N. J., Aug. 10—Only one game was played in the masters' tournament of the ninth American chess congress today, Black, of Syracuse, drew against Kupchik, of New York, after 52 moves. A triple tie for first place resulted, the leaders being Janowski, of Paris, and Kupchik and Schapiro, of New York. The fifth round will be played tomorrow.

WOMEN TENNIS STARS IN INTERNATIONAL PLAY

Forest Hills, N. Y., Aug. 10—Leading women tennis players of America and England will meet tomorrow on the turf courts in the new stadium at the West Side club in the first of a series of international team matches. Seven matches, including five of singles and two of doubles will be played for a trophy given by the United States lawn tennis association.

Two singles matches and a doubles match will be played tomorrow, the remaining three singles and one doubles match to be decided Monday in connection with the opening of the women's national championship.

Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, seven times national champion; Miss Helen Wills, the youthful star of Berkeley, Calif., Miss Eleanor Goss, one of the leading players in the east this season, and Mrs. Hazel Hotchkiss Wightman, a former national titleholder, will play for America. Mrs. Wightman, captain of the team, will play only in the doubles, while her team mates will take up the burden in the five singles events.

Against the American stars England will be represented by Miss Kathleen McKane, Mrs. Geraldine Beamish, Mrs. R. C. Clayton and Mrs. Nancy Covell. These players, in their first appearance in this country at the recent Seabright games, gave evidence of providing the keenest sort of competition. Miss McKane and Mrs. Beamish are the singles stars, while paired in the four make up two of the greatest women's doubles teams in the world.

Mrs. Mallory, who returned to the top of her game in the Seabright tournament, will carry the brunt of the play against the Englishwomen. Miss Goss, who eliminated Miss Wills at Seabright, has been playing an exceptional game.

Miss Wills and Miss McKane will meet in the opening singles match tomorrow, Mrs. Mallory will play Miss McKane and Mrs. Covell in the doubles.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Both of the Boston clubs have adopted the policy of setting aside Friday as "Ladies' Day".

"Too much pay roll" is assigned as the chief cause for the premature demise of the Cotton States league.

The loss of Zach Wheat's timely hitting is likely to prove considerable handicap for the Brooklyn Dodgers.

The St. Louis Cardinals will have to perk up a bit if they want to keep up even a bluff at being a first division contender.

The failure of the Pirates to make a better showing in the recent series with the Giants was a sore disappointment to Pittsburgh fans.

George Murchio, the former University of California pitcher, has been making an excellent showing with the Oakland Pacific Coast league team.

J. Franklin Baker, former star American league third baseman, is reported to have bought an interest in the Milford club of the Eastern Shore league.

Gossip in Minneapolis has it that the Cleveland Indians would like to obtain Carl East, the veteran outfielder and former pitcher now with the Millers.

While Baltimore continues to hold the lead in the International league race, their margin is not so convincing as it has been at this time in seasons past.

As things now stand, the Yankees could go through quite a losing streak and still be assured of the American league pennant for the third consecutive year.

The San Francisco Seals, sitting pretty with a substantial lead over their nearest opponents, look like the best bet to win the Pacific Coast league flag.

By throwing George Boehler and Myrl Brown into the discard the Pittsburgh club closed the pages on what appears to have been a very profitable investment.

Alexander Clement, who pitched fine ball for Williams College last spring when he included among his victories one over Harvard University, is playing with a semi-pro team in Lynn this summer.

All hopes of the fans in the southern section of the Texas league that the pennant may fly at their end of the circuit are now centered in the San Antonio Bears, who have been steadily closing in on the leaders.

No individual player has contributed more to keep the New Orleans Pelicans out in front in the Southern league race than has the veteran hurler Bill Whitaker, who has more victories to his credit than any other pitcher in the league.

Some major league magnates are now inclined to think they stirred up a Frankenstein when they let their parks for boxing shows. It looked like easy money, until the boxing shows began to decrease the attendance at the ball games.

"LUCKY" HOWE IS SOLD TO BOSTON RED SOX

Waterbury, Aug. 10—Lester "Luck" Howe, star twirler for Waterbury in the Eastern league was sold to the Boston Red Sox yesterday according to Herman J. Weisman, president of the Waterbury club.

Howe played with Bridgeport before coming to Waterbury. He has been with the Brassmen two seasons. Recently he asked Manager Herman Brenkie to allow him to return to his home where he had an ofefr to play semi-pro baseball. President Weisman said tonight that he has been dissatisfied with the club and the announcement of his sale to the Red Sox came as a big surprise.

Bigbee Goes to Louisville

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 10—Announcement was made here today that Lyle Bigbee has been added to the pitching staff of the Louisville American association baseball team. He came from the Milwaukee club by the waiver route.

THE SOCIAL CORNER

COURTESY OILS THE WHEELS OF LIFE.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY

Beneath the Surface

Beneath the surface there is wealth,
Though often hid from view;
We catch the dross as if by sealth,
And miss the good and true.

As deepest currents ever glide
Where scarce a ripple floats
So hearts their richest treasures hide
And souls their sweetest notes.

We see the light that faintly beams,
But from its feeble glow
We fail to trace the flame that gleams
Beneath the outward flow.

We deem the mountains proud and grand;
Their wealth is not in show;
Though high their heads, the golden sand
Lies deep and far below.

We ever judge by outward show
The wealth that lies within,
And by the surface we would know
The prize we seek to win.

The rank and dress will oft deceive
The worth of soul to tell,
For merit true we oft perceive
Where birth unkindly fell.

We gather stones that round us lie,
And shells of dullest ray,
Yet pass the gems unnoticed by,
And fling the pearls away.

And many thoughts that fill the mind,
And virtues of the soul,
Are like the gems we never find,
Deep hid within their goal.

And many hearts beat warm with love,
Whose friendship never will die;
We never heed, nor pause to prove,
But coldly pass them by.

The objects that we cherish most
Are clear to us, we know;
Yet many a prize to us is lost
Because 'tis hid below.

W. F. Fox.

Shine Where You Are

Don't waste your time in longing
For bright, impossible things;
Don't sit supinely yearning
For the swiftness of angel's wings;
Don't spurn to be a rush light,
Because you are not a star;
But brighten some bit of darkness
By shining just where you are.
There is need of the tiniest candle,
As well as the garnish sun.
The humbliest deed is ennobled
When it is worthily done.
You may never be called to brighten
The darkened regions afar.
So fill for the day your mission,
By shining just where you are.
Just where you are, my brother,
Just where God bids you stand,
Though down in the deepest shadow,
Instead of the sunlight land;
You can carry brightness with you
That no gloom or darkness can mar
For the light of a Christlike spirit
Will be shining wherever you are.

LEFFINGWELL PICNIC

Dear Social Corner Sisters: The Leffingwell sisters will give a picnic at the Leffingwell church August 22. Bring something for the dinner, we have dishes there.

New York Girl: Come and help us if you please and don't forget to help on the entertainment. We are all looking for a good time, and all must help which is ours.

Olga: Don't forget to bring all you can.

Calla Lily and Canterbury Bell: Shall look for you.

Yours for a good time.

WHYNOT WEAR THE RIBBON

Dear Social Corner Friends: Some hot weather we are having! I wonder how many of those who said last winter, "No matter how hot or how dry it is next summer I won't complain!" are keeping their word.

Neighbor Eveready: Glad to hear from you. Friday says to look in your woodshed. When are you coming my way? Look for me on the beach of this town's most popular resort. Haven't attended any of the picnics yet. May attend part of the celebration out your way.

Peggy Anne: Glad to see you once more and more than glad that we met under different circumstances than before.

Aunt Sarah: Hope your plans mature. Shall be glad to help was glad to see you again. Too bad we can't wear yellow ribbons "every where so we can recognize members of our large family. And why not? Members of other societies do.

Narragansett: Am looking for you down my way.

Elizabeth: You guessed right as far as you went. I have lived in your town at several different times. I believe I never met you but have seen you several times lately. Guess again!

Yours for the good of the Corner.

TRUE LADYSHIP.

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: I have enjoyed all the letters regarding the week end trips and the far away journeys. It is pleasing to hear and learn what other people are doing, outside our own immediate circle. Especially Sister Blue Bell's letter appealed to me regarding her account of returning to familiar places of her childhood. She felt as I often do, on those occasions, a visionary desire to be a child, just for a few minutes, and to see mother again as in those days. We can all look back and recall many impressions that we formed in early life and which cling to us yet, though perhaps with enlarged understanding at present time. A thought appeals to me which takes me back into young girlhood. I had the idea then that every grownup girl was a "lady," but due to my mother's correction, I realized every woman was not a "lady." She defined to me the characteristics which compose the traits of a "lady," and pointed out examples for me to study. From my ordinary intelligence I soon learned a vast distinction between "woman" and "lady," and am still observing along these lines. To consult the dictionary, we find the word "lady" is explained as "a woman of high rank," especially of titled personages. Perhaps this is largely adapted to foreign shores, but who are the real and true "ladies," in our midst in this day and generation? During my recent trip to New York city, I went into an up-to-date, ordinary inexpensive restaurant, for dinner. After being seated at the table, I picked up the menu card, and the first thing I saw, in conspicuous type was this: "Ladies are requested not to smoke in this restaurant." My thoughts floated back to my mother's teachings and my own observations from then to now, and I could not picture any one of those feminine examples of refinement as being classed in with the "women" of today who boldly smoke cigarettes in public places or perchance, slyly after dark. I could only conclude that the idea of a "lady" referred to by this restaurant proprietor, was vastly different from mine. Many other phases practiced by women today such as dress and language seems deplorable to modesty, and all self-respect, their conduct seems outside true ladyship. Only a few recent years ago, it was a common sight to read "Ladies' Entrance," on the side door of a saloon, but we are glad to see both entrances abolished now.

Best wishes to all our true ladies in the Social Corner, as I trust there are none others.

HAVING NICE VACATION.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: It has been a long time since I have sent a letter to the Corner. I like to read the letters. I have been well and very busy but now I am having a long and grand vacation. Last month I was at the mountains. I was with a very nice party and had a nice time; now I am at the seashore looking at the big ocean. So you see I am having a nice time, it can't be all work and no play you know.

Celia Louise: Thanks for your thought of me. I think you are the only one that has missed me, but I don't blame them.

PEACE.

USES FOR TIN CANS.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Inspiration comes to us in odd ways. The flash of genius may be given flame by a prosaic happening; masterful strokes of success receive impetus from a casual incident. So when I took a few tin cans and made them into dainty table waste baskets and beautiful vases with flowers, for your talking machines, useful containers for debris for the corner of your sink, jardinieres, covered with putty and pebbles, and so on, it was a pleasure to feel that I had evolved "something from nothing." Cans which have served their original purpose should not be thrown away—they may be made of value in so many ways. Paint one to use as a spoon-holder, placing your spoons in it when washing them; have such a container also for your knives and forks. Keep them to put your grease in, for future soapmaking, also your leftover starch; set in the ice-box, the starch will be ready for use another time. I use one to keep silver-polish in. For a soap-shaker I use the small, low can, perforate the bottom with holes, using a small nail and hammer for the purpose, then about one-fourth inch from the edge of the can I make a hole, another directly opposite, then insert a piece of picture wire through one of the holes and twist the end of the wire around the wire to hold it, and put the other end through the other hole in the same way, having the loop at the top four to eight inches long. Fill this contrivance with small pieces of soap, and hang it over the hot-water faucet in the kitchen-sink or laundry tub, and when you want hot suds for dishes or clothes simply turn on the water in the usual way. When not in use slip the wire off toward the back. I never throw away any kind of a can. In the summer the boys know where to come to get nice clean cans for their fire-crackers, or to fill with sand for the goldfish when they go to the beach. You need cans for hundreds of different uses—how many you will never guess until you try; and I assure you it will pay you to try.

There are other little helps I wish to leave with you—one concerning the various uses of sugar. Do you ever put a little in your codfish-cakes? It gives them a delicious flavor. In codfish-chowder, turnips, in fact, almost everything I cook, I put a little sugar—a bit in meat-gravy, as well. By the way, when roasting meat, lay a clean white-muslin cloth, wet, over it; in this way the meat does not require basting so often and is much nicer when done. A cube of loaf-sugar rubbed over an orange will retain the orange-flavor by absorbing the oil. Sugar prepared in this way and used in tea imparts a most delicious flavor, resembling orange pekoe. When separating the yolks and whites of eggs, sometimes a speck of yolk slips in with the white; to remove this, dip a clean cloth in warm water, squeeze dry and just touch the yolk-speck with it; it will adhere at once and so is easily removed.

To make a candle fit a candlestick, dip the end in a little hot water to soften the wax, then push it carefully into the candlestick. When washing glassware, if two tablespoons of bluing are added to the warm, soapy water, the glass will have a wonderful sparkle and shine when dry. A simple way to remove mildew is to saturate the spots with kerosene, let stand forty-eight hours and wash in soapy water. If glazed tiles are spotted, wash in lemon-juice, leave fifteen minutes, then polish. A simple way to remove soil-marks from a raincoat is, to rub them with slices of freshly cut raw potato; this treatment will also remove mud-stains from children's garments, dress skirts, etc. When the metal tip comes off your shoe-lacing, wind the end firmly and closely with black thread, then dip in melted parafin or glue and twist to a point.

Should you want some handsome gold lace for any kind of trimming, purchase a pretty pattern of cheap lace at the "five-and-ten" store, stir a little gold power with banana-oil or any good sizing, and paint the lace. It is really beautiful. When I was in business a customer frequently asked for gold lace and I used to make it in this way.

By the way, never throw away spools; they make very pretty jardinieres for Easter flowers. Nor old peanuts, as you can make such cute little owls and parrots of them, to please the little folks. Save all the envelopes with transparent space as containers for bits of colored crochet-cotton; you can tell at a glance what is there without searching for a certain color.

When, in the course of spring cleaning, you wash your lace curtains, just wash and rinse them well, and fold them as when new, drying them in that way and not ironing them. I have twenty-six windows with draperies, and that is the way they are laundered; a great deal of work is saved, and the curtains look like new.

When using a receipt which must be referred to, just copy it and fasten it to the inner side of the left forearm with an elastic band; there it may be easily consulted without walking around the table or across the room. It always pays the busy woman to save steps.

CANNING BERRIES.

Dear Cornerites: When I come once, look out for about three successive letters.

Looks like we needed to help fill our page all right.

No one can say Wildwood picnic wasn't reported can they?

In canning berries I do mine much like Rural Aunties.

First sterilize jars, which means actually boiling them in a closed container. After jars are sterilized, fill with berries, striking jars on bottom frequently, then fill up. Fill jars with hot water.

Replace in your cooker, and fill kettle with water. Allow them to cook 16 minutes, after beginning to boil, in the jars in which were partially sealed.

Here is an excellent recipe for canning all kinds of berries, and very little bother:

Jars sterilized. Fill cans full of berries. Have ready a syrup made of cup sugar, one cup water for quart of berries (less sugar if desired), pour syrup over fruit. Partially seal and set cans in something deep. Cover with boiling water and close container. Let stand until water is cold.

Raspberries canned this way are delicious and the nicest strawberries in canned state I had this way.

Yours for success.

EMBROIDERY BAG AND SKEIN HOLDER.

An easy gift to make and one which will be appreciated by anyone fond of doing dainty needlework, is an embroidery bag and skein holder.

A pretty one made of blue linen and embroidered with white floss or brown dry makes a most useful and attractive linen with navy or delft blue embroidered bag. The skein holder must be escalloped and stitched in its place on the inner side of one-half of the bag, before two halves of the bag are put together. It is divided by stitching into a number of pockets, open at each end, through which the skeins may be drawn. The outside of the bag is worked with the monogram of the person for whom the gift is intended. After this has been finished and the skein holder stitched in its place the bag can be stitched together and finished with a white cord run through button holed eyelets, as a drawstring. Tuck this little verse inside the bag and your gifts will be doubly appreciated.

Life's Embroideries.

Give me little scrolls of fun
Broided 'round with knots and dots
In the tints of hope and cheer;
There, a sheaf of joys, and here,
Openwork, with mirth shines through.
Give me colors, red and blue;
There's the tinted silk and floss;
Not to use them were a loss
So I'll make mine, if you please,
Set 'round with embroideries.

ETHELYN.

WANTS MORE LETTERS.

Dear Editor and Sisters: I thought I must write a little as I did not like to see the page so empty so I am calling loud for more letters, so wake up and write a few lines, sisters, and help fill up the page with cheerful news if not very much we can write. I wondered where all the writers had gone to when I first saw the page. It don't seem so that they can be more busy than myself which every minute is occupied with something. This community is to have a picnic next Saturday which will be a red letter day for all, far and wide, every one invited, basket lunch and sports of different kinds. Come to Moosup and you can easily find the way to the pleasant place in Sterling and get some of the lovely air on the hill which is a noted place. Well, cheer up, sisters, one and all, keep the heart singing all the while, make the world brighter with a smile.

Best luck.

UNITED IN SORROW.

The hearts of over one hundred million Americans turned reverently and sorrowfully Friday to a little home at Marion, Ohio. Great as had been the tribute of the thronging thousands who stood in silent sympathy at the passage of the funeral train across the continent, immeasurably more impressive was the hushed nation upon this midsummer day, united in one common impulse to honor their beloved president as he was laid to rest.

Thoughts of the quiet house, the banked flowers, the groups of mourning friends, and the peaceful upturned face in the flag-draped casket sprang unbidden to all minds as the American people gathered in spirit at the funeral of President Harding. Honored in life by his elevation to the highest position in the republic, he was accorded an unequalled tribute in death in the sense of personal loss which touched the hearts of the people. Therein the observance of the day took on a beauty and significance that we should do well not to lose sight of.

His life was given in service for the nation. To other hands fall the tasks to which he gave the utmost measure of devotion. In the same high spirit, under the providence of God, may they complete what he had begun.

MASSACHUSETTS MEN.

Massachusetts has no cause to lament over lack of recognition in affairs of national government. The turn of events has brought men from that state into positions of prominence in Washington. President Coolidge, a native of Vermont, is a son of the Bay state by adoption. Frederick H. Gillett, speaker of the house of representatives, and Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, chairman of the important committee on foreign relations, are both Massachusetts men, and John W. Weeks, secretary of war, comes from that state. His secretaryship makes him third in the order of succession to the presidency.

It is to be expected that something may be heard in the future months as to this preponderance of Massachusetts interests at Washington and that there will be close scrutiny of official acts along certain lines for that reason. Geographical distribution has customarily been a factor that presidents have considered in making important appointments, and in some instances this has operated to keep certain persons from being chosen for cabinet positions. It is to be doubted whether the policy of general distribution should always be the guide, although it has some merits, especially from the point of view of practical politics.

Sectionalism, however, is probably less influential in American life than ever before. Improved methods of communication and travel have done much to lessen its force. It is too soon to say that it no longer exists, but there is more and more tendency to judge public officials by what they stand for rather than where they come from.

As long as men in influential offices, such as those now held by the group from Massachusetts, are careful to consider public questions from a national point of view there can be no just basis for criticism on sectional grounds. From the nature of the situation, however, there will have to be care to avoid misinterpretation of motives. The northwest and far west, especially, are sensitive at the moment in matters political.

BOTH TO BLAME.

When the United States Coal commission says in its supplemental report upon the coal situation that "failure of the winter supply of anthracite is a national disaster" and "the public is unwilling to tolerate having a product upon which its very life depends made the plaything of militant group action," it makes a clear-cut and definite announcement that the people have been looking for and which should strengthen their faith in the federal government's purpose not to permit the doubly monopoly in the mine fields to exploit anthracite.

The report sets forth the responsibilities of operators and miners, charging both with ignoring fundamental provisions of the 1903 compact, which has been treated as a scrap of paper. It definitely renews its recommendation that, in the event of a disagreement that imperils the anthracite supply, there shall be some form of federal intervention in the interest of the public.

Recognition of the union the commission apparently looks upon as a fact accomplished; and while this report does not specifically mention the demand for the "check-off," it contains several references which are open to the interpretation that it believes the union must assume its own responsibility for its membership. In referring to the "habitual resort to petty strikes," the commission speaks of the union as a "temporary authority based on force and threats of force which the nation will sooner or later be obliged to curb."

This report will give comfort to neither side in the anthracite controversy, but will inspire a new hope that both may be aroused to a new sense of responsibility to one another and to the people and lead to that modernization of the 1903 settlement which the commission seems to think is essential if there is to be peace and some assurance against constant friction and the recurrent menace of general strikes. Over and above this is held the final resort of federal intervention for the protection of the public in a form yet to be determined. The report throws much new light on the situation. It condemns the "loose and often swashbuckling literature that emerges on occasion from legal and publicity departments on both sides," serving as incitements to class bitterness and the offensive charges and countercharges which have figured in the discussion. It offers by contrast a plain statement of facts which the public ought to know and which the parties to the controversy would do well to ponder and digest.

THE STEADY JOB.

The unusual plan of guaranteeing to all its employes a full year's employment has been adopted by a Cincinnati soap manufacturing concern which takes a unique position in industry by this action. The worst spectre that haunts the working man is the possibility of losing his job and some economic observers have declared that this haunting fear is one of the prominent factors in unrest. The man who never knows what day he may be laid off indefinitely, especially if he be a man with family responsibilities, guards his job as his main source of income and views as a menace anything that threatens his continuous employment.

The experiment of hiring men by the year is one that deserves to be watched with interest. It is the extension down through the ranks of the custom which prevails in the higher executive offices of business where managers, superintendents and other officials are commonly under yearly salary. It amounts to a steady job, insured for a year. The hourly wage rate has been dropped by many concerns in favor of the monthly wage, an arrangement which has certain obvious advantages to both sides of the bargain.

Like almost every such plan, the monthly or yearly wage system depends for its success a great deal on the sort of men who are hired for the jobs. Reliable men who three hundred days a year are steadily at work will find peace of mind and security in a place that assures them work for a full year in advance. Men to whom steady employment means less than the chance to jump around from this job to that will find it dull.

Presumably the financing of such a plan is based upon a steady amount of work, turning out so much product every day and neither adding to nor laying off help. Such an arrangement should go far toward stabilizing labor conditions.

IRELAND COMING BACK.

It is gratifying news that comes out of Ireland to the rest of the world concerning conditions in what the old song called the "most distressful country." Prosperity prevails and business is better than ever before in the island's history. Linen manufacture is booming, butter and cheesemaking and the raising of garden products are largely on the increase. Exports are steadily and considerably showing a greater volume.

Financially the position of the Irish Free State is such that no foreign loan is needed or desired. It will only be necessary to make a two-million pound domestic loan which is for the purpose of establishing credit. The banks of the Irish Free State have something like two hundred fifty million pounds in gold. The dream of Charles Stewart Parnell of a prosperous Ireland, economically free, with diversified industries, is approaching realization. The new freedom has consolidated and is likely to perpetuate prosperity.

When one recalls the continuous brigand warfare kept up by De Valera's irregulars and the stern measures that had to be used to bring such warfare to an end very recently, the economic and financial situation is particularly gratifying. With disorder ended, progress is sure to be much more rapid than it has been up to date.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Is sincerity the proper basis of human action? Doubtless sincerity is a powerful factor in the performance of duty, but is it a safe guide? Standing by itself it is nothing, though much is sometimes made of it. Is it not possible to be sincere in doing that which is evidently wrong? If so it is not an infallible guide to go by. The position we take is that sincerity is never a sufficient reason for either good or bad action. If the action we do is good it calls for no excuse, no explanation whatever. It will stand upon its own intrinsic merit. If the action we do is manifestly wrong, no excuse, no explanation will make it right. No attempt to hide back of the sincerity of our motive will rectify our wrong action. We have no right to claim sincerity in doing things of which the reason disapproves. Sincere ignorance is no excuse for breaking the law. Ignorance of the law is not regarded as a sufficient excuse for exceeding the speed limit.

There is much to be said in favor of establishing and maintaining playgrounds for the children during the long summer vacation. Sometimes it has been found feasible to use the school yard if it chances to be one of liberal size and more frequently however it has seemed best to secure a vacant lot of larger proportions, where a greater variety of games can be played. It goes without saying that these playgrounds must be under careful and intelligent supervision. The children ought to be made to understand that the idea is not for the purpose of running wild or in any way making an unreasonable disturbance in the neighborhood. The object in mind can be realized without this. The aim is to furnish wholesome entertainment, pleasureable exercise that at the same time shall be instructive. It is well that the real welfare of the child should be considered during the long vacation. There should be a proper mixture of work and play.

Somebody said this: "You sit and look pleasant while the photographer takes your picture—why not be just as calm and agreeable while sitting to the world?" That is to say we are trying to look pleasant when sitting for the purpose of being looked at, why not look pleasant when we are not sitting for the purpose of being looked at? The reason is perfectly clear. If the pleasant look is merely "put on" just for the snap shot it is unnatural and shallow, and doesn't reproduce our features just as they are. In order to have a really pleasant face a pleasant spirit must be resident in our hearts, and then it will work outward and reveal us just as we are. It is just as senseless for the photographer to ask his victim to look "pleasant" as it is to look "pretty" for in both cases, for the most part, it involves an impossibility. A pleasant face put on for the occasion is generally nothing more than a silly grin.

Very much enjoyment may be gotten out of a Sunday school picnic on an ideal day when all are agreeable and bent on a good time. A person having a bad attack of the "blues" has no moral right to join such an excursion. Josh Billings once said that "a good healthy hornet in fine working condition could break up a camp meeting." It is equally true that a person with a big grouch on can cast a sort of blue haze over a Sunday school picnic. But the picnic which the writer has in mind was not of this sort at all. It was one in which 450 people old and young representing four or five denominations threw themselves into the pleasures of the day with a whole soul, and therefore made it a day worth having. Its effect upon all who enter into it heartily is salutary, and especially upon the children is the effect immeasurable.

Russia is giving the world a good practical illustration of the fact that nothing but hard work on the part of all the people will redeem a nation from the curse of war. Anyone who has followed the trend of Russian affairs will realize that the people have a profound faith in the future possibilities of their country. Had there not been this great belief in Russia's future the people could not have withstood the two great shocks that came upon them. The first great shock was sudden release from the autocracy of the czar. One hundred and fifty million people who were wholly inexperienced in self-government were all at once called upon to govern themselves. Of course the situation opened a big field for the scheming politician, and he made the most of it through bolshevism. This was the second shock from which they are now recovering. The nation is now saying, "let us put Russia again on the map," and the indications are that they will do it.

While there are so many mutual jealousies, suspicions and hatreds among the nations, when there is a gleam of pure light breaking through these dark political clouds it is certainly worth mentioning. I refer to the big loan that has recently been floated by the leading nations—America taking a prominent part—for the purpose of putting Austria on the map again. It is well-known that Austria threw herself on the side of the Central Powers in the World war largely through fear. She has terribly suffered. A year ago it was predicted that Vienna would soon be as dead as Pompeii. A city capable of housing two millions was reduced to less than a fourth of that number. But the nations felt that Austria must not be allowed to die, hence the loan that has been several times oversubscribed. This is one great deed of humanity done by the league of nations.

Is it not a little strange that the name of Marcus Whitman has hardly yet found its way into any of the encyclopedias? Of the four I own only one—and that the poorest—makes any mention of him and that gives about one inch of space, and what it says is mostly inaccurate. It is therefore very pleasing that President Harding in his recent trip in passing through Oregon, paid such a splendid tribute to the old pioneer who saved what is now the sovereign state of Oregon to the Union. In the history of human patriotism there is nothing more noteworthy than Whitman's famous and perilous journey through the then (1813) unknown wilderness to Washington to plead with President John Tyler and his secretary of state, Daniel Webster, for the preservation of Oregon to the Union. The idea was unpopular, Webster was lukewarm, many of the leading men in congress opposed it, but John Tyler, be it said to his lasting honor, threw the weight of the presidency in its favor, and Oregon was saved.

It seems to me that there are four currents of influences that tend to shape a man's destiny in his present life, and I name them in the order of their importance: 1. His own personal initiative; 2. His religious belief. 3. His outward circumstances, and 4. His heredity. For the most part a man is just what he makes himself. If there is a deathless purpose that brooks no opposition to carry his powers to the highest possible state of perfection, while he may not reach that ideal, he will become a marked man. If to his personal initiative he adds the power of a deathless faith in a Divine Helper, he will come nearer to his ideal. It is true that outward circumstances enter as a factor in the making of a man. But a great soul will refuse to be crushed or unduly puffed up by worldly surroundings, while there is no question that good blood tells just as much in man as in horses. It is the human grit that has most to say.

FREIGHT CAR SHORTAGE BECOMES SURPLUS.

During the first six months of this year the railroads hauled the largest amount of freight ever carried during any six months in the history of America.

And despite this tremendous traffic, which in June resulted in the greatest ever carried in any one month, the freight car shortage has been turned into a surplus of more than 84,000 cars.

These facts are available following a report of the Car Service Division of the American Railway Association on the progress of the railroads since 1922 to increase their facilities and improve transportation capacity and performance.

The report shows:

1. In the first six months of 1923 the railroads hauled the largest traffic of any six months in their history.

2. In June, they hauled the largest traffic ever carried in any one month.

3. For the week ending June 30, they loaded 1,021,770 cars, the largest car loading on record.

4. In the first six months of this year 79,240 new freight cars were put into service and 1,998 new locomotives.

5. The total number of bad order freight cars has been reduced from 216,011, or 9.5 per cent., on January 1, to 190,411, or 8.4 per cent. on July 1.

6. Bad order locomotives have been reduced from a total of 15,549, or 24.1 per cent., on January 1, to 11,460 or 18 per cent., on July 1, when there were the greatest number of serviceable locomotives on record.

7. The number of repaired locomotives and cars turned out of railroad shops per month has far exceeded the performance of previous years. In the first six months of this year an average of more than 38,000 repaired locomotives were turned out each month against only about 21,000 for the first six months of 1922. In June over 1,200,000 freight cars passed in and out of the railroad repair shops of the country.

8. The average loading per car was increased from 27.8 tons in April to 28 tons in May.

9. The average daily movement of all freight cars has been increased from 27.9 miles in April to 28.6 miles in May.

10. The reserve bituminous coal stocks of the railroads have been increased from 6,756,886 tons on January 1 to 10,667,871 tons on July 1.

The programme adopted by the roads for the year calls for average loadings raised to 30 tons per car. In May of this year the average was 28, an increase of a fifth of a ton over April.

The plan to increase the average miles per car per day to 30 miles resulted in 26 3-5ths miles in May, an increase of 5 9-10ths miles over May of last year, and of 7-10ths of a mile over April this year.

Every increase of one mile in the average movement of all freight cars produces the same increase in capacity that 100,000 new freight cars would provide, moving one mile a day less.

The railroads have therefore increased their capacity by 70,000 cars, without additional investment.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

By his engagement to Lady Louise Mountbatten, the second daughter of the late Marquis of Milford Haven and first cousin once removed of King George, the Crown Prince of Sweden, a widower, has for a second time chosen a bride from the British royal family. The first wife of the Crown Prince, who is in his forty-first year, was Princess Margaret (daughter of the Duke of Connaught), who died in 1920. The Prince has four sons and one daughter. Lady Louise, his fiancee, is thirty-four years old. Her sister is married to Prince Andrew of Greece, and her younger brother, Lord Louis Mountbatten, some months ago married Miss Edwina Ashley, who was known as England's richest heiress. During the war Lady Louise nursed the wounded in a French hospital near Nevers, and in her probationary period insisted on doing her share of the ordinary rough work of the institution.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

LIVE FOR CHRIST

Let your light so shine before men, that they may glorify your Father which is in heaven. Matt. 5:16.

The profession made by a follower of Jesus Christ counts for much less than His life. Practically the only way by which the world can form any estimate of the value of the christian disciple is by his life. It matters little how much is declared by speech; the thing that counts is the wordless language of the life.

A great editor of a secular paper, who has an inveterate and incorrigible cynic, once said: If Christians are to be regarded as more on a higher moral plane than the rest of the world, they must furnish stronger evidence of their sincerity than is now exacted from them in the shape of plain and open self-denial.

The church, in short, must be an organization held together by some stronger ties than enjoyment of weekly music and oratory in a pretty building, and alms giving which entails no sacrifice, and often is only a tickler of social vanity. "And the remark, although it was dipped in vinegar is true; and the church would do well to give heed to it.

When the church of God makes more of the adjuncts of worship than of worship itself; when the non-essential externals are magnified at the expense of the real essentials of the religious life; when the church is stone, brick, lumber, stained glass windows, sweetly chanting choir, or eloquent pulpit oration, rather than a company of true believers bound together by a spiritual affinity having its source and inspiration in Jesus Christ and sincerely endeavoring to put into practice His principles and to follow His commands of self-denial and self-sacrifice when such a deplorable substitution is made, then a condition of stiffness, staleness, and spiritual stagnation is sure to result, and the church is missing its aim.

For the church the way of triumph leads through the narrow gate of self-sacrifice. That which was the crowning glory of the Head of the Church is also the chief distinction of everyone of His disciples who together make up His Church. It was said of Him by one who served Him well: Christ Jesus is the form of God, thought it not robbery to be equal with God, but made himself of no reputation, and took upon Him the form of a servant, and was made in the likeness of men: and being found in fashion as a man, He humbled Himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross."

The church He founded must follow His inspiring example, else it will fail in its supreme purpose, and turn away from its chief oportunity. And when this is accomplished, it will speedily degenerate into a mere worldly, social organization.

The deeds of human service that glorify the life of the Savior of men must be done again daily throughout the world by those who assume to be the interpreters of the world of the Christ life. The church needs to arouse itself to the achievement of such acts as inflect in fullest measure the spirit of Jesus Christ, and add most to His glory.

NORWICH DRIVER TELLS ABOUT "TERRIBLE" SMASH

An example of how stories can be misconstrued is shown in the case of a Norwich man who was in what he terms an unavoidable accident on the Niantic road Sunday night.

An account in the New London Day of August 10th, describing the circumstances of the accident, lays particular stress on the extreme carelessness of the local man, and holds up for an example of fairness the attitude of a New London business man who was the second party in the mishap, and the one, according to the story heard here, who was to blame for the whole thing.

The New London story places the blame on the local man, stating that with a car filled with people, he dashed by the other car at a speed of 35 miles an hour, while the highway was heavy with traffic, wrecking the New London car completely, so badly that it was unable to run, the motor being wrecked, and then winds up by saying all that happened to the Norwich car was a lost hub-cap.

The Norwich end of the story sounds different. It seems that the New London car pulled out in front of the local car after the driver had heard, and acknowledged hearing the signal for passing, resulting in the Norwich car clipping the other lightly as it passed by, no one being injured. In the Norwich car were women and children. A boy seated on the top of the car was not even shaken up in the terrible smash that occurred, according to the New London story.

Another thing this story neglected to feature says the local driver was that the Norwich man on returning to the other car asked the driver for his license and was told to "go to the D——"

The New London car, which according to the story had its engine wrecked and fenders and dashboard ripped off, in fact, converted into a complete wreck, was driven away under its own power, and was not overtaken by the local car until very nearly into the city of New London, a distance of about 4 miles.

State police officers examined the Norwich car, according to the owner, finding the damage as stated above, consisting of a lost hub cap, no other marks appearing on the car.

As the New London men did not wait for the state police officers with his car said to be "wrecked," no examination was made and the Norwich people who examined it before it left the scene of the accident said there was no visible damage, according to the local driver.

Where the story about borrowed markers was hatched up, the Norwich may says he doesn't know. The court brought out the fact that the markers were his own but should not have been on the car, pending the return of the transfer applied for.

The New London man, who is a banker, brought charges of reckless driving against the local man and wanted several hundred dollars damages. When this was refused the reckless driving charge was pressed and the limit given in fines on both charges despite the fact that the state police did not press either charge, the Norwich driver says.

The local man appealed furnishing a bond of $400.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Alfred T. Ramage.

After a lingering illness the long and model life of Lucy A. Brown, beloved wife of Alfred T. Ramage, came to a close Thursday night at her home in Uncasville. Mrs. Ramage was born July 8, 1845, in Uncasville, the daughter of Edwin and Mary Brown, and practically her entire life had been spent in that village. She was twice married, her first husband being John W. Capwell of Rhode Island.

January 5, 1891, she was united in marriage by the Rev. Thomas Lummis to Alfred T. Ramage, who survives her with the following children by her first marriage: Winifred S. Capwell of Attleboro Falls, Mass.; Mrs. Hadley G. Gray of North Franklin; and John W. Capwell of Quaker Hill. There are three grandchildren, Mrs. George H. Walker of Willimantic, Miss Ethel Wood of Boston, and Robert Capwell of Quaker Hill; also one great-grandchild, Albert J. Sweet of Moosup, one brother, Henry Brown of New York and three sisters, Mrs. Mary Monroe and Mrs. Susan Lewis, both of Norwich, and Mrs. Emma Mitchell of Central Village.

Mrs. Ramage was a loving wife and mother and a true friend. Her home was always open to her friends and they often gathered there for social times. In her trying illness she was patient and although she suffered long there was no word of complaint and her first thought was always of others.

James Curtin.

After an illness of two months the life of James Curtin came to a close Thursday night at his home in Stonington. Mr. Curtin was born in Ireland 76 years ago but had made his home in Stonington, where he was engaged as caretaker on private estate. He was married in Stonington to Miss Ellen McKernan, who died about 14 years ago. Surviving are one son, John Curtin of Derby; three daughters, Mrs. Edward Kinney of Mystic, Mrs. John Kennedy of Norwich, and Miss Margaret Curtin who lived at home. There are also four grandchildren and several nephews and nieces.

He was a member of St. Mary's parish and was also connected with the Workmen's society and the K. of C.

FUNERAL.

Mrs. Emma Gottstein.

Funeral services for Mrs. Emma Gottstein were held Friday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from the parlors of Church & Allen, relatives and friends attending. There were many floral tributes.

The service was conducted by Rev. Joseph H. Cobb of South Windham, who also read the committal service at the grave in Maplewood cemetery. The bearers were Frank M. Green, Louis and Fred Miller and William Mitchell.

Mrs. James McCarthy.

Funeral services for Mrs. James McCarthy were held Friday morning from the parlors of M. V. Murphy on Main street, relatives and friends attending from Maryland, Hartford, Lebanon and other places.

Requiem mass was celebrated at St. Mary's Memorial church by Rev. Frederick M. Cohoian and Henry LaFontaine presided at the organ. Burial was in the family lot in St. Mary's cemetery where Rev. William A. Keefe read a committal service. The bearers were William Weldon, John P. Corcoran, William H. Bresnahan, William Healey, John P. Flynn and William J. Haggerty.

JORDAN BROTHERS, COMPOSERS, SPEND VACATION TOGETHER

Julian Jordan, author of the famous ballad, The Song That Reached My Heart, has been visiting his twin brother, Dr. Jules Jordan, of Providence; the brothers are of an old Windham family.

It was an interesting fact during the week that when the returns from their publishers chanced to come in, The Song That Reached My Heart had brought the greatest revenue to Julian Jordan, while his receipts were surpassed a trifle by those of his brother Dr. Jules Jordan, because of the increasing sales of the latter's beautiful setting to Ave Maria. This favorite hymn was written by Dr. Jordan for a Willimantic singer, one of his pupils, who was a member of a choir in some Hartford Catholic church, and no later compositions have ever been able to displace it from the favor of organists and choirs.

Two Go to Jail.

Two men faced Judge Libby in police court Friday morning, one from Cleveland, O., the other from Montville. Both were charged with intoxication and were given fines plus costs. Neither could pay and they went to jail.

A breach of the peace case was adjusted without trial.

At Haughton's Cove.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kelley and son Harry, Jr., of Northampton, Mass., are guests for a few weeks of Mr. Kelley's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kelley of Haughton's cove, formerly of Norwich. Harry Kelly is assistant to the chief of police of Northampton, having formerly been sergeant on the force.

Small Chimney Fire.

The fire department answered a call Thursday at 12.32 p. m., for a small chimney fire at 11 White's court. The blaze was extinguished with chemical

BUSINESS HALTS WHILE NORWICH PAYS TRIBUTE TO PRESIDENT HARDING

Never in the history of Norwich has there been such a complete cessation of business as occurred Friday when the people of the city, town, rich and poor, paid tribute to President Warren G. Harding. The wheels of industry were silent, business houses and stores were closed and social functions were cancelled as a mark of respect to the memory of a beloved leader of a great nation. It was truly a day of mourning.

Throughout the afternoon and especially at the hour of the funeral services at the president's former home in Marion, Ohio, silence prevailed. Even seven day a week restaurants and fruit stores closed their doors for at least an hour, as the last and sad rites were being said as the president's body was laid away in a vault at Marion.

During the day only necessary work was undertaken. The majority of the manufacturing plants remained closed the entire day, others shutting down at noon. Business houses and stores in general closed at noon while drug stores, candy and fruit stores closed from three to four o'clock. All trolleys on the Connecticut Company's lines, local and suburban, came to a standstill at 5 o'clock for a period of five minutes and at the same hour all telephone service was suspended for one minute while the operators stood in front of their switchboards with bowed heads. All except necessary work was suspended on the New Haven road and wherever possible the road employes observed a two minute period of silence at 4 o'clock (s. t.).

The main entrance to the courthouse was draped in black and at four o'clock (d. s. t.) the court house bell was tolled.

MEMORIAL SERVICE AT UNITED CONG. CHURCH

The reverance of a united people, met together in sorrow to pay homage, was never greater than that shown Friday afternoon at the United Congregational church, when people of all denominations of the city gathered for a memorial service for President Warren G. Harding.

As the bell in the tower of the court house tolled the hour of three there came out from the stillness the first strains of the Funeral March, by Chopin. Immediately the organ sent forth its message under the capable touch of Organist F. W. Lester, every head was bowed and not a sound was audible save the sad music of the funeral march.

Watching over the heads of the people were the eyes of President Harding whose portrait stood in front of the pulpit, surrounded by a huge wreath of laurel, the background being the Stars and Stripes, the flag of the nation for which he has given all that man can give.

As the music died away Rev. G. B. McDonald pastor of The Third Baptist church, delivered the invocation, following which the proclamation of President Calvin Coolidge was read by Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, pastor of the First Congregational church, Norwich Town.

The congregation then stood and joined in singing the hymn, O God, Our Help in Ages Past, the same hymn that was sung by a similar gathering at the United Congregational church at memorial services held for President William H. McKinley. The 90th Psalm was read by Rabbi Joseph N. Rosenberg of the Brothers of Joseph Synagogue.

Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of Central Baptist church, previous to leading the congregation in prayer, made a brief address in which he voiced the opinion of the committee in charge of the memorial service, that it was no time for eulogies on President Harding. The life of the president, who is now departed from us, he said, is to all of us, an open book and his worth to the nation is known to all. No address would be fitting at this hour, said Rev. Dr. Pitt. We are gathered here for worship and to unite with loyal citizens all over our land in appealing to Almighty God for one who was loved by a nation, for the guidance of the new president, the nation, and for ourselves.

All heads were bowed as Rev. Dr. Pitt led in prayer and there were many eyes dimmed with tears, none ashamed to show a feeling that is universal. In part the prayer was as follows:

Oh, Thou, that hearest prayers, unto Thee shall flesh come, in the hour when all look to Thee. Thy chastening hand is upon us, but we believe now, as always, it is for our good. We are come to pray that the people be more ready to hear what the Lord has to say to us; we come to express our thanksgiving and gratitude for this good man, his integrity of character, his gentle spirit, his devotion to country, devotion and sympathy of purpose that came to him with the passing years. We pray that there may be a vow registered in Heaven this day by the nation that the ideals of this man be cherished even as he cherished them unto death. Blessed are the peacemakers for they are the children of God. We bless Thee for this peacemaker, more and more may this country cherish his high ideals until the day when brotherhood shall prevail. We come to ask for Thy blessing on President Coolidge and all who are associated with him, strengthen his body, grant him great wisdom, patience and courage.

May Thy grace be with the president, also upon us that we might prove more loyal citizens in the coming days than we have been in the past. Though we have not been loyal in support in the past, forgive us this, and let us realize the great task our country asks of its president; show us how we may make it easier and make the unity of spirit manifest in us. Abide with the new president and with us, make us above parties, teach us of love of country and flag; may there be a new unity of character, support of our officers, a new loyalty to our country and flag, oh, Lord of Hosts, lest we forget, lest we forget.

We bless Thee that Thy grace has been sufficient so far, we pray that it might continue to the end, fill the minds of those afflicted with happy, holy memories of his devotion to his home, to wife, and things that are sacred, that his might more and more characterize us all, and trust in Him who was dead and yet alive for ever more. Amen.

At the close of the prayer, Lead, Kindly Light, one of the favorite hymns of President Harding, was sung in unison after which Rev. Richard R. Graham, rector of Christ Episcopal church, read the First Epistle of Corinthians, the 15th chapter.

The memorial service came to a close shortly before 4 o'clock when Rev. Dr. Pitt gave the benediction, after which all remained seated, with heads bowed as Organist Lester softly played the touching measures of the Dead March in Saul, by Handel.

Without signal the congregation filed slowly from the church in silence, the spirit of the service remaining in their memory still, as fitting homage to one who gave much and received little, yet gained all in death; the love and esteem of a stricken nation.

Assembled at the church Friday afternoon were members of the city government, headed by Mayor Milo R. Waters, who occupied seats in the front of the church; employes of the United States post office, members of various civic bodies, members of fraternal organizations and societies.

St. Patrick's Church

At 7 o'clock Friday morning members of St. Patrick's parish gathered in the church when Rev. M. H. May conducted a special mass and delivered an eulogy of President Harding. Father May requested that members of the parish pray for the divine guidance of President Calvin Coolidge.

At four o'clock in the afternoon the bell in the tower was tolled in memory of the late president.

St. Mary's Memorial Church

At St. Mary's Memorial church at 7.30 o'clock Friday morning prayers were offered with a mass for the late president and spiritual guidance of the nation under President Coolidge. Every morning during the week Father Keefe has offered public prayers for the late president and his successor in guilding the public affairs of this great nation.

The mass vestments were red in color, the day being one of the great feast days in the church calendar—St. Lawrence, martyr.

German Lutheran Church

At 10.20 o'clock Friday morning Rev. Herman Munzinger, pastor of the First German Lutheran church, conducted a memorial service in honor of the late president and delivered an eulogy of President Harding requesting that the members of the church follow in his footsteps aiming to carry out the high ideals for which he stood. There was special music and the entire service was carried out in German.

Christian Science Service

The Christian Science society met Friday morning at 10.45 o'clock in room 215 Thayer building and held a memorial service, the same as was carried out in memory of President William H. McKinley. The program was as follows: Hymn, Shepherd, Show Me How to Go, by Mrs. Eddy; Scripture, Corelative Passages from Science and Health; Lord's Prayer; hymn, Lead Kindly Light; President Coolidge's proclamation; reading, Editorial from Christian Science Herald; hymn, Nearer, My God to Thee; The Scientific Statement of Being; reading, first three verses of 1st John, 3rd chapter; benediction.

Grace Church, Yantic

Memorial services were held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Grace Episcopal church, Yantic, for President Harding, the service opening when the choir rendered, Lead Kindly Light. The programme was as follows: Reading of 23rd Psalm, by Rev. Robert B. Day; scripture, 1st Cor., by Rev. William T. Hanna; hymn, God of the Living; prayer, Rev. Mr. Day; Dead March from Saul, by Organist Robert W. Otis; prayer of the Nation, Rev. Mr. Day; benediction. The service closed as the choir left the edifice singing Abide With Me.

Park Church Chimes

Park church chimes, played by Ebenezer Learned, rang out into the afternoon air Friday the strains of the favorite hymns of the late president. The musical programme was as follows: Lead Kindly Light, Nearer, My God to Thee, My Faith Looks Up to Thee, Jesus, Lover of My Soul, Abide With Me and America.

Brothers of Joseph Synagogue

Members of the Brothers of Joseph synagogue assembled at their place of worship at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon when Rabbi Joseph N. Rosenberg gave an eulogy of President Harding and read the 90th and 91st Psalms. Rabbi Samuel Jacobson, cantor of the synagogue sang the memorial prayer after which the congregation bowed for several minutes of silent prayer.

High Street Synagogue

At 6.30 o'clock Friday morning the High street synagogue was filled with members of the congregation assembled to pay final tribute to the late president. The programme comprised prayers, the reading of Psalms 90 and 91. The memorial address by Rabbi Max Stamm was as follows:

We have gathered here today to pay our tribute to our beloved president, the late Warren G. Harding. We have assembled here—not only as Jews—but above all as American citizens. Today there is no distinction between race or creed—New or non-Jew. There is no distinction between political parties. We are all Americans—and we stand with bowed heads and broken hearts—hearts filled with sorrow and pain at the great loss that our nation has sustained in the passing of President Harding.

Warren G. Harding gave his life for the fulfillment of his ideals and convictions. To service his nation and his fellow citizens and to aid the European world in the struggle for Light —these were his ideals. For the past few years the whole world has been looking towards America for the solving of the world's problems, and this service President Harding aimed to give to a suffering and distressed world.

President Harding died in the midst of his noble work, and because of this we are overwhelmed with grief at his untimely death.

As Jews—the name of President Harding will be reverred amongst us universally. His name shall be inscribed in golden letters in our history. Our people do not forget their benefactors. That the Jewish nation had a devoted friend in President Harding, there is no doubt. He expressed sympathy and approval of our aim to establish a Jewish homeland in Palestine, by signing Senator Lodge's and Congressman Fish's resolutions favoring a Jewish homeland. Our great Jewish leaders Weezman and Sokolow, who are now at the World Zionist Congress at Carlsbad, interviewed our late president while in Washington, and in recalling that interview we find that our leaders saw in Harding, not only a friend of the Jewish people, but of all humanity.

And because of the greatness of this man and the nobleness of his soul, we mourn for him. Our hearts are filled with deepest sympathy for his bereaved wife and aged father. We pray that the All Merciful Father may comfort them in their sorrow, and that they may take courage and strength in the fact that he gave his all in the service of his country and of humanity.

Rock Nook Children's Home

At the Rock Nook Children's Home, there are 34 children just now ranging in age from eight months to eight years. Friday afternoon, in observance of national mourning day, the older children raised the flag and saluted it, then recited President Harding's plea to be truthful, fair and clean. The hymn, Nearer, My God to Thee was read to them and the older children spent some time for the remainder of the afternoon learning the stanzas.

HELD IMPRESSIVE SERVICE ON STEAMER NELSECO

While the steamer Nelseco was returning Friday afternoon from Block Island, Captain Quarry suggested to two Catholic priests who were passengers, that a memorial service for President Warren G. Harding be held on board. Passengers gathered on the after deck and at 3 o'clock a short service was held, hymns were sung and everyone joined in a moment of silent prayer. At the close of the service blasts on the whistle gave a salute to the dead.

The service was most impressive, according to Arthur Lathrop of this city, who was aboard at the time.

ECZEMA ON FACE IN PIMPLES

Itched Terribly. Could Not Sleep. Cuticura Healed.

"I had a severe case of eczema. It broke out in watery pimples on my face and itched terribly. I could not sleep at night because of the irritation, and when I scratched sore eruptions formed. My face was disfigured. The trouble lasted about six weeks.

"I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after the fourth application I got relief. I continued using them and now I am completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. Rose E. MacLeod, R. F. D. 1, Perkinsville, Vt., Dec. 14, 1922.

MEMORIAL TABLET AT CHELSEA PARADE COMPLETED

The erection of the memorial tablet at Chelsea Parade for the soldiers, sailors and marines who went from Norwich to the World war has been completed by the contractors and will, in all probability, be accepted in the near future by the committee in charge of which Shepherd B. Palmer is chairman. The tablet has been erected by the town of Norwich, in accordance with a vote passed at the town meeting some months ago.

On the bronze plates are approximately 1,600 names of Norwich men who served the country during the war. The curbing has been built about the lot on which the tablet stands and the finishing touches are now being put on the lot itself.

Plans for the dedication of the memorial have not yet been announced by the committee.

SADLY INJURED UNDER WHEELS OF AUTOMOBILE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Aug. 10.—John J. Donohue, of Bank street, employed by the state highway department, is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital as a result of sustaining probable fatal injuries this afternoon when an automobile in which he had been riding ran over him. Donohue, who is 27 years of age and whose home is in Voluntown, has internal injuries consisting of several fractured ribs and there is a possibility that his back is broken. At the hospital this evening it was stated that the victim's condition was critical. Donohue and George Hastings, of Niantic, the latter a foreman in the employ of the department were at the highway of the Rope Ferry Bridge, Niantic in an automobile. When a defect occurred to the machine Hastings remained at the wheel while Donohue alighted to endeavor to make repairs. The defect existed at the rear of the car, which was standing on a grade and while Donohue knelt to endeavor to repair the cause of the trouble the machine suddenly got in motion and before Donohue could get out of the way of the wheels, he was pinned to the highway and run over. Hastings hastened to Donohue's assistance and it was observed at once that the young man was terribly injured. Medical treatment was obtained for Donohue, after which he was rushed to the hospital. Donohue is married and has two children. The victim is indeed unfortunate, for about two months ago he was run over by an automobile and had not fully recovered the use of one of his limbs when he sustained more serious injuries today.

ICE CREAM FOR PATIENTS AT TUBERCULOSIS SANATORIUM

The local branch of the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women went to the Norwich State Tuberculosis Sanatorium Thursday afternoon and distributed ice cream among the patients and staff at the institution. The gifts were appreciated by the people at the hospital. The committee in charge was headed by Miss Sadie Driscoll.

Summer School Closes

The state board of education summer school at Yale University closed its twentieth year Thursday a day earlier than usual on account of the day of mourning for President Harding. The school is primarily for teachers and educators and, with 1020 students enrolled, it has experienced its largest and most successful season.

MRS. LINDQUIST TELLS WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did for Her

Kansas City, Mo.—"I was left in a very serious condition after childbirth and no one thought I could ever be any better. Then came the 'Change of Life' and I was not prepared for what I had to suffer. I had to go to bed at times to be perfectly quiet as I could not even stoop down to pick anything from the floor. I did not suffer any pain, but I was decidedly nervous and could not sleep. For nearly two years I was this way, and the doctor was frank enough to tell me that he could do no more for me. Shortly after this I happened to see in a newspaper an advertisement of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. In a few days the medicine was in the house and I had begun its use and I took it regularly until I was well. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to others when I have the opportunity."—Mrs. MAY LINDQUIST, 2814 Independence Ave., Kansas City, Mo.

Norwich Market Growers' Ass'n

It is not without good reasons that the medical profession advise the liberal use of fresh vegetables and fruit during the summer months rather than a heavier diet which might be suitable in winter; they know that the vegetable and fruit juices are beneficial to the system, keeping the blood in good condition, making digestion easier and acting as a general tonic. But the value of vegetables in the diet depends much upon their degree of freshness; wilted, stale or partly decayed vegetables never recommended by doctors for human food, they always specify "fresh vegetables" and they know.

The local growers are bringing to market, daily, loads of farm and garden produce that answer fully all requirements and which can be used freely, with safety.

Guest at Party.

Evan Boucher of this city was a guest at a party given by Mrs. Albert C. Caracausa of New London at the summer home of her mother, Mrs. N. A. Charpier at Ocean Beach Thursday in honor of the second birthday anniversary of her son. An afternoon of games and music were enjoyed by the 30 children present after which refreshments were served.

Recovered Lost Fur.

A woman who occupied a seat in the grandstand at the fairgrounds on Thursday while the Bay State Circuit races were being run off, lost a valuable fur piece and did not discover her loss for about an hour. Later she returned and was overjoyed when a local girl who had found the fur piece, returned it to her, declining a substantial reward.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

A very impressive memorial service in honor of President Harding was held in the Orpheum Theatre Friday noon. The President's Proclamation was read by A. L. Reed, president of the Danielson Chamber of Commerce, and the Proclamation of Governor Templeton was read by Arthur Rainville, commander of Leo J. L'Homme post of the American Legion. The hymn, "How Firm a Foundation" was sung by a quartet, Earl Winslow, Henry A. McEwen, John T. Ashworth, and A. P. Burns. Scripture reading by Mrs. Edith Jordan, president of the W. R. C., was followed by prayer by Rev. J. W. Houck. Attorney Elbert L. Darbie, eulogized President Harding. He particularly emphasized the president's constant desire to help others and his great love for his fellow countrymen. After M. Darbie's speech "America" was softly sung by the assemblage. The benediction was pronounced by Rev. Almer F. Gallup and the simple service in memory of a great man was over.

The case of Elmer Caffey, better known as Casey, charged with taking an automobile without the owner's permission, was continued to this Saturday mroning. Caffey, it is alleged asked Ambrose Purosio, of Brooklyn Tuesday morning for the use of his Ford touring car to go to the Day Kimball hospital, in Putnam. Permission was granted Caffey, but after returning to Purosio's home Caffey again took the car without its owner's permission, and did not return till late at night. Caffey was later arrested by State Police officers and was given a hearing.

An airplane was seen flying over the northern part of the borough Friday afternoon. The plane was flying in the direction of Providence and was going at a high rate of speed.

Forty-one boys from Camp Utopia, South Woodstock, encamped for the night Thursday at the tourists' camp ground in the rear of the home of Glen Lyon on Main Street. The boys, whose ages ran from eight to twelve, had hiked down from South Woodstock to Danielson Thursday. The lads returned to Utopia Friday. About a week ago forty-five girls in charge of six counsellors, took the same hike as the boys. The girls cooked their meals on the campground and returned to South Woodstock the following day. These hikes are part of a schedule worked out by the camp leaders to give the youngsters a chance to learn life out of doors, and at the same time provide plenty of amusement for them.

L. F. Comstock, who has been an officer at the State Police barracks in Groton, has been transferred to the Danielson barracks.

Automobile traffic was exceptionally heavy Friday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. G. Bailey and family, and their guest, Miss Lucy Farrows of Putnam, spent Friday afternoon at Columbia Lake.

Many from here will go to Wildwood park Sunday afternoon to hear the concert by the Wauregan band. And in speaking of band concerts one might mention that there has not yet been any bandstand at Davis park this year.

The body of Albert Hopkins, 21, who was drowned while in swimming with two companions from the Cheshire reformatory, will be brought to his home in Brooklyn for burial.

PUTNAM

All mills in the city were silent all day Friday. At noon, every business house in the city closed its doors. The flags on public and private buildings were at half mast and draped in mourning.

The memorial observance was carried out in accordance with the recommendation of the citizens' committee and the proclamation of Mayor Victor Chapdelaine. At ten minutes of five o'clock all the bells in the city tolled for three minutes. When the echoes of the last strokes had died away there was a firing of a salute and taps was sounded. During this period all traffic ceased and the people halted, men removed their hats and all remained with bowed heads until the sound of the bugles had ceased.

Three persons were resting comfortably in Day Kimball hospital Friday morning where they had spent the night after being in an automobile accident at the foot of Hickey Hill in the town of Pomfret. The car that figured in the mishap was driven by Henry Lis, of Danielson, and at the foot of the steep hill skidded and turned completely over and smashed. Lis received internal injuries, a twisted kneecap and abrasions about the head and face. Other occupants of the car received cuts and bruises. All were taken to the hospital by a passing automobilist after a doctor had been summoned and first aid rendered.

Superintendent of Schools, Ralph C. Jenkins, has announced the appointment of Miss Agnes M. Young as teacher of the eighth grade at the Putnam high school building. Miss Young is a graduate of the Maine normal school and has been teaching in the Junior High school at East Surry, Me.

The state highway department is to build a new piece of macadam road beginning at the Grove Street cemetery and extending southward a distance of two or three miles.

By a deal just consummated Hyde Smith of Worcester, and Jacob Alpert of Putnam, lessees and managers of the Bradley and Victory theatres, have become lessees of a chain of theatres extending to Danielson and Rockville. It is the intention of the new owners to incorporate under the name S-A Amusement Company. This company, besides conducting the two Putnam theatres will have the Orpheum theatre, Danielson, with a seating capaciay of 735; the Palace theatre, Rockville, seating 750. With a long term lease on the Majestic theatre in Danielson, complete control of the theatre situatino in that borough is gained. The two properties, Orpheum, Danielson and Palace Rockville, have been purchased outright. The theatres will all be closed for a brief period for renovation, improvement and repairs and will reopen with moving pictures and legitimate stage shows when good bookings are available. The bookings of all attractions will be in the hands of Mr. Smith while Mr. Albert will have the general management of all theatres. The headquarters of the corporation will be in Putnam.

There has been another important change in the personnel of the management of the Manhasset Manufacturing Company in the retirement of William M. Vermilye, who was elected treasurer of the concern after a period of prosperity followed by the depression. Mr. Vermilye was chosen treasurer by the joint committee of seven members representing the creditors, cotton and yarn interests and a group of banks closely identified with the company in its present situation. Mr. Vermilye is an officer of the National City Bank of New York. It has been reported that his salary as treasurer of the Manhasset Company was $25,000 a year. His successor has not been appointed.

Mrs. Katherine Johnson, wife of John Johnson, of Brandy Hill, Thompson, died at an early hour, Friday morning at the Day Kimball hospital. As told in the Bulletin Wednesday, Mrs. Johnson received internal injuries while trying to salvage furniture Tuesday afternoon when the house of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Withey, neighbors, caught fire from a burning barn. Mrs. Johnson stumbled and fell against a stone step suffering such severe injury that an operation was performed at once and she was placed on the danger list.

Striking operatives of the Manhasset Manufacturing Company held their second outdoor meeting, Thursday evening, but on account of the condition of mourning for the president the meeting was brief. The gathering was addressed by Secretary John P. O'Connell and A. J. Gauthier, secretary of the Connecticut Council. Secretary O'Connell left Friday morning for Philadelphia to attend a national meeting of textile workers' organizations where a plan to put all the organizations under one head to be affiliated with the American Federation of Labor will come before the meeting.

Richard M. Holmes, grandson of Mrs. A. W. Macdonald, and a frequent visitor of Putnam, Thursday completed his studies at Clark College, Worcester, and received the dearee of bachelor of arts. Mr. Holmes was to have graduated in June, but illness this spring made it necessary for him to lose six weeks of class work. He was at the Day Kimball hospital here for part of that time. Since June he has been at the Clark summer school, and now has completed the requirements for his degree.

Sunday afternoon at Wildwood park a public concert is to be given by the Wauregan band.

Alderman and Mrs. Eugene Berthiaume, Alderman and Mrs. Adolph Desjardin and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Levigne are on an automobile trip through New York state, heading north from Detroit to Saratoga, Montreal and Quebec. They will return home by way of the Mohawk trail, covering in all about 1200 miles.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Smith, Mrs. G. W. Holt of Putnam, and Mrs. William Vaughan of Greeneville, N. C., motored to Uxbridge, Thursday afternoon to call on Miss Mary Wheelock, who is visiting in Uxbridge.

Employes of the Putnam Manufacturing Company have collected $20.20 to add to the fund for Wilfred Benoit who recently lost his right leg in a collision between his motorcycle and an automobile.

Packard Single-Eight Sedan

PACKARD

Single-Eight Principles New to Eight-Cylinder Engineering

PACKARD SINGLE-EIGHT—companion of Packard Single-Six—carries power to its extremest possibilities—with all the luxury of travel such an over-abundance of power implies.

Packard Single-Eight is a demonstration of Packard's long cherished conviction that it was entirely possible to combine the phenomenal performance demanded by the exacting few with the ease and economy of maintenance which characterizes the Single-Six.

Packard Single-Eight is successor to the Twin-Six—and superior to any car on the market by reason of the lessons learned from the success of the Single-Six.

The Single-Eight has been three years in the making,—and has profited by the splendid qualities of the Single-Six, applying them to another sphere of power, and developing in that sphere principles new to eight-cylinder engineering.

Superseding the V-type principle and departing from conventional eight-in-line design, the Packard Single-Eight has entirely escaped the penalty of vibration these practices have always entailed, and attained a perfection of balance without precedent.

Packard Single-Eight demonstrates an ample margin of superiority over any car in the world—revealing a degree of acceleration and deceleration, smoothness and control, nothing short of phenomenal.

All of this the Packard Single-Eight will reveal almost immediately to the one who sits behind the wheel, disclosing at the same time an elemental simplicity only comparable to the clean-cut design of its companion car—the Single-Six.

JEWETT CITY

Friday in the borough was a day given over to universal expression of sorrow. The services at St. Mary's church in the morning were largely attended. A votive high mass was celebrated by the pastor, Rev. John J. McCabe. Prayers were offered for those who guard our political welfare, that there might be a faithful execution of the laws of the land. A special blessing was asked for the president, and for the governor of our Commonwealth.

An impressive public service was held at the Congregational church at 4 p. m. Over 200 gathered to give expression to their sorrow.

The choir-loft railing was curtained with black and bordered with festoons of black and white. Above the organ bench a picture of President Harding was placed. It was bordered in black and white with rosettes of the same at each corner and black and white festoons extended to the choir loft lights. White hydrangeas were placed around the picture. The communion table held a beautiful bouquet of white phlox. The tolling of the bells was followed by a funeral prelude in D Minor, A. Chauvert, impressively played by F. S. Leonard. Rev. S. Stephenson, pastor of the church, made the invocation which was followed by the Lord's prayer in unison. Abide With Me was sung by the congregation, led by a choir representing the three churches. Arthur M. Brown read President Coolidge's proclamation with a solemnity bringing out its full meaning. Mr. Stephenson read for the Scripture the passage which the president kissed when he took his oath of office. He offered prayer, which was followed by Lead Kindly Light, gently and tenderly sung by William Dealtrey.

In his memorial paper Rev. Mr. Stephenson said the feeling of sadness that has pervaded the land at this time is somewhat akin to that feeling which swept over the nation at the time of Lincoln's death. Every detail of that journey from the far Pacific to the Atlantic seaboard, has been watched with eager interest and deep sympathy. The speaker called attention to the unprecedented incidents all along the 3,000 miles and said: "One impulse moved the nation like a great tidal wave, the deep sense of our bereavement was seen in men of all walks of life. In this event we have seen the real bond that marks our native one, our sorrow knows no East nor West, North nor South.

The president's life is an open book, it has been read by every one here present. He had many outstanding traits of character, which have impressed all who came under his influence. He spoke of the great tasks of reconstruction which faced Mr. Harding when he became president, and related incidents of his life, including scenes in the editorial rooms of the Marion Star, as well as experiences he was called upon to face in dealing with the problems of a nation.

On earth peace and good will toward men, were almost his last works. Thus we believe he lived, and thus he died in the midst of life and its greatest achievements. And so he passed over, and all the trumpets sounded for him on the other side.

The speaker closed with the poem, "A Prayer," by John Drinkwater.

The closing hymn was Nearer, My God to Thee. The singing of the hymns was an especially touching part of the service, so expressive was the combined unity of voices. The benediction was followed by the Dead March in Saul, Handel, a fitting close to the service. The decorations were made possible by the Aspinook and Textile Novelty plants which furnished the materials; Mrs. E. A. Faust and Mrs. T. A. Rioux gave the flowers; Mrs. E. H. Hiscox and Miss Ida I. Foster decorated the church.

At 4 o'clock, standard time, Andrew Chesboro, in Pachaug, tolled the First Congregational church bell.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Hildreth and Daughter, Marion, of Brattleboro, Vt., Mrs. John E. Cassin of Hanover, N. H., and Miss Pulia Cheney of Jamaica, Vt., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Cheney.

Dr. F. E. Rainville and family are at home after a three weeks' trip to Canada, New York state and Vermont.

The ice man reports that the gentlemen who separated his pitch fork and other tools from the icehouse the other night, has benefited by carefully directed advice and has returned same O. K.

Several big trucks loaded with race horses bound for Readville, Mass., passed through the borough Friday morning.

Mrs. G. A. Haskell entertained Friday her cousins, Lillian Maryott White and Helen Elizabeth White, also Charles Herbert White, Frank Manning White and Mrs. Mary White Griffiths, of North Attleboro, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Embert Nash have returned to Chicopee Falls, after a visit with Mrs. Nash's sister, Mrs. George Seymour.

The Baptist Sunday school holds its annual picnic on the banks of the Quinebaug river on the Bennett farm this (Saturday) afternoon. The first truck leaves the church at one o'clock daylight time.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Anthony and family spent Friday in Fall River.

COLCHESTER

Friday all business was suspended from 2 o'clock p. m. until 4, during the funeral services of President Harding. The people of the community assembled on the park at 3 o'clock when services were held. The Old Guard band played and local clergy addressed the assemblage. All flags were at at half mast.

Samuel Robinson and party of Hartford were in town Wednesday.

Charles F. Brown was in Norwich Wednesday.

The case of the state vs. Obed Walwork of Hartford for reckless driving was tried before Justice F. E. Baker in Grange hall Wednesday evening. Charles F. Brown was prosecutor. The accused was found guilty and fined twenty-five dollars and costs of $17.02, which was paid. State Policeman F. W. Brandt made the arrest.

A special memorial service was held in the Congregational church Friday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock. The service was short the congregation going to the park where the community services were held. Rev. W. O. Berckman conducted the church service.

GALES FERRY

Saturday was Market Day for the Gales Ferry library, under the direction of the library committee, Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham, Mrs. Emma S. Bennett, Mrs. M. C. Watrous and Mrs. Grace E. Povey. It was a sale of vegetables and food from 10 o'clock, held in the summer house on the lawn of Nolen B. Allyn, vegetables and food being donated for the benefit of the library. Those in charge of the vegetables were Mrs. Joseph DeRusha, Mrs. J. A. Birch and Miss Povey. Those at the food table were Mrs. Allen S. Bush, Mrs. Buckingham and Mrs. Stephen Norman.

In the Methodist church Sunday morning Rev. Allen Shaw Bush conducted the services and took his text from John 21:5—Children, have ye any meat? At the offertory Mrs. Frank Roy Hurlbutt of Charleston, W. V., sang O. Divine Redeemer, by Gounod. At the Sunday evening service at 7 o'clock a candle service entitled, The Light of the World, was given by nine young women in white gowns with silver girdles and headbands. Frank Roy Hurlbutt, organist of a church in Charleston, W. V., was at the organ, and accompanied Mrs. Hurlbutt, when she sang Open the Gates, by Knapp. This service preceded the pantomime, "Oh! Zion Haste," given some weeks ago, and repeated by request by the young women.

Mrs. Monett B. Lawson was soloist for this and Miss Alice Satterlee organist. The offering was for the Epworth League.

Rev. W. D. Woodward, pastor of the M. E. church of the village preached at Trinity Methodist church, Norwich, Sunday, in the absence of Rev. Harlow Graham, on vacation. Rev. Mr. Woodward spoke in the church at Gardner Lake in the afternoon.

John McWilliams of Norwich was the guest of Rev. and Mrs. Allen S. Bush Sunday.

Mrs. O. D. Smith, of Troy, N. Y. has opened the cottage, Leisure Hour, on the Bluff, for the month and members of her family will join her there.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Ashbey of Norwich, who spent July at their cottage have returned home and their cottage has been taken by Dr. Harrison Gray, of Norwich, for August.

Attorney and Mrs. Frank Roy Hurlbutt, with their two young sons of Charleston, W. V., who are spending their vacation, touring in New England, left the home of Mrs. Ellie B. Stoddard, where they have been guests, Monday morning, for Narragansett Pier. Mr. Hurlbutt's early boyhood home was at Gales Ferry and the family lived here many years.

Between 5,000 and 6,000 motor vehicles of all kinds will probably be imported into South Africa this year.

NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Sailing trips in the sound and baseball games gave local sports plenty of action in Norwich in 1873.

The week was unusually cool for August but was welcomed after sweltering days in July.

Monday, August 4, 1873—A painful accident occurred on the West Side Saturday afternoon when a five year old daughter of Mrs. Connelly fell from the back step of an ice cart and the rear wheel passed over her.

The right arm was broken near the shoulder and the wheel passed over the right foot from toe to heel in such a manner that the foot was split for nearly its entire length and all bones were broken. Dr. Cassidy set the bones and hopes to save the leg. Mrs. Connelly is a widow, her husband having been killed about 15 months ago.

A large crowd saw the billiard games Saturday at Foster when George Stone won from Foster in the American four-ball game. Stone's high run was 190 and Foster's 200. In the French caroms Foster was the winner his high run being 8 and Stone's 7.

A trial was made Saturday afternoon in front of the city hall of the new patent nozzle made by the Alden Manufacturing Company of Providence. The nozzle has a cut off, so the men can stop the flow of water, and also a sprinkler attachment. The councell is to take up the matter of purchasing several of these nozzles for the department.

A [illegible] was made for the of the council for a reservoir or better protection in case of fire.

Wednesday, August 6, 1873—The four year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Moran of Occum was burned to death yesterday morning when his clothes became ignited while he was playing with matches. A daughter, aged 5 received burns on the arms and face while trying to save her brother. Neighbors saw the fire and saved the house but were too late to save the boy from a horrible death.

Over two hundred people gathered at the Norwich & Worcester railroad company dock yesterday to watch the Norwich Sailing club start on their cruise. The band played and there was singing as the boat started down the river, towed by the tug Wallingford.

Washburne's Last Sensation will soon make its appearance in this city and pleasure-loving people await its arrival with interest.

Thursday, August 7, 1873—Philip Reilly of Plainfield who was in this city yesterday on business stepped overnight with a relative Patrick Murtha of Greeneville. During the night he was up about his room and mistaking an open window for the doorway he lost his balance and fell thirty feet to the sidewalk below. Fortunately he escaped with no bones broken, suffering only a severe shaking up.

People on Main street scattered to the four winds yesterday afternoon when they saw a husky man coming towards them with a keg of powder in his arms and a pipe in his mouth that was sparking like a locomotive. When last seen the man was still going along unconcerned puffing away at the pipe, death less than a foot away.

The new postal cards have caused some Norwich belles considerable trouble. Yesterday a local man received two of these cards securely fastened together by bands of elastic. Inside was the writing from his lady friend thanking him for the gift of the cards but stating that she preferred to write to him on something that could be hidden from sight. He sent her some envelopes by return mail.

The Pequot Mills at Montville were sold at auction yesterday to Hiram Crosby of this city for $50,250.

Friday, August 8, 1873—There is soon to be a meeting of the heavyweights of the city to make preparations to attend the Fat Man's clambake also to see Gen. Grant. The bake is to be at Gregory's Point, Norwalk.

The streets in the vicinity of the town hall are being hand embroidered by shovels, in the process of placing several new hydrants around the square.

Prof. Butterfield and the Universalist choir have gone down to Maine fishing for trout. We'll bet they will make the trout leave the country.

Many local boys, members of the Y. A. C., O. L. P. club and N. S. C. are out on the deep and reports are that they are enjoying wonderful weather and that people treat them fine wherever they land.

Saturday, August 9, 1873—Baseball is now in full swing in the city and games are scheduled today between the following local teams: Atlantics and Neverswents, Young Arctics and Roncomas of New London, Redstockings of Preston and Haymakers of Poquetanuck, Thames Club of Thamesville and Modocs of Greeneville.

Rumor is that the "Sons of Jonadab" council is to be instituted in this city when sufficient members have been received. It has been suggested that a council of Jonadab's daughters be started and then the thing will be easy, for the boys will follow the maids.

Forty-three head of cattle, mostly heavy Illinois steers from Albany came to this city yesterday. A like quantity is received nearly every week. Thirty years ago "one calf" a day supplied all Norwich.

NORWICH TOWN

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Tague and son George Tague, motored to Springfield, Mass., and spent Sunday at the home of their son-in-law, and daughter Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Ward. NEW LONDON RUNAWAYS HELD FOR THEFT OF NEW HAVEN HANDBAG

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Aug 10.—Roy Compton and Thomas Kelleher, sailors on a United States ship in the harbor, came close to going to jail as today when presented in the police court for the theft of a traveling bag from an automobile in front of the Crocker house. The bag was the property of W. N. Maxson, a travelling salesman and was left by him in an auto while he was in the hotel. The sailors straggling about and well under the influence of liquor, saw the bag, took advantage of the chance and made way with the grip. It was missed in a few minutes when Maxson returned to his car, and he notified the police. The display of a red light on the signal post on State street put Patrolman George Perkins in to hunt for the thief. He remembered that a few minutes before he saw a couple of tars rolling through Golden street and the fact that they had a traveling bag covered with stickers indicated that the bag had been used in travel. When advised of the theft he hunted up the sailors and he found them still in the possession of the bag. He arrested them. The sailors could give no reason for their possession of the bag. Judge Prince when the men were presented in court this morning fined them $10 each. They managed to scrape together the money to pay their fines and the costs and were released.

For a generation, the place at 29 Potter street was conducted as one of the most orderly and well managed in the city. A year or so ago it was sold and then the lower flor was rented to Salvatore Machrino. Police Sergeant Hick, with Patrolman Philopena and Prohibition Enforcement Agents Fitzpatrick and Avery went to the place last night and through a side window saw that business was being carried on there. They waited awhile and then made a hasty entrance to find William Smith pouring liquor from a bottle. As the officers entered Smith broke the bottle and evidence of what he was doing was destroyed. Macchrino was engaged in the same occupation, the officers said. Hick grabbed his arm and he endeavored to do as Smithy had done and the bottle and its contents were saved. The pair was arrested. In the police court they were represented by an attorney who demurred to the complaint. This was overruled and as it was the second offense for Macchrino he was held in $1,000 bonds for trial in the superior court in September. This is the first case of the sort to be sent to the higher court. Macchrino furnished a bond.

Bridget Chinitzky, was sent to jail for thirty days for intoxication. She was on Douglass street doing a skirt dance without any skirt on her lower limbs with an audience of children to witness her antics. Bridget with a sober face, she declared that she was unjustly accused when she pleaded in the police court. She explained that a man came to her home to see her husband and that he brought a bottle of whisky, from which he offered her a drink, but she told him she was a working woman and that she would not under any circumstances indulge in liquor. Officer May, the policeman who made the arrest, told the court that Bridget was as cocked as a gun, that she had her feathers over her head when he found her in the street and that she ran into the house where there was a man drunk and asleep on a bed. The court punished the woman by sending her to jail. The experience is not a new one for her.

Mrs. Mary Ryan has sold a house and lot on Bank street to Samuel Miller.

Two New London youths were reported to the police early this morning as missing from home. James Patti of No. 36 Reed street, informed the authorities shortly after midnight that his son, Salvatore 13, was absent from home, and that the father had been informed by youths that Salvatore had boarded a west-bound freight during the afternoon. A short time after the father reported his son missing the boy appeared at his home. About 1.00 o'clock the parents of Peter Petros, 18 of No. 31 Grand street informed the police that the youngster had been missing from home since early the previous morning. No trace of the youth has been found.

Edward McLaughlin was struck by an automobile on State Street, this morning, but escaped serious injury. McLaughlin, who was intoxicated, was walking across State street and staggered in front of a slowly moving automobile. McLaughlin was not knocked over for he clung to the hood of the machine.

The funeral of Nicholas K. Murray, of 372 Connecticut avenue, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. John J. McGrath. The bearers were James, Thomas, Lawrence and Raymond Neilan and Charles and Frank Fenton, the last named of Norwich. Among the mourners was a delegation of members of St. John's society, of which organization Mr. Murray was a member. During the service Edward Murray sang, One Sweetly, Solemn Thought. Burial was in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery.

Eight drunks, of the vagrant type, rounded up by the police last night, were driven out of New London this morning when given the privilege of leaving the city, or being sent to jail. Last evening residents in the vicinity of Riverside park complained to the authorities that the gang was making a nuisance of themselves going about soliciting funds, booze and eatables. The police were sent to the park, but when the patrol arrived there but two of the inebriates were found. They were made prisoners and locked up at the police station. The patrol with a squad of officers returned to the park later and six more of the gang were rounded up. Upon their promise Friday to get out of town they were allowed their liberty.

The final nominations for members of the city council, the election for which will take place next month, were received at the office of City Clerk Julian D. Moran this forenoon. As today is the last upon which nominations can be filed, it is probable those already received will be the last, although nominations can be made until 12 o'clock, midnight, standard time. The petitions received today were those of Henry S. Dorsey, circulated by Luke Martin and Philip E. Douglass, a teacher at Bulkeley High school, circulated by himself. All the candidates have five days from the time of the notification that they have been nominated in which to announce their acceptance. To date Lucius E. Whiton is the only nominee who has filed his notice of acceptance. Waldo E. Clark, another nominee and whose time for filing his acceptance would have expired today, will have another five days to do so because he is absent from the city and P. Leroy Harwood and John S. Fendleton, supporters of Mr. Clark, circulated another petition to be circulated and filed for their candidate. Mr Clark will return Monday and will have until next Friday to file his acceptance. The petitions nominating Dr. Joseph M. Ganey, Frederick W. Edgerton and E. Victor Goldsmith for the office of school visitor, and circulated by P. LeRoy Harwood, president of the board, were also filed today. Because of the nominating petition of Howard B. Marshall, circulated by Mrs. Anna Bailey, being defective in several instances, Mrs. Bailey was engaged today in circulating another petition in order that the defects of the original one may be offset. The petition of Edward L. Streeter, Jr., nominated by John V. Williams, is also invalid, because thirty of the signatures were made with lead pencil. It is believed Mr. Williams will cause another petition to be circulated and filed during the day. Some of the signatures on the petitions will be invalid because the signers have signed more petitions than is allowed by charter which is five. There are ten nominations for members and the council providing the Streeter petition is made valid and all candidates accept. They are Lucius E. Whiton, Waldo E. Clarke, George W. Sisson, Cornelius D. Twomey, Philip E. Douglass, William C. Fox, Henry S. Dorsey, Edward L. Street, Jr., Mrs. Mary O'Brien and Mrs. Emily C. Spiers. The nominees for school visitor, provided Mr. Marshall's petition, is made valid and filed are Dr. Joseph M. Ganey, E. Victor Goldsmith, Frederick W. Edgerton and Howard B. Marshall.

Miss Edith Smith is entertaining Miss Charlotte Hammer of Hartford.

Miss Beatrice Hannum of Washington is the guest of Miss Gertrude Slatare of Quaker Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Parker of California are visiting Mr. Parker's mother, Mrs. Fred A. Parker.

Miss Josephine Preston of Nahant, Mass., is the guest of her cousin, Mrs. Joseph W. Dean.

Misses Jane and Dorothy Sheperd of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., former residents of New London, are visiting at Ocean Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. William Matthews are entertaining their nephews and niece, Ralph, Robert and Laura Carrick, respectively, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who motored to New London.

Nathan Ozman of New York is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Julius Rosen.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence S. Lee and children, Dorothy and Kenneth, are visiting Mr. Lee's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Lee at Lyme.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Bacon are spending a week at Interlaken Inn, Lakeville.

Dr. and Mrs. Clarence W. Brooks and Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Wilson have left for a fortnight's motor trip in New York state.

Misses Viola L. Mowry, Charlotte Wilson, Theresa Murphy and Maud Brown were in Worcester, Mass., on Thursday where they attended the closing exercises of Clark University. They made the trip by automobile.

A trolley car of the Connecticut company, running between State street and Ocean Beach, became ablaze near the corner of Lower Boulevard, late last night. A still alarm was sent to fire headquarters and the Pequot Hose company was sent to the burning car and a quantity of chemicals sufficed to extinguish the blaze. The fire, it is understood, occurred from defective wiring beneath the car.

William H. Perkins, 72, died Thursday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. William Durfee of No. 58 Mitchell street, Groton. He had been ill a long time of heart trouble. Mr. Perkins was a native of Groton. He is survived by four sons, Clarence and Frank Perkins of Stonington, John Perkins of Mystic, Fred Perkins of Poquonoc Bridge and four daughters, Mrs. E. W. Pace of Groton, Mrs. Frank Maine of Westerly, Mrs. W. B. Gardner of Mystic and Mrs. Durfee.

Mrs. Abraham Scherr of New York and Mrs. Josephine Piro, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Mrs. Charles Vincent of Groton has returned home after spending several weeks in Providence and Taunton.

Joseph Contino, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Contino of No. 13 Shaw street, is the latest youth to be reported by his parents as missing from home.

Andrew Patterson, detected this afternoon by Motorcycle Officer William Babcock, operating an automobile without being possessed of an operator's license, was ordered to appear in the police court tomorrow morning.

John Ramistella of No. 51 Jefferson avenue, and Peter Flerios of No. 51 Grand street, are locked up at the police station in New Haven, charged with the theft of a lady's handbag. The boys, who were arrested this morning a short time after they committed the theft, ran away from home yesterday. The pair will be given a hearing in the New Haven police court Tuesday morning.

An automobile owned by Ludwig Mann of No. 286 Bank street and operated by Mrs. Mann and a machine owned by Daniel Noonan and operated by William G. Elliott of Station 12, Waterford, collided on Pequot avenue this evening. Both machines were overturned, but none of the occupants sustained injuries more serious than cuts and bruises. Elliott was arrested by Motorcycle Officer John Cavanaugh, charged with reckless driving and will be given a hearing in the police court tomorrow morning. Elliott places the blame for the accident upon Mrs. Mann.

There is no change this evening in the condition of Thomas F. Robertson of Huntington street, who submitted to a blood transfusion at Lawrence hospital a few days ago.

LODGE NOTES

EAGLES.

Norwich Aerie, No. 367, held its regular meeting Monday evening at the rooms on Shetucket street with Worthy President Edward J. Mullins presiding. Regular business was transacted and three applications were received and three accepted. Following the business session a social hour was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

The weekly pinochle tournament held Thursday evening at the rooms resulted as follows: First, John Callahan; second, William R. Hastedt; third, R. A. Krohn.

GROTTO.

Seaside Park, one of the finest municipal watering places on the Atlantic coast, is to be the center of activity during the fifth annual convention and field day of the New England Inter-Grotto association, in Bridgeport, Aug. 24 and 25.

The headquarters for the convention and field day is in the Stratfield hotel, and the ceremonial which is to be held Friday night will take place in the Park theatre. Saturday morning the band contests will be held on City Hall Green. At 11 o'clock the parade will form at the Stratfield hotel and proceed through the principal streets to Seaside Park.

Immediately upon arriving at the park, clam chowder will be served and and 1 o'clock the beef barbecue will be served. Following the meal the patrol contests will be staged and the baseball games and athletics contests will take place.

FORESTERS.

All Foresters in this vicinity are keeping in touch with the general committee that has charge of the annual bake and field day. The different sub-committees are reporting progress in their different lines, which to the general chairman indicates that this will be the banner get-together outing of Foresters in this section in a long while.

Brother Lambert has sent out advance notice that the married men are going to trim any combination of single men that Brother Congdon can get together. There seems to be quite a bit of feeling as the married men defeated their single brothers last year, and they feel confident that history can repeat itself. The rest of the sports are in charge of Brother Callahan and juniors of the order have asked for a tug-of-war between themselves and the fat men. The boys who like huckleberry pie should be on hand early as that contest will start immediately on the arrival of King Frolic and his Royal Court.

August 19th is the time and the Maennerchor club in Taftville is the place.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY.

Norwich Grange, No. 172, P. of H., has received the following notice from State Lecturer Charles A. Wheeler:

The annual New England conference of grange lecturers will be held at Amherst, Mass., at the Massachusetts Agricultural college, August 22, 23, and 24, 1923. This conference has grown to be one of the big events of the year in grange work.

Wednesday, August 22, get up with the sun, pack your lunch, put in sheet, pillow case, towel, soap, etc., and ride to Springfield, Mass., to visit the International Y. M. C. A. college.

About 4 p. m. (d. s. t.) we all go to visit Smith college and to eat supper on Mount Tom. Returning about 9 p. m. the party joins those who may stay at Amherst in a social hour. Thursday and Friday conference programmes with Connecticut leading, on Thursday 1.30 to 5.

WOMAN'S RELIEF CORPS

The Sedgwick Woman's Relief Corps held its regular meeting Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Buckingham memorial with Senior Vice President Clara Burke in the chair. ANNOUNCEMENT!

Last Part of Feature Picture

At 4 P. M., Sunday, at the local Y. M. C. A. both men and women are invited to see the last part of the feature religious moving picture, "The Chosen Prince." These pictures will deal with the story as follows: Jonathan warns David that Saul is seeking his life. This day begins the trial of friendship. David does not kill Saul because of his covenant with Jonathan. David goes to the land of the Philistines. The great battle occurs, Jonathan is killed and Saul falls on his own sword. His crown is stolen from him and brought to David. God leads a great celebration to welcome David to the throne.

In addition to the picture, L. M. Crandall will speak briefly on "The Brotherhood of Man." Earle Sparks will officiate at the piano, playing for the hymns and also the pictures.

The Neil O'Brien Super Minstrels With Bert Swor

The Neil O'Brien Super Minstrels, now jointly owned by Neil O'Brien and Bert Swor, will be the attraction at the Broadway, Thursday, August 16, and the promise is made that through partnership recently formed between these two famous black-face comedians, a new life has been given to this distinctly American form of entertainment. Both Swor and O'Brien will personally appear in the performances, the latter having returned to active stage work after an absence of several years. O'Brien will offer a one act sketch called "Pay Before You Enter," which is an elaborated and up-to-date version of his famous street car scene, with which he used to amuse his admirers. Swor, than whom there is no better comedian and monologuist, will occupy one of the "ends" in the first part and also has a new monologue which has been named "Health Hints or How to Keep Young," evidently inspired by the daily talks on the subjects now appearing in so many newspapers.

Other features on the program—a new terpsichorean divertisement "After the Game" which will enlist the full strength of the dancing contingent of the organization. Those participating in this number are dressed as tennis players and the effect is said to be quite sporty. The afterpiece this season was written by Artemus Callaway and is called "Robbers' Roost or Hunting the Hahas." It is all about an expedition formed by the minstrels to search out a mythical race of people who existed on the American continent long years ago, in fact before the time of the great King Tut. What they find is something very different from expectations and it is said to be a veritable "scream".

The company this year is said to be much larger in point of numbers than usual and includes in addition to the two principals such well known minstrel stars as George Decker, Billy Rolly, Fred Miller, Billy Henderson, Tom West, J. C. Downing, Tex Hendrix, Lester Naberkorn, Billy Taylor, Herman Williams, William McCarthy, C. L. Broome, Dick Merrimon, Dick Flournoy, George Daniels, L. V. Smith, Leo McWilliams, George Brocken and L. T. Spearman. Edward E. Nickerson is in charge of band and orchestra.

Seat sale starts Monday, mail orders now.

Bread Theatre

The Cosmopolitan production, "The Love Piker," a delightful melodrama featuring Anita Stewart, is booked for the Bread theatre for Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

The picture is an adaptation of a story by Frank R. Adams and has been directed by E. Mason Hooper. Included in the supporting cast are Robert Frazer, playing opposite Miss Stewart, William Norris, Carl Gerrard, Arthur Hoyt, Betty Francisco and others. It treats of the love affair of Hope Warner, a wealthy though snobbish society girl, and Martin Van Huisen, a self-made construction engineer to whom prosperity has come after the death of his mother and who does not have the courage to uproot his father from the old home in the tenement district of the city made dear by many fond memories. Hope's loyalty to Martin is put to a great test on meeting the old man, which encounter almost results in the breaking of the engagement. Hope's better self, however, comes to the fore and Martin's father is an honored guest at the wedding.

There is much heart interest in the story and pathos, while there is much cleverly interwoven comedy. The background of the production is twofold in that the picture is laid in both the residential section of the city and in the slums. The photography by George Barnes is worthy of praise: Frances Marion wrote the scenario.

Other pictures on the bill include "Topics of the Day" and an Educational comedy.

Today's bill consists of Corinne Griffith in "A Woman's Sacrifice," Pearl White in "Plunder"—the Pathe news and a Sunshine comedy. Continuous show today, 1.30 to 10.15.

Coming to Strand Monday

A realistic battle between a hydroplane and a schooner at sea, in which the aerial vessel wins a victory, is a big feature of "Children of Jazz," a new Paramount picture featuring Theodore Kosloff, Ricardo Cortez, Robert Cain and Eileen Percy, which will be shown at the Strand theatre for 3 days beginning Monday next.

In the course of the story of the picture, the hydroplane is all but wrecked on an island where the schooner of Richard Forestall, an adventurer is moored. The crew mutinies and runs away with Babe Weston, the heroine, after Forestall has been overpowered. Babe friends on the island, having repaired the hydroplane, go in pursuit of the vessel and after a battle, force the crew to give up the schooner to the skipper.

This is only one of many thrills in this excellent picture. There are several jazz parties showing modern cabaret life, and other scenes of great dramatic interest. The story is based on Harold Brighouse's play, "Other Times," and was adopted by Beulah Marie Dix, with Jerome Storm directing. The supporting company is quite capable

A comedy and News will be the short subjects.

W. S. WILLIMS TAKES AGENCY FOR JORDAN CAR

Having handled the Buick automobiles for the past several years successfully, W. S. Williams of 319 Main street, has now taken the agency for the Jordan Car for New London and Windham counties, thus making history over night.

The Jordan may be a little higher in price than some other cars, but it is also higher in value. Charles Henshaw of Boston, New England distributor for the Dodge car, includes the Jordan in a group of the seven finest cars in America. Mr. Williams is satisfied that the Jordan is some car and solicits the privilege of giving a demonstration to those interested in this superior car.

Those who have purchased Buicks from Mr. Williams in the past may feel assured that his interest in them is just as keen as ever, and so long as is desired he will give them his personal attention.

Mr. Williams has just returned from Boston with a Jordan Brougham which he has on exhibition. There are several Jordan owners in town who speak highly of the merits of this car.

Lawn Party Plans.

Plans are now being made for a new booth for the annual lawn party of St. Patrick's parish, to be held by invitation of White Cross Council, Knights of Columbus, on the grounds of the K. of C. home on Broadway. This booth is to be entirely in charge of "Number, please" girls from the telephone office and is expected to be a feature.

The lawn party has been placed under the direction of the assistant pastor, Rev. Rocco J. Guerriero, by Rev. M. H. May, rector of St. Patrick's church. The committees appointed have been as follows:

PRESTON CITY

The Preston City Baptist and Congregational churches united for their annual picnic, which was held at the Baptist church. A large number of both churches enjoyed themselves with games. A picnic lunch of cake, sandwiches, ice cream and lemonade was served.

Mrs. W. D. Hetherington has returned home from the Backus hospital, Norwich.

Monday Rev. and Mrs. F. W. Tholen and family of Stafford were callers in Preston.

Rev. and Mrs. N. E. Prindle of Sheldon are having their vacation in Preston City.

MOURNING FOR WARREN G. HARDING

sympathy arises from coast to coast," declared the governor, "I may say that I too, mourn the loss of a personal friend. The nation is mourning for its fallen leader and the states of the Union are his pallbearers. The death of no other public man in my lifetime has called forth more eulogies from the pulpit, the platform, the press, and from the hearts of the people. It seems to me that President Harding was an exemplar of the teachings of the man of Nasareth beyond any public man of his day.—Warren G. Harding was of such a gentle nature that it was difficult for him to quarrel with any man and his spirit of good will and kindliness disarmed all personal hostility, but the peace which President Harding sought was not the peace of compromise or surrender but the peace of good-will by means of good-will."

The governor dwelt in brief on the President's benevolence and kindliness in private life and high minded attitude toward political opponents. "The line of Warren G. Harding, the friend, the neighbor, the statesman, the President which cut Iowa before its full fruition was realized gives us renewed faith in a blessed immortality and we who believe in the Christian religion know that he has joined the 'choir invisible.'"

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONIES ON LEVIATHAN IN MID-OCEAN

Aboard the Steamship Leviathan, Aug. 10.—(By Wireless to the A. P.)—Out here in mid-Atlantic, long leagues from that little churchyard in Ohio where Warren G. Harding went to rest today, a few hundred Americans faced the setting sun and breathed out upon the waters a fervent God-speed to his departing spirit.

Nor were the Americans alone in their grief, although theirs, the loss of a friend more intimate, may have been the more poignant. Nations of a score of other nations prayed also, from the wealthy ones in the luxurious upper deck suites to the humble immigrants down in the steerage.

The ceremonies were impressive. A ship's band played the late president's hymn, "Lead Kindly Light."

A member of the president's cabinet, Secretary of Labor Davis, eulogized his departed chief as "My friend." There was prayer; a few moments of meditation. Then the proud vessel dipped her colors; the band on the bridge played "Nearer My God to Thee," and the grouped passengers dispersed, to scatter along the rails, silent, gazing westward.

Secretary Davis told of having visited in London the great cathedral of St. Paul's and finding, in a dark corner a burial stone inscribed with the name of the architect.

"Here lies Sir Christopher," it said. If you would see his monument look about you," he read on the stone.

Said Mr. Davis: "If you want to find the monument of our departed president when you return to America look about you. Recall the discouragement of the six million men who walked the streets without work a few short months ago. Recall the expressions of despair upon the faces of women and children; the silent and often times hungry sufferers of those days. Then picture the transformation accomplished within a short period of his administration—men, women and children breathing the spirit of happiness, contentment and love.

"That's the monument of Warren Harding, engraved upon the hearts of the American people. He was the beating spirit of the government and enters into our national traditions as one of the sweetest and gentlest memories of the western world. In his death the American people have lost a splendid servant and I have lost my friend."

The speaker eulogized the dead executive as a man who "met the challenge of the class world with unswerving loyalty to the common welfare and unshaken faith in the unity of our common life."

"He believed in America's institutions of orderly freedom, a free state a free man, the right to contract the sacredness of property, and free labor", said Mr. Davis. "He believed that the institutions should provide a larger development for the life of man. He knew that the greatest mistakes of history have been attempts to achieve liberty without law.

"He enforced the law of the land against the criminal rich and the criminal poor alike. He expected every American, whether residing in poor-house or mansion, to doff his hat before the American flag and in respect American law. The authority of administration was not wielded among his associates as a sword of command. He labored without fuss or feathers."

Triangular coffins, the body being placed in a sitting position, were used by some ancient Greeks.

ANNOUNCEMENT

I take great pleasure in announcing the fact that I have taken the agency for the

for New London and Windham Counties and will be pleased to demonstrate the distinctive merits of this car to anyone who will favor me with this privilege.

My interest in those who have bought Buick cars of me in the past is just as keen as ever and so long as it is desired I will give my personal attention to former patrons.

The Jordan Car is one of superior value. It is classified by Charles Henshaw of Boston, New England Distributor for the Dodge Car, as one of the seven best motor cars built in America.

I will appreciate a call from you for a demonstration.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

by DAVID CORY

THE FRIENDLY DUCK.

Now as soon as the King of the Fairies learned of Little Jack Rabbit's Flaming Feather, as I mentioned in the story before this, he whispered:

"Follow me, little bunny," and led him to a small brook nearby

"Come at once, Oh friendly Duck,
From out yon watercress.
I pray you take the bunny boy
To help the Queen's distress."

chanted the King of the Fairies, and in a minute a beautiful Duck swam up to the tall meadow grass.

"Climb on my back," he quacked, "and I will take you secretly to the Queen's castle.

It was still dark—the moon being hidden by clouds and only here and there a star shone down, but the Duck knew the way and after a little while, he paused at the stone steps that led up to the kitchen door.

"Be very careful," quacked the Duck in a low voice, "Creep through the window which is always left open. At the further end of the kitchen you will find a flight of stairs. They lead to the bedroom of the Queen's son. Place on his lips this watercress and then come back to me."

Now the spell that the wicked ogre had cast over the little son of the Queen was such that the poor child was unable to speak, but the Duck, who knew the healing virtue of herbs felt that the watercress would cure the little prince of his illness.

"I will wait in the shadow of the willow tree," whispered the Duck as Little Jack Rabbit took off his shoes and hopped softly up the steps to the open window. Then, carefully jumping up on the sill, he climbed into the kitchen. It was pretty dark but he soon saw the door that led through to the prince's bedroom.

Just then the moon came out from behind the clouds and shone through the window right on the little sleeping child. Softly tiptoeing over to the bed, the bunny boy gently laid the sprig of watercress on his lips.

"Who kissed me?" thought the Climb on my back.

child in his dream, but he didn't wake because a little dream fairy fluttered in through the window to sing him a lullaby.

In a few minutes, Little Jack Rabbit had hopped back to the boat where the good Duck was awaiting him. But, Oh, dear me, just as he was climbing on the Duck's back, that wicked ogre, his eyes shining like balls of fire and his hair on end like cattails in a swamp, looked over the castle wall, and in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

LEGAL NOTICES

BY VIRTUE OF AN ORDER PASSED Aug. 8, 1923, by a Judge of the Superior Court, I shall sell at PUBLIC Auction or PRIVATE SALE on August 23rd, 1923, 10 a. m., standard time, at the plant located at 112 Summit St., Norwich, Conn., the wholesale bakery business of The Puritan Maid Bread Co., in receivership, consisting of bakery buildings and garage, Peterson Pan Oven, Peerless 3 bbl. Mixer, Divider, Rounder, Moulder Pans, and all other machinery, trucks and equipment.

Dated at Norwich, Conn., this 8th day of August, 1923.

M. A. BARR,
Receiver, The Puritan Maid Bread Co. augl1d.

AT A COURT OF PROBATE HELD at Montville, within and for the District of Montville, on the 8th day of August, A. D. 1923.

Present: DAN D. HOMER, Judge.

Estate of Tassie Labati, late of Montville in said District, deceased.

Gusa Labati of Montville, appeared in Court and filed a petition praying, for the reasons therein set forth, that administration be granted upon said estate, alleged to be insolvent, may be granted.

Whereupon, It is Ordered, That said petition be heard and determined at the Probate Court Room in Montville, in said District, on the 13th day of August, A. D. 1923, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and that notice of the pendency of said petition, and of said hearing thereon, be given by the publication of this order one time in the Norwich Bulletin, a newspaper having a circulation in said District at least 5 days prior to the date of said hearing, and that return be made to this Court.

DAN D. HOMER, Judge.

The above and foregoing is a true copy of record. Attest,

NOTICE

To all persons whom it may concern: This may notify you that on the 14th day of August, 1923, at 10 o'clock a. m., I will sell at public auction at the sale post one mile south of Lebanon post office in the town of Lebanon, in the county of New London, and state of Connecticut, two horses (owner unknown) to wit, one chestnut mare, weight about 1050 lbs., white spot on face, and white spot on end of nose, approximately 12 years old, one bay horse, approximately 1200 lbs., 8 or 9 years old, the horse wears a bell. Said horses were taken in to custody by A. Kanter doing damage on his farm in Lebanon, and the said sale will be held under the provisions of Sec. 972, General Statutes, Rev. 1918. Owner may secure property by paying legal charges.

C. J. AHERN, Town Clerk.

THE WEATHER.

Winds.

North of Sandy Hook: Gentle to moderate winds, mostly south and southwest and weather partly cloudy to cloudy Saturday.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Light to gentle, mostly southerly and weather partly cloudy to cloudy Saturday, possibly showers.

Conditions.

The atmospheric pressure was relatively high Friday night from the South Atlantic and East Gulf states eastward and northeastward over the Atlantic Ocean. Showers and thunderstorms have occurred in various sections of the country since Thursday night, the principal area covered including portions of the East Gulf and South Atantic states, the Ohio and Mississippi valleys and the Canadian Northwest.

The outlook is for partly cloudy to cloudy weather over most of the Washington forecast district during the next two days. Temperature changes will be of little consequence in any portion of the district.

Forecast.

For southern New England: Partly cloudy Saturday and Sunday, not much change in temperature.

East: New York: Partly cloudy Saturday and Sunday, somewhat cooler Saturday night in north and central portions.

TAFTVILLE

Mrs. Edward Murphy and son and Mrs. Henry Troland of Providence street with Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Dennis of Norwich spent Wednesday at Riverside Park, Springfield.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Troland of Norwich are the guests of Mr. Troland's mother, Mrs. Henry Troland of Providence street, over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Haselton and son Kendall, have gone to their former home in Ballouville.

Leon Blakie, Leo Peltier, Albert Roy, Archibald Marion and Conrad and Peter Pepin have returned home from a week's stay at Ocean Beach.

At 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon Miss Ella Rowena Kinder and William Shaw, Jr., were united in marriage by Rev. R. R. Graham, pastor of Christ Episcopal church, at his home on Washington street. They were attended by Miss Melissa Shaw, sister of the groom, and George Kinder, Jr., brother of the bride. The bride wore a faun-colored canton crepe dress and her maid was gowned in brown canton crepe.

The bride's gift to her maid was a silk umbrella, and the groom's gift to the best man was a pair of gold cuff links.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Kinder of North Third avenue. She was born in Taftville where she is popular among the younger set.

Mr. Shaw is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Shaw of Potter Manor and was born in Greeneville. He is employed by the J. B. Martin company.

The couple left early in the evening for New York city and on their return will reside on Roath street.

FRATERNAL ASSETS SHOW BIG INCREASE PAST YEAR

Assets of fraternal benefit societies doing business in Connecticut increased $25,974,403.79 in the past calendar year, it was disclosed in the third part of the state insurance department annual report, made public Friday by Commissioner Howard P. Dunham. Strictly Connecticut societies were responsible for $2,570,885.58 of the sharp increase.

Liabilities were reduced $7,649,202.20 for societies of this class, but this reduction was in spite of an increase of $26,321.99 in the liabilities of societies having their principal place of business within the state. Membership in the latter class increased from 249,559 to 256,214 while the number of certificates terminated by death increased from 1,459 to 1,717 and payments by members fell off $41,246.64 from the 1921 total of $4,246,341.92, although income from other sources increased from $395,153.59 to $1,051,533.-80. At the same time, the societies organized in other states but doing business in Connecticut lost $1,337 members, cancelled 1,638 more certificates than in 1921 on account of death and received $948,154.54 less in payments by members and $246,360.21 more than in 1921 from other sources.

At the end of 1922, the total assets of the fraternal benefit societies under consideration, of which there are forty-eight, amounted to $293,627,809.-91, and the total liabilities were $71,-136,598, while the total balance to protect contracts stood at $222,271,-213, an increase of $33,623,695.29 over 1921 and the total number of members of 4,446,836.

The total amount paid by members in 1922 was $985,401.18 less than in 1921; the income from all other sources in 1922 was $2,466,756.29 more than in 1921, and the total income was $1,476,355.11 more. The disbursements show that the amount paid to members was $61,666,162.61, or $2,653,904.74 more than in 1921; the amount paid for expenses was $1,648,230.20 more than in 1921 and the total disbursements increased $4,303,134.94. The strictly Connecticut societies paid $1,-944,037.16 for claims, which was an increase of $340,316.67 over such payments in 1921, but they spent $57,-185.19 less in other disbursement, and their total disbursements amounted to $2,887,759.08.

THREE YEAR OLD CHILD HIT BY AUTOMOBILE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Westerly, Aug. 10.—Tony Pazzolo, three year old son of John Pazzolo, of Pierce street sustained a severe abrasion on the right side of his face when he ran in front of and was struck by the Buick sedan owned and operated by Max Nowgnaski today. Dr. M. E. Scanlon cared for the injured child.

JEWETT CITY MAN DROWNED WHILE BATHING IN POND

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Jewett City, Aug. 10.—Peter MaChunk, probably about 35, was drowned while bathing in the Aspinook pond near Tadpole, this afternoon.

The drowned man is a Russian and has a family in Russia. He has been employed in the mills here for several years.

His companions, two men and two women, state that as he waded out, he kept saying "Good bye, good bye!" which it is believed was said jokingly. He suddenly disappeared. He was drowned 30 feet from shore, in about eight feet of water.

The body was recovered by Napoleon Rondeau and Adelard Bryant.

Medical Examiner Dr. G. H. Jennings pronounced death due to accidental drowning. He gave permission to have the body removed to the undertaking rooms of Hourigan Bros.

FACE GASHED BY SLEDGE HAMMER BLOW

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Westerly, Aug. 10.—John McNamara, aged 34, sustained a bad cut on his face while driving stakes Friday morning at 11 o'clock on the grounds of C. Bai Lihinne, Norman Hill, Watch Hill, in preparation for the reception following the Grisconi-Lihme wedding to take place at the Watch Hill chapel Saturday. McNamara received the full blow on the right side of his face of a descending sledge hammer which made a cut three inches long through to the bone and just below the eye. The injured man was brought to the office of Dr. Michael H. Scanlon who took four stitches to close the wound.

CONG. FREEMAN EULOGIZES PRESIDENT HARDING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Woodstock, Aug. 10.—There was a large attendance at the memorial service for President Harding held at 11 o'clock this morning at the Congregational church on Woodstock Hill. The exercises opened with a prayer by Rev. Henry D. Baker of East Woodstock, followed by the rendering of Chopin's Funeral March by Pep's orchestra of Putnam. The address on President Harding was delivered by Hon. Richard P. Freeman of New London, member of congress from eastern Connecticut for the past eight years. The ode, by Hon. Herbert W. Rowen, was read by Prof. Sidney N. Morse of North Woodstock. The hymns sung were: Nearer My God to Thee and America. After the singing of America, while the entire congregation stood, the orchestra played The Star Spangled Banner. The benediction was pronounced by Rev. Hazen A. Calhoun of South Woodstock.

Gave Historical Sketch.

A brief historical sketch of the Harding family was given by Clarence W. Bowen, chairman of the memorial service committee, who said:

Members of the Harding family in New England 275 years ago included George of Salem, John of Weymouth, and Robert of Boston. Joseph Harding, who came to New England in 1623, was the ancestor of David of Wellfleet, who was in the Revolutionary war. Said to have been descended from Joseph was Jeremiah Harding of Mystic, Conn., who was at Fort Trumbull, New London, in the Revolutionary war, went as a volunteer to Fort Griswold across the river, and was taken as prisoner by the British. He also was in the War of 1812, and was buried with military honors in the old burying ground at Mystic. Jeremiah's son, Henry, called the "Old Squire," born 1789, was a member of the Connecticut legislature, and died October 6, 1866. It has been stated that President Harding, whose grandfather was Nathan Harding of Middle Haddam, belonged to the Connecticut family of Hardings above named. The only other Connecticut family was the Woodstock family of Hardings.

Abraham Harding, of Dedham, in 1638, was the father of Abraham, whose son was Samuel and whose grandson was Samuel Harding of Woodstock, born Jan. 7, 1727, whose ten children by his two wives were born in Woodstock and whose first wife and two children were buried in the Bungey yard in West Woodstock; and whose second wife, Dinah Johnson, was born in Woodstock and died in Deerfield, Mass., in 1808. Samuel Harding was in the Revolutionary war and was on the committee with General Samuel McClellan and others to forward the sixty-five sheep—Woodstock's gift to the distressed city of Boston. The names and dates of births of his children are in the Woodstock records. Samuel's son, Timothy, married Lavina Perrin of Woodstock. After the birth of a daughter in Woodstock, they moved to Pomfret, Vt.

Other Hardings in Woodstock, or who lived in Sturbridge or towns adjoining Woodstock a hundred and twenty-five years ago were Elijah Harding and Ralph Harding, the father of Thomas and Calvin Harding of Southbridge. These two sons married Woodstock girls. Francis Harding and his wife, Olive, lived on Woodstock Hill. In their house in 1821 their son, Francis, was born, and in 1822 their daughter Lucy; and the house was sold a hundred years ago or in 1823 by the father, Francis Harding, to Deacon Jedediah Kimball. The house, just across the street from this church, is now owned by Mrs. Rufus B. Richardson. Joshua Harding, Jr., of Sturbridge, was the great-grandfather of Clarence Harding Child, state senator, and vice-chairman of the committee conducting these exercises, and present here today. It might be added that one of the founders of Woodstock, Clement Corbin, had a grandson, Deacon Ebenezer Corbin of Woodstock, who married January 10th, 1757, Mrs. Judith Harding of Wrentham; and it was Abigail Fisher of Wrentham who married October 24th, 1748, Samuel Harding of Woodstock, above-named, and was his first wife.

Rev. Elisha Harding, a graduate of Harvard College in 1745, was the second minister in Brookfield, Mass., and Rev. Alpheus Harding of New Salem, Mass., a graduate of Dartmouth college in 1805, was born in Barre, Mass.

Congressman Freeman Speaks.

Congressman Freeman in his address said:

Again the people of the United States mourn the loss of a loved and trusted leader. During the week just past millions of hearts have responded in unison to the deep chord touched by the Angel of Death. Hence at this final hour, in lofty mountain regions, in dusty desert places, and by the streams of cooling water, it is fitting that we gather together as one people to give expression to our common sorrow, and to pay loving tribute to the beauty of character and splendid achievements of our late president—Warren G. Harding. For that purpose these services are held, here at Woodstock, and throughout this nation, while his body is about to be laid in its final resting place in the home town he loved so well.

You will agree with me, I am confident, that the emotions of the American people have run the entire range from great joy to profound grief, during the short period of the last six weeks. For it was only so long ago as the 20th of June when we were reading, with his devoted wife, several members of his cabinet, and a few personal friends, to make the strenuous trip to distant parts of the country.

Through our daily newspapers we followed in his trail—comfortably—contentedly. We rejoiced to read of the enthusiastic greetings he received from whole communities all along the route. We were happy with the knowledge that as he journeyed through the heart of the country, he journeyed into the hearts of his fellow countrymen—there to abide as long as life remains. There were millions to pay him homage, taxing the strength of each, little, or not at all. But we forgot at the moment that he was only one and that in responding, he, for the very kindliness of his heart and the friendliness of his spirit, was compelled to give just so much of himself to one and all. He always lived up to his belief that—"the gift without the giver is bare," and this is the secret of the magnetic charm of his personality. None ever came into his presence at any time, for any purpose, without fully realizing the interest, the sympathy, the understanding, and the brotherliness that radiated from him.

Had our thoughts followed him, seeking rest at night, after any one of his busy days—the day at St. Louis for instance, when speechmaking and receptions alternated from 2 o'clock in the afternoon, until 2 o'clock the next morning with the thermometer registering 105 degrees—doubtless some misgivings would have tempered our rejoicing. But like the followers in the long ago we entered not into his feelings at such times, nor watched with him—but fell asleep. The tragedy of it all we now know only too well.

The End of Hope.

At the first report of his illness, there was an anxiety that was nation wide, followed by a guarded reassurance, and then, so quickly and so suddenly, came the end of hope. We have read how, in the honor and majesty of artillery salutes and funeral dirges, in the beauty of flowers and the silent sympathy of thousands and thousands of sorrowing people, the three thousand miles of the return journey was made. Words cannot express our sympathy for her, his devoted companion for many years, who now traveled alone burdened with such a sorrow. The nation from a full heart has bestowed every honor on its beloved dead.

But such as he never really die. Of another, it has been said, "His Spirit Goes Marching On." This is equally true of President Harding. He was kindness, he was friendliness—outstanding characteristics I can but repeat—though you know them so well—and he was in earnest in his devotion to duty. These influences he has left to abide with us for all time.

We point with pride to the wonderful achievements of his short administration under the trying, chaotic conditions of a reconstruction period. He worked with determination for national economy and a reduction from the burden of taxation consequent on the World war.

Certain is the natural course of events, to be the candidate of his party for re-election, he displayed the courage of his convictions when he vetoed the bonus bill, which provided for the generous gift of billions of dollars to young able bodied soldiers of the late war, and yet neglected to furnish the additional taxation necessary to preserve the integrity and solvency of the national treasury.

World Disarmament.

The honor of the world disarmament conference is his, and must go down in the annals of our history as long as the republic shall live.

The inauguration of a national budget system is also a momentous achievement, and will result in the annual saving of millions and millions of dollars. His latest efforts were put forth for the participation of the United States in an international court of justice. Whether we agree or differ with him in this matter, we fully realize that he must have felt a solemn conviction that participation in an international court, with authority and power to enforce its decrees is both a duty and a responsibility that this country of ours must sooner or later assume. Many projects for the public welfare and national prosperity have had their beginnings with him in his brief term of office.

The motto of a Prince of Wales is always "I Serve." That knightly motto was truly Harding's own. Though most exalted among us, none could deny he was the servant of all. To him, public office was, indeed, a public trust.

And now in conclusion let me leave with you this story of a soldier of Napoleon's Imperial Guard, who was wounded in the left breast at the battle of Austerlitz. This was before the day of anesthetics, and as the surgeon was probing nearer and nearer to his heart in search for the bullet, the old veteran looked up at him and said, "Just a quarter of an inch deeper, doctor, and you will touch the emperor." And so I feel now that if the hearts and minds of those assembled here today could be laid bare, there would be found engravened there, in ever-living characters kind and loving thoughts of Warren G. Harding. He was our leader, we loved him, we honor him, we will ever cherish his memory.

PRESIDENT EBERT OF GERMANY ACCEPTS RESIGNATION OF CUNO AND HIS CABINET

Herr Stresemann, Leader of the German People's Party, Has Been Commissioned to Form a New Government—High Prices for Food and Scarcity of Money is Causing Trouble in Various Parts of Germany—Communists Have Placed on Gallows Effigies of Cuno and Stinnes—The Strike Movement Has Taken a Serious Turn.

Berlin, Aug. 12.—(By the A. P.)—The resignations of Chancellor Wilhelm Cuno and his entire cabinet were accepted today by President Ebert.

Dr. Gustav Stresemann, leader of the German people's party, has been commissioned by President Ebert to form a new government.

After accepting the task, Herr Stresemann had a conference with the representatives of the various parties. The greatest difficulty seems to be in connection with the foreign ministry and it is believed possible that he will take the post himself temporarily.

It is believed in political quarters that Herr Hilferding will be the new Finance Minister and Herr Sellman will be named Minister of Interior, while the name of Herr Rheinhaben, of the "People's Party," is mentioned as the new Secretary of State to the Imperial chancellory.

Thus, the new cabinet would be of a strictly political character, including representatives of the United Socialist, clerical, people's and democratic parties. The United Socialists have made it known that they expect to have four seats in the ministry.

Just before Chancellor Cuno called on President Ebert to submit the cabinet's resignation, the Reichstag leaders representing the present coalition parties and the United Socialists visited the President and discussed with him the prospects of constructing a government on a four-party basis.

This indicated that the United Socialists had arrived at an understanding with the Bourgeois parties with respect to their readiness to enter a cabinet which would accept as a platform the programme of internal tax and financial measures and other political and economic demands which the United Socialists put forward in their campaign against Herr Cuno.

Abandonment of the Chancellor by the socialists was commonly accepted as a concession to their radical following and as a counter-stroke to the communists, who are utilizing the nation's distresses as a means of mobilizing the working classes around the red flag.

It may be said that Herr Cuno was purely a victim of the economic crisis, as the three middle parties supporting him were still inclined to stand by his government. But at last they realized the futility of maintaining him in the position of Chancellor in the face of two hundred hostile labor votes in the Reichstag. The Chancellor's political supporters and President Ebert finally impressed him with hopelessness of such a prospect and he concluded to resign.

The four party coalition which hereafter will occupy the government bench in the Reichstag will command a majority which is opposed by only 71 nationalistic and 26 communistic votes out of a total of 459.

Dr. Stresemann is one of the most fluent speakers in the Reichstag and an out and out party man. Nevertheless he is regarded as an adept politician.

The new Chancellor has been identified with industrial activities. He is the presiding chairman of the German-American economic league which is occupied with endeavoring to further trade relations between the United States and Germany.

HIGH FOOD PRICES AND SCARCITY OF MONEY

Berlin, Aug. 12 (By the A. P.)—Provincial centers of Germany report that high food prices and scarcity of money are leading to serious trouble in many places. Thirteen people have been killed and a number wounded in collisions between the police and infuriated demonstrators at Neurode, near Breslau. At Glatz, Silesia, riots were suppressed easily, but at Hanover three were killed and forty wounded when the police attempted to disperse crowds which were plundering the shops.

The strike movement in Berlin and elsewhere has taken a serious turn. Because of the dismissal of workmen from shipyards and other industries at Stettin, a general strike is expected there Monday. Lignite miners at Meuselwitz, near Gera, are on strike and all the mines and industrial works at Stassfurt, Saxony, are idle. A fight took place there today between strikers and nationalists, one man being killed.

At Frankenhausen, near Erfurt, looting of shops on a larger scale is going on.

The general strike proclaimed by the communists in Berlin has brought a cessation of work in the municipal plants, the gas and electricity supply in some sections being cut off.

GALLOWS WITH EFFIGIES OF CUNO AND STINNES

Berlin, Aug. 12 (By the A. P.)—Three times today communists at Rotthausen, near Gelsenkirchen, erected gallows with effigies of Chancellor Cuno and Hugo Stinnes swinging from them, but each time the police tore them down. The proceedings ended in an ugly rush on the police by the crowd, in which one policeman and five of the demonstrators were killed and ten wounded.

MAN KILLED BY GROVER BERGDOLL WAS A SWISS

Eberbach, Germany, Aug. 12.—(By the A. P.)—The man who was shot and killed yesterday by Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, the American draft evader, has been identified as a Swiss named Karl Schmidt of Lausanne, and the man wounded is said to be Roger Sperber, an American resident of Paris.

Lieutenant Griffis, said to be an American, Faust Gagarin, a Russian, and Eugene Nelson, supposed to be an American, who were seated in an automobile outside the hotel in one of the rooms which Bergdoll used his automatic pistol to save himself from being kidnapped, are under arrest here.

Bergdoll several days ago returned to Eberbach from Switzerland to meet his mother who had arrived from the United States. He agai n took up his residence in a local hotel where he had been living during the past three years until he went to Switzerland.

The local authorities assert that Bergdoll had been watched closely for several days by strangers living in his hotel. They expressed the belief that a plot to kidnap the man who is wanted by the United States Government had been carefully planned and financed. Rope ladders, black jacks and a supply of opiates are said to have been found in the possession of the men under arrest. The automobile in which it is believed Bergdoll was to have been taken off is described as a former American army car.

Local feeling is running high against the men under arrest. Bergdoll continues to be popular with the natives. The populace is declared to be doubly resentful over the alleged renewed attempt to kidnap Bergdoll, as the first attempt, made two years ago, and in which a German woman was wounded by a man alleged to be an American detective, is still fresh in their memory.

GREATER FIRMNESS IN THE COMMODITY MARKETS

New York, Aug. 12.—By the A. P.)—Although holidays at home and abroad made last week's markets less active and significant than is usually the case in midsummer, most commentators on financial and commercial activities considered that the undertone was somewha tbetter. At the start of the week a certain quiet optimism was noticeable, this being ascribed partly to growing confidence that the change in executives would not result unfavorably and partly to reassurance over business prospects. While industrial news continued rather inconclusive, more optimism was shown over the development of a new forward buying movement. Greater firmness in the commodity markets also was an encouraging factor.

ANNUAL CONVENTION IF THE I. T. U. CONVENES TODAY

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 12.—Approximately 2,000 delegates, representing practically every city in the United States and Canada are expected to be here Monday when the sixty eighth annual convention of the International Union is scheduled to convene for a four days meeting.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE SPENT SUNDAY IN QUIET

Washington, Aug. 12.—Aside from a brisk walk and attendance upon church services, President Coolidge spent the Sabbath in quiet seclusion at his hotel after a fatiguing week. Tomorrow he will take over the executive offices at the White House, abandoning the temporary offices at the New Willard hotel.

The president arose early today and went for a walk around the Ellipse, a park just south of the White House grounds, leaving his hotel at 6.20 o'clock and returning half an hour later. He attended morning services at the First Congregational church, in company with Mrs. Coolidge and Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Stearns, of Boston. The Rev. Dr. Nehemiah Boynton, of Brooklyn, N. Y., a graduate of Amherst college, the president's alma mater, delivered the sermon and later was the guest of the president and Mrs. Coolidge at luncheon at their hotel.

To be assured of a complete rest, the executive made no official appointments for the day. Chief Justice Taft called, however, to bid farewell before returning to Canada, to resume his summer vacation. George B. Christian, Jr., who was secretary to President Harding, and Brigadier General Charles E. Sawyer, Mr. Harding's personal physician, also called informally to convey word of Mrs. Harding, who is at the White House. Dr. Sawyer told inquirers that Mrs. Harding was "doing very well."

STABBED IN HIS OWN HOME AT MYRTLE BEACH

Milford, Aug. 12.—Frank Blackman, of Myrtle beach, is in Milford hospital suffering from a cut over the heart and another on the left shoulder, which was inflicted upon him in his home tonight police said, by Henry Whitfield of West street, New York City.

It was learned that about a year ago Blackman engaged Mrs. Whitfield to be his housekeeper. She then was separated from her husband. Today Whitfield came to Blackman's home and according to the police when he asked his wife to return to New York with him, an argument started between the two men and Whitfield picked up a knife and stabbed Blackman twice. Whitfield left the city before the police could apprehend him.

Eighteen stitches were required to close Blackman's wounds.

TAKING GREEK REFUGEES FROM CONSTANTINOPLE

Athens, Aug. 12.—Greek ships have sailed from Piraeus to bring back all the Greek refugees from Constantinople as the state department through the American chargé at Athens, Nay Atherton, notified the government that the Near East would cease feeding refugees in Constantinople August 15. The Greek government, which has been delaying the evacuation pending the exchange of Greek and Turk populations under the Lausanne treaty, immediately arranged to bring 1,000 refugees to Saloniki and 1,000 to Athens.

All Greek refugees in Turkey and Syria will be returned before October.

Application of Law In Coal Mining Towns

Report Made by Voluntary Committee of Educators and Clergymen.

Washington, Aug. 12.—Charges that employes of many coal mining companies in Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Alabama are held in a state of virtual isolation in the towns where they reside, were made today in a report addressed to the United States coal commission by a voluntary committee of educators and clergymen. The payment of deputy sheriffs by coal companies also was attacked, and the commission was asked to consider whether this practice does not constitute a threat against the impartial application of the law, and the fair maintenance of civil rights.

The authors of the report, who describe themselves as the committee of inquiry on coal and civil liberties, are: Zechariah Chaffee, Jr., professor of law at Harvard university; Prof. Herbert A. Miller of Oberlin college; Rev. John A. Ryan, director of the National Catholic Welfare Council, Washington, D. C.; Rev. Arthur E. Holt, social service secretary of the Congregational church, Boston, and Kate Holladay Claghorn, head of the department of social research of the New York School of Social Work. Winthrop D. Lane had charge of the committee's investigations, being assisted by Jerome Davis, assistant professor of sociology, Dartmouth college.

A typical lease, says the committee, is that used by the H. C. Frick Coke company at its operations at both Fairchance, Fayette county, Pa., and Mammoth, Westmoreland county, Pa., which states that "the rights to the premises shall be only the right of ingress and egress to the lessee."

The report said that the families of miners must live in houses in towns that are situated on company property, and that before they can have such houses they must sign leases. It then submitted alleged copies of these leases. Some of these forbid the miner to receive in his house any person objectionable to the coal company. They further restrict the use of roads, alleys, lanes and other ways leading to the village homes to the miner and members of his immediate family.

One company, W. J. Rainey, Inc., operating in Fayette county, Pa., the report said, allows the miner three kinds of visitors, namely, the doctor, the moving wagon man and the undertaker, and the lessee agrees not to use, nor to permit the use of the lands, ways, roads or alleys of the premises by any other persons.

The Rainey lease allowing the passage of physicians, moving van men and undertakers, reads in part as follows:

"The lessee hereby further agrees .....to do no act or thing, nor suffer or cause the same to be done, whereby any person or persons may be invited or allowed to go upon said premises, or upon said private ways or roads, or upon other grounds of the lessor, except physicians attending the lessee and his family; teamsters or draymen moving lessee and his family belongings into said premises or away from the same; and undertakers with hearse, carriages and drivers, and friends in case of death of the lessee or any member of his family."

"These towns," says the committee, "are the continuous residence places of scores of thousands, if not hundreds of thousands, of people. They stand to them for homes and for whatever degree of community life and existence these people possess. It is this fact that gives to the control exercised by the coal company and to the leases, which we submit, their peculiar significance. It is over the continuous home and social life of miners and their families that these leases cast a shadow of supervision and even of censorship."

It is a common practice, according to the committee, for coal companies in many parts of the United States to pay, arm and employ large numbers of deputy sheriffs. A former sheriff of Jefferson county, Ala., J. C. Hartsfield, declared in an affidavit, said the report, that in one month he commissioned 741 deputy sheriffs who were paid by coal companies, armed at their expense and used by them as private guard. Of these 407 were employed by one company, the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Company.

"Some of these men," Sheriff Hartsfield said in his affidavit, "came from pool rooms and were mere loungers and hangers-on at other places. Some of them went out to the companies for which they were to work, reported, got their arms and quit in six or eight hours. One man deputized in this way was found over in Mississippi with his commission and badge on him. When they drew their pay from private interests they were under a strong temptation to be partial. They could not look at both sides alike. It was not human nature to be disinterested."

The report declared that the sheriff of Fayette county, Pa., commissioned 6,130 men as deputy sheriffs during and after the coal strike of last year. These men were paid entirely by the coal companies, it said, and constituted one deputy for every five miners in the county. Between $30,000 and $40,000 was collected as personal reward by the sheriff of Somerset county, Pa., for assigning deputy sheriffs to coal companies, said the report.

CONFESSED ASSASSINATION OF FRANCISCO VILLA

Mexico City, Aug. 12.—The confession of Jesus Salas, member of the Durango Legislature, of the assassination of Francisco Villa, former bandit leader, was "a high spirited act," President Obregon declared at a conference with newspapermen last night.

Salas is being held a prisoner in which he boasted of killing Villa for the purpose of avenging Villa's numerous victims. It is understood he will be taken to Chihuahua and tried by the state court.

The followers of Villa, who are now tilling the land dominated by the former bandit chief prior to his assassination will not be molested the President asserted. Reports that trouble was threatening at Canutillo, the Villa holdings, were denied by Obregon.

ELLIS ISLAND IN CROWDED CONDITION

New York, Aug. 12.—Several hundred immigrants arriving today aboard the Steamship Veendam will have to remain on the vessel until Wednesday or Thursday because of the crowded condition at Ellis Island. Immigration officials announced tonight. The Veendam was delayed by heavy storms.

$4,000,000 Damage By Fire in Montreal

Entire Block Was Destroyed —No lives Lost and No One Was Injured.

Montreal, Aug. 12.—Damage estimated at more than $4,000,000 was caused by a fire that destroyed an entire block on Osborne and Mountain streets, opposite the Windsor Hotel. Originating in the Ledoux Jennings Carriage factory, the flames spread to apartment houses and scores of families were forced to vacate their homes. No lives were lost and no one was injured.

The flames spread to a garage owned by the Bell Telephone company and more than 200 automobiles were destroyed. A hotel was among the buildings burned. The fire raged for nearly six hours.

TWO MEN SHOT AND KILLED IN FALL RIVER BY MADMAN

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 12.—Two men were shot and killed and a third probably fatally wounded when John Kennedy of Tiverton, R. I., ran amuck with a revolver here today. Kennedy was later arrested by a mounted policeman after a street gun fight in which he was twice wounded.

The dead are: James Clarke, an elderly man, and James LaFlamme, both of this city. James Shaw, also of Fall River, was shot through the abdomen.

According to the stories told by Kennedy's father, neighbors and police, young Kennedy walked into the yard at Clarke's house where the latter was sitting chatting with Kennedy, senior, and gave each man three bullets.

"Here are three pills for each of you," he is reported to have said. Then he drew a revolver and fired one shot, killing Clarke instantly. The elder Kennedy sought refuge behind a barn. Three more bullets were fired into Clarke's body.

LaFlamme, a neighbor, heard the shooting and came into the yard accompanied by Ulric Robillard, his brother-in-law. As he stood over Clarke's body, young Kennedy came from behind the barn.

"What's the matter here?" he asked. "Has somebody been shot?"

"I guess so," LaFlamme answered. At once, according to Robillard, Kennedy drew his revolver again, held it close to LaFlamme's face and fired. He then walked out of the yard and meeting another neighbor, James Shaw, Kennedy fired two shots, one of which took effect. Physicians said Shaw's abdominal wound would probably prove fatal.

A mounted policeman, Daniel Sullivan, heard the two shots, galloped in pursuit of the gunman. Kennedy took cover behind a telegraph pole and reloaded his gun. He fired three shots at Sullivan, who returned the fire, wounding Kennedy in the shoulder. In a second exchange of shots, Kennedy was wounded in the leg and fell, dropping his revolver. Sullivan rusher in and captured the weapon. Kennedy was taken to a hospital. His injuries were said to be minor.

MOTOR TRUCKS SEIZED WITH GRAIN ALCOHOL

Suffield, Conn., Aug. 12.—Following the seizure of two motor trucks here yesterday, one of which contained 400 gallons of what was said to be grain alcohol, and the arrest of five men, Deputy Sheriff George L. Greer discovered a touring car in the woods near Suffield in which he said was a book containing orders for delivery of alcohol. In the car was a registration card issued to Daniel Lawler of 24 Market street, New Haven, one of the men arrested yesterday and who now is being held in $10,000 for the next term of superior court in Hartford.

The first truck seized was that in which the load of alleged alcohol was found under vegetables and a canvas cover. Louis Tarello, of West Springfield was the driver. The men on the other truck besides Lawler were Henry Cobia, also of New Haven, and Tony Santre of West Springfield.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE WILL NOT PERMIT A COAL STRIKE

Gloucester, Mass., Aug. 12.—President Coolidge will not permit a coal strike it was said here today after a conference between John Hays Hammond, chairman of the coal fact finding commission, and Dr. George Otis Smith, a member of that commission, who had hurried to Mr. Hammond's Gloucester home after a conference with the president in Washington Saturday. Dr. Smith returned to Washington tonight.

DEATH OF THE OLDEST RESIDENT OF GREENWICH

Greenwich, Conn., Aug. 12.—Joseph Theodore Lyon, who celebrated his 91st birthday last Tuesday, and who was believed to be the oldest resident of Greenwich, died this afternoon at his home in Sound Beach. He conducted the first milk route here, starting it more than fifty years ago. He leaves two sons, L. E. Lyon and George W. Lyon.

GOVERNOR TEMPLETON HAS BEEN SLIGHTLY ILL

Waterbury, Aug. 12.—Governor C. A. Templeton, who has been slightly ill for the past two days, took a short ride today and returned feeling much improved although fatigued. His illness is not serious but is said to be the result of his strenuous activities in connection with the state's business and the memorial service in honor of the late president.

OBITUARY.

David F. O'Connell.

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 12.—David O'Connell, mayor of Worcester in 1912 and one of the most widely known criminal lawyers in Massachusetts, died late today at St. Vincent hospital. He recently submitted to an operation for appendicitis.

Mr. O'Connell gained public attention when he defended Harriet Varney, accused of the murder of Pauline V. Keyes, some years ago.

Thousands of slaves or prisoners of war were put to death with incredible cruelty each year by the Aztecs in their fanatical religious sacrifices.

BRITISH REPARATION NOTE TO FRANCE AND BELGIUM

Expresses Sincere Disappointment With Previous Communications Received From Those Nations—Declares That the British Government Regards as Doomed to Failure the Method Pursued by the French and Belgian Governments to Secure Reparations From Germany.

London, Aug. 12 (By the A. P.)—The note of Lord Curzon, the British foreign secretary, handed to the French and Belgian ambassadors on Saturday, with regard to German reparations, expresses the sincere disappointment with which the British government has received the previous communications of France and Belgium, especially since Great Britain had suggested that an inquiry into Germany's capacity to pay should be conducted within the framework of the treaty of Versailles, and that the German government should be asked to withdraw its orders enjoining passive resistance on condition that this should be regarded as evidence of good faith involving reconsideration by the occupying powers of their conditions of occupation and a gradual return to normal of the industrial life in the Ruhr.

The British note remarks that "it is difficult to think in what way greater consideration should have been shown to the Franco-Belgian point of view." It then at great length outlines the British viewpoint, which Lord Curzon summarizes as follows:

"His majesty's government never contemplated, and does not contemplate, that Germany should be relieved of all reparation payments. They are determined that Germany shall pay to the maximum of her capacity. What that maximum may be should be decided by an impartial inquiry. It cannot be ascertained by casting up amounts Germany's creditors would like to receive.

"To ask more than Germany's capacity can only destroy assets which Germany would be able to offer the allies. To force liquidation is not the most profitable way of making recovery from a debtor with resources.

"It is admitted that Germany can only make substantial payments if, by restoration of her finances and stabilization of her currency, she secures a budget surplus available for reparations. Moreover, this surplus must be in a form which can be made available for external payments over the foreign exchanges. External debts cannot be paid by the collection of depreciated paper marks.

"In the view of his majesty's government, forcible interference with the economic life of Germany, even if consistent with the treaty of Versailles, cannot assist in the necessary restoration. Not only will it prevent realization of any surplus for reparations, but, by intensifying the disorder of German finance and currency, will have the gravest reactions on trade.

"His majesty's government therefore regards as doomed to failure the method pursued by the French and Belgian governments to secure reparations. Despite the wholesale seizures, the occupation of the Ruhr has produced at great cost less receipts for the allies, notably of coal and coke, than were forthcoming the previous year. Moreover, his majesty's government feels that the resulting situation involves a great and growing danger to the peaceful trade of the world, and not the least of that of Great Britain.

"The government regards the continuance of the present position as fraught with gravest risk, both economic and political. They consider an impartial fixation of Germany's liability at a figure not inconsistent with her practical power of making payment as a matter of great urgency, and they have suggested what appears to them appropriate means to this end.

"When steps have been thus taken to ascertain the real value of the assets represented by German reparations and to secure its realization without further depreciation, his majesty's government will be ready to deal as generously as circumstances will permit, and in the light of their respective capacities to pay, with the debts due to Great Britain by her allies.

"They cannot, having regard to Great Britain's heavy material losses during and since the war, and to future tax burdens on its trade, admit that other countries are justified in claiming that the agreed percentages of reparation payments should now be further modified or changed in the order of priority.

"But they remain prepared to ask for no more in respect for the very large sums due by their allies than will, together with the reparation payment by Germany, meet the British war debt to the United States government.

"Their policy in this matter is stated in Mr. Bonar Law's proposal submitted to the Paris conference in January and has not changed. It means that Great Britain would be prepared to waive in the interest of a complete general settlement a very large part of the amount for which the British taxpayer holds the due obligations of the allied governments.

"It is the hope of his majesty's government that the above explanations will convince the French and Belgian governments of the reasonableness of the British position and will win their assent to its acceptance.

"They are reluctant to contemplate the possibility that separate action may be required in order to hasten a settlement, which cannot much longer be delayed without gravest consequences to a recovery of trade and the peace of the world."

Lord Curzon in the body of his note, which is very long and filled with argument over various proposals and points raised in the extended course of the reparation negotiations, complains that, notwithstanding the terms of courtesy employed by France and Belgium regarding the recent British suggestions, the reception of these suggestions by those governments "leave his majesty's government under the painful impression that neither are their suggestions welcome by their allies nor is their offered co-operation held to merit consideration, except on condition that no departure be made in any one particular from whatever France and Belgium declare to be their overriding views and decisions."

Lord Curzon admits that the Belgian reply at first sight appeared to be the less uncompromising but that a closer examination showed both the attitude of Belgium and France for all practical purposes, identical. Hence, he said, the British government asked leave to deal with both replies in a single answer.

FRANCE NOT TO CHANGE POLICY TOWARD GERMANY

Stenay, France, Aug. 12.—(By the A. P.)—Disregarding the recommendations of David Lloyd George, the former British Prime Minister, that he should not make speeches on Sundays or in places where war memories would be aroused, Premier Poincare today made two addresses to emphasize France's unswerving determination not to change her policy toward Germany.

M. Poincare delivered his first address at Marville at the unveiling of a monument to military and civil victims of war. In it he dealt with Marville's suffering during the German occupation, concluding with a paragraph replying to what he called "Cuno's arrogant menaces" in the Reichstag.

Later M. Poincare came to Stenway to dedicate a war memorial in the town that during most of the war was the domain and pleasure ground of the former German Crown Prince. His addresses here at Marville had been written before the last British note was received. Although he had the document before him as he spoke, the foreign office having sent him an original copy in English and without a translation so that he might study it and make reply if he so desired, M. Poincare will make his third address tomorrow at Sampigny.

"Chancellor "Cuno," said the Premier in his Marville speech, referring to the German Chancellor's recent address in the Reichstag, "undoubtedly would not have used such senseless language if the allies had been unanimous in showing him their will in ordering him not to revolt longer against the legitimate measures taken by Belgium and France." The Premier declared that the German government was leading Germany to catastrophe, adding, "We are sure not only of our rights but our methods."

"We can only smile indulgently at Cuno's bluatering," M. Poincare continued. "If he thinks Germany was not thoroughly beaten in the war she declared; if he believes Germany can violate with impunity the treaty she signed; if he thinks we are disposed to go on indefinitely without the reparations she owes us; if he believes we will go out to the Ruhr before our claim is paid, then he is greatly mistaken. And if he does not believe all this, but only says it, it is his compatriots he hoodwinks and leads down to ruin.

M. Poincare concluded by saying that Germany now, as in 1913, on the eve of her military downfall, was seeking to mislead opinion.

Replying to critics of France's policy, M. Poincare declared "We can only renew our answer—we do not think of crushing anyone; we do not say delenda Germania"; nor we do not wish to take a single bit of ground that does not belong to us."

"We are not fanning hatred," the Premier added. "We proclaimed on the country after victory we were ready to forget. Rancor and vengeance are sentiments that have no place on French soil. We wish only that our spirit of chivalry, our generosity, should not be abused."

EXCURSION BOAT AGROUND OPPOSITE ROTON POINT

Norwalk, Aug. 12.—The excursion boat "Crescent" from New York, with nearly 600 men, women and children aboard, went aground tonight on a reef opposite the Roton Point lighthouse. It was being slowly pounded to pieces as a fleet of motor boats hurried out to it and took off the passengers and crew without a mishap.

Harbormaster Howard said he would make a report of his investigation to the United States local inspectors' bureau in New York. Richard Lucia, the captain, and members of his crew, the harbormaster and Roton Point authorities alleged, were literally unable to stand upon their feet.

The boat was en route back to New York, the excursion having been given under the auspices of Lexington council, Knights of Columbus, New York.

16 GIRLS ARRESTED IN RAID ON DANCE HALL

New York, Aug. 12.—Sixteen young girls, ranging in ages between 15 to 20, who were arrested today after a raid upon a dance hall at which, is alleged, the girls were paid five cents a dance for dancing with Filipinos and Japanese, were discharged in police court this afternoon. Stern faced parents crowded the court room as the gay fledglings of the night previous made their exists. Two men, alleged to have operated the dance hall without a license were held.

OAK NAMED AFTER PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

Wellesley Hills, Mass., Aug. 12.—A stately oak more than 300 years old on the estate of Roger W. Babson here, has been named after President Coolidge. Below the words "The Coolidge Oak" a sign attached to the ancient tree bears a verse that hangs in the Northampton home of the president:

"A wise old owl lived in an oak;
The more he saw, the less he spoke;
The less he spoke, the more he heard.
Why can't we be like that old bird?"

CHARGED WITH BUCKETING STOCKS AND SECURITIES

Boston, Aug. 12.—William H. Burgess, former senior partner of Burgess, Lang and company, Boston bankers, was arrested today at his home in Lexington, on a secret indictment charging him with bucketing stocks and securities. He was brought to Boston, and released in $5,000 bail. Burgess, Lang and company was declared bankrupt to the extent of $1,000,000 by the United States district court here in March 1921.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Robbins marked their tenth anniversary by inviting a few friends to their home, last week Monday, where a wedding cake and other good things were served the guests. Mr. and Mrs. Robbins received tokens of remembrance from friends.

Mrs. Mann Page accompanied by her daughters, Miss Dorothy Merrifield, Zola, Peggie and Rosamund Page, arrived from their home in Port Washington Monday evening of last week, she and Dorothy stopping only long enough at their former headquarters, at "Restawhile," to give a birthday party, August 1st, to Rosamund and to her sister, Zola, whose birthday was Aug. 5th. The guests were Bobby Joslyn, Manfred Mody, the Stahlbergs, Helstrous, Meades and MacLeods, and Addie Robbins, while their mothers, with Bonita Dusinberre, and Mr. and Mrs. William Johnson and Mrs. Moses were among the guests. Mrs. Page and Miss Merrifield, left that night. The three little girls are to again be with Mrs. Moody for the balance of the summer.

FRANKLIN

Rev. A. H. Beadle of North Carolina, a former pastor, occupied the pulpit at the Franklin Congregational church Sunday, July 29.

The birthday Sunday of the cradle roll and primary department was observed Sunday, July 29. Each child present received a cup cake with a cadnie, a basket of candy and a birthday card.

Mrs. L. A. Robinson and granddaughter, Ruth Robinson are to spend a few weeks in Brattleboro, Vt., guests of the former's son, Lloyd R. Robinson.

The Franklin church will be closed during August.

Huntington Robinson and Arnold Manning are attending the junior short course at Storrs college.

Mrs. C. H. Robinson, Miss Elizabeth Date is camping with the girl scouts at Sound View.

Miss Mabel Durfee is spending a few weeks in Framingham, Mass.

The Princess

Dear Uncle Jed:—

Dear Uncle Jed:—Once there was a beautiful girl who lived in a large forest. She played with the animal folk all day and at night she slept under the trees. One day she called her forest friends to her and said, "It is too good a day to work. Let us sit down and talk." The animals agreed heartily. About noon time the girl suggested that they should have dinner. Each animal went to get some food and as soon as they had all gone she rose to pick some berries. She heard a sound and when she turned she saw a young prince. He put her on his horse and was going to ride away but she said, "Oh, let me stay with my friends." A little rabbit hopped up to her and said, "Dear Princess, go with the Prince and we will come to the castle twice a year to see you. Good-by, Princess, happiness to you and yours." The girl was astonished but she said goodby to all her playmates. She married the Prince and they lived happily together.

A Young Farmer.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am seven years old. This is my first letter to you. I will tell you about our farm.

We have three cows, and one heifer, one horse, two pigs and some chickens. My daddy lets me have a plot of ground for my garden which I have planted myself. I sell all the vegetables from my garden and put the money in the bank.

I also help my daddy in his garden. We have been very busy picking raspberries and blackberries.

I am going to Occum school. I have been promoted to the third grade.

WIDE-AWAKE POETRY.

Child and Mother.

O, Mother-My-Love, if you'll give me your hand
I will lead you away to a beautiful land—
The Dreamland that's waiting out yonder.
We'll walk in a sweet-posy garden out there
Where moonlight and starlight are streaming.
And the flowers and the birds are filling the air
With the fragrance and music of dreaming.
There'll be no little, tired-out boy to undress,
No questions or cares to perplex you;
There'll be no bruises or bumps to caress
Nor patching of stockings to vex you.
For I'll rock you away on a silver-dew stream
And sing you asleep when you're weary,
And no one shall know of our beautiful dream
But you and your own little dearie.
And when I am tired, I'll nestle my head
In the bosom that's soothed me so often.
And the wide-awake stars shall sing in my stead
A song which our dreaming shall soften.
So, Mother-My-Love, let me take your dear hand
And away through the starlight we'll wander—
Away through the mist to the beautiful land—
The Dreamland that's waiting out yonder!

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE-AWAKES.

All the boys and girls of the Wide-Awake department have this week been reading and hearing about the death of our president. I am sure too that as often as they have heard or read any of the tributes given to President Harding they have heard him referred to as the honest man with the kindly heart.

Perhaps not any one of us can ever be president, but we can all try to have it said of us that we do right and are kindly and courteous. The boy or girl who is tricky, who is deceitful in little things is forming a habit that will drive away his friends and may some day bring him much trouble. If you were running a race, you know how important it is to get a good start. A bad start might make it impossible for you to win. You are all starting out on the race of life now and it is in your early years that you form the habits that you will follow later. Take President Harding for an example and let one of your habits be to do the right and honest thing, as people say he was trying to do in his high position as our president. Perhaps you can tell who the prominent American was who said: "I had rather be right than be president."

It seems to me that one of the nicest things that can be said about us is that we are kindly and courteous, that we try not to hurt anyone's feelings. It is so easy sometimes to say the short, snappy word, to do the mean, unpleasant thing towards our parents, towards our playmates. You always know when you have done it, for there is something that tells you so even if no word is spoken. On the other hand, you know when you have been courteous and kindly. You would rather have praise than blame, wouldn't you? Try to earn it by always deserving to have others say of you that you are kindly and considerate.

My Visit to the Farm.

Dear Uncle Jed: I have not written to you before so I will now tell you my first story.

A few Saturdays ago a girl friend of mine who is older than myself took me down on the farm. We arrived around ten o'clock p. m., and we were greeted by the barks of a dog.

The next morning I saw six cats and two cows. I asked their names and they said, one was Daisy, Frits and Snowball.

After that I had a nice breakfast of oatmeal with nice warm milk.

Then I saw chickens and ducks, oxen whose names I learned were Ranger and Chief.

Then we went crabbing and haying and bathing.

At first I was not used to the farm but some time later I got used to it, just when it was time to come home. But I got word I could stay one week longer, but being homesick I came home.

A Little Kindness.

Dear Uncle Jed: One day a little herd-boy while watching a flock of sheep, heard a noise, which sounded like a groan. Walking in the direction where he heard the noise he saw a giant lying near an uprooted tree. The boy was about to run away, but the giant said, "Do not be afraid, for I will not hurt you. I will reward you handsomely if you bind my foot, which I hurt by uprooting this tree."

The boy took great courage binding the giant's foot. The giant got up and told the boy to follow him, then he limped off.

Descending into a great hole in the ground there was a beautiful banquet hall. The table was laden with expensive meats and delicious dainties.

The boy sat at the table and ate to his heart's content. He drank lustily and then was about to leave when the giant gave him a loaf of bread and bade him to eat of it when he was hungry. When the boy was hungry he took out his knife and tried to cut the bread, but it was impossible. So he took a bite and gold came from his mouth. He took another and again a piece fell from his lips.

He went to the village to buy some food and clothing, with the gold. After a short time the people noticed that he was the richest man in the city, and they were all surprised that he became so rich in so short a time, then he said, "Do a little kindness unto others when you have a chance."

Caring For the Chickens.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about our chicks. We had ten little chicks. They weren't very big when five died. One morning when I went to feed them, I saw that there were only four left. I looked in the chicken coop and there in a corner I saw in a hole blood and feathers. I told my mother and she said it must have been a rat. So we kept a good watch on them ever since.

We had four more. One day my mother and sister went out of the house. She told me to take care of them. I told them that I would. I went into the house, when I heard my little sister say: "Mary, Mary, come quick, for here's a rat." I came out and jumped over the fence and tried to scare the rat away, but it did not seem to be afraid. I took the chick into the house and took care of it until my mother came. It was hurt under the wing and near its neck as the rat tried to kill it. My father set traps all around and we caught a lot of them.

This all happened at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. I hope it wont die. I'll tell you more about it some other time.

My Visit to a Farm.

Dear Uncle Jed: One morning, very early, my mother, father and I set out to go to a farm. I went down to a store and got some candy for my cousin and myself. I went down to the shore and got in a motor boat and we went up the river part way and then we had to walk the rest because the landing place is eight miles shore. When we got there my cousin came running down the hill to greet us because she wanted to go blackberrying. While we were blackberrying I saw my cousin's dog come running down the hill so I called it. It's name is Dot and it is a very faithful dog. When it had been around with us for quite a while we saw it dash into the bushes and we wondered what was the matter. Pretty soon it came back with a woodchuck in its mouth and then we knew what it had run for. When we had gotten our pail about half full my cousin gave me the pail and she went for the woodchuck and when we saw it Dot had eaten the leg and the head off the woodchuck. So my cousin got hold of it by the tail and carried it home. When we got home she laid it in the grass till we went in to tell our fathers. The dog was lying on the porch and I just happened to see that its foot was bleeding and I went over to it and I found that the woodchuck had bitten it. When my uncle came out to look at the woodchuck he said it was a very big one. After a while we were called in for dinner because it was 12 o'clock. After dinner we dug up beets, lettuce and carrots and raked the hay and we were doing that all the time till it was time for us to go because it isn't nice walking through a small path in the woods in the dark. When I got home I was feeling tired because I had a very good time and the fresh air makes you sleepy.

Growing Oranges.

Dear Uncle Jed: Orange seeds, which are secured from carefully selected seeding oranges of a hardy type, are planted closely in the rows of a seed bed. These are left for a year, according to general practice, and transplanted into rows in a nursery. After a year in the nursery, when the trees are two years old, they are "budded" to the variety desired. Trees are generally removed from the planting of the seed to the planting in the orchard in generally three, but sometimes four years. The orchards are planted in rows generally arranged so that they can be cultivated in four different directions. There are from 80 to 120 trees per acre.

A great deal of care is necessary in the growing of the young orchard to assure the proper building of the frame of the tree. Orange trees are irrigated six or seven times each summer. For there is but little rain there. Orange growing is made up of many items of heavy expense in irrigation and in winter they are often in danger of frost, the temperature in the orchard is kept up by lighting coal, charcoal, oil or wood. The orange must be carefully removed from the trees to avoid scratching them on the limbs and must be carefully placed in the picking sack to avoid bruising.

From beginning to the end the fruit is handled with utmost care to avoid any bruising which may lead to decay.

Great attention is given to cleanliness as is indicated by the methods of washing and every measure is employed to make the fruit clean and attractive.

The Great Day.

Dear Uncle Jed: It was a great day at the Fleetwood Speedway.

There was a great crowd in the grandstand and on the grounds. There were balloons and hurrahs to be seen. There were four entries in the 2.02 trot. The horses' names were Jack the Great, Miss Rose Mill, Sunny and Nigger.

They are ready! They are gone! They are passing the judge's stand. The judge shouts "Go!"

Jack the Great is ahead; next comes Miss Rose Mill, then Nigger and last Sunny. Sunny is creeping on Nigger. He passes him. They have gone a half a mile. Sunny passes Miss Rose Mill. They are eight yards from finishing. Sunny passes Jack the Great. He wins by a yard.

Shouts can be heard all over the grounds. Some are glad and some are not in good humor as they shut the gate of the speedway.

A Pet Squirrel.

Dear Uncle Jed: My mother spends the summer at an old house in the country. Back of this house is a beautiful garden, where mother likes to sit and sew on fine days.

Mother is very kind to animals, and has made friends with a squirrel that lives in a tree near by. The squirrel is not a bit afraid. It will run up mother's chair and sit on her shoulder.

Sometimes mother puts some nuts in her pocket. Then the squirrel will caper about until it gets hold of the nuts, when it will run off.

At one time mother used to wear a back comb that was very high. What do you think the squirrel would do? It would sit on mother's shoulder, and as it ate the nuts would drop the shells on her head in front of the comb. Wasn't that cunning?

Joins Wide-Awake Circle.

Dear Uncle Jed: I have wanted to join the Wide-Awake Circle as I have read the letters in The Norwich Bulletin.

Am going to write my first letter now.

My trip to Plainville started at three o'clock in the afternoon. I went with one of my friends from Willimantic to Hartford by jitney and from Hartford to Farmington by trolley, from Farmington to Plainville in a car and got there at six o'clock in the afternoon. I stayed five days and came home in the car all the way.

An Atlantic Ocean Trip

Dear Uncle Jed: I'm going to tell you about my trip on the Atlantic Ocean. We left Panama Canal Zone. We means our family, my two sisters and brother and father. Our ship was the Alianca, which we boarded at Colon. It was in November when I left Panama, where the days are hot as could be, while in America the snow was commencing to fall.

After bidding my friends adieu which was very sad indeed, I went on board ship. The ship didn't sail for a while and during the wait I walked on deck trying to find out who our fellow passengers would be. I soon found out, there was a Spanish family with a boy and girl large enough to play with and there also was a captain's son. All the children including ourselves made seven. After the gang plank was drawn in and the tug began to move then the real parting began, we waved and cried till the land we recently lived on disappeared from sight.

The first few days were not adventurous, the only thing we didn't like to do was to dress for dinner. So one day when all were sighing for adventure we decided to go sight seeing below decks. The bigger boys and girls went ahead and the smaller one followed. The first stop was the dining room. This wasn't new so our march was continued throught the pantry till the bunks were in sight. Some of the sailors were sleeping in the hammocks so we crept by softly. All of a sudden we smelled a delicious odor which crept toward our nose, so we soon came in sight of the kitchen. All of us flocked in viewing the large copper cooking pots and ovens. The cook was nervous so he gave each a fresh cookie so we would go away; so away our march went. Strolling along and viewing all interesting objects when all of a sudden the captain was spied in the distance. O! weren't we frightened, knowing that passengers are not allowed below. So spying a pile of barrels we crept behind them and hid till he went by then out we came laughing as hard as we could. Hurrying on we came to the pantry where all the china and silver ware are kept. We sped a Chinaman dozing with his legs out and right beside him was a tray of cookies. O! didn't our hearts leap so coming near him we asked him politely if we could have a cookie and nodding his sleepy head we helped ourselves, filling our hands and pockets. Instead of the tray being loaded high it was low. We crept on leaving the chink to smother his anger when he awoke.

The next day we decided to play a game. So a piece of rope was procured from a sailor and on the stern of the deck was the goal. The person "it" happened to be a boy. The game was this, every person not "it" made a knot in the rope, six knots in all and the person "it" had to untie this while the others hid. It also happened that the sailors were painting the deck where we were playing, but this didn't interfere. The next person "it" happened to be myself—just because I was small, their knots were extra hard, so after they disappeared one of the sailors took out his jack knife and cut the knots off. This I threw in the ocean and I fringed the cut end and twisted it. Then thanking the sailor, away I ran catching them in a jiffy.

My but they were surprised, but they never found out. I spent many more happy hours on board, but it would take too long to relate them.

The Bird Life of Our Forests.

Dear Uncle Jed: I haven't written to you for a long time, but I have often read the Wide-Awake Circle. I read what you said about birds and thought I would send you something about them.

The birds live on insects from the trees. If it were not for the birds the insects would destroy all the trees of the large forests. In winter there are birds that eat the eggs and other hibernating forms of insects. In spring, summer, and autumn there are birds that eat many kinds of the insects that destroy the trees.

Humming birds are something like bees in fertilizing tree blossoms and many other birds distribute and plant tree seeds. It is said that the bluejay alone would plant all the land free from forests if it were not for cultivation.

On Mt. Desert Island in 1913 spruce moths were found. The birds were very few. This was because there were a great number of red squirrels that ate the birds. The people were fearing the total destruction of all the spruce wood.

In one section of this island all the red squirrels were killed by a hunter. The result was that the birds increased in large numbers. The birds lived on the insects and soon all the trees in this section were cleaned of moths and also caterpillars while on the mainland where the red squirrels were still numerous and birds were few, the destruction of the trees was almost complete.

Orchis Family

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought I would write about the orchis family. This is a large family composed of herbaceous perennials with tuberoid roots or corms. The perianth is composed of six divions, the three outer being sepals (two of which are often united) and the three inner ones petals, the lower one of which termed the lip differs in form from the others.

First comes the yellow lady's slipper, which has usually one but sometimes three flowers at the summit of a leafy stem, 7 to 20 inches tall. The inflated lip is bright yellow slipper-shaped, and with a round open orifice near the base. The two lateral petals are brownish exceedingly twisted. Next comes the showy lady's slipper, which is a magnificent orchid, usually regarded as the most beautiful of the genus. It is of inposing dimensions and has large fragrant flowers. The inflated flower lip is large and balloon like, about two inches in length, white, with crumison-magenta blotches and streaks on the front edge; the sepals are round ovate and the petals oblong, both pointed and both greenish white in color. Next comes the small white lady's slippers. The flower of this species is of the same size and shape as the yellow variety, but the lip is pure white outside and striped with purple inside the base. I will continue the orchis family in my next letter. I have found 188 flowers so far this year.

How We Cooked Our Supper.

Dear Uncle Jed: One Thursday afternoon four friends and I thought it would be fun to cook our supper over an open fire. There were three boys and two girls. We had it in my back yard under the apple tree. One boy put the sticks up. He stood two sticks in the ground and laid one stick across the top. Then I got a kettle and filled it with water and hung it over the fire. We got some potatoes and put them in the water to boil. We toasted bread, cheese, and roasted frankfurters. After everything was cooked we sat down and ate. We used pie tins for dishes and had knives, forks and spoons. Our supper consisted of boiled potatoes, hot dogs, raw onions, toasted bread, toasted cheese and blackberries. After we finished eating we poured the water out of the kettle onto the fire and put it out. Then we went over to the swing and swung a while. About seven o'clock all the children went, all saying they had a good time.

THE LITTLE JACK RABBIT PICTURE FOR COLORING

(By David Cory.)

"Dear me!" said Mrs. Cow, as she rubbed her horns against the Old Rail Fence till the little brass thimbles on the tips glistened like gold in the sunshine, "I hope Old Danny Fox won't catch Little Jack Rabbit." Then, with a toss of her bobbed hair tail, she trotted down the well-worn path to through the Sunny Meadow, till she came to the Bubbling Brook.

"Gracious me!" she exclaimed as she saw her face in the water, "I must ask Mrs. Spider to spin me a nice veil. I'm getting all freckled."

"Never mind!" laughed the little Fresh Water Crab, "as long as your nose isn't sunburnt, you should worry!"

After taking a nice, long drink, Mrs. Cow turned off for home. In the distance, she could see the kind farmer looking out over the meadow. Pretty soon, Billy Breese brought his voice to her listening ears:

"Soo Boss, Soo Boss!" he shouted, in a kindly tone.

Mrs. Cow hurried on faster because she knew that all the little boys and girls were waiting for their glass of nice, fresh milk for supper.

Just then, Little Jack Rabbit came hopping across the Sunny Meadow, his little knapsack bobbing up and down on his back and his striped candy cane swinging from his right paw.

"What's your hurry, Mrs. Cow, Do you want to eat the big hay mow?" asked the little bunny, twinkling his pink nose and wiggling his left ear.

"Don't speak poetry to me or anything else," answered Mrs. Cow. "I'm in a dreadful hurry. Don't you hear the kind farmer calling to me?" and away went the dear lady cow with a toss of her bobbed hair.

Just then, however, Miss Crow alighted on the limb of a nearby tree.

"Hello! hello!" she shouted to the little bunny who was just disappearing down the hillside.

"What is it?" he asked, hopping back, for he was a very polite little bunny, let me tell you, especially to the ladies.

"Look out for Danny Fox," said Miss Crow. "He was here only four or five minutes ago. You'd better tell your mother to lock the door as soon as you get in."

"Thank you, ma'm," said the little rabbit, hitching up his knapsack and giving his little striped candy cane a couple of licks with his little pink tongue, "I won't forget to tell mother," and away he hopped lipperty lip, clipperty clip, with never a stumble and never a slip.

But, oh, dear me, just then, all of a sudden, quick as a wink or the wind that blows off your hat, a voice from the bushes shouted: "Now I've got you!"

RECORD FOR TROTTING SET AT LOCAL TRACK BY THE ULTIMATE, SATURDAY

Another track record was hung up Saturday afternoon at the last appearance of the Bay State horses here this season. Saturday's events closed the three day racing programme that has been unequalled in the annals of horse racing in Norwich and left everyone with a strong desire to have the circuit back in Norwich when another season rolls around.

Wednesday and Thursday the racing was eceptional and on Saturday, it did not fall below the standard. Each of the three events were interesting and marked by exceptionally good driving. The feature event was the 2.11 trot in which the track record for the trot was smashed.

The Ultimate, owned by Shirley Marston of Boston, and driven by Billy Flemming clipped a second and a half off the mark hung up by Rochelle Mail, another of the Flemming string. The Ultimate negotiated the mile in 2.11 1-4 in the final heat of the 2.11 trot nosing out Allieswood the Great in a pretty drive up the stretch. The second horse also cut down the previous mark as there was only a head's difference between the two as they flashed under the wire. Mauna Loa was the favorite to win the race but after the first heat did not show up very well breaking several times in the next two heats.

In the 2.19 trot Reckett won easily in straight heats although pushed by T. B. J. driven by Crozier. The other horses in the event finished in the same places in each heat.

The 2.23 pace went five heats and was taken by Archibald in the final an easy manner. Archibald finished in sixth place in the first heat and then Rodney drove the gelding in the second heat to a win in 2.11¾. In the third heat Archibald finished second a scant nose behind The Sherwood, the heat winner. The next two heats were easy wins for the Rodney pacer. The summaries:

ROYAL WELCOME GIVEN CRIQUI ON HIS RETURN

Paris, Aug. 12—Eugene Criqui, who lost his title as featherweight champion to Johnny Dundee in New York two weeks ago, returned home today. He was officially welcomed by the president and executive committee of the French boxing federation and presented with the federation's medal of honor.

Criqui was congratulated for his victory over Johnny Kilbane in New York early in June, when he won the featherweight title, and also for his splendid showing in his losing fight against Dundee.

A cheering crowd carried the fighter shoulder high, out of the station to the public square, where thousands of persons applauded him.

RIVERVIEW GIVEN GAME BY RED SOX LOOSE PLAYING

Riverview was presented a three to two victory Saturday afternoon at the State Hospital by the Corbin Red Sox. The New Britain team outhit the Riverview club three to one, getting nine hits off West while the Red Sox hurler held the local team to three scattered bingles. Errors at critical times gave the Riverview club their three runs while the Red Sox runs were earned.

Riverview owes its victory to some extent to Jack Clabby who robbed the Red Sox of at least two runs and possibly three. Clabby was playing in left when in the latter part of the game with two on and two down, a long drive was crashed to left field and was good for three bases or a home run but Clabby managed to nail the ball after a hard and spectacular run. This victory evens up the series with the New Britain team, the Red Sox decisively beating the locals in July 12 to 4. Another game may be arranged between these clubs later in the season.

DODGERS TROUNCE PIRATES TWICE ON SAME DAY

Brooklyn, Aug. 12.—Brooklyn beat Pittsburgh twice today, 11 to 2 and 6 to 0. In the first game Dazzy Vance scored his tenth straight victory and also struck out ten of the Pirates, surpassing his record of nine on their previous trip here. The Dodgers made sixteen hits off Hamilton and Steineder, Neis leading with a triple, a homer, a single and two passes in five times up. In the 5th inning, Fournier hit a homer with two on and Deberry followed almost immediately after with a circuit drive with one out. Grimes broke his string of six straight defeats by holding the Pirates to three hits, two of them scratches in the second game. The Dodgers made their hits off Morrison and Bagby count largely. Bailey's fielding in center featured. Scores:

CARDS HUMBLE GIANTS IN FINAL GAME

St. Louis, Aug. 12—Jess Haines pitched a fine brand of ball today and held the league leading Giants to six hits, while Gearin was hit at opportune times thus enabling the Cardinals to take the final game of the series, 3 to 2. Today's victory gave the locals three of the five games with New York. It was the first series the Cardinals have won this season from McGraw's team. Through an over-sight, in the seventh, the Cardinals nearly were given four outs. It was not until one of the New York players rushed from the dugout and protested against Hornsby's batting in that inning after three men had been retired that the umpires discovered that the inning had already been closed. YANKS DROP FINAL GAME OF SERIES TO TIGERS

New York, Aug. 12.—The Yankees dropped the final contest to the Tigers at the stadium today by a score of 5 to 3.

Sylvester Johnson had the better of Joe Bush in a pitchers' battle, keeping the Yankees hits well scattered.

Bobbie Veach was in right field for Detroit in place of Heilmann. The Tiger slugger wrenched his right arm in throwing yesterday, and he was unable to play.

Babe Ruth drove out his 28th home run of the season in the first inning. The score:

SOUTH AMERICAN CUTS FIVE HOURS OFF MARK FOR ENGLISH CHANNEL SWIM

Dover, England, Aug. 12 (By the A. P.).—Enrique Tirabocchi, Argentine swimmer, landed here at 12.23 o'clock this afternoon after swimming the English channel from Cape Gris-Nes, France, in the record time of 16 hours and 33 minutes. After 18 hours and 10 minutes in the water, Charles Toth of Boston, Mass., abandoned his attempt to swim the channel at 6.45 o'clock this morning. He was within two and one-half miles of the English coast when he gave up.

With the landing of Tirabocchi the channel twice has been conquered within a week by American swimmers.

With fortunate turns in the tide, Tirabocchi took nine hours less for his journey from the French side of the waterway to Dover than Henry Sullivan of Lowell, Mass., required last week to traverse the route in the opposite direction. The Argentine also cut 5 hours and 12 minutes off the record set in the 70s by the first man to swim the channel, Captain Matthew Webb, an Englishman, who later lost his life in trying to negotiate the rapids at Niagara Falls.

Swimmer Was "All In."

The great effort of Tirabocchi sapped him of all his strength and, unlike Sullivan he was not able to walk up the shore, enter a cafe and order a dish of ice cream and later a bowl of soup. The moment the Argentine's feet touched the bottom a few yards out from the pebble-covered beach of Dover, he fell into the arms of members of the crowd that had cheered the finishing strokes of his trudge across the 22 1-2 mile stretch of water. All around him there were people jabbering in English, French, Italian and Spanish, but Tirabocchi did not hear them, for his ears were filled with water and he was "all in."

He recovered rapidly, however. Before peering into the straining eyes of the hundreds who were pushing and shoving to get closer to him, the retinue of Tirabocchi who had rowed across the channel in his wake had removed his swimming trunks and lifted him into some dry clothes, as though they were dressing some little infant.

The clean linen seemed somewhat to revive Tirabocchi, who stood up chatting for a few minutes with a few comrades. Then, before anyone had an opportunity to find out from him what he thought about his swim, he had hopped into a rowboat which took him out to a tug which immediately pointed its prow back toward the French shore.

Tirabocchi Beats the Tide.

Tirabocchi had luck with the tide. Had he been 30 minutes slower in getting within the sheltered cove between the long Admiralty pier and Shakespeare cliff he surely would have had the same sad experience which last year robbed him of accomplishing his ambition. That is, he would have got within a thousand yards of his goal and then been carried away from the shore by an adverse tide.

A few minutes before the tide turned at midday, Tirabocchi had pulled himself inside the cove so that the tide could not trouble him. He had begun his swim on an ebb tide which lasted one hour and then, for most part of the night, he went with the flood tide. When the waters rose again in the middle of the morning the swimmer had drifted into the plain view of hundreds of persons who had heard of his approach and gathered on the beach to wated him.

At 33 minutes past noon Tirabocchi's feet touched earth again for the first time since he had taken the water at 8 o'clock last night, because of his speed in crossing Tirabocchi had to contend with only three tides, while Sullivan had five to fight. Thus while Sullivan's course is described by the letter "W" plus one additional line, Tirabocchi's is described by the letter "N." Tirabocchi made such fast time that he didn't even grow a beard in the water as Sullivan did.

Like Sullivan, the Argentine will receive 1,000 pounds sterling for his feat and also a gold medal from the Channel Swimming club.

Still No Easy Feat.

Because the channel has been crossed twice within a week does not necessarily mean that the feat has become easy. Three other persons who started Saturday to do what Tirabocchi accomplished today all had to be lifted out of the water before dry land was reached. Two of them, Romeo Maciel, an Argentine, and Sam Richards of Boston, have decided that the channel is too much for them this year at least and do not intend to make other attempts at the swim until 1924.

Toth, who quit early this morning, when seemingly within striking distance of the English coast, is undecided whether he will have another go at the task before the autumnal tides set in.

AUSTRALIANS TRIM JAPS IN DAVIS CUP PLAY

South Side Tennis Club, Chicago, Aug. 12—(By the A. P.)—Fighting for the honor of playing France in the final matches of the Davis cup series, the Australian tennis team triumphed over the Japanese this afternoon at the south side tennis club.

Captain James O. Anderson clinched the Aussie's victory in the first match of the day when he overwhelmingly defeated Zenzo Shimizu, Nipponese captain, 6-0, 6-3, 6-2, in the remarkably short time of 52 minutes. Then, just to make the triumph complete, John B. Hawkes, Anderson's partner, vanquished Mananosuke Fukuda, 6-3, 6-4, 6-3, although the match was not needed by the men from the Antipodes.

ALBANY BEATS HARTFORD AFTER THIRTEEN DEFEATS

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 12—Albany defeated Hartford 7 to 1 today in the first game of a scheduled double header. The home team had lost thirteen games in a row. Wilson, pitching for Albany, held Hartford to four hits. The second game was called in the third inning on account of rain. Albany was leading 2 to 0. Score by innings:

THREADMAKERS TAKE FIRST GAME OF CITY SERIES

Willimantic, Aug. 12—The first game of the series for the city championship between the American Thread-Independents and the West Ends was played at Recreation Park today and resulted in a walk away for the Thread Makers by the score of 13 to 3. The West Ends were able to collect but three safe hits from Mathewson's delivery while the latter's team-mates supported him in flawless fashion. On the other hand Moore who started on the mound for the West Ends was hit hard and his support was way off color. The Independents put over a trio of tallies in the second inning and made it a holocaust in the next stanza when they batted completely around and eight runs treked over the plate. This inning saw the finish of Moore and Tobey Kegler came in from short stop to take up the pitching burden. The youngster held the hard hitting independents in check for the remainder of the game and if he had been allowed to start the game, a different story might have resulted. He allowed five hits in as many innings and only one run was made during his term of office in the box and that was the result of some dumb playing by his associates.

The Thread Makers collected twelve safe blows all told, seven off Moore and five from Kegler. Babe Adams led in the assault with a brace of doubles and a single in five trips to the platter. Lathrop and Hamel each hit safely twice while the remaining members of the team collected with one hit apiece except for McQuillan.

Kegler made an infield hit in the third when the West Ends made their first run, the bingle bringing Flippen over the plate after he had walked and taken third on a passed ball. Sammy Heller led off the eighth with a double to right, Summers misjudging the ball but his team-mates could not bring him around. In the ninth Kegler was hit by a pitched ball, took third on a wild pitch and scored on Scribner's safe blow over second.

The one-sidedness of the score made the game slow and uninteresting. Mathewson fanned thirteen of the West End players and had control of the situation at all times. A stop by Kegler and catches by S. Heller featured the play of the West Ends. Normandin, G. Adams and Phillips made good fielding plays for the winning side while a catch by Kid Brundage, formerly of C. A. C. was another good fielding bit.

Only a small crowd witnessed the game which was played in a drizzle of rain. The score:

VELVETMEN BEAT LEBANON SATURDAY; FEDERALS SUNDAY

The J. B. Martin team won both of its week end games, winning from Lebanon at Lebanon on Saturday 10 to 4 and beating the Hartford Federals on Sunday 2 to 1, in ten innings.

The game Sunday was productive of much good baseball and was more or less of a pitchers' battle between Lemieux for the velvetmen and Sayers for the Federals. The Martin boys scored the first run in the first inning and were then held scoreless until the tenth after the Federals had evened the count in the first half of the ninth. The run in the tenth came on a wild peg to second to catch Joubert trying to steal, Joubert continuing home with the winning run.

SHAPING THE PRESIDENT'S COURSE.

President Coolidge had scarcely been a day in Washington, when the political prophets arose to declare the paths he would follow. Without meaning to accuse the president of insincerity in his first pronouncement that he proposed to follow closely in the footsteps of his predecessor, they take the attitude that even presidential resolutions may change now as they have in times past.

Something of what the prophet hopes for is liable to tinge the tone of his prophecy. For instance, a two-hour call that Senator Brandegee of Connecticut made upon President Coolidge is susceptible of different interpretations. Prophets who do not favor the world court and who recall that the Connecticut senator was conspicuous among the die-hard isolationists predict that this bodes no good to the world court programme. Mr. Coolidge has been favorable to the world court, but who can tell what a single interview with a die-hard may not accomplish. Prophets who like the court are quick to see in the senator's call only an unsuccessful attempt to bring the new president into the isolationists' camp.

Changes in government personnel also come within the prophetic field, forecasting the retirement from the cabinet of Attorney-General Daugherty and Postmaster General New, while the seers also declare that Colonel George Harvey will no longer be allowed to announce government policies in England. This is in the face of President Coolidge's announced desire to retain the personnel of the government intact.

From abroad come notes of prophecy on international relations. President Coolidge is to sound a new note in international politics. M. Louis Loucheur, formerly a member of the Briand cabinet in France, joins the ranks of the seers and is quite confident that Mr. Coolidge will insist upon a general cancellation of war debts. "I am," says M. Loucheur, "particularly well informed concerning President Coolidge's sentiments on European questions, especially on reparations. Do not be surprised if the American president in the near future takes a definite position in the conversations commencing between the allies. American intervention will be directed by a real desire for justice and we can count on having far more friends in the United States than enemies." Here is a prophecy that goes much farther than anything so far made in America. If M. Loucheur be correct, Hiram Johnson will be greatly comforted.

The new president is not of the weather-vane variety, to be swung to and fro. He enters the duties of his office with an acquaintance with national and international problems far beyond what vice presidents called to the presidency usually enjoy. He is not a spectacular man and he is not likely to commit himself to suddenly conceived policies or to the making of abrupt decisions. If he has any radical changes to make, they will be reached after mature consideration and in the conviction of their absolute advisability.

GERMAN DEMORALIZATION.

Chancellor Cuno's administration in Germany has reached the tottering point where the chancellor has handed his resignation to President Ebert, who at first declined, but has now accepted. The whole cabinet went with him. The Cuno administration has had only the lukewarm and half-hearted support of the bourgeoisie party, while the active and violent opposition of the communists and socialists was arrayed against it. The united socialists have recorded their intention to support the "no confidence" motion, which is to come up for a vote today in the reichstag and which was introduced by the communists.

Back of the Cuno ministry has been Hugo Stinnes, the industrial magnate of Germany, whom the socialists hated equally with the chancellor who they consider is the representative of Stinnes. The big industrial magnate heard the chancellor's speech in the reichstag last week and saw the demonstration against the Cuno regime when the reichstag building was invaded by a large force of reds, who demanded and nearly won admittance to the chamber. They were finally persuaded to depart, shouting "Down with Cuno and the bourgeoisie; pay us in food, not in worthless paper; long live the soviets!"

The one plain deduction from the chancellor's speech is that the government at Berlin is determined to continue passive resistance in the Ruhr and to support by aid from the unoccupied territory the population of the Ruhr engaged in this negative warfare against French occupation. In other words, Germany decides to maintain its present policy, evidently hoping for a break between France and England.

Such financial measures as were indicated in Cuno's address to the reichstag will afford only temporary relief, it is confessed, and will not cure. Cuno acknowledged that the "ultimate real cure of our finances will only be possible when our foreign political situation is clarified and the reparation problem regulated in a manner bearable for us." Whatever is done meanwhile is only a palliative designed to "check the inflation and collapse of the currency."

The currency has already collapsed. The exchange rate is descending at a pace that the chancellor indicated would carry it to below ten million to the dollar within a week, which is virtually the vanishing point.

HARDING HIGHWAY.

It has been suggested that the name of the Cannonball trail, connecting Chicago and Los Angeles, be changed to Harding highway. The substitution would be made in consideration of the fact that the highway extends from Chicago, where Mr. Harding was nominated for the presidency, to California, the state in which he died.

This is an acceptable thought. There is inspiration in an appropriate name for a great interstate thoroughfare. As the traveler journeys along he has time for reflection. The word Harding will suggest to his mind not only a distinguished chief executive of the United States, but the incidents connected with the bringing of his body from the Pacific to the Chesapeake, a remarkable outburst of patriotism in a time of profound peace.

For the tribute paid the late president was not only to the man, but to the office and to the flag. The highway over which the mortal remains of Harding were borne was marked, not by signposts, but by double lines of sorrowing American citizens, and in their ranks the national colors blazed, the symbol of an exalted patriotism. This highway passed through twelve sovereign states of the Union, a cross-section of the nation. The route was the sentimental Harding highway, but since it cannot be located it would seem desirable to have a Harding highway in fact.

MUCH STILL TO LEARN.

Development of motor transportation has been brought to its present stage by a combination of fewer factors than have entered into any other important industry. The gas engine, pneumatic tires, multiple cylinders, alloy steels, anti-friction bearings, self-starter and ignition systems—these make up the list. Of other revolutionary developments there are none and this leads a Boston paper to remark that it is the only great business that "has advanced so rapidly with so few facts at its command." If the past rate of progress is to continue, that paper thinks "the industry must know more concerning the automobile, the materials used and what happens to these materials when they are fabricated." The golden age of the motor, it would appear, lies in the future, rapid as has been advancement in the last twenty years.

Combustion is one of the prominent problems inviting solution. Low compression engines now are used in cars, and, at best, are said to utilize only from one-seventh to one-tenth of the energy in gasoline. If gasoline of the present quality is used in high compression engines put in automobiles for experimental purposes, there is a constant knocking or detonation, making them less efficient than low compression engines. At least one of the larger motor manufacturing companies has organized a research corporation, and is seeking a chemical compound, which, if mixed with gasoline, will eliminate the knocking and permit the use of high compression engines. Some success has been met with but not enough to justify a conclusion. Final success, experts say, would mean smaller engines, a lighter chassis and reduced manufacturing costs.

On such investigation as this depends the future efficiency of industry. The field for ingenuity and research is constantly broadening. What is going on in motor manufacturing is going on in many other lines. Especially in electricity is there expectation of future marvels, of which now and then an inkling of possibilities filters from behind the closed doors of laboratories.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

This is the season when nobody declines the gift of a few days' extra vacation.

Looks as if the bituminous coal operators had their eye on a profitable market.

Competition for the place of chief adviser to President Coolidge promises to be keen.

The Ruhr is bigger in area than Deauville but as a summer resort it is not in the same class.

Any woman who sues for $200,000 alimony pays an unconscious tribute to her husband's business ability.

The fellow who stops, looks and listens at grade crossings stands a better chance of living through the summer.

The man on the corner says: The crux of the coal situation is that it is better to have some in the cellar than none.

It is predicted that automobile driving is producing a pigeon-toed race, but it will probably be some years before this step in evolution becomes alarming.

Magnus Johnson announces that the chief need of congress is more horse sense. It remains to be seen how much of that he brings from his Minnesota farm.

Nobody doubts that old John Barleycorn would like to have William H. Anderson arrested for driving a waterwagon while intoxicated with temporary power.

Those pessimists who declare that New England is slipping have new grounds for their contention. One of our contemporaries discovers that Boston baked beans have lost their flavor and that "real New England clam chowder" is only a memory.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

If the holes in your percolator are clogged, place it over a lighted gas burner for a few minutes and the sediment will disappear quickly.

Add a few chopped almonds and English walnuts to sweetbreads just before serving.

The white of an egg applied to a burn or scald is very soothing and healing.

Mint will grow in water if it is given plenty of air and placed in a sunny window.

If you should have ice cream left over and are unable to repack it, soak an envelope of gelatin in a little water for a few minutes, dissolve it in a little boiling water and when cool beat it into the cream. Turn this into a mold and set it on ice to chill. Then it will keep.

If you wish your cornmeal to be perfectly smooth and well cooked, dry it on the top of the stove or in the oven before you use it. Then put it into a sieve and sift slowly into boiling salted water.

Butter the cups in which you bake your custards or rice pudding and they will not be hard to wash.

Soak mildew spots in sour milk and salt. Lay in the sun. Repeat process until spots are gone.

HAIR DRESSED LOW.

The women whose heads have the proper classic contour — the others whose heads have not—are dressing the hair low on the neck at present. This coiffure is sometimes enhanced by a half circle of satin flowers extending in back, and low down from ear to ear.

CHARMING SUMMER GOWNS.

The net frock is conspicuous in the summer wardrobe of the modish young woman. One good example is in shades of clover. The net itself is the usual clover shade, while the ribbons that edge every one of the three tiers of ruffles that make the skirts are of varying clover shades, such as one sees in driving along the beautiful country roads in summer. The sash for this is two-toned, old blue and clover, the soft ribbon being looped into a large wheel from which dangles a single streamer culminating in a beaded tassel near the bottom of the skirt. The bodice has two small ribbon-edged ruffles about a low neckline and two more ruffles at armholes that do away with any necessity for sleeves.

HAND KNIT BRACELET.

Hand-knit bracelets to hold the handkerchief are serving for beach and sport wear. They match the embroidery on the wash dress, the sweater or bathing suit. It takes just a bit of yarn left over from a sweater or bits of various colors from the yarn bag.

Of course, the finer the yarn the daintier the bracelet. Medium weight yarn does very well, but light weight yarn make dainty bracelets.

If light weight yarn is used, cast on twelve stitches. Then knit for two inches. Leave the stitches on the needle, but knit on but three until you have knit sufficient length for the slit through which the handkerchief is to be pulled. This slit should be an inch or an inch and a half long. Break the thread, pick up the stitches which are left on the needle and knit the next six only the same length as the first have been knit. Break the thread again and pick up the remaining three stitches, knitting them the same length as the other two. This completes the slit for the handkerchief. Next knit straight across, joining all twelve stitches, and continue the band until it is long enough to reach around the wrist. The whole band is made in the stockinette stitch. Chiffon squares, picoted, or more practical linen, embroidered in worsted, make pretty "hankies" to wear in the band.

CROCHETED YARN HAT.

If a hat has correct lines, it doesn't matter how inexpensive it is. One of the prettiest sports hats of the season is made of wool yarn. These hats were made by Russian refugees, with the design crocheted in contrasting shades of wool. They have the correct silhouette—short in the back and a narrow brim in front, and so soft that they can be crushed up and put in suitcase, and bent into a becoming shape when worn.

ABOUT PARASOLS.

The newer parasols shown here today are very squat and squarely built. Sometimes they are ornamented with garlands of little silk posies that look quaintly out of place on the almost clumsy wooden ferrules.

Fur has become such a popular summer trimming that now it adorns the most summerlike of accessories. Some of the new parasols have tufts of fur on the sun shade and on the handle.

SUMMER FURS.

It is just about time that the white fox fur is a trifle gray looking with dust. It can be cleaned by rubbing bran through it. Leave the bran in the fur for a day and then shake thoroughly. The dust will be loosened and will shake out with the bran.

WHEN ROASTING MEATS.

Grease the pan (roaster) thoroughly before adding water to baste. When the meat is removed, not only does all the essence go into the gravy, but the pan is so easily washed—no burned, stuck spots remaining to the scoured off with powder. Hoping that this little bit will help other struggling bride-housewives, as well as save the lives of a few aluminum roasters.

REMOVING SCORCH STAINS.

Lay a wet piece of cloth over the scorched spot and iron over the wet cloth. Do this again and again till the scorch stain is entirely gone. Such steaming is always successful.

BABY'S CREEPING BLOOMERS.

When my baby began to crawl I made him black satin bloomers with elastic at knee and waist. I pulled these bloomers over his white clothes and it saved so much laundering! It keeps the baby's light clothes so nice and clean, I thought this might help some other busy mother.

CLEANING GREASY SINK.

When the sink is very greasy rub it with a rag slightly dampened with gasoline. In a few seconds it will be cleaner and brighter than after several minutes of hard rubbing with a scouring powder. I accidentally made this discovery and thought some other readers might like to know about it.

MACARONI AND CHEESE.

Your menus often call for macaroni and cheese baked together. Our family likes it, but I think I have improved the dish by cutting up two hard-boiled eggs into the macaroni and cheese before baking it. Just try it. It makes the dish even more nutritious and good.

PRUNE WHIP.

Prune whip, which consists of prune pulp into which whites of eggs and sugar are beaten, is a delicious dessert and fairly cheap one.

FOR THE WINDOW.

Window baskets for flowers are of painted willow and are of different sizes.

A PAINTED SET.

For the summer breakfast room nothing could be more attractive than a set of painted furniture with table, chairs and cabinet.

DICTATES OF FASHION.

Printed fabrics made up with plain.

Frocks of varied laces in combination.

Many of the early fall hats are draped on the lines of a tam. A very pretty model of black velvet is embroidered in white silk. The design is large leaves in outline stitch.

A frock of crepe de chine in shades of biege or gray made on straight lines and finished with collar and cuffs of colored linen frilled at the edges is as useful as it is smart. The sleeves are long and tight.

By this time every one knows that this is a white summer, but it is also a summer in which color is used more skillfully than ever before. And while one must be sure to include in the vacation wardrobe a costume of snowy white, from hat to shoes, one must not overlook the frock that is given individuality by its cleverly placed bit of striking color.

Many layers of tulle make side panels for a frock of black charmeuse. They are bunched into huge pompons at the waistline.

For children's summer coats black taffeta is going to be very smart, as well as pongee in the natural color.

Despite the vogue for flowing capes and fancy wraps, some of the most elegant and the most expensive coats stick to straight lines and the narrow silhouette. Many costumes on strictly tailored lines are seen.

The surplice effect is featured in coat dresses and those of rep and twill. It is an excellent line for the woman who could eliminate a few pounds to advantage.

Green and yellow are popular shades for summer and both are popular for daytime as well as evening wear.

The pale gray costume continues a favorite. One worn for the luncheon hour last week contrasted the lustrous and dull surface of crepe satin in large squares the blouse cape and skirt both pleated and the small felt hat draped in a veil of the same gray tone. The large black velvet hat has made its appearance in combination with costumes of pale colored crepe, and is unquestionably smart.

Navy organdy is seen during luncheon hour, the skirt in tiers piped in red and slashed front and back, streamers of ribbon from the neckline front and back.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Women employed in the civil service in Brazil receive equal pay with men.

Women' suffrage societies now exist in many of the large cities in China.

Birmingham, Ala., has established a school to teach textile designing to women.

According to the latest census figures, five women in the United States earn a living by coopering barrels.

In Japan is a settlement where the wives support the husbands and children and are the acknowledged heads of the family. The men keep house.

Cosima Wagner, the widow of Richard Wagner and the daughter of Franz Liszt, is still living in Berlin and is reported to be in wretched poverty.

In Ohio girls of 18 will no longer be able to marry without their parents' consent, as the legal age of women has been raised from 18 to 21 years.

Accompanied only by her three young children, Mrs. Thomas P. Schall, wife of the blind congressman, recently drove her own car from Washington, D. C., to her home in Minnesota.

Queen Alexandra, in her thoughtfulness for birds, has a tree at Sandringham on which in cold weather nuts, fruits, and odd scraps of food acceptable to birds are tied to the branches.

RECIPES.

Green Corn Chowder. — This is a savory mixture of green corn, green peppers and tomatoes. To a half dozen ears of corn allow 5 tomatoes, 5 green peppers and 5 small onions, all minced. Cook the onions a golden brown in a little bacon fat, then add the other vegetables, having the corn cut from the cob as nearly whole as possible. Cover with boiling water and simmer for an hour. Season with salt and pepper and serve.

Watermelon Cocktail. — Make balls of watermelon with a French vegetable cutter. Allow 6 or 8 balls to a serving. If the melon is not sweet, cover balls with sugar, about 1-2 to a spoon of sugar for each ball is a good rule. Squeeze the juice from oranges, allowing 2 tbsp. of juice for each cocktail. Put the mixture into a glass jar, cover and let stand on ice until needed. Serve in cocktail glasses with a sprig of mint in each glass.

Minced Beef Sandwiches.—Put yesterday's left-overs from Rump Roast of Beef through your meat-grinder and mix this chopped beef with only just enough Mayonnaise dressing to bind it together. Spread the mixture on buttered slices of wholewheat bread.

Today's Birthdays

Marquis of Cambridge, elder brother of Queen Mary, born in London, 55 years ago today.

Emma Eames, long famous as an operatic prima donna, born of American parentage in Shanghai, 56 years ago today.

Brig. Gen. John L. Clem, U. S. A., retired, who was last civil war veteran on the active rolls of the U. S. Army, born at Newark, O., 72 years ago today.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

One of the men who is expected to hold a high place at the inner councils of the Coolidge Administration is Frank Waterman Stearns, who is known as the most intimate friend of the new President. Mr. Stearns, who is in his 67th year, is a wealthy Boston merchant, head of a large retail dry goods house which was established by his father some seventy-five years ago. He has never sought nor held public office and his active participation in politics has been confined to furthering the ambitions of his friend "Cal" Coolidge. It is he who is credited with having "discovered" Mr. Coolidge's political possibilities. The intimate friendship between the two began when Mr. Coolidge was a member of the Massachusetts legislature. Mr. Stearns, like the new Chief Executive, is a graduate and devoted son of Amherst College. Likewise both men are members and active workers in the Congregational church.

Stories That Recall Others

Beats Salome

"Miss Lightfoot," said Jollyer on being introduced to the young woman, "I think your dancing is wonderful."

"Do you really?" she responded.

"Yes, indeed! It is more wonderful than that of the damsel who danced before Herod and demanded the head of John the Baptist."

"More wonderful than Salome's? How?"

"Well, you see, when she danced one man was decapitated, but when you dance all the men lose their heads."

Brave in Daylight

A small boy in New Haven was ordered by his mother to say his prayer just before retiring for the night. Seeing that darkness had not arrived, he replied: "Oh, mother, it isn't dark yet."

Evidently he was braver by day than by night.

A Three-Year-Old's Ambition.

Little Sam Miller, age three, has an eye to the future, and will no doubt follow in the steps of his father should war come.

When his father was arraying himself in the panoply of war in preparation for a parade, little Sam was a most interested spectator. He noted the well-pressed khaki suit, and the Sam Browne belt neatly adjusted, the overseas cap well on one side of the head and sighed. Running over to his mother, he said:

"Honey, I wish I could grow big feet and be a soldier."

CHILD TRAINING

Bad Habits of Children—Break Them!

At a summer resort recently I met a pretty and charming young woman, who attracted my attention because of her hands. One was very slender with tapering fingers and small knuckles. The other was larger with large knuckles. I often wondered what caused such mis-mates.

One day we were chatting on the beach, when a child strolled by, biting and sucking her small hand. "Come here, dear," called my newly-found friend. The child shuffled toward us, and my friend said. Please don't abuse those pretty little hands like that. Go and play with your sand shovel and bucket instead."

Billie, as her friends called her, told After the child had left us, Miss me about her hands. "When I was a child I had the dreadful habit of sucking and biting my hands. I kept it up for years. Sometimes they would become red and chapped. My right one was usually the victim. I lived with a busy aunt, who did not seem to notice the habit. You see the result," and she laid her hands on her lap. "They do not look as if they were even acquainted."

I know a woman, who is now a grandmother, who has bitten her nails since she was a small girl. Her hands are hideous. Besides, she looks rather foolish now, with her white hair, gnawing at her nails when she be comes excited or very much interested in something.

I live next door to a young girl who would be really beautiful if it were not for the fact that, when she was a child, she had acquired the habit of wrinkling her forehead. Now, as a girl of nineteen, she has deep wrinkles which greatly mar the otherwise beautiful face.

Little habits which, in children, do not seem particularly distressing or odious, become a handicap to a grown-up. They are certainly not conducive to poise or charm.

So, let's try and break up any little habits we see children developing, while they are still "in embryo," for, you know, "Habit is a cable; you weave a thread of it each day, until at last you cannot break it."

SAILOR FOR ENTICING YOUNG GIRL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Aug. 13.—Joseph Fitzpatrick, a sailor aboard the U. S. S. Camden, at anchor in the harbor many weeks, was in the police court Monday morning, charged with enticing a minor female. He is now at the naval hospital. Fitzpatrick is alleged to have enticed Alice Curran, a 17-year-old girl residing with her parents at No. 49 Potter street at the time, to go away with him. The couple went to Norwich from New London and then the former city continued to Boston, where Fitzpatrick is alleged to have abandoned the girl. The girl was arrested a day or two after Fitzpatrick had left her, charged with vagrancy and common consent. A day or two after the girl was turned over to Prosecuting Officer Richard W. Marshall of the New London police court and the day afterwards was committed to Long Lane farm, a state school for wayward girls in Middletown. A warrant for Fitzpatrick's arrest was issued by Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin, but not until yesterday afternoon was Fitzpatrick delivered to the civil authorities. He was held in bonds of $2,000 for his court appearance tomorrow. Fitzpatrick is but 18. The penalty for the offense is five years in prison or a fine of $1,000, or both.

NORWICH CAR IN NEW LONDON COLLISION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Aug. 12.—An automobile owned and operated by Waldo Miner of No. 15 Post Hill place and a machine owned and driven by Miss Eva Benault of No. 35 Hobart avenue, Norwich, were in collision on State street at the corner of Meridian street Saturday night. Both machines were damaged.

ELKS HOLD ANNUAL OUTING AT POQUETANUCK DRAWBRIDGE

Norwich lodge, No. 430, B. P. O. Elks, held their annual outing and King George famous clambake Sunday at Happyland. The members of the world of Elkdom left the city shortly before noon and soon after arriving at the Drawbridge were served the following luncheon: Clam chowder, brown bread, white bread and pickles.

In the afternoon a program of sports was enjoyed, the married and single men having their annual battle for baseball fame. Fighting hard from the start, the benedicts handed the single men a terrible beating, and when the boy ran out of numbers the game was called, the score being 16 to 4.

In the field events, Jack Flynn won the running broad jump, John Sharron taking the 100 yard dash, the hop-skip-and-jump going to Benjamin Mandell. Frank J. Murtha handled the sports program.

Narragansett Bay Clams.
Bluefish.	Chicken. Sausage.
Lobsters.	Clam Fritters.
Sweet Potatoes.	White Potatoes.
Brown Bread.	White Bread.
Cucumbers.	Tomatoes. Green Corn.
Watermelon.	Soft Drinks.
Cigarettes.	Cigars.

In spite of the threatening weather, the outing was a success, due to the untiring work of the committee in charges of outing arrangements, comprising John H. Wilson, James P. Hayes, Joseph Williams and James Casey.

MAYFLOWER CLUB'S PICNIC AT STONINGTON HOMESTEAD

The Mayflower club picnic proved most enjoyable when the members were most hospitably entertained last week by Mrs. N. Stanton Gates at her home at Pequotsepos, the ancestral place of the pioneer Capt. George Denison and his wife, Lady Ann Borodell, at Road Society, Stonington. The large dining room, with its long table and several smaller tables which were set in the west room, were made most attractive with beautiful old china, silver and bouquets of old fashioned flowers, while the floral adornment of all the rooms was most artistic.

A substantial luncheon of tomato bisque, meats, salads, rolls and olives, ice cream, cake, candy and coffee was served at 1:30. At its close, brief speeches were given by Mrs. B. P. Bishop of Norwich, president of the club, Mrs. Charles Denison of New York, Miss Grace D. Wheeler, also Gilbert McClurg, who paid a tribute to President Harding and his worthy successor.

Nearly all present were descendants of Capt. George Denison and Lady Ann, and many had never before seen their ancestral homestead.

Guests from Norwich were: Mrs. B. P. Bishop, Mrs. William H. Fitch, Mrs. Benjamin Lewis, Mrs. Burrill W. Hyde, Mrs. Hezekiah Perkins, Mrs. Elizabeth B. Davis. From New London, Mrs. L. K. Shipman, Miss Elizabeth Gerton, Mrs. Ernest Rogers, Mrs. Herbert Crandall, Mrs. Charles Chaney, Miss Harriet Prince, Miss Fannie Potter, Mrs. Fred Smith, Mrs. Charles B. Jennings, Miss Lucretia Smith, Miss Elizabeth Stark, Mrs. John Waite. From Plainfield: Miss Annie L. Tillinghast. From Mystic: Mrs. Christopher Morgan, Mrs. Benjamin Holmes. From Putnam, Mrs. Silas Wheelock, Miss Sylvia Wheelock. From Groton, Miss Rachel Larrabee, Mrs. Sanford Meech, Miss Addie Thomas. From Saybrook, Miss Mabel Holman. From Stonington, Mrs. Seth N. Williams and Miss Grace D. Wheeler.

The guests of the club were Mrs. Charles Denison, of New York, ex-president of the Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Elliot H. Peabody of Worcester, Mrs. Schoonmaker of Schivater, N. Y., Mr. and Mrs. Cummings of Washington, D. C., Miss Marion Lee Bishop of Norwich, E. E. Rogers of New London, Gilbert McClurg of Stonington, Dr. Rural of Westerly and Mrs. Bessie Ludwig, who has just arrived from a stay of several months in California, and Mrs. N. S. Oakes, the hostess, who was made an honorary member by vote of the club.

PLEASANT VIEW CARNIVAL FOR BENEFIT OF CHAPEL

At Pleasant View Saturday, an elaborate program of track and water sports had been arranged by officials in charge of St. Clare's community carnival held all day. There was also a big bazaar and a dance in the evening on the concrete esplanade in front of the Pleasant View House.

The first part of the water program began at 10 a. m. on the lagoon, where canoe and row boat races, tilting contests and novelty aquatic races for children were held. At 11 a. m. there were swimming races for men, boys and girls over a 50-yard course off the esplanade. Frank Burke was chairman of the committee in charge of water sports. His assistants were William McKnight, Charles Murdy and Frank Appleby.

At 2 p. m. there was a series of track events for men, boys and girls in front of the Pleasant View house. The track committee consisted of William Regan, chairman; Raymond McWeeney, Edward Coughlin and Antonio Ruisi. Other track officials were Starter, Timothy Morris. Judges, D. Norris and James Bartley, referee, Dr. Patrick Keefe; timer, James Hennessey, committee on awards, William Keenan, William Hagan and Timothy Moe.

General arrangements for the community carnival was in charge of the following committee: Mrs. William F. Barry, chairman; William J. Keenan, vice chairman; Rev. Daniel F. Sullivan, treasurer; Timothy J. Moe, secretary; Dr. Patrick Keefe, James Hagan, Timothy Morris and James Bartley, directors.

Various sub-committees had been chosen to work under the supervision of the general committee headed by Mrs. Barry. The carnival, for the benefit of the Catholic chapel proved very successful.

NORWICH COUPLE OBSERVE 14TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell J. Cloutier, Jr., of this city celebrated their 14th wedding anniversary with a week end family party at the cottage Allihad at the Poquetanuck drawbridge. Sunday a delicious chowder and clambake was enjoyed and during the afternoon an orchestra furnished music for dancing. Crabbing and bathing also furnished entertainment for many. Michael Richard winning the trick diving contest.

Patrick McGill of No. 8 Happy street reported to the police that while his Star touring car was parked alongside the Westerly highway at North Stonington early Sunday evening it was run into by a machine driven by Fred Tupeka of 35 West Main street. Tupeka was towing a disabled car at the time. The damage was small.

TRANSPORTING LIQUOR IN PUBLIC SERVICE CAR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Westerly, Aug. 13.—Cooperation by the police department of the town of Westerly for the enforcement of national prohibition laws resulted in the arrest Sunday morning of Benjamin Fain, 131 Main street. The arrest of Mr. Fain, of the Fain Auto Service, took place at 1 o'clock Sunday morning on Atlantic avenue, Pleasant View, by Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, Special Officer George Matthewson and Pleasant View Special Officer and Constable William Hamilton. Fain was caught, apparently, "with the goods," for when arrested he was alone and driving his large public service sedan in which were found three new cases of whiskey.

Fain with others has been under observation by the police, who are in possession of evidence which would tend to show that the arrested man had conducted a bootlegging business for some time. It is also said that liquors have been transported from Mystic to Westerly for some time past ending with the capture of a rum running boat and that more recently the contraband liquors have been brought into Westerly from the eastward.

Following his arrest Fain was brought to Westerly and locked up in a cell in the Westerly police station to await hearing before Judge Michael J. Turano of the Third district court Sunday night.

Fain was presented at a special session of the Third district court before Judge Michael J. Turano tonight at 7:30 o'clock. The defendant pleaded nollo, which was amended as directed by Attorney John J. Dunn to a plea of not guilty.

Town Solicitor Ferguson moved that the case be set down for hearing Sept. 7 and Judge Turano placed the bonds at $500. A second writ was read charging the defendant with a like offense on the 13th day of August. A plea of not guilty was entered and defendant held in $500 bail. Mrs. Rebecca Fain, mother of the defendant, became his surety in the sum of $1,000. Trial date was fixed as Sept. 7.

Chief Thomas E. Brown notified Mr. Fain that his jitney business was suspended until Sept. 4, when all jitney licenses expire.

FINED $100 FOR DRIVING UNDER INFLUENCE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Thompson, Aug. 12.—Before Justice of the Peace Thomas Ryan Saturday morning Armand Lavallee, Church street, Putnam, was charged with driving his automobile in a reckless manner. Lavallee's counsel, Attorney Irving Miron of Putnam, moved that the case be dismissed and this was done by the justice.

Joseph Pellitier, also of Putnam, was arrested for being intoxicated and was found guilty. He was in the automobile of Lavallee's. A fine of $7 was imposed.

While the Pellitier case was being disposed of a new complaint was drawn up against Lavallee, charging him with driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. This case went to trial and the defendant was found guilty. A fine of $100 was imposed and an appeal taken.

The arrests grew out of an accident that happened on the road to Mechanicsville, Friday evening. Constable Martin Stapleton, of Norwich, was coming toward Putnam and passed the Lavallee car. After he passed Lavallee lost control of his car and crossed the trolley track and his car stopped on a slight embankment. Constable Stapleton saw the trouble and returned to give assistance. He said that he noticed that both of the men were under the influence of liquor and placed them under arrest, handcuffed them together and took them to Putnam where Lavallee gave a bond and Pellitier spent the night in a cell. Attorney Miron made the claim that the men were not lawfully arrested in the first instance as a Norwich constable had not the necessary authority to make an arrest in Windham county.

ASKS CHAMBER TO VOTE ON COAL QUESTION

The Emergency Coal Committee of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce at a meeting held at Bridgeport adopted a form of referendum to be sent to the members of the Chamber asking them to vote on the question of whether the Anthracite Coal Operators should yield to the miners demand for the "check-off" system or let the controversy go to a strike.

The referendum explains that the "check off" system would be an innovation in the anthracite fields and assumes the form of an ultimatum from the Union preliminary to negotiations on the remaining points of dispute. It is a plan whereby the workmen's dues in the union are held out of his wages by the employer and paid directly to the union, thereby compelling all miners to join the organization.

President Stanley H. Ballard of the Chamber said: "What the operators will do probably will depend largely upon public sentiment. We are putting it up to our members whether they would prefer to yield the principle of freedom of labor involved in the controversy, or endure the hardship and inconvenience of another strike. In other words, do they want the matter settled now, or do they want to temporize further, with the certainty of additional demands and strikes later on."

The committee believes there is no cause for panic.

TRAIN CHILDREN IN USE OF LEISURE HOURS

Supt. Harold Anson Bruce of the city recreation commission has called attention to the fundamentals in community recreation, based on seventeen years' experience of the Playground and Recreation Association of America.

It is the privilege of community-minded men and women everywhere to work to restore and preserve for all the people of America and especially for children their right to play and happiness.

That in nearly every community with a population of 2,000 or more there is need of a man or woman who shall give full time to thinking, planning and working for the best public use of the leisure hours of men, women and children.

The community leisure time programs should continue throughout the entire twelve months of the year.

That it is the responsibility of the entire community to maintain recreation opportunity for all the citizens and that there ought, therefore, to be, as early as possible, support of the recreation program through the public taxation under some department of the local government.

That there should be in every state of home rule bill which will permit the people of any city or town to make provision under their local government for the administration of their community recreation.

That there is need in every community, even though the municipal recreation administrative body be most effective, for private organization of citizens in their neighborhoods to make the fullest use of the facilities provided to make sure that what is being done is meeting the deeper needs of the people of the neighborhood.

That the emphasis ought to be not only on maintaining certain activities on playgrounds and in recreation centers but also and definitely on the training of the entire people in leisure time activities, so that the home, in the church and throughout all natural, human relationships there shall be the best opportunity for wholesome good times.

That the purpose in training children and young people in the right use of leisure ought not to be merely to fill up the idle hours but also to create an active, energetic, happy citizenship.

That even though the beginning of a city or town recreation program be children's playgrounds, other features ought to be added progressively from year to year until music, dramatic activities and discussion of public questions, training for more intellectual uses of spare time, and other valuable activities have been included, so that all ages and all kinds of people may find vital interest.

That every boy and every girl in America ought to be trained to know well a certain number of games for use outdoors and indoors, so that there will never be occasion for any boy or any girl to say that he cannot think of anything to do.

That most boys and girls should be taught a few simple songs so that if they wish, they may sing as they work or play.

That all employed boys and girls should have opportunity in their free hours to enjoy companionship and wholesome social life.

That through the community recreation program every boy and girl should come to appreciate the beautiful in life.

That adults, through music, drama, games, athletics, social activities, community and special day celebrations, should find in their common interests the opportunity for a common community service.

That every new school built ought to have a certain minimum of space around it provided for the play of the children.

That nearly every school building ought to have an auditorium preferably on the ground floor and should be so constructed that it is suited for community uses.

That if a suitable meeting place for community groups is not available in the schools or elsewhere, a community building should be provided through community effort.

That each child, under ten years of age, living in a city or town should be given an opportunity to play upon a public playground without going more than one-quarter mile from home.

That every community should provide space in sufficient area for the boys and girls to swim in summer and, as far as possible, to skate and coast in the winter.

That every community should provide opportunity for the boys of the community to play baseball and foot ball.

That every boy and girl ought to have opportunity, either on his own home grounds or on land provided by the municipality, have a small garden where he may watch the growth of plants, springing up from seeds which he has planted.

That in new real estate developments of five acres or more, not less than one-tenth of the space should be set aside to be used for play lots as part of the land is set for streets.

SAILOR FOR ENTICING YOUNG GIRL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Aug. 13.—Joseph Filchum, a sailor aboard the U. S. S. Camden, at anchor in the harbor many weeks, will be in the police court Monday morning, charged with enticing a minor female. He is now at the county jail. Filchum is alleged to have enticed Alice Curran, a 13-year-old girl, residing with her parents at No. 89 Potter street at the time, to go away with him. The couple went to Norwich from New London and from the former city continued to Boston, where Filchum is alleged to have abandoned the girl. The girl was arrested a day or two after Filchum deserted her, charged with consorting with bad company. A day or two later the girl was turned over to Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield of the New London police court and the day afterwards was committed to Long Lane farm, a state school for wayward girls at Middletown. A warrant for Filchum's arrest was issued by Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin, but not until yesterday afternoon was Filchum delivered to the civil authorities. He was held in bonds of $2,000 for his court appearance tomorrow. Filchum is but 18. The penalty for the offense is five years in prison or a fine of $1,000, or both.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Aug. 12.—An automobile owned and operated by Waldo Miner of No. 15 Post Hill place and a machine owned and driven by Miss Eva Henault of No. 35 Hobart avenue, Norwich, were in collision on State street at the corner of Meridian street Saturday night. Both machines were damaged.

ELKS HOLD ANNUAL OUTING AT POQUETANUCK DRAWBRIDGE

Norwich lodge, No. 430, B. P. O. Elks, held their annual outing and King George famous clambake Sunday at Happyland. The members of the world of Elkdom left the city shortly before noon and soon after arriving at the Drawbridge were served the following luncheon: Clam chowder, brown bread, white bread and pickles.

In the afternoon a program of sports was enjoyed, the married and single men having their annual battle for baseball fame. Fighting hard from the start, the benedicts handed the single men a terrible beating, and when the boy ran out of numbers the game was called, the score being 16 to 8.

In the field events, Jack Flynn won the running broad jump, John Sharron taking the 100 yard dash, the hop-skip-and-jump going to Benjamin Mandell. Frank J. Murtha handled the sports program.

Narragansett Bay Clams.
Bluefish. Chicken. Sausage.
Lobsters. Clam Fritters.
Sweet Potatoes. White Potatoes.
Brown Bread. White Bread.
Cucumbers. Tomatoes. Green Corn.
Watermelon. Soft Drinks.
Cigarettes. Cigars.

In spite of the threatening weather, the outing was a success, due to the untiring work of the committee in charges of outing arrangements, comprising John H. Wilson, James P. Hayes, Joseph Williams and James Casey.

MAYFLOWER CLUB'S PICNIC AT STONINGTON HOMESTEAD

The Mayflower club picnic proved most enjoyable when the members were most hospitably entertained last week by Mrs. N. Stanton Gates at her home at Pequotsepos, the ancestral place of the pioneer Capt. George Denison and his wife, Lady Ann Borodell, at Road Society, Stonington. The large dining room, with its long table and several smaller tables which were set in the west room, were made most attractive with beautiful old china, silver and bouquets of old fashioned flowers, while the floral adornment of all the rooms was most artistic.

A substantial luncheon of tomato bisque, meats, salads, rolls and olives, ice cream, cake, candy and coffee was served at 1.30. At its close, brief speeches were given by Mrs. B. P. Bishop of Norwich, president of the club, Mrs. Charles Denison of New York, Miss Grace D. Wheeler, also Gilbert McClurg, who paid a tribute to President Harding and his worthy successor.

Nearly all present were descendants of Capt. George Denison and Lady Ann, and many had never before seen their ancestral homestead.

Guests from Norwich were: Mrs. B. P. Bishop, Mrs. William H. Fitch, Mrs. Benjamin Lewis, Mrs. Burrill W. Hyde, Mrs. Hezekiah Perkins, Mrs. Elizabeth B. Davis. From New London: Mrs. L. K. Shipman, Miss Elizabeth Gorton, Mrs. Ernest Rogers, Mrs. Herbert Crandall, Mrs. Charles Chaney, Miss Harriet Prince, Miss Fannie Potter, Mrs. Fred Smith, Mrs. Charles B. Jennings, Miss Lucretia Smith, Miss Elizabeth Stark, Mrs. John Waite. From Plainfield: Miss Annie L. Tillinghast. From Mystic: Mrs. Christopher Morgan, Mrs. Benjamin Holmes. From Putnam, Mrs. Silas Wheelock, Miss Sylvia Wheelock. From Groton, Miss Rachel Larrabee, Mrs. Sanford Meech, Miss Addie Thomas. From Saybrook, Miss Mabel Holman. From Stonington, Mrs. Seth N. Williams and Miss Grace D. Wheeler.

The guests of the club were Mrs. Charles Denison, of New York, ex-president of the Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Elliot H. Peabody of Worcester, Mrs. Schoonmaker of Stillwater, N. Y., Mr. and Mrs. Cummings of Washington, D. C., Miss Marion Lee Bishop of Norwich, E. E. Rogers of New London, Gilbert McClurg of Stonington, Dr. Ruisi of Westerly, and Mrs. Bessie Ludwig, who has just arrived from a stay of several months in California, and Mrs. N. S. Gates, the hostess, who was made an honorary member by vote of the club.

PLEASANT VIEW CARNIVAL FOR BENEFIT OF CHAPEL

At Pleasant View Saturday, an elaborate program of track and water sports had been arranged by officials in charge of St. Clare's community carnival held all day. There was also a big bazaar and a dance in the evening on the concrete esplanade in front of the Pleasant View House.

The first part of the water program began at 10 a. m. on the lagoon, where canoe and row boat races, tilting contests and novelty aquatic races for children were held. At 11 a. m. there were swimming races for men, boys and girls over a 50-yard course off the esplanade. Frank Burke was chairman of the committee in charge of water sports. His assistants were William McKnight, Charles Murdy and Frank Appleby.

At 2 p. m. there was a series of track events for men, boys and girls in front of the Pleasant View house. The track committee consisted of William Hagan, chairman; Raymond McWeeney, Edward Coughlin and Antonio Ruisi. Other track officials were, Starter, Timothy Morris; judges, Dr. Norris and James Bartley; referee, Dr. Patrick Keefe; timer, James Hennessey; committee on awards, William Keenan, William Hagan and Timothy Mee.

General arrangements for the community carnival was in charge of the following committee. Mrs. William F. Barry, chairman; William J. Keenan, vice chairman; Rev. Daniel F. Sullivan, treasurer; Timothy J. Mee, secretary; Dr. Patrick Keefe, James Hagan, Timothy Morris and James Bartley, directors.

Various sub-committees had been chosen to work under the supervision of the general committee headed by Mrs. Barry. The carnival, for the benefit of the Catholic chapel proved very successful.

NORWICH COUPLE OBSERVE 14TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell J. Cloutier, Jr., of this city celebrated their 14th wedding anniversary with a week end family party at the cottage Allihad at the Poquetanuck drawbridge. Sunday a delicious chowder and clambake was enjoyed and during the afternoon an orchestra furnished music for dancing. Crabbing and bathing also furnished entertainment for many, Michael Richard winning the trick diving contest.

Among those present were Mrs. Louisa White, grandmother of Mrs. Cloutire, Mrs. Louise M. Richard of Uncasville, Miss Dora Richard and Michael Richard of Uncasville, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Grant of Quaker Hill, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Cormier and four children, Mr. and Mrs. Nordoff and son Roland, Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Cloutier, Sr., and Miss Vilma Cloutier.

TOURING CAR RUN INTO ON WESTERLY ROAD

Patrick McGill of No. 8 Happy street reported to the police that while his Star touring car was parked alongside the Westerly highway at North Stonington early Sunday evening it was run into by a machine driven by Fred Tupeka of 36 West Main street. Tupeka was towing a disabled car at the time. The damage was small.

TRANSPORTING LIQUOR IN PUBLIC SERVICE CAR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Westerly, Aug. 13.—Cooperation by the police department of the town of Westerly for the enforcement of national prohibition laws resulted in the arrest Sunday morning of Benjamin Fain, 121 Main street. The arrest of Mr. Fain, of the Fain Auto Service, took place at 1 o'clock Sunday morning on Atlantic avenue, Pleasant View, by Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, Special Officer George Matthewson and Pleasant View Special Officer and Constable William Hamilton. Fain was caught, apparently, "with the goods," for when arrested he was alone and driving his large public service sedan in which were found three new cases of whiskey.

Fain with others has been under observation by the police, who are in possession of evidence which would tend to show that the arrested man had conducted a bootlegging business for some time. It is also said that liquors have been transported from Mystic to Westerly for some time past ending with the capture of a rum running boat and that more recently the contraband liquors have been brought into Westerly from the eastward.

Following his arrest Fain was brought to Westerly and locked up in a cell in the Westerly police station to await hearing before Judge Michael J. Turano of the Third district court Sunday night.

Fain was presented at a special session of the Third district court before Judge Michael J. Turano tonight at 7.30 o'clock. The defendant pleaded nolo, which was amended as directed by Attorney John J. Dunn to a plea of not guilty.

Town Solicitor Ferguson moved that the case be set down for hearing Sept. 7 and Judge Turano placed the bonds at $500. A second writ was read charging the defendant with a like offense on the 12th day of August. A plea of not guilty was entered and defendant held in $500 bail. Mrs. Rebecca Fain, mother of the defendant, became his surety in the sum of $1,000. Trial date was fixed as Sept. 7.

Chief Thomas E. Brown notified Mr. Fain that his jitney business was suspended until Sept. 1, when all jitney licenses expire.

FINED $100 FOR DRIVING UNDER INFLUENCE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Thompson, Aug. 12.—Before Justice of the Peace Thomas Ryan Saturday morning Armand Lavallee, Church street, Putnam, was charged with driving his automobile in a reckless manner. Lavallee's counsel, Attorney Irving Miron of Putnam, moved that the case be dismissed and this was done by the justice.

Joseph Pellitier, also of Putnam, was arrested for being intoxicated and was found guilty. He was in the automobile of Lavallee's. A fine of $7 was imposed.

While the Pellitier case was being disposed of a new complaint was drawn up against Lavallee, charging him with driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. This case went to trial and the defendant was found guilty. A fine of $100 was imposed and an appeal taken.

The arrests grew out of an accident that happened on the road to Mechanicsville, Friday evening. Constable Martin Stapleton, of Norwich, was coming toward Putnam and passed the Lavallee car. After he passed Lavallee lost control of his car and crossed the trolley track and his car stopped on a slight embankment. Constable Stapleton saw the trouble and returned to give assistance. He said that he noticed that both of the men were under the influence of liquor and placed them under arrest, handcuffed them together and took them to Putnam where Lavallee gave a bond and Pellitier spent the night in a cell. Attorney Miron made the claim that the men were not lawfully arrested in the first instance as a Norwich constable had not the necessary authority to make an arrest in Windham county.

ASKS CHAMBER TO VOTE ON COAL QUESTION

The Emergency Coal Committee of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce at a meeting held at Bridgeport, adopted a form of referendum to be sent to the members of the Chamber asking them to vote on the question of whether the Anthracite Coal Operators should yield to the miners demand for the "check-off" system or let the controversy go to a strike.

This referendum explains that the "check-off" system would be an innovation in the anthracite fields and assumes the form of an ultimatum from the Union preliminary to negotiations on the remaining points of dispute. It is a plan whereby the workmen's dues in the union are held out of his wages by the employer and paid directly to the union, thereby compelling all miners to join the organization.

President Stanley H. Bullard of the Chamber said: "What the operators will do probably will depend largely upon public sentiment. We are putting it up to our members whether they would prefer to yield the principle of freedom of labor involved in the controversy, or endure the hardship and inconvenience of another strike. In other words, do they want the matter settled now, or do they want to temporize further, with the certainty of additional demands and strikes later on."

The committee believes there is no cause for panic.

TRAIN CHILDREN IN USE OF LEISURE HOURS

Supt. Harold Anson Bruce of the city recreation commission has called attention to the fundamentals in community recreation, based on seventeen years' experience of the Playground and Recreation Association of America.

It is the privilege of community-minded men and women everywhere to work to restore and preserve for all the people of America and especially for children their right to play and happiness.

That in nearly every community with a population of 2,000 or more there is need of a man or woman who shall give full time to thinking, planning and working for the best possible use of the leisure hours of men, women and children.

The community leisure time programs should continue throughout the entire twelve months of the year.

That it is the responsibility of the entire community to maintain recreation opportunity for all the citizens and that there ought, therefore, to be, as early as possible, support of the recreation program through the public taxation under some department of the local government.

That there should be in every state of home rule bill which will permit the people of any city or town to make provision under their local government for the administration of their community recreation.

That there is need in every community, even though the municipal recreation administrative body be most effective, for private organization of citizens in their neighborhoods to make the fullest use of the facilities provided to make sure that what is being done is meeting the deeper needs of the people of the neighborhood.

That the emphasis ought to be not only on maintaining certain activities on playgrounds and in recreation centers but also and definitely on the training of the entire people in leisure time activities, so that the home, in the church and throughout all natural human relationships there shall be the best opportunity for wholesome good times.

That the purpose in training children and young people in the right use of leisure ought not to be merely to fill up the idle hours but also to create an active, energetic, happy citizenship.

That even though the beginning of a city or town recreation program be children's playgrounds, other features ought to be added progressively from year to year until music, dramatic activities and discussion of public questions, training for more intellectual uses of spare time, and other valuable activities have been included, so that all ages and all kinds of people may find vital interest.

That every boy and every girl in America ought to be trained to know well a certain number of games for use outdoors and indoors, so that there will never be occasion for any boy or any girl to say that he cannot think of anything to do.

That most boys and girls should be taught a few simple songs, so that, if they wish, they may sing as they work or play.

That all employed boys and girls should have opportunity in their free hours to enjoy companionship and wholesome social life.

That through the community recreation program every boy and girl should come to appreciate the beautiful in life.

That adults, through music, drama, games, athletics, social activities, community and special day celebrations, should find in their common interests the opportunity for a common community service.

That every new school built ought to have a certain minimum of space around it provided for the play of the children.

That nearly every school building ought to have an auditorium preferably on the ground floor and should be so constructed that it is suited for community uses.

That if a suitable meeting place for community groups is not available in the schools or elsewhere, a community building should be provided through community effort.

That each child, under ten years of age, living in a city or town should be given an opportunity to play upon a public playground without going more than one-quarter mile from home.

That every community should provide space in sufficient area for the boys and girls to swim in summer and, as far as possible, to skate and coast in the winter.

That every community should provide opportunity for the boys of the community to play baseball and football.

That every boy and girl ought to have opportunity, either on his own home grounds or on land provided by the municipality, have a small garden where he may watch the growth of plants, springing up from seeds which he has planted.

That in new real estate developments of five acres or more, not less than one-tenth of the space should be set aside to be used for play just as part of the land is set for streets.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Heat, that could have been utilized by many housewives for cooking their Sunday dinner went to waste Saturday morning, when the coal dump on Dyer street, owned by the Quinebaug mill got afire. When the mill asked for help in subduing the fire, Chief Woodward and a few men went to the plant. A line of hose was laid and a stream of water was played on the coal pile. This hose line was left by the firemen and a force of the company's workmen finished the job of squelching the fire. It was necessary to wet down the top of the heap and shovel off the water-soaked part till the glowing mass was reached. This was in turn repeatedly wet down and shoveled off. The fire is believed to be due to spontaneous combustion.

In Saturday morning's session of the town court, Elmer Coffey was fined $1 and costs, a total of $12.30, for taking an automobile belonging to Ambrose Purosio, of Brooklyn, without its owner's consent. Attorney Miron of Putnam, was the counsel for Coffey.

Harry Smith, of East Killingly, was fined $1 and costs by Judge Fenner Woodward, for having an unlicensed dog. Smith paid a total of $5.24.

The body of Albert Hopkins, will be buried at Cheshire, instead of at Brooklyn. Relatives at first decided to hold the funeral at Brooklyn, but late yesterday afternoon it was deemed best by them to hold the services at Cheshire. Hopkins is the young man who was drowned while bathing with two companions from the reformatory at Cheshire. He is survived by his mother, who lives on the road between Brooklyn and Pomfret, and a brother who is a resident of Hartford.

Henry Lis of Wheatley street and Eugene Bessette, of State street, Goodyear, are slowly recovering from injuries sustained when a sedan owned and driven by Lis skidded and overturned on Hickey hill in the town of Pomfret. Lis received a badly cut arm and hand, severe abrasions on the face and a twisted knee-cap. Bessette's right eye was badly injured and his arms were cut and bruised. A girl companion, whose name was withheld received a broken nose. The car was completely wrecked when it went off th road. The accident happened when the car skidded on the new road as Lis was applying the brakes to check the speed of his machine.

The annual Old Home day in Foster is to be held this year August 22. There will be music and speeches by well known people, in addition to an old-fashioned clam bake.

Many of the Danielson baseball fans are earnestly wishing that somebody would organize a ball team, of local men to play on Saturday afternoons. Although there have been a number of games this season on the Connecticut Mills company's diamond, they had to be discontinued because of the lack of patronage. The reason for this is that players were hired and were little known here, consequently few fans cared to see them. But a team composed of men who are known to the owns people would be warmely welcomed by all sport lovers in this vicinity.

Race horses from the Bay State circuit on their way to the Medford rack from Norwich, are receiving much attention from local racing fans, when the trucks that transport the animals stop here.

The Paco company plant is to remain closed all this week to give its employees their annual vacation. The mill closed Thursday evening and so has given those who work there a ten days' rest. The company is reported to have done excellent business during the past year.

There was a successful lawn party and supper on the grounds of St. Joseph's church in Dayville Saturday night.

Late Saturday afternoon, automobiles driven by Walter Hybren of New York City and Miss Abbie Griffin sideswiped each other on Brooklyn Hill, neither machine being badly damaged. Officer Bigelow of the Danielson State police barracks investigated the accident. The officer arrested Hybren on a charge of reckless driving and Miss Griffin for having an unendorsed operator's license. In a court session held in Brooklyn, Hybren was acquitted and Miss Griffin was fined $10 and costs the fine being suspended.

At a special session of the Town court held in Danielson Sunday Charles W. Thompson of Dayville and Walter Sayles were fined $25 and costs of $12.62 each by Judge Woodward for reckless driving of their cars. Sayles and Thompson were driving their automobiles at a high rate of speed when they were apprehended by officers.

Frank Dalbac of North Uxbridge, Mass., was arrested by Officer Stremmans when a complaint was entered against him at the Danielson barracks by John O. Flynn, a lawyer of Lynn, Mass. Dalbac forced Flynn off the road and ditched him, in the vicinity of Bishop's crossing, Plainfield. Dalbac's case will be tried in the Plainfield court this (Monday) morning.

PUTNAM

Plans for the annual field trip of the Windham County Farmers' Association have been completed. A long line of automobiles will assemble on Woodstock Hill at 9.30 o'clock Thursday morning. The line will be augmented by members of the Windham county branch of the New England Milk Producers' Association which is cooperating with the Farmers' Association. The committee in charge is County Agent, F. L. Davis, John R. Stromberg, Abington, chairman; Albert H. Williams, Woodstock; A. H. Amidon, Abington; P. J. Chabot, Wauregan; George Cook, Windham; and Samuel Cross, Woodstock.

When the line gets under way it will not stop until the farm of William C. Child, South Woodstock is reached. This farm has been conducted successfully by the Child family for the past hundred years. Here there will be a demonstration of the advantage of keeping dairy records. Among the other objects of interest will be Mixter Chieftan, Guernsey herd sire, which trnasmitted an increase to his daughters from 500 to 1000 pounds over their dams; Mixter Collector, six months old future herd-sire of excellent breeding; nine pure bred foundation individuals which will be added to in the future until a greater percentage are pure breds; at present there are 28 head in all. A. R. Merrill, dairy specialist, will show the points to be looked for in dairy animals, using four or five of the animals as an example; a profitable apple orchard of 12 acres will be inspected; an object lesson in top dressing with chemicals giving an excellent hay crop this year.

The poultry part of the program will be conducted by Roy E. Jones, poultry specialist who will give a talk on "What the Hen Means to Windham County". There will be an exhibition of cockerels representing slow maturity, small capacity, crow head and a good breeder. Four hens will represent yellow throughout, not laying; molting, not laying; laying capacity, not laying; a good layer and a good breeder.

The next stop will be at the farm of Chester E. May, East Woodstock at 11.45 a. m. Mr. May's orchard is being run as an orchard management this year. The principal objective is to control apple scab on McIntosh. There are 200, 14 year old McIntosh trees in the demonstration and 155 Baldwins which are eighteen years old and have been sprayed seven times to date. Three crops have been lost through apple scab.

Leaving the May orchard the party will go to Roseland Park where a picnic luncheon will be eaten. There will be a program of speaking with Richard Pattee, managing director of the N. E. M. P. A., Dr. G. P. Bayley, Woodstock, president of the Farmers' Association, Whitman Danielson, secretary and treasurer, E. N. Searls, Pomfret Center, president of the Eastern Connecticut Poultry Producers, Henry Buell, Eastford, president of the Quinebaug Valley Fruit Growers Association; Albert Williams, Woodstock, B. M. Ellis, Storrs Extension director, F. L. Davis, County Agent, on the program.

Last year there were 60 cars carrying 250 people and this year there will be even a greater number.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Burt, accompanied by Mrs. Helen Willey, motored to Washington, R. I., Sunday morning and spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. George Newell. They returned in the evening with Mrs. H. L. Burt and Miss Mary Johnson, who spent the week in Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Jules Cordier, spent the week end with Mr. Cordier's son, Alferic, at New Bedford, Mass.

Kenneth C. Sharpe, spent the week-end in New York where he was joined by a friend who was with him overseas.

Frank H. Cordier spent the week-end in New London and at Ocean Beach.

The boys at Camp Utopia on the shore of Roseland lake, gave a circus Sunday, many of the parents of the young people coming on from New York for the event.

Members of the Woonsocket Country club came to Putnam Saturday afternoon as guests of the Putnam Country club. The men played a match game of golf while the women played whist on the club piazza. In the evening supper was served.

Captain of Police William Jarvis and Guy Zito, after an all-night ride, arrived in Putnam, Saturday morning from Montreal but minus Mr. Zito's automobile which they made the trip to Canada to get. They found the car had been abandoned. He was told that before the car could be released $200 would have to be paid for repairs, $200 for storage, $200 for insurance and one or more two hundreds for something or other—the officer seemed a bit uncertain as to what. After being sent from one office to another for days, the attempt to get the car by staying in Montreal was abandoned. The Zito car was stolen from its garage a couple of months ago. Last week it was learned that the car was in the hands of the custom officials in Montreal and it was thought that all that would be necessary was to go to the Canadian city and bring the car back to Putnam. When they arrived they found a governmental tangle of red tape which it was impossible to untangle. Further steps toward reclaiming the car will probably be taken.

Plans have been completed for the annual outing and clambake of Putnam Lodge of Elks to be held at Hopkins' grove next Sunday. One of the features will be the taking of moving pictures of the gathering and the events.

Dewy Tetreault, who last week Wednesday was taken to the Brooklyn jail because he refused to go to work and pay his wife $5 a week, after three nights in the county institution has decided that he had rather be on the outside looking in than on the inside looking out. His father Henry Tetreault, who was out of the city when the boy was before the court, arrived home Friday and immediately took steps to get his son out. Mr. Tetreault furnished a bond of $500 that the five dollars a week would be paid, motored to the jail Saturday afternoon and brought the son back with him. In court the boy assumed a heroic attitude and intimated that he would spend the remainder of his days in jail rather than pay money to the girl he wooed, won and wed, all in forty-eight hours.

Not in several years has the water in the Quinebaug river and in the ponds in the surrounding country been so low. Below the falls on Pomfret street on could cross on stones in the river bed without wetting a foot. So far there has been no report of inconvenience from wells going dry but unless rain comes soon the farmers will have trouble. A Putnam man who owns a large lumber property in New Hampshire states that it is impossible to get help to work in the woods as men are engaged in drawing water to supply cattle, so little water is there in brooks and wells.

Up to Saturday afternoon 267 new shares have been issued in the 16th series of the Putnam Building & Loan Association. The best sale of shares the association has had in the summer months.

Dr. Harold Foster, New York specialist, who has concluded his week's clinic at the Day Kimball hospital, operated in all on 202 patients, 198 tonsil cases and 4 nose operations. Dr. Foster is spending the summer in his cottage near the home place, on the road to Putnam Heights.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

The Love Piker, a Cosmopolitan production, featuring Anita Stewart and with an all-star cast, including William Norris, Robert Frazer, Frederick Truesdell and Arthur Hoyt, will be the attraction at the Breed theatre today and Tuesday.

The story deals with the regeneration of Hope Warner, a snobbish girl portrayed by Miss Stewart. It is a picturization of a story by Frank R. Adams, directed by E. Mason Hopper.

A snobbish and wealthy society girl falls in love with a self-made engineer. Everything runs along smoothly until the girl meets her fiancee's father, who lives in a shanty in a poor quarter of the town. The girl is on the point of breaking her engagement, but her soul undergoes regeneration. She goes to the tenement dwelling on her wedding day in a limousine and brings the old father of her fiancee to the ceremony. It is a story of intense heart-interest with a much relishable comedy. Society is the background on one hand and the slums on the other. This production will give a real treat to all theatregoers.

Other pictures on the bill include the Pathe news and an Educational comedy.

Neil O'Brien's Super Minstrels With Bert Swor.

Now that the interstate commerce commission or the president or other has cautioned the consolidation of the big railway system—Neil O'Brien and Bert Swor, the two outstanding figures in the field of negro-minstrelsy have decided to do a little consolidating on their own account. Bert had formed a company of his own which it was announced would take the road this season and Neil, as has been his custom for years past, was preparing his organization for the same purpose. Some one suggested that it might be a good idea to combine their forces, much after the fashion of the Ringling and Barnum circus. No sooner said than done, so now the two are one and the result will be in evidence at the Broadway theatre on Thursday, August 16. The new organization has been named the Neil O'Brien Super Minstrels with Bert Swor, and the two comedians are not only financial partners but co-stars as well. They would like to add to the title, "the greatest show on earth," but unfortunately the Ringlings have "beat them to it," with that title but they do hold that it is the greatest minstrel show ever gotten together.

The appearance here, will also signalize the return to active stage work of Neil O'Brien who it is announced will positively appear in person at each performance. He will revive his famous "street car" skit of years ago, the one which particularly endeared him to his admirers only that it has been brought right up-to-date, with new jokes and new lines that will serve to make it funnier than ever. Bert Swor, it will be found has turned his attention more or less to his little "talk" is concerned to the chiropractic science, in other words he is now Doctor Swor and his monologue is guaranteed to be sure cure for all varieties of the "blues."

The prices are within reach of everybody: Orchestra $2; ochestra $1.50; balcony $1.50 and $1.00; gallery 50c. Reserve your seats today. Seats now on sale at the Broadway theater.

Paramount Special at the Strand Theatre

Enough thrills for a full length serial are said to be packed into the Paramount production of "Children of Jazz," which will be the feature at the Strand theatre today to remain for three days. This is a superb romantic comedy-melodrama feature Theodore Kosloff, Ricardo Cortez, Robert Cain and Eileen Percy.

The story opens with the return of John Weston (Alec Francis) to his home after a prolonged European tour to find his house given over to jazz by his daughter, Babs. With him is Richard Forestall (Theodore Kosloff) tentatively engaged to marry the girl, Babs, played by Eileen Percy. But seeing her under the influence of many mixed drinks and learning that she has while in this state, become engaged to two young wasters, he will have none of her.

Then follow several thrilling episodes in which Babs, on a lark, induces Ted Carter (Ricardo Cortez) to take Clyde Dunbar (Robert Cain) and herself with Lina, (Dubar's wife, portrayed by Irene Dalton, as chaperone for a spin in his hydroplane. A storm is brewing and the plane is forced to land on the water. It runs aground, and the occupants are thrown free, that is all save Ted who is wedged beneath the wreckage. The Dunbars make a dash for safety higher up on the shore, but Babs sticks and finally succeeds in freeing Ted. This is a gripping scene, for at every moment, the huge waves threaten to wash the pair away.

Several interesting developments ensue, among these are the meeting of the people of 1923 and the people of 1860. Forestall attempts to teach Babs that women of the present day are having things too much their own way and need the dominating personality of a man of 1860. Imagine a "jazz girl" like Babs washing dishes and sewing; what could be more preposterous?

There is a smashing climax. The pursuit of Forestall's chartered schooner by the hydroplane containing Ted and Dunbar and their drop to the ship in parachutes, with the ensuing battle with mutineers, is thrilling. Then comes the final view of Richard and Babs and the Dunbars standing on the beach of the small island reunited and watching Ted, who in giving up Babs has made a great renunciation. He sails from the little harbor into a new life, his jazz days over, and he is going to make somethings of himself.

A Mermaid comedy "Winter Has Come," and a News weekly, completes the program.

WESTERLY

(Special to the Bulletin)

Plans for the new community hospital at Westerly, which have just been announced, show a capacity of fifty-one beds, including twenty-nine ward beds, six semi private beds (two in a room), three isolation rooms and thirteen private rooms.

The ground floor or basement, which is naturally the least desirable part of the building, will not be used for the patients except in the X-ray department, which will include three rooms. All the rest of the floor will be taken up by the various necessary service departments of the hospital, including laundry, main kitchen, nurses' dining room, storage space, refrigerators, rooms for employes, etc.

The main entrance will lead into a lobby on the first floor, with a waiting room on the left and a staff meeting room beyond it, with the general office and the superintendent's office at the right. At the rear, opposite the main entrance, will be the ambulance entrance, the accident room for the handling of emergency cases, and the elevator. The laboratory, an important part of the hospital, will be on this floor, also one private room which may be used as an isolation room if necessary. At the north end (which is shown at the left in the illustration) there will be the children's department, which will include an eight-bed glass-divided duplex ward, an isolation room and a 3-bed room. At the other end of the building will be a seven bed men's ward. Adjoining this will be an isolation room, a solarium or sun room and an airing porch at the entrance end of the building, which cannot be seen in the drawing.

The second floor will be exclusively for women. About half of the entire floor in the north end will be taken up by the maternity department, which will include a seven-bed ward, admitting isolation room, a nursery and two private rooms, with additional private room available for maternity service on the floor above when necessary. A general seven-bed women's ward will be in the south end of this floor, with an isolation room and a sun-room adjoining, and also two 2-bed rooms. The remaining space will be occupied by the superintendent's and assistant superintendent's rooms, a diet kitchen, nurses' work room, etc.

The third floor will contain the operating department and ten of the thirteen private rooms. The operating department will be in the north end so as to get the north light, which is considered desirable in surgical work. There will be two operating rooms, together with a steriliz[illegible] room for the surgical instruments, an etherizing and recovery room, work rooms for doctors and nurses, etc.

The large picture sign of the hospital which was set up in front of the high school building Saturday morning has been attracting considerable attention. It is thirty feet long by six feet high, and shows the new building in full colors, set off by an attractive landscape. Only eleven words are printed on the sign: At the left, "It will be a community hospital," and at the right, "Community effort will build it."

The Congregational and Calvary Baptist churches united for the Sunday morning service at the Pawcatuck Congregational church. The sermon was by Rev. T. Newton Owen of Columbia, Conn.

The Broad Street Christian church congregation united with Grace Methodist church at the latter's edifice, where the pastor, Rev. M. S. Stocking, preached the morning sermon.

At the First Baptist church for the morning service Rev. George Atha delivered the sermon.

Grace Methodist church united with the First Baptist church for the evening union service, when Rev. M. S. Stocking preached.

Rev. G. Edgar Tobin, rector, conducted the usual services at Christ Episcopal church. Holy communion at 8 a. m., church school at 9.30. Morning prayer and sermon, 10.30 o'clock.

Plans for the annual tour of field duty, which this year takes place at Fort Wright, Fishers Island, have been nearly completed for the 349th Company, C. A. C. stationed at the state armory on Dixon street. Friday next trucks from Providence will be loaded with provisions, equipment, supplies, officers' equipment and with two enlisted men will leave for New London from which place they will be transported to the island. Saturday, company cooks with two kitchen police will go to the island to make ready for the arrival of the men. The company will entrain Sunday at Westerly station, when a special, bearing other companies of coast artillery from Providence to New London stops at Westerly. Some seventy of the seventy-five enrollment will make the tour. There is still opening for recruits who desire camp training, there being vacancies for special mechanics, company clerk, and first class gunners.

George Moussie, 16, son of Chicery Moussie, of Folly avenue, Pawcatuck, has returned to his West Side home. The lad made his appearance at 1 o'clock Saturday evening and has steadfastly refused to give any account of his wanderings.

The annual outing of the Lorraine Mill Fire company, given by the mill management, took place Saturday at Barnes Point, Brightman's Pond. Some 45 members made the trip by motor truck, leaving Westerly at 11 o'clock. Lunch was served at noon, following which came the baseball game between the married and single men, resulting in a score of 5 to 4 in favor of the latter aggregation. Fred Harker, who acted as umpire, showed "some" knowledge of baseball in the fourteen-inning game, luckily reversing decisions when headed for the cold waters of the cove. The score would have been worse for the married men had it not been for the fine left hand catch of Alvin Dillaber. The shore dinner followed the ball game; during its progress Superintendent R. E. Steere made a few remarks, speaking in particular concerning the new recreation building. He explained the plans for renovating the old Cottrell homestead for an assembly hall and bowling alleys, pool and card rooms with the second floor given over to the use of the women employes.

Alexander Blake acted as referee in the matches which were won as follows: Pipe, tobacco and match contest: in which pipes were placed on first base, tobacco on second, matches on third, the successful contestant collecting them as he circled the diamond to third base where the pipe was started and the home run made. Won by Wayne McVeigh. Quoit pitching single, Edward Farrell; doubles, McVeigh and Jessiman. Human wheelbarrow, Dubuc and Dave McKenzie. Rowboat race, Robert Steere, "Doc" Crandall. The swimming match, a much talked of event during the past week, was won by Jones, the only entrant, as Dubuc, the other contestant, had a bad case of cold feet.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Roche of Melrose, Mass., arrived in Westerly Friday and are guests of relatives. They have recently returned from New Hampshire where they visited their two daughters at a girls' camp.

Harry F. Cook who formerly lived in Westerly, is the guest of his sister, Miss Mabel S. Cook, en route for a visit with his father, Frank Cook, on the Cape.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Whitford, daughter Betty and son Donald visited Dr. C. B. Whitford, brother of Dr. Edwin Whitford, at Crescent Beach Saturday.

Mrs. Edward W. Pitcher and daughter Pauline, returned to Westerly on Friday from a visit with Mrs. Pitcher's brother, William D. Cameron at Glenbrook, Conn. Mr. Pitcher, who was also a visitor at Glenbrook, returned early in the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Peck, daughter Vilette and son George of Norwich were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Johnson and Mrs. David S. Stillman.

Lawrence F. Freeman is on an automobile trip for his vacation which will take him to Easton, Maine, leaving Westerly Sunday morning.

Arthur D. Remington of Providence was in Westerly Sunday.

William S. Nichols of Dorset was in Westerly Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Howard Alger and two children of Pittsburgh, Pa., are the guests of Mr. Alger's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jarvis H. Alger.

William F. Dodge of Providence arrived in Westerly Saturday to visit his father, Edward M. Dodge.

Harold Burdick of Newport, R. I., is the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Burdick.

The Ford touring car, 26-781 R. I., owned by Carlisle E. Barlow, and who occupied a following auto, turned over twice on the Stonington road Sunday morning, when the wishbone broke. The touring car was operated by Kenneth Barlow whose knees were bruised and like throat cut, Samuel Barlow, also bruised and cut and Porteous Barlow, whose face was skinned. The occupants of the car when it overturned on the highway between the Gallaudet and Mitchell residences. The party was proceeding from Stonington with Rocky Point their destination. The party was proceeding from Stonington with Rocky Point their destination. The men were brought to Dr. Henry L. Johnson in Westerly for medical treatment. The automobile had a smashed in radiator, broken top as well as severe damage to the running gear.

Shortly after the accident a sedan, No. 07073 N. Y., while passing the place, skidded on the wet highway, crossed the electric car track and stopped when the edge of the highway was reached. The occupants of this machine were subjected to a severe nervous shock at their close escape from serious injury.

Tuesday evening, at 7.30 o'clock, in the Westerly town hall will take place the meeting at which the road situation in Westerly will be considered. This meeting will be held under the following vote passed by the Westerly town council on July 31st:

"Whereas pursuant to a vote of the town council passed at a regular meeting held on the 2nd day of July 1923, an open meeting was held in the council chamber on the 31st day of July 1923; and whereas the electors assembled at said open meeting.

"It was voted that a public hearing be held in the town hall two weeks from tonight, Tuesday, August 14th, and that those citizens present representing the town of Westerly respectfully request the members of the highway commission to attend said meeting and answer such questions as may properly be asked, and that the engineer (Mr. Leon) be similarly requested to be present with such specifications, financial and otherwise, as may tend to make clear to the voters of Westerly the future programme for the town of Westerly."

The open council meeting which was held July 31st in the council chamber, was very largely attended. At that time the council was criticised, because larger quarters were not selected for the meeting. Council Clerk Whipple was instructed by vote of the council to forward to the road commission the above vote. Highway commissioners, although in the building, were not present at that time in the council chambers.

It is rumored that a reply has been received from the road commission, stating that the commissioners are present every Monday afternoon in their office in the Westerly town hall for the dispatch of such business as may come before the highway department. And it is thought by many that the road commission will not be present at the meeting which is scheduled to take place in the town hall next Tuesday evening.

Arthur E. Whitehouse, 30, of Hartford, an iron worker who was to be employed on Washington Trust building, was presented by Chief Brown in the court Sunday evening, charged with being drunk on the beach at Pleasant View on the evening of August 11. Solicitor Ferguson said that the defendant clad in a bathing suit made a disturbance on the beach and Officer Hamilton made the arrest between 7 and 8 o'clock. On his plea of guilty he was fined $5 and costs amounting to $9.10 (just a day's pay) as the prisoner told the court and said he thought he could arrange for the payment.

Col. Albert N. Crandall, 82, of Westerly, died at his home, 27 Elm street, Sunday morning at 8.45 o'clock. Mr. Crandall had been in poor health since the death of his wife last January. He is survived by a daughter, Miss Emma Crandall, two sons, Milton A. Crandall of Westerly, and Willard R. Crandall of Bayonne, N. J., a sister, Mrs. R. Celia Bowman of Finley Lake, N. Y., and a brother, Herbert E. Crandall of New Britain. Mr. Crandall was a member of the Pawcatuck Seventh Day Baptist church, the G. A. R., and Franklin Lodge, F. and A. M.

Because of a stripped gear on the Norwich and Westerly bus at Hallville, which left Norwich at 12.30, p. m., the 7 o'clock bus did not leave until 9 o'clock.

JEWETT CITY

The Baptist Sunday school held its annual picnic Saturday afternoon at Camp We Like It, on the Bennett farm. Over one hundred enjoyed the beautiful spot and entertainment provided. Games, swinga, hammocks, bathing and refreshments gave everyone the best possible outing. A baseball game between Kenneth Everett's class and the men's class proved to be astonishingly lively. Frank Campbell was umpire and his match isn't out. The men gave the boys their equal in skill, but the boys won by one point, score 26 to 25. Fifty yard dashes for all sizes and ages were great fun. The committees were: On time and place, E. M. Gray, Francis Campbell and Samuel Cathcart, Jr.; refreshments, Misses Ida Foster's and Alice Brown's classes; lemonade, C. F. Gardner; sports, Kenneth Everett's class; transportation, J. B. Palmer, C. T. Armstrong and John Harris, Jr.

Dr. and Mrsfl F. D. Browning are away for a week on an automobile trip to Lake George, Lake Champlain, Montreal and the Green Mountains.

Lionel Boucher received a bad cut on his foot at Beach pond yesterday. He had been bathing and while walking on shore in the grass, stepped on the jagged corners of a broken bottle. Five stitches were necessary to close the cut.

Miss Irene Mountain, R. N., of Providence is visiting Miss Margery Leyden.

NOANK

A well is being dug on the property of Orrin Oles and when finished will be about 82 feet deep.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Williams are entertaining Miss Mary Beatrice of New York.

Misses Grace and Florence Fitzpatrick, who have been guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Fitzpatrick, have returned to their duties in New York.

Mrs. Mabel Irons and daughter Dorothy are spending a few days in Norwich.

Rev. Charles Merrill and daughters, Misses Esther and Ruth, are spending a month at Vineyard Haven, Mass.

Miss Dorothy Rathbun is assisting in the postoffice during the absence of Miss Ruth Merrill.

Mrs. Eleanor Blackman has returned from a visit in Ocean Grove, N. J. She will be the guest for the remainder of the summer of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Fitch.

COLCHESTER

There was a special prayer at St. Andrew's church after the 8 o'clock parish mass Friday morning. There were prayers for the late President, his wife, father, relatives and friends. The prayer "For thine in Authority" was recited. It contained petitions for divine guidance of the new President in the path of peace, prosperity and happiness. The service was conducted by Rev. Philip J. Mooney, pastor.

Special services were held in the Jewish synagogue Friday at 3.30 P. M., Rabbi Shapiro being in charge.

Services were held in the First Congregational church Friday at 4 P. M., Rev. W. O. Berkman in charge, many being present.

The community memorial services were held at the park at 4.30 P. M., and was largely attended. The program was as follows:

Selection "Nearer My God To Thee," by the band. Reading the proclamations of President Coolidge and Gov. Templeton by Rev. P. J. Mooney; Invocation, Rev. W. O. Berkman. Solo "Lead Kindly Light," Mrs. A. T. Van Cleve. Reading prayer "For Thine is Authority," Rev. Father Mooney. Taps Earle R. Holmes, cornet soloist and band. "Star Spangled Banner," band and lowering flag by Lieut. A. T. Van Cleve.

All places of business were closed from 4 to 5 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Nutter of Whitinsville, Mass. are guests of Mrs. Nutter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Roper.

The case of state vs. Napoleon Barbarasch of Norwich for reckless driving was tried before Justice Blake Thursday evening in the Grange hall. Barbarasch pleaded guilty and was fined $25 and costs of $13.53. State Policeman Paul Lavin made the arrest.

The case of state vs. Rudolph Polinska of this place for operating a motor vehicle on the streets here for hire without proper license and markers pleaded guilty and was fined $20 and costs of $9.05, which was paid. The young man, being a minor, Leon Binder was appointed guardian ad litem. Constable Friedman made the arrest.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
by DAVID CORY

The Wicked Ogre

"What are you doing here?" bellowed the wicked ogre, who you remember in the last story had looked over the castle wall just as Little Jack Rabbit had climbed on the back of the good duck.

"Don't answer him," whispered the duck, swimming swiftly to the opening in the stone bridge through which the little brook emptied into the moat. All of sudden the wicked ogre leaned over the wall and would have caught them if the duck hadn't turned to one side. At this the ogre grew so angry that he picked up a great rock, and if it had ever hit them I guess there would have been nothing left of Little Jack Rabbit and the good duck.

"Ha, ha!" laughed the ogre, as a big wave almost overturned the duck. Then rooting up a great tree, the ogre threw it into the water, the branches holding Little Jack Rabbit and the duck so tightly that they couldn't get away.

"Now I've got you," roared the dreadful ogre, climbing onto the tree and walking carefully out to the middle of the moat.

"Quick," quacked the good duck. "Get out one of your magic charms!"

At once the bunny boy waved his flaming feather in front of the ogre who only laughed as he held a great shield before him.

"Oh degrest me! What shall I do?" cried Little Jack Rabbit, when all of a sudden, he remembered his magic whistle. Pulling it out of his pocket, he blew upon it with all his might. Then such a hurricane arose that it swept the dreadful ogre off the tree, through the air, high over the tree tops and dropped him in the Arctic ocean where a great white bear hugged him to death.

Without further delay, Little Jack Rabbit and the Duck climbed up on the tree and walked over to the land and just then the sun came up and through the castle doors came a great shout as the queen and the little prince waved their hands at Little Jack Rabbit and the duck.

"I can speak!" he shouted as his mother the queen kissed him again and again.

"Come into the castle, bunny boy. Come in you good kind duck," begged the happy queen.

So the two walked over the bridge which the royal retainers let down for them and as soon as they were in the great palace, the queen and her little son led them to a table on which lay a great frosted cake with eleven colored candles and funny colored paper caps to wear for it was the little prince's birthday. And when Little Jack Rabbit broke open his piece of cake he found a little gold ring and the duck found a gold necklace in his and now you will have to wait until the next story to hear what happened after that.

CANTERBURY GREEN

A student from the Divinity school at New Haven preached at the church Sunday. Mr. Rietzell, a 'cellist of New York, who is spending the summer vacation here, gave pleasure to the congregation by a musical selection. Mr. Rietzell played last summer on one or two occasions and all enjoyed the wonderful music.

In the report of the lawn party last week the name of Mrs. Paetsch was omitted from those of the committee in charge. Mrs. Paetsch was and has been for a number of years the efficient chairman of the apron and fancy work booth and has worked faithfully for the success of her department. The name of Mrs. James Lathrop as one of the entertainment committee was omitted also.

Mrs. Frank Nelson is entertaining an automobile party from New York, including Mr. and Mrs. George King, Kenneth and George Carpenter and Charles Walters. Mr. King is a brother of Mrs. Nelson.

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Frink spent Wednesday at Ocean Beach.

The Ladies' Aid society will hold a meeting next Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. Wilson.

Repairs are being made upon the parsonage by John Bradford of Plainfield and Fred Kinne.

The insurance company who were to repair the recent damage to the church have also put men on the job and have it well under way.

Mr. and Mrs. James Towne and the family of Nathan Exley were at Webster lake Thursday to attend the annual field day of Pomona grange.

Killingly grange has been invited to be present at the next meeting of Canterbury grange, Wednesday, Aug. 15th.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Griggs have been guests at the Exley home.

Mrs. Sager has been in South Canterbury at the home of her brother, Arthur Tracy. Mrs. Tracy has been visiting friends in Voluntown.

George Rowland and son Joseph and daughter, Mrs. Stewart, of Poquonnoc, were recent visitors in town, calling upon friends.

In the small hours of last Monday morning a member of the Hawes family was aroused by hearing someone scratching a match and trying to open the screen door of the kitchen. As the family began to stir about the house, the offender evidently became frightened and moved off without molesting things further. Monday morning it was discovered by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Avery that their home had been entered in the night and money taken from Mr. Avery's pockets. Also that a small quantity of food had disappeared, while some had been collected and placed in a bag and left as if the burglar had made a hurried exit. Neither Mr. nor Mrs. Avery heard anything and knew nothing of the occurrence until morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Hawes and son Merritt were at Gardner Lake Sunday, the 5th, as guests of the Norwich Fish and Game association.

Dr. and Mrs. Jackson Blair of Cleveland, O., visited over the week end at Black Hill with Mrs. Blair's uncles, H. B. and Everett E. Brown. Mrs. Blair is a granddaughter of the late Marvin Sanger of Canterbury and a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wendell P. Brown of Cleveland.

Mrs. Charles Hyde of Brooklyn, with guests, were visitors Monday with Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Frink.

ABINGTON

Marshall Peal and sisters of Brooklyn, N. Y., who have been spending several weeks with Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Peal, have gone to Swansea, N. H., for August.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Swett of Hopedale, Mass., were in town Friday on their way home from Riverhead, L. I., where they visited Mrs. Swett's sister, Mrs. E. W. Carson.

Miss Emma Allen has just returned from a ten days' visit with friends in Nashua, N. H.

A branch of the Junior Achievement league has been formed with eight members. Mrs. Sarah Smith is president and Mrs. C. William Johnson secretary and treasurer.

Frank Chism is working in Somers, Conn.

Several hundred fingerling trout were received Wednesday from a hatchery in Massachusetts and distributed in local streams.

The flag of Poland is composed of two stripes, a white one over a red one.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

SATURDAY'S MARKET.

New York, Aug. 11.—Active short covering operations, particularly in the oil group, imparted a firm tone to closing prices in today's stock market after an early period of irregularity. The volume of trading was the smallest of anw session this year because of the absence fo many large traders from the floor who took advantage of yesterday's holiday to make extended week end trips out of town.

Early heaviness resulted largely from the rather free offerings of the rubber shares, U. S. Rubber common and first preferred each breaking more than 2 1-2 points to new low levels for the year. Kelly-Springfield was depressed nearly two points but recovered more than half of its loss before the close.

U. S. Steel, Baldwin and American Locomotives, Studebaker and American Can, generally regarded as "pivotal stocks," showed net gains of 3-4 to 1 1-4 on the day.

Announcement of a gasoline price-cutting war in certain sections of the west and south brought some selling into the oil shares, particularly Phillips Petroleum and Producers and Refiners, but this was used as a screen to cover commitments in other oils, several of which have given indication of a temporarily oversold condition.

Allied Chemical dropped 1 1-4 and then recovered its loss. Famous Players, which was heavy earlier in the week, rallied 3 points and United Drug was pushed up 4.

Rails failed to make any appreciable response to the report of record car loadings published earlier in the week.

TAFTVILLE

The Pioneer boys of Taftville held their 11th annual reunion at Rocky Point, R. I., on Sunday. The meeting was held at 10 o'clock at which the following committee was elected to make arrangements for the reunion next year: William H. Thomas, William H. Thomas, William Brierly, William R. Booth, William C. Kendall and William E. Duprey. It was also voted to hold the reunion at New Bedford next year, after which a Rhode Island dinner was served at 11.30 o'clock. The boys returned to their various homes in the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Heap and daughter, Edith, have returned to their home on South Second avenue after spending the week-end at Fishers Island.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Pollard and family and Mr. and Mrs. Everett Pingree are at Groton Long Point for two weeks.

Gustave Greenwood has returned to home on South Second avenue after visiting his sister, Mrs. Wilfred Pollard of Block Island.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Belisle of Willimantic were callers in the village on Sunday.

The Ladies' Rifle club held a picnic at the German Shooting club grounds in Lisbon, on Saturday.

The funeral of Mrs. Ellen A. Waldron was held at her late home on Hunters avenue, Saturday morning at 6.30 o'clock, followed by a requiem high mass in the Sacred Heart church at 9 o'clock. The services were conducted by Rev. L. O. Bellerose and burial took place in St. Joseph's cemetery where Rev. Fr. Bellerose read a committal service. The bearers were Thomas Fitzmaurice, William Malone, Thomas Phalen, William Roach, Michael Tierney and William Liptrot.

Mrs. Waldron, 62, died Wednesday in Taftville after a lingering illness, and is survived by six children, Mrs. Stanislaw Breault, Mrs. Joseph Bechard, Joseph Waldron and Thomas Waldron of Taftville and Mrs. George Estham of Plainfield and Martin Waldron of Springfield, Mass.

George G. Grant was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

PILLS ON A PULLMAN

WHO put the "sleep" in Sleeping Car?

Nobody!

It was a PILL.

A pill made it possible to sleep restfully in a Pullman, and leave the train next morning with clear head, bright eyes—full of enthusiasm for breakfast and "pep" for the new day.

Here's how: Just before you peel down the sheets, take two Beecham's Pills. This is the pleasant, sure way to attune the organs of digestion and elimination to normalcy, and thus assure a night of tranquil repose.

ROQUE PLAYERS ARRIVE FOR OPENING OF TOURNAMENT

Announcement was made Sunday that Mayor Milo R. Waters will open the annual tournament of the Eastern Division of the American Roque Association at the Rockwell street grounds Tuesday morning. Several of the well known Roque players arrived today (Monday). Arthur L. Peale, secretary of the association, said Sunday that there will be more players in the first division than has been the case for the past few years. In all about fourteen are entered in the first division. The second division will have six entrants, at least, and there will be the usual number entered in the third division.

Players already arrived in Norwich include George Fuott of Chicopee Falls, Mass., L. Talcot of Springfield, Harold Bosworth, New London, and George Marble of Hingham, Mass. Among those who are expected today (Monday) are President C. B. Crowell, Brattleboro, Vt., W. as Robinson and E. W. Robinson of Mansfield, S. S. Prentice of Providence, J. D. Minet of East Greenwich, Charles G. Williams of Washington, D. C., and Louc E. Stockwell, formerly of Norwich, now of Worcester.

Gerald Bransill, the well known local player, will be seen on the courts again this year. No word has yet been received from either Edward or Harold Clark of Springfield as to whether they are coming to the tournament this year. "Eddie" as he is known to his many friends in Norwich, was in Chicago last week where he was entered in the Chicago tournament.

The local courts are in excellent shape and were in use Saturday afternoon and evening. The players who arrived in Norwich Sunday visited the courts during the afternoon and this afternoon and evening will probably see most of the players engaged in practice games.

CONNECTICUT MEN TO ATTEND A. L. CONVENTION

The Connecticut department is making arrangements well in advance and have plans to carry a large delegation from the Nutmeg state to San Francisco, Cal., for the American Legion national convention, Oct. 15 to 19. Commander Kelly has appointed a transportation committee with Harry C. Jackson of New Britain as the chairman and the itinerary has been arranged by this committee for a special train leaving Hartford, New Haven and Bridgeport on Saturday, Oct. 6th, stopping at Chicago, the Grand Canyon of Arizona, the famous Mission inn, Riverside, Cal., Los Angeles, including Pasadena, Hollywood and the beaches, Del Monte and Monterey, spending five days at the convention in San Francisco.

Returning the route will be through California and Nevada to Salt Lake City, visiting the famous Mormon buildings and the Great Salt Lake, then through Colorado Rockies, the famous Royal Gorge to Colorado Springs, visiting the Garden of the Gods, Cave of the Winds and an opportunity to visit Pike's Peak, also an entire day at Denver with a comprehensive auto trip, including the parks and boulevards, returning direct from Chicago. Also an optional return route via Portland, Ore., Seattle, Washington, Victoria, Vancouver and the famous Canadian Rockies, including Lake Louise, Banff, Winnipeg and Montreal.

The Connecticut department will hold their state convention at New Britain, Sept. 13, 14 and 15.

FINAL REELS OF MOVIES AT Y. M. C. A. SERVICE

Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock the final two reels of the moving picture, The Chosen Prince, were shown at the Y. M. C. A. service. A brief talk on Friendship and Brotherhood was given by Louis M. Crandall. The picture emphasized the points that the only way to have a friend is to be one. That all would be successful if jealousy and envy were kept out of life. Wrong thoughts were the downfall of Saul and are sure to be the same with people of today. When fear creeps into the heart there is danger. Only by faith and confidence can one live a really true Christain life. In business service wins friends, and friends are man's great asset. If we want Christ as our friend we must be His friend. It is only by giving unselfishly of our service that we grow into a happier future.

With God all things are possible, and "as a man thinketh in his heart so is he" were points stressed by the speaker. He also stated that man's success in life depends upon a full development of his ability, reliability, action and endurance, and that the Bible is considered by leading men of this day as the one best text book for the development of these qualities.

George A. Turner gave a solo and led in the singing and Earl Sparks presided at the piano.

CONCERT PROGRAMME FOR ITALIAN CELEBRATION

Italian residents of Norwich will celebrate Wednesday, the Feast of Our Lady of the Assumption, and after the programme of the day the Italian band, under the direction of Prof. Pasquale Puca, will give the following concert numbers on Little Park on Franklin street:

OVER 169,000 MOTOR VEHICLES IN STATE

Connecticut's automobile registration for the first six months of this year exceeded the combined registration of five other states in the country by over 32,000 according to figures issued by the motor vehicle department.

On July first there were 169,835 motor vehicles of all classes in the Nutmeg state, while Vermont, New Hampshire, Nevada, New Mexico and Delaware had a total combined registration of 157,206 cars.

A New England comparison shows Connecticut with over 7,0000 more automobiles than Rhode Island, New Hampshire and Vermont, whose total for the period was 162,254.

The 169,835 figure for Connecticut is an increase of 35,000 over the July 1, 1923 figure of 134,200. Unless there is some improbable lapse in the purchasing of new automobiles, 200,000 motor vehicles undoubtedly will have been registered in Connecticut by the end of the year.

A figure recently made public by the Automotive Industries shows that 13,048,128 automobiles were registered in the United States in the six months ended July 1. Connecticut has approximately one-eightieth of this total.

Dozen Arrests by Police.

Nearly a dozen arrests were made Saturday and Sunday by the local police on intoxication and breach of the peace charges. The breach of the peace charges number four and intoxication charges six.

ROAD REPAIRS COMPLETED BY HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT

After more than a year's effort, the state highway department has completed repairs on the New Hartford-Winsted highway that have agreeably surprised users of the road in this section. The marked improvement that has been made on this trunk line highway has brought about a fine trunk line road which is the most direct route to Pittsfield and the Berkshires from the center of the state. It is one of the most important thoroughfares in the state as it carries a large volume of traffic from eastern and central Connecticut to western Massachusetts.

The alternate route has been by way of Farmington, Bristol, Thomaston, Torrington, and Winsted and beyond, a much longer trip, which has now been obviated by completion of the repairs.

The road has been widened, thereby making travel much safer, and numerous dangerous curves which made the highway unpopular as well as unsafe, have been eliminated. In addition, there will no longer be any danger of motorists experiencing trouble due to the gutters alongside the roadway.

With the extension of this road to take care of conditions between Winsted and Norfolk, the traveling public will be relieved of much of the unpleasantness which annually existed in the late fall, winter and spring when this highway was all but impassable. No such trouble is expected in the future.

All the turns have been banked and additional shoulders five feet in width constructed throughout the length of the improvement. This necessitated the rebuilding of all existing drainage structures and culverts. Several miles of new railing have also been installed.

The main trouble had been lack of proper drainage, where certain sections, during extreme weather conditions became absolutely impassable. It is the intention of the highway department to further extend these modern improvements toward Norfolk for about four miles. It is an improvement that has long been awaited.

THOUSANDS OF CHILDREN ATTEND PLAYGROUNDS

The total attendance at the Norwich playgrounds so far this season is 15,540. Supt. Harold Anson Bruce of the city recreation commission calls attention to the following table concerning the attendance of boys and girls up to date, including 16 years of age, since the opening of the grounds on July 5th. Last week's attendance was 3,224. This is considered fair considering Friday, which was a day of absolute inactivity at the play centers, in memory of President Harding.

The attendance table follows:

BROKE UP DICE GAME ON YANTIC RIVER BANK

The unexpected arrival of the police patrol broke up a dice game that was in full swing on the banks of the Yantic river near the Chelsea File works at the Falls Sunday afternoon about 3.30 o'clock. Police headquarters received a complaint by telephone that a "crap" game was in progress on the river bank and three police officers were despatched there in the patrol.

When the police made their appearance the half dozen men engaged in the pastime scattered in all directions. One of the young men engaged in the game, John Witrnal, 18 years of age, was captured and the dice and some money were seized. Witrnal was booked at police headquarters. It is understood that the police are in possession of the names of the others engaged in the game and that they will all be in court this (Monday) morning to answer to gambling charges.

BROUGHT FROM SPRINGFIELD BY STATE POLICE

Michael Savazzo, 26 years of age, of Springfield, was lodged in the police station Saturday night by State Police Officer Palmer on a charge of violation of the motor vehicle law. It is understood that Savazzo failed to appear at a hearing on the charge recently. He was located in Springfield, where he was arrested and turned over to State Police Officer Palmer, who brought him to this city. He is being held in bonds of $500.

REV. R. J. GUERRIERO PREACHES ON FESTIVAL OF ASSUMPTION

The parable of the Good Samaritan, Luke 10: 23-37, was the gospel read in all the masses in the Catholic churches Sunday—the twelfth Sunday after Pentecost. While preaching at the 10.30 mass in St. Patrick's church, Rev. Rocco J. Guerriero, the junior assistant pastor, spoke of the coming feast of the Assumption, Wednesday next, as one of the greatest festivals in the liturgy of the church. This day is always made much of by Catholics the world over; the church holding that Mary, Mother of the Redeemer, was, by scriptural testimony, blessed with a life more wonderful than was the life of any other mortal, so her death could not have been exactly like the death of any other created being, but that she must have been assumed into heaven without undergoing the conditions of the ordinary death.

Father Guerriero declared that a study of the life of the Mother of God in connection with the coming festival could not fail to strengthen the Catholic's faith, would increase his love for the Blessed Virgin and his rejoicing in her marvelous privilege in being chosen—for so the Bible tells—to become the Mother of the world's Redeemer. Hers was a conception without the taint of original sin; she was God's choice of all human creatures to bear, to nurture and to rear His sinless Son, and the preacher dwelt upon the example Christ set mankind in His own honor paid His Mother, as well as the help it must be toward spiritual advancement to study and to copy Mary's virtues of purity, humility and obedience.

NORWICH DRIVER HELD FOR RECKLESS DRIVING

Peter Przekop, 29, of this city, will be in the city court this (Monday) morning to answer a charge of reckless driving of his automobile. Sunday morning Przekop's machine collided with two other machines near the intersection of Little Water and Shetucket streets.

While making the turn from Little Water street to Shetucket street the machine driven by Przekop collided with a machine driven by Clarence Marsh of this city. Przekop's machine then slewed into another nearby machine. It is said that Przekop drove out of Little Water street at about 25 miles an hour. He was arrested and booked at police headquarters on a reckless driving charge.

DAIRY TOUR FOR NEW LONDON COUNTY FARMERS

The dairy tour for New London county which is to be held Wednesday, Aug. 15, will start at the farm of the farm bureau president, H. R. Whitman in Waterford. Farmers planning to make the tour will assemble at Mr. Whitman's at 10 a. m. (standard time) or as soon thereafter as possible.

After having lunch at the Whitman farm the tour will continue to Houghton farm in Montville, owned by George G. Grant. The next stop will be at Myron Hoxie's in Lebanon.

On Southern Trip.

Mrs. La Vallee of 333 East Main street, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Bruette, left here Saturday morning for an extended visit in Baltimore Washington and Virginia. In Baltimore they will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert W. Rich and a brother of Mrs. La Vallee, Leo Bruette. Mr. Rich was formerly of Norwich and now holds a fine position as violinist and leader of an orchestra in Baltimore.

In the City Court.

In the city court Saturday morning three local men paid fines plus costs for intoxication. Donald Davison, charged with non-support, agreed to pay his family $8 per week and the matter was continued. A Griswold man paid fine and costs for being drunk. The case of state vs. Harold M. McQuarry was called up and he was sentenced to jail for 10 days, the sentence being suspended for six months.

CRAP SHOOTERS IN NEW LONDON ROUNDED UP DURING SUNDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Aug. 12.—William G. Elliott was driving an Overland car Friday evening which belonged to his brother-in-law and which he drove in from Waterford. He picked up acquaintances on the way, four or five of them, and when they reached Pequot avenue the machine was tearing along at a speed of 35 or 40 miles an hour. The Overland got as far as the Casino entrance when it smashed into a Franklin and crowded it against the granite posts at the gateway. Mrs. Ludwig Mann was operating the Franklin, and in the car were her mother and her husband. They had just arrived at the Casino from the Mann home on Pequot avenue. Mrs. Mann told in the police court Saturday that she held her arm out as she turned into the Casino grounds and that then the Overland crashed into the Franklin. Both cars turned over on their sides and their occupants were underneath the cars when they were righted. The passengers were picked up scared but not much hurt. Mr. Mann declared that Elliott was drunk and that he was not competent to drive a car when the crash occurred. Young men who were with Elliott denied that Elliott had drank any liquor while they were with him and said they did not observe any indication of drink on Elliott. Judge Prince fined Elliott $25 for recklessness in operating the car he was managing. It is understood that he has agreed to pay for any damage done to the Mann car. The accident was the second in which Mr. Mann has been involved within a short time, the first one being also a remarkable escape from injury. He was hit by a truck as he stepped from a trolley car and with presence of mind he grabbed a portion of the truck so that he did not go under the wheels.

Cecil Delmar, a negro who has been a caddy at the Shennecossett Golf club is accused of having sought to blackmail a resident of Groton by sending threatening letters of the poison pen sort, will be in the Groton town court Tuesday and then the case against him as developed by the state police will be presented in its entirety. Delmar has no attorney, being without means to engage one but he seems to have friends who are disposed to supply him with the little things he has needed since he was locked up.

The city manager has been authorized to sell the ferryboat Mohegan but fo one seems to want it at the price the city would like to get. An offer of $13,000 has been made for the boat but it is cheap at twice that figure for anyone who has a use for it. Strangely, the name Mohegan was the name of one of the first ferryboats that ever ran on the river. That craft was a much smaller boat than is the present Mohegan. The present boat has an income, it is claimed, of $30,000 a year, but at that figure the cost of operation leaves no profit to speak of for the city. But under a franchise granted by the legislature the city of New London must operate the ferry between the two towns or abandon it. The town of Groton sought a share in the ferry when it was a paying proposition, but when the highway bridge was erected across the river and the revenue of the ferryboat dropped to small figures Groton didn't want anything to do with the ferry except to cross the river on it. Manager Barlow is said to be ready to recommend the sale of the boat for $13,000.

Edward Gragan of Brooklyn, in which city he is employed by the Brooklyn Times, accompanied by his wife and family, spent the week end with Mr. Gragan's parents, Councillor and Mrs. Thomas F. Gragan.

Josiah Keeney, employed in New York, is making a brief visit with his mother, Mrs. Mary E. Keeney.

John Baker, formerly of New London, with his family, returned Sunday to Toronto, Canada, after spending a week with Mr. Baker's father, Ruel S. Baker.

Richard Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Luke Martin, returned to New York today, concluding a brief visit in New London.

The only diseases of a contagious nature reported to the health department during the past week were two, of whooping cough.

Andrew Patterson of No. 360 Main street, who was ordered into court Friday evening by Motorcycle Officer William Babcock when Patterson was detected operating an automobile without being possessed of a license, failed to appear at the session of the police court Saturday morning.

The hearing on the admission to probate of the will of Mrs. Mary Russell Fitzgerald, wife of Jeremiah E. Fitzgerald, whose death occurred ten days ago, which was to have taken place Saturday forenoon, did not occur because of the illness of Mr. Fitzgerald. Judge Arthur B. Calkins did not assign a date for the hearing, the matter being continued indefinitely and until such time as Mr. Fitzgerald's condition will permit his court attendance.

Arthur Rutt of Hartford will be in the police court Monday morning, charged with violation of the automobile laws. Rutt was detected this morning by Motorcycle Officer William Babcock while operating an automobile without reducing his speed in passing intersecting streets or giving proper signal.

The nominations of Edward L. Streeter, Jr., for member of the council and Howard B. Marshall for school visitor were made valid late Friday, when new petitions were filed with the city clerk. The original petitions were defective because of various violations of that part of the charter providing for the manner in which the petitions shall be prepared. Mrs. Emily C. Spiers and Lucius E. Whiton are the only candidates for councilors who have filed their notices of acceptance. The time for accepting the nomination for member of council of Waldo E. Clark expired Friday because of the candidate being absent from the city. Mr. Clark will return to New London Monday and as P. LeRoy Harwood and John S. Pendleton caused another petition for Mr. Clark's nomination to be filed, the candidate has until next Friday in which to file his acceptance.

Local Union, No. 30, Carpenters and Joiners, has gone on record as being in favor of the stores closing every Saturday afternoon that the clerks may enjoy a weekly half holiday.

Frederick Goss complained that while his machine was parked a short time on Union street Saturday night two insurance policies were stolen.

Mrs. E. Gardner, 32 Coleman street, complained to the police Saturday night that her son's bicycle was stolen from the yard Friday night. Sergt. Charles Hammond discovered the thief today, when he found the wheel in possession of a Belden street youth. The wheel was returned to its owner. Last Friday night two bicycles, the property of Alvin Thayer and George E. Brown, both of No. 58 Lewis street, were stolen from the premises.

An automobile in which the passengers were four women and headed towards New London, passed over the Saybrook bridge Saturday about 9 o'clock. The woman driving the car tendered the toll collector a $2 bill and after the machine disappeared from view the collector discovered that he had given the woman change for a $5. The collector then sought to recover the $3 by asking the New London police to aid him. The only clue to the identification of the machine was that it bore registration of New York issue.

The funeral of Thomas A. Clark, 11 son of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Clark of No. 27 Bellevue place, was held on Saturday morning at 9 o'clock at St Joseph's church where a mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. William C. Fitzsimons. The bearers were Edward Dempsey, William D. Connor Edward Clary and James Dempsey, former playmates of Master Clark. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mrs. George Perkins of Hill street, Mrs. Katherine Nightwine of Fishers Island, Sidney, and Alice Laputs of Harrison street, Miss Priscilla Fielding of Blackhall street, Mrs. Max Munsch of Bank street, Capt. Daboll of Groton, Samuel Bittner of Glenwood park, Mrs. Raymond Neilan and infant son of Connecticut avenue and Miss Alice Frank of Union street, patients at Lawrence hospital, were able to return to their respective homes Saturday.

The boarding has been removed from in front of the Union Bank & Trust company's building on Bank street disclosing the facade of the addition to the structure.

Steamer Wyandotte of the Montauk Steamboat company, brought about 300 excursionists from Sag Harbor to New London Saturday.

Boys started a bonfire in a vacant lot at the corner of Jefferson avenue and MacDonald street Saturday afternoon. When an officer reached the place adjoining property was threatened and a still alarm to fire headquarters caused the Northwest Hose company to respond. The fire was extinguished by chemicals.

One of the smallest excursions to be brought to New London from Fall River by steamer Plymouth, was that which arrived here today, the crowd numbering but 1316, undoubtedly due to the threatening weather.

William Landig of Thompsonville, this morning was ordered by Motorcycle Officer William Babcock to appear in the police court Monday morning, charged with violation of the automobile law. Landig was detected operating his automobile on Broad street at a fast rate of speed.

Stephen Sullivan of Harrison street will be in the police court Monday forenoon charged with gambling. Sullivan and others were discovered shooting dice in the open late Saturday afternoon by Motorcycle Officer William Babcock, all but Sullivan managed to make a get-away.

This afternoon 14 more crap shooters were taken into custody when Special Agents Kane and Montgomery of the New York, New Haven & Hartford force and Detective Sergeant Charles Hammond raided the yard crew's office at Fort Neck. There were 15 in the gang when the officers swooped down on the place and while awaiting the arrival of the patrol to convey the gamblers to the police station one of them and the fellow who had made the greatest winnings jumped through a window and made his escape. Each is held in bonds of $25 for appearance in the police court tomorrow morning. Someone telephoned the information of the gambling being in progress to the special agents' office. Officers Kane and Montgomery then requested the aid of Detective Sergeant Hammond to assist them.

There is no change tonight in the condition of John Murphy of Voluntown, employed by the state highway department, who was run over at Niantic several days ago by an automobile which he was attempting to repair, sustaining among other injuries several fractured ribs and an injury to his spine. Murphy's condition remaining critical at Lawrence hospital.

About thirty members of New London lodge of Elks were entertained at the cottage of Joseph G. Harrigan in East Lyme, this afternoon to permit a testimonial to be tendered Timothy Toolin, chief commissary steward at the submarine base, a farewell, as Mr. Toolin is to be transferred shortly to another naval base. During the afternoon Mr. Toolin was presented a handsome Gladstone bag by the Elks of which organization, he has been a member for several years.

City Manager James E. Barlow has not taken any action on the application of John Stanners, chief of the New London fire department, for retirement and will probably not do so until the latter part of next week. A meeting of the officers of the several fire companies will be held at the quarters of the F. L. Allen Hook and Ladder company Tuesday night at which time an expression will probably be made as to the probable successor to Chief Stanner. It is possible that Deputy Chief Charles Rose will become the next chief.

HONOR FOR MAY B. KELLY AT BROWN UNIVERSITY

In the honor list for 1922-23 just published by the Mathematics Department of Brown University, Miss May B. Kelly's name is included as winner of honors in two mathematic courses. The announcement reads:

"The Department of Mathematics awards special recognition to those undergraduate students who, during a certain semister, have constantly shown exceptional power and facility in the acquisition and handling of the material in a given mathematical course. Where a student continues to exhibit the same unusual aptitude for mathematics in his or her final examination, the examination book is preserved, together with a copy of the examination paper, in the library of the Mathematical Seminary. The names of the recipients of this honor are also officially published in an Honor List.

During the year 1922-23, there were about 750 students in the Department of Mathematics, most of whom took two semister courses. Among these 34 (21 men and 13 women) have been adjudged worthy of a place in the Honor List. This list includes the winners of Hartshorn Premiums, awarded in 1922 as a result of examination on entrance mathematics. The list also includes the names of those who were at graduation in June, 1923, awarded Final Honors in Mathematics, the winner of the Howell Premium, awarded at graduation for excellence in Mathematics and Natural Philosophy, and the names of those students specializing in Mathematics who were awarded honor scholarships or were elected to Phil Beta Kappa or Sigma Xi.

Miss Kelly is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice F. Kelly, of 75 Williams street, Norwich.

YOUTH CHARGED WITH CARRYING CONCEALED WEAPON

Herman Baker, colored, who gave his age as 19 and his address as Groton, was arrested on the West Side Sunday night by Policeman John Donovan and booked at police headquarters on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. On Baker was found a 32 calibre revolver. He also had in his pocket a dozen 32 calibre cartridges.

Asked where he got the gun Baker said he bought it from a Portuguese on the West Side. He said he heard the Portuguese had the gun for sale and purchased it from him. He was locked up and will be presented before the city court this (Monday) morning.

MACHINES COLLIDE NEAR NORWICH TOWN GREEN

Haroid C. Moshier, of No. 3 Julian Terrace, reported at the police station that a machine owned and driven by Alfred Henault of this city, collided with his automobile early Sunday evening near the Norwich Town green. Mr. Mosher was driving north and the Henault machine was in a line of cars headed south.

Mr. Mosher claims that as he approached the line of cars coming in the opposite direction Mr. Henault pulled out of line and in trying to get back in line skidded into his machine. The damage was slight.

OCEAN BEACH RED CROSS NURSE HAD 266 CASES IN JULY

Mrs. Niola Whiteside, Red Cross nurse at Ocean Beach, submitted the following report for July: 266 persons received medical attention at Red Cross first aid station, Ocean Beach. Among them were one fractured knee cap, one foot needing seven stitches, one foot seriously cut, hospital case, one fractured shoulder, one heart case, three sprained ankles, four broken toes, several toes with the nails torn off, minor accidents, cuts, bruises, scratches, sunburns, headaches, cramps, etc.

HUDSON COUPE UPSETS ON WESTERLY HIGHWAY

Early Sunday evening a Hudson coupe, Massachusetts registration 99445, owned and driven by a Mr. Hall of Springfield, turned over on its side on a curve near Preston Plains on the Westerly highway. Accompanying Mr. Hall was his wife. Both escaped injury.

The coupe sustained a badly smashed top and the left running board and mudguard were wrenched and bent. The coupe was righted and was driven to Springfield under its own power.

NEW GERMAN CABINET HAS BEEN FORMED; REPARATION DELIVERIES SUSPENDED

Promise is Made That Deliveries Will be Resumed "as Soon as the Finances and Currency of the Reich Are on a Firm Basis"—Fighting Between the Townspeople and Police in Various Towns is Reported—Shortage of Food and General Spirit of Unrest Are Causing Chaotic Conditions—Dr. Gustave Stresemann, the New Chancellor.

Paris, Aug. 13.—(By the A. P.)—Germany formally notified the reparation commission in a letter dated last Saturday, and just published today, that all reparation deliveries in kind would cease after that date because of the great expense involved which it was believed might jeopardize the pending German gold loan and tax reforms.

Germany said her burden must be lightened to "avoid a complete breakdown of the German economic and financial system." The cessation affects principally those countries that did not participate in the occupation of the Ruhr, as such deliveries to France and Belgium ceased soon after the troops entered Essen.

The promise is made that the deliveries will be resumed "as soon as the finances and currency of the Reich are on a firm basis."

PERSONNEL OF THE NEW GERMAN CABINET

The new German cabinet is constituted as follows:

Chancellor—Dr. Gustav Stresemann.

Minister of Foreign Affairs—Herr Von Bergen.

Minister of Interior—Herr Sollmann, Socialist.

Minister for Occupied Areas—Herr Fuschs, Clerical.

Minister of Finance—Herr Hilferding, Socialist.

Minister of Economics—Hans Von Raumer, People's Party.

Minister of Reconstruction and Vice Chancellor—Herr Schmidt, Socialist.

Minister of Labor—Herr Brauns, Clerical.

Minister of Justice—Herr Radbruch, Socialist.

Minister of Railways—Herr Oeser, Democrat.

Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, Herr Giesberts, Clerical.

Minister of Defence, Dr. Geßler, Democrat.

Food Controller—Dr. Hans Luther, Democrat.

Diego Von Bergen, is ambassador to the vatican. His consent to accept the portfolio of foreign minister has not yet been obtained by Dr. Stresemann.

Wilhelm Sollmann is well known as a socialist leader in the Rhineland. Herr Fuchs has been provisional President of the Rhineland, and Herr Von Raumer is closely identified with industrialist activities. Dr. Otto Gessler, Rudolph Oeser, Dr. Luther and Herr Brauns are holdovers from the Cuno cabinet, while Herr Radbruch, Herr Giesberts and Herr Schmidt were members of the Wirth cabinet.

NEEDS RESOURCES TO WARD OFF STARVATION

Berlin, Aug. 13.—(By the A. P.)—A semi-official note explaining the cessation of deliveries in kind to the allies, declares the country needs all its resources to ward off starvation. Contracts for execution of the work of reconstruction in the devastated areas will not be affected by the suspension, it adds, and in view of the difficulties Italy is experiencing in obtaining coal, Germany will endeavor to continue coal deliveries to that country.

ADDITIONAL DISORDERS REPORTED IN GERMANY

Berlin, Aug. 13.—Chaotic conditions still prevail in various sections of German owing to the situation created by the shortage of food and the general spirit of unrest.

Additional disorders were reported from various towns today, with further casualties growing out of fighting between townspeople and the police.

At Aix-La-Chapelle four men were killed and forty wounded by the police in a potato shortage demonstration, while at Crefeld several men were wounded in a republican manifestation. There also were disturbances in Gelsenkirchen and Rheinhausen.

At Hamburg striking shipyard workers in a clash with the police lost several men killed and wounded. At Luebeck communists compelled the senate to adjourn.

In Berlin the strike of the transportation workers is causing the authorities much trouble. The activities of the strikers today necessitated the government ordering many of them under arrest.

BOOTLEG PIRATES ARE EXTENDING OPERATIONS

New York, Aug. 13.—Bootleg pirates, hijackers of the sea, have so far extended their operations that they now board ships at their piers in New York harbor, seize shipments of liquor which have been smuggled in, and after disposing of the bootleggers, make away in speed launches.

River pirates boarded the shipping board vessel Paris about midnight Saturday, customs officials stated today attacked a gang of bootleggers who had a cargo of liquor hidden in the mailing room, and escaped with 20 cases of whiskey and benedictine after a gun battle which lasted more than two hours. As a result of clues obtained after the skirmish, government agents seized 100 cases which the pirates had missed, they declared.

Captain Haywood commanding the Paris asserted he had searched the ship for liquor before docking, and had not found a single bottle of the contraband.

Shortly after the discovery that rum pirates had entered the harbor, R. C. Merrick, divisional chief of the prohibition forces, announced that last night, after a spectacular race, a speed boat and seventy-five cases of liquor were captured off the village of Belford, near Atlantic Highlands, one of the rum centers of the Atlantic coast. He stated that the village was fast becoming an important smuggling center. Five of the crew of the six on the speed boat were captured. The sixth jumped overboard and was believed to have been drowned.

FORMER JOCKEY TO BE ORDAINED MINISTER

Newark, N. J., Aug. 13.—Adding theology to a list of occupations which included being a race horse jockey, Justus F. Forehand, who at one time rode races at Saratoga, Jamaica and other eastern tracks, will soon be ordained a minister in the Church of God and the Saints of Christ here.

The Church of God and the Saints of Christ was founded in 1896 by William S. Crowdy, a former railway cook, and teaches its members that the earth is flat.

OBITUARY

Rev. Dr. Philip S. Moxom

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 13.—Rev. Dr. Philip S. Moxom, one of the best known Congregational ministers in the country, died at a hospital here today. He had been university preacher at Harvard, Yale and several other colleges.

Few men in the Christian ministry have had a more active career than Dr. Philip Stafford Moxom. In the pulpit for 48 years in Ohio and Massachusetts, he was called to many duties outside of his immediate parishes. As lecturer, college preacher and delegate to national and international gatherings, he was widely known. In addition, he wrote several books on religious and literary subjects.

Dr. Moxom was most closely identified with the city of Springfield, Mass., where he held the pastorate of the South Congregational church from 1894 to 1917 and thereafter was pastor emeritus. His earlier pastorates were at Cleveland and Boston.

He was born of English parents at Markham, Ont., on August 10, 1848, his father being a soldier in the British army who came to Canada and later entered the ministry. The family moved to Illinois and the boy, Philip went into the Civil war as an attendant to a captain in the 58th Illinois infantry. He enlisted in the 17th Illinois cavalery when 15 years old and served for the rest of the war.

COOLIDGE IN CONFERENCE WITH CABINET MEMBERS

Washington, Aug. 13.—President Coolidge, occupying the White House offices today for the first time, devoted himself throughout the day to conferences with cabinet members and other officials and to an accumulation of correspondence and documents.

Outstanding in the day's activities were conference on the anthracite situation with George Otis Smith, member of the coal commission, and Secretary Hoover. The latter was in conference with the President both before and after announcement was made that the operators' and miners' representatives had been summoned to renew wage contract negotiations.

Although Mr. Coolidge forsook the temporary executive offices established at the new Willard Hotel, he and Mrs. Coolidge retained their suits and will continue to live there until Mrs. Harding vacates the White House.

Arriving at his office before 9 o'clock the new President immediately began to receive friends and officials, including cabinet members and the heads of various government agencies.

The cabinet, with the exception of Secretary Mellon who is in Europe, and possibly Secretary Denby, who has been spending a vacation in Michigan, will meet the new President for the first time tomorrow at which time various problems confronting the administration will be taken up.

FINANCIERS DIFFER ON SITUATION IN EUROPE

New York, Aug. 13.—Two widely divergent views of the situation in Europe were expressed by American financiers arriving on the Leviathan today, each having concluded a private investigation of conditions over there.

"Although Europe is in the throes of hysteria, she is sounder economically than in many years," said Irving T. Bush, President of the New York Chamber of Commerce.

"Germany will collapse unless she yields to the demands of France," declared Willis H. Booth, President of the Guarantee Trust company of New York and President of the International Chamber of Commerce.

Received by Trotzky and Amieff in in Russia, Mr. Bush came to the conclusion that recognition of that nation by the United States would be easier if we made less stringent regulations on the restitution of private property and recognition of Russia's foreign debt.

"Cuno's retirement is a mere incident in Germany's effort to find a government suitable to the needs of the people," Mr. Booth declared.

SUPREME COURT DECISION FAVORS WALTER S. WARD

New York, Aug. 13.—The appellate division of the supreme court today upheld Walter S. Ward's right to select any Justice he wished to pass on his application for permission to inspect the minutes of the grand jury which indicted him for the murder of Clarence Peters, former sailor, of Haverhill, Mass.

Special Deputy Attorney General O'Neill, seeking to prevent Justice Seeger at Newburgh from passing on the motion, automatically is authorized, however, to take the case to the Court of Appeals, and indicated he would do so.

The motion to inspect the grand jury minutes is the first step in a move to seek dismissal of the indictment against Ward. His lawyers, passing over Justice Wagner, designated by Governor Smith to sit in extraordinary terms at White Plains to handle the Ward case, filed a motion to inspect before Justice Seeger.

Favors Selective Immigration, or None

Statement by Sec'y of Labor Davis After Survey of the Problem in Europe.

New York, Aug. 13.—Secretary of Labor Davis returned from an immigration survey of Europe today with the slogan "selective immigration or none."

Careful selection of prospective immigrants by American consular officials aboard, and a system of registration and surveillance whereby the desirability of those admitted to this country would be studied for five years, are the high spots in the program which he said he would urge upon official Washington.

Some European countries, Mr. Davis, declared, frankly consider America a mere dumping ground for their old and physically or morally unfit. Practically none, he added, take any steps to save their nationals from the distress that befalls many who enter the immigration quota restriction law, and are turned back because their ships do not arrive until quotas have been filled.

Dividing blame for the races between foreign government and foreign steamship companies, Mr. Davis declared America could stop these races by adoption of a selective system, handled by American consuls abroad.

"We could also thus prevent the division of families," the secretary continued.

"Selective immigration will also mean that immigrants will come to us in a steady flow, rather than with the spectacle of racing and rushing ships, and the watching of the clock to see who will be lucky enough to in first.

"In summary, a selective immigration law for the benefit of America, and I am for it or none. A law to enroll all aliens will mean that we will be able to Americanize the alien before the alien alienizes the American."

TULSA, OKLA., HAS BEEN PLACED UNDER MARTIAL LAW

Oklahoma City, Okla., Aug. 13.—Governor J. C. Walton late today issued a proclamation placing the city of Tulsa under martial law.

The city goes under the rule of the military at 6 a. m. tomorrow; Guard units from Oklahoma City and Okmulgee were ordered to proceed to Tulsa.

Issuance of the proclamation followed flogging of Nathan Hantman of Tulsa Friday night.

Hantman called at the governor's office today and was in conference with Aldrich Blake, executive counselor. The martial law order was promulgated immediately after Hantman told his story.

All civilians must be off the streets by 11 p. m., and may not appear again until 6 a. m. without permit, it was announced.

The order will not affect the courts or other departments of the civil government with the exception of the police and the sheriff's office, Counselor Blake.

Governor Walton, who is resting at Sulphur, telephoned Blake instructions to issue the martial law proclamation.

"The units I am sending to Tulsa are some of the best equipped in the state. They will be armed with automatic rifles in addition to full infantry equipment," Adjutant Genel J. B. H. Markham said. They are from Oklahoma City and Okmulgee.

"We intend to go to the very bottom of the Tulsa situation," Counselor Blake said after his telephone conversation with the governor.

"The Hantman whipping is only one of a series that have been reported to the governor's office."

Other counties may be placed under martial law if reports of similar mob outrages continue to come in, it was stated.

ANOTHER POSTPONEMENT IN PROSECUTING OF BROKERS

New York, Aug. 13.—New developments in the series of federal prosecutions growing out of $8,000,000 failure of E. M. Fuller & Co., bucketshop broker, caused United States Attorney Hayward to hold up for today the presentation before a grand jury of evidence against E. M. Fuller and W. F. McGee.

It was reported at federal building today that another installment of the bankrupt's business records had been received by authorities, sent through the mails anonymously from Chicago. The bankrupt partners have been in jail since May for failure to produce these records. The first installment to be surreptitiously surrendered was annonymously returned to Federal Judge Goddard several weeks ago.

The United States Attorney's staff spent the day in preparing more evidence based on the new disclosures. They predicted that the grand jury would finish hearing witnesses and hand down indictments tomorrow night, intimating that several persons would be indicted who heretofore have not been legally involved in the case.

FINED FOR ASSAULT ON HIS FORMER BUTLER

Wakefield, R. I., Aug. 13.—John R. Fell, millionaire member of the summer colony at Narragansett Pier, was tonight fined $500 and costs for assault on his former butler, John Morvischek, entering a plea of nolo. J. Bernard Quinn, former caretaker, and Thomas Sheehan, Fell's chauffeur, were each fined $500 and costs on similar charges after they had pleaded nolo. Each took an appeal and bonds in the sum of $2,500 were furnished in each case by W. Herbert Caswell, of Narragansett Pier.

John Morvischek was fined $500 and costs for assault on Sheehan and he also took an appeal and bonds of $1,500 were furnished by Albert Weibel, of Wakefield. Fell did not appear in court until 7 p. m.

SIX TRAINMEN KILLED IN COLLISION ON SANTA FE

Pueblo, Colo., Aug. 13.—Six trainmen were killed and several other trainmen and passengers were injured when Santa Fe Train No. 6, known as the Colorado Express, and Colorado and Southern Train No. 603, from Denver to Fort Worth, Texas, collided head-on today on the outskirts of Fowler, Colo., 20 miles east of Pueblo.

Number 609, drawn by two locomotives, was detouring from Pueblo south by way of La Junta because heavy rains had made the regular track unsafe. The cause of the wreck has not yet been determined but it is believed to have resulted from mistaken train orders.

Gasoline Price War In the Middle West

Standard Oil Company of Indiana Reduces Price in Ten States 6.6 Cents.

Chicago, Aug. 13.—(By the A. P.)—The Standard Oil company of Indiana announced tonight that it will reduce the price of gasoline six and six-tenths cents a gallon throughout the ten states in its territory, effective tomorrow morning. At the same time L. V. Nicholas, head of the National Petroleum Marketers' association, announced he had notified the independents to reduce prices five cents a gallon.

"I notified independents to reduce the price cents," Mr. Nicholas. "A cut of more than five cents is unfair and ruinous. A cut of 6.6 cents is as much out of line one way as the present price is the other.

The new prices were characterized by the Standard Oil company of Indiana in its announcement as "far below the cost of production and distribution." The Standard Oil company said in its statement that it had no wish to injure competitors but was inspired in making the reduction to meet the competition started by Governor W. H. MacMaster of South Dakota and now extending to other state executives.

"The Standard Oil Company of Indiana announces an immediate reduction in the price of gasoline of 6.6 cents per gallon applicable throughout the entire territory in which it does business," the announcement said. It asserts that the retail prices thus made are far below the cost of production and distribution.

"The governor of the state of South Dakota, buying distress gasoline below the cost of production, and charging against the state no adequate cost for distribution, is selling gasoline to the public in the state of South Dakota at 16 cents per gallon.

"The Standard Oil company of Indiana, operating on its established policy that the customers who chase its goods should never be compelled to pay a higher price than that maintained and fixed by any competitor, quality and service being considered, has met this price.

"In establishing the above price, the Standard Oil company of Indiana is not endeavoring to injure any of its competitors in any way.

"The Standard Oil company of Indiana does not wish to put any competitor out of business because it feels that competitors are necessary to the successful conduct of its business. It will welcome a change of attitude on the part of all parties concerned resulting in a reasonable price for gasoline which will enable not only it but all of its competitors to enjoy a reasonable profit."

GOV'T INTERVENES IN COAL WAGE CONTROVERSY

Washington, Aug. 13.—Representatives of union miners and operators in the anthracite field were summoned today by the federal coal commission to meet in New York city Wednesday to renew negotiations designed to avert a suspension of anthracite production on September 1.

The summons, which constituted the first step of governmental intervention in the existing deadlock over a new wage contract, was issued with the approval of President Coolidge after he had discussed the situation with Chairman Hammond, of the coal commission and Dr. George Otis Smith, a member of the commission.

It will be the design of the commission to act solely as agents of mediation and conciliation, for the time being. Its object will be to work out some compromise which will result in the continued operation of the mines.

Anthracite mining is being conducted under terms of a wage contract between the union and the operators, fixing rates of pay, working conditions, and method of settling local disputes, which expires September 1. The negotiations begun in July at Atlantic City between the union and the operators broke down completely ten days ago.

The "check-off," a system of collecting union dues by the operators, was one of the deadlocked questions.

The situation, prior to the issuance today of the coal commission's request for another conference, is identical with that which preceded the prolonged suspension of operations in the anthracite region in 1922.

If the conference to be resumed in New York fails to produce results, it was said the government would make a further move to bring about an adjustment.

MRS HARDING PREPARING TO LEAVE WHITE HOUSE

Washington, Aug. 13.—Mrs. Harding will leave the White House today or Wednesday to reside temporarily at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. McClean, on the outskirts of Washington, it was announced by George B. Christian, Jr., Secretar to the late President Harding.

Mrs. Harding spent today directing the packing of furnishings which she will remove from the White House and sorting the personal effects of Mr. Harding. Brigadier General Sawyer, personal physician to the late President, was the only caller at the executive mansion. He reported Mrs. Harding in excellent physical condition.

MEDALLIONS OF LATE PRESIDENT HARDING

Philadelphia, Aug. 13.—Medallions of the late President Harding will be sold to the general public for $1.52 each, Freas Styer, superintendent of the Philadelphia mint announced here today.

The keepsakes will be mailed to all parts of the United States by the local mint and it is anticipated they will be ready about September 1.

A likeness of the dead President will appear on one side while the reverse side will bear the important dates of President Harding's life—date of birth, inauguration and death.

Superintendent Styer stated any person desiring the medallion can procure it by mailing the required sum to the local mint. The cost of the medallion is made up of $1 for the medal itself, 35 cents for the case in which it will be placed and 17 cents for postage.

23 TOURISTS KILLED IN BUS ACCIDENT IN FRANCE

Tarbes, France, Aug. 13.—(By the A. P.)—Twenty-three tourists were killed in a motorbus accident today at Saint-Sauveur, a pyrennes resort about twenty-five miles south of here.

A "YELLOW BOOK" BY FRANCE ON THE INTER-ALLIED DEBTS

Diplomatic Document Issued by the French Government States That the United States Ultimately Will be Asked How Much of the Debts She Expects to be Paid—France Has Abandoned All Idea of Coming to an Agreement With London on the Essential Features of the Reparations Problem.

Paris, Aug. 13.—(By the A. P.)—A "yellow book" of diplomatic documents issued tonight by the French government brings out clearly that the United States ultimately will be asked by the allies how much of the inter-allied debts she expects to be paid.

The book contains thirty-seven telegrams and letters, most of them between Premier Poincare and French ambassadors. They are dated from May 2 to August 3 and deal with the Ruhr situation, reparations, debts and the British questionnaire.

Premier Poincare puts his position plainly in a June 12 message to the French ambassador in London. He instructs the ambassador, among other things, to tell Lord Curzon, the British Foreign Secretary, that "it is the problem of inter-allied debts which prevents us from telling Germany now the exact amount she owes us."

The message adds: "The solution of this problem is in the hands of England, first of all, and the United States afterward. The latter can be approached in a common accord by the allies when the have agreed upon a formula and it has become evident everything depends upon the attitude of the government at Washington."

The yellow book was issued as a reply to the British action in announcing that the world would be called upon to judge the present situation with regard to Germany. The documents, which hitherto had not been published, consist mostly of instructions to the ambassadors on how to present the French viewpoint on the situation.

They set out in great detail, and often in the exact language, declarations already made by the Premier publicly and emphasize M. Poincare's absolute conviction that Germany can pay, must pay and will pay, because France will follow a policy of making it easier to pay than to stand the pressure in the Ruhr.

Premier Poincare explains his idea of guarantees, suggesting that Germany deliver the Rhineland railways to the allies, give them certain Ruhr coal mines, collect customs in gold for the allies and otherwise actively cooperate in the payment of reparations.

GREAT BRITAIN DENIES TENDERNESS FOR GERMANY

London, Aug. 13.—(By the A. P.)—What is claimed to be "an authoritative and direct footnote on British foreign policy" was made public this evening by the Central News.

"There is no tenderness in the British empire for Germany," declares the statement, "but the government believes that if France is out to maintain an indefinite stranglehold on Germany the complete overthrow of the economic situation of Europe, if not the whole world, is certain.

"Although there is more than suspicion that the French policy is directed to the isolation of Great Britain in Europe, the British government are seeking not isolation but the cooperation of France. If that fails, obviously Great Britain will try a hand at the isolation game.

"England may then try to win over Italy, to detach Belgium from her support of France in the Ruhr and to bring into line with her Holland, Switzerland, Sweden and Norway, who are suffering equally with or more than Great Britain from the effects of the French policy.

"Apart from the immediate aims of the government in Europe, the dominating note of their policy is ultimate cooperation between Great Britain and America for world settlement."

BRITAIN AWAITING THE EFFECT UPON THE WORLD

London, Aug. 13.—(By the A. P.)—Great Britain, having drawn aside the heavy curtain of diplomatic secrecy that has shrouded the allied negotiations, regarding the Ruhr and reparations questions in recent months, is expectantly awaiting the effect upon the world.

It is stated that mobilization of world opinion upon the great European issues involved in these questions was one of the chief purposes behind the publication last night of the British blue book.

Downing street was obliged to endure but scant suspense in awaiting the reaction to the British note in France, for it came through press channels quickly in the form of no uncertain expressions of anger and disappointment.

However, it is the American reaction that is awaited with particular interest here, for it is admitted by government spokesmen that the success or failure of any plan for an international commission to determine Germany's paying capacity depends largely upon the participation, either officially or unofficially, of the American experts.

FRANCE SEES LITTLE HOPE OF SAVING THE ENTENTE

Paris, Aug. 13.—(By the A. P.)—In spite of the extreme reserve in official circles as to the possible consequences of the British note, conversations with Premier Poincare and his collaborators at the Quai D'Orsay today made it quite clear that little hope is entertained of saving the entente.

All idea of coming to an agreement with London on the essential features of the reparations problem was long ago abandoned, but it was still thought until the receipt of the last not, that the British government would give France further opportunity to see what could be done toward forcing Germany to pay. Now, however, it appears to French officials concerned with the reparations question that Great Britain stakes the life of the entente upon conditions intolerable for France.

Great Britain's activities in the reparations discussions, said a high official today, have all been in the nature of proposals for sacrifices on the part of France. There is only one more sacrifice, he said, that France is willing to make:—She will abandon all claims to reparations payments on account of pensions if Great Britain will do the same, but the British cabinet, he added, has shown little disposition to take even that small part in concessions to ease the burden on Germany.

The question was raised at the Quai D'Orsay today whether Great Britain was charged by Germany with proposing arbitration by the international court at the Hague. Doubts were expressed, however, whether the government of the Reich would give its approval to such procedure or to a proposal to handle the reparations problem over to the League of Nations.

FOUR GERMANS KILLED AND FORTY WOUNDED

Aix La Chapelle, Germany, Aug. 13. (By the A. P.)—Four Germans were killed and forty wounded when the police today fired on a crowd of several thousand that had gathered before the police headquarters demanding that the city authorities do something to relieve the shortage of potatoes.

Barlow Resigns as New London Manager

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Aug. 13.—City Manager James E. Barlow sprung the biggest surprise of the year on the council of the city of New London this evening when he tendered his resignation as city manager and asked that it should be accepted so that he should be free by the first of September. This he said, and said no more. The resignation was not acted upon as might be expected, but it was received for record. To The Bulletin correspondent who asked the city manager if he was insistent upon the council accepting the resignation that he might be free to pursue any other plans that he had, he replied that he had no plans for the future, but that he wanted a couple of months' vacation, to which he thought he was entitled. He said he had no position in prospect, that he was not an issue in the campaign that was to open and he did not intend to be. The members of the council had no inkling that the resignation was to come and indeed it was not handed to the clerk until a few minutes before the council meeting opened.

MINISTERS DENY THEY WERE INTERFERED WITH

Logan, W. Va., Aug. 13.—The Ministerial Association of Logan today declared that charges that ministers in the country were interfered with, as alleged in a report to the United States Coal commission made public last night "are absolutely false."

In the report made by a "committee on coal and civil liberties," it was alleged that last May, Deputy Sheriffs forced ministers who had come from union coal fields to attend a Free Will Baptist conference at Dingus Run, to leave the non-union section of the country, but the ministers here said they knew nothing of such an occurrence.

The only clash between a minister and county authorities of which the said they knew was the case of J. P. Simpson and county authorities declared he was a member of the American Civil Liberties union and went to Sheriff 'Don Chafin's home and abused him. Simpson, the county officials said, was not ordered out of the country, but left of his own accord.

INVESTIGATING GASOLINE PRICES IN THE WEST

Washington, Aug. 13.—The department of justice is investigating gasoline prices in various central and western states where a "price war" has developed.

The department's inquiry, it was learned today, was begun after 25 old refineries in the mid-continent field were alleged to have shut down for the month of August. The government, officials said, was seeking to determine whether there had been combination in restraint of trade in interstate commerce.

The investigation, it was said at the department, now not only embraces alleged curtailment of production, but the gasoline price situation in a number of states, the two phases of the question, in the opinion of department officials, being interwoven.

Refiners in the mid-continent field, according to officials directing the inquiry, have notified the department of justice they welcomed an investigation of the entire situation. They declared they were losing money, due to inability to dispose of their oil supply at prices sufficiently high to afford them a profit.

CHANGE IN INCORPORATION PAPERS OF KU KLUX KLAN

Elizabethtown, N. Y., Aug. 13.—"Material changes" were made in the incorporation papers of the Ku Klux Klan after they had been approved by Superior Court Justice Pierce, of Buffalo, according to his affidavit read into the court record Tuesday by assistant Deputy Attorney General Griffin, who is endeavoring to have the incorporation voided. At present the klan is incorporated as a benevolent organization, and therefore cannot be forced to make public the names of its members.

Supreme Court Justice Staley before whom the motion was argued, stated that he would announce his decision within a day or two.

DEMONSTRATION IN FAVOR OF RHINELAND REPUBLIC

Crefeld, Rhenish Prussia, Aug. 13.—(By the A. P.)—Several Germans were wounded this afternoon during a demonstration here in favor of the "Rhineland republic." A crowd parading with a huge red, white and green republican flag clashed with a detachment of police seeking to disperse the paraders.

Wasil Hnatowics, 52, boarder at the home of Charles Lucas, 7 Jackson street, who was struck by the State of Maine express at 8.36 o'clock Sunday morning at a point about 300 feet east of the Milk street railroad crossing, died Monday morning at 2 o'clock at St. Joseph's hospital from internal injuries. The man also sustained four broken ribs, and a broken right shoulder. Two engines were hauling the train and the engineer of the head locomotive was the only witness to the affair, when he saw Hnatowics stagger against the engine as it approached him. It is thought that he was struck by the steps leading to the engine cab. The man leaves a wife, who resides in Russia, a daughter in Yonkers, N. Y., and three sons, in Russia.

A Ford touring car, driven by its owner, William Becker of Mansfield, was badly damaged late Sunday evening when it figured in a collision with a big touring machine owned and driven by Andrew Sfechs, of this city, the accident occuring a short distance east of Perkins Corners, on the Coventry-Willimantic highway. The damage to the Ford consisted of a broken front axle, two burst tires, demolished left fender and damaged steering gear. The Sfechs car escaped with slight damage and was later driven away under its own power. Each driver blamed the other for the collision.

John Haran, of this city and Abraham Lerner, of Chestnut Hill, Columbia, were charged with reckless driving, at the session of police court on Monday morning. Haran was doubtful about his guilt and a plea of not guilty was entered for him by the court. Through his guardian ad litem, Probation Officer S. Arnold Peckham, Lerner, aged 20, pleaded not guilty. Machines owned by the two men collided late Sunday night, at the corner of Mountain and Pleasant streets when the Lerner car, which was crossing Pleasant street into Mountain street, was run into by the Haran machine, which was coming westerly on Pleasant street. Riding with Lerner were Wilfred Thayer and a woman friend from Chestnut Hill. Thayer was thrown against the window of the machine and was severely cut by broken glass. The front wheels on the Lerner machine were broken and the front axle bent. The local man's machine was damaged to some extent. The matter was reported to the police and as the men failed to agree who was guilty, they were notified to appear in police court. Judge Frank H. Foss continued the cases until Saturday morning of this week.

Henry Woodward was charged with intoxication and pleaded guilty. He paid an assessment of $17.26, including a $10 fine.

John Connelly pleaded guilty to the charge of intoxication and he was fined $5 and costs, amounting to $12.26.

Mrs. George McCracken, who has been visiting at Shawomet beach, has returned home.

Dr. Jules Jordan of Providence spent the week-end with his brother, Charles B. Jordan, at the latter's cottage at South Coventry lake. Sunday, Dr. Jordan played the organ and Charles Jordan sang, at the services in the Methodist church in Coventry. Dr. Jules Jordan is widely known as a composer.

Miss Grace Phillips is visiting in Floral Park, N. Y.

Miss Gertrude Phillips is at home, after spending six weeks at the Summer Normal School, New Haven.

Rev. Allen H. Gates, a former pastor in Scotland, who with Mrs. Gates is now engaged in missionary work in the Hawaiian Islands has written to friends in this section, telling about some of his experiences there. He states that the Methodists have acquired a strong foothold on the islands and have done fine work among the natives. He writes that the Hawaiian board had confined its efforts principally to the Hawaiian race which is fast dwindling and what is left is going over to Mormonism. The Methodists are working among the Japanese, Filipinos and Koreans.

A delightful outing was held at the pumping station grove, Sunday afternoon by Willimantic lodge, Les Artisans, when three hundred members ignored the unsettled weather conditions. St. Mary's parish was represented by Rev. E. A. Mathieu; a delegation of forty-five Artisans from Taftville, headed by Mr. Gauthier, the vice president of the Taftville Federation of French societies and president of Taftville lodge of Les Artisans, took a part in the festivities. Albany Leduc of Waterbury also attended and the ocers of the local ledge were present. Selections were rendered during the day by the local 12-piece "clam" band. Clam chowder was served at noon. In a baseball contest between the married and single men, the benedicts were trounced 18 to 17. The batteries for the singles were Salim Boisjoli and Charles Cote with Joe Vincelette and Omer Caya for the married playeds. Albert J. Piche was the "ump." Joseph Vincelette was chairman of the committee in charge.

The funeral of Thomas E. Lacey was held from the home of his sister, Mrs. John Sheridan of South Coventry Monday morning. At St. Mary's church in that place requiem high mass was sung at 9 o'clock by Rev. William H. Kennedy. The organist was Miss Celia Day. As the body was borne into the church Miss Day and Miss Annie Wellwood sang Abide With Me. At the offertory they sang Ave Maria with Some Sweet Day as a waiting hymn. The floral pieces were beautiful. Burial was in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery. The bearers were Edward Navin, Martin, William and John Clark. Funeral arrangements were in charge of Killourey Brothers.

The funeral services for Andrew A. Perkins who died Saturday at Fitch's Soldiers' home, Noroton, were held at the J. C. Lincoln company parlors on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The committal service at the grave in Willimantic cemetery was by Rev. A. Stanley Muirhead, pastor of the Methodist church.

Children and undesirables who are in the habit of frequenting railroad property in this vicinity are in danger of arrest from now on as the detective department of the New Haven railroad, with the co-operation of the local police officials, has started a drive to put a stop to trespassing on the property. The practice of sitting around the crossing tenders' shanties will also be done away with. Children will be carefully watched as their presence in the proximity of the railroad tracks is often the cause of much damage and sometimes the loss of life. Children were blamed for an incident which happened recently when a switch was thrown near the Bridge street crossing and a locomotive left the tracks and held up traffic for several hours. Monday afternoon three urchins from the Stone Row were brought to the police station and were questioned by a railroad policeman as to some mischief done recently in the local yard. The boys, all under 10, gave information which incriminated others. Their cases will come up before the juvenile court later.

"Not exactly dead, but just sleeping" is the condition of the Willimantic Roque club, according to information given out by some of its members. Contrary to a custom which has existed for many years, the annual meeting was not held Monday evening, the eve before the opening of the national tournament at Norwich. The Willimantic roque players were actively represented in the tournament for many years but interest has been lessening of late. Charles M. Thompson will represent the club, however, and Monday afternoon he spent several hours in practice at the grounds at Norwich. He will be an entrant in the second division.

Through his guardian, Samuel Seigal, of Columbia, William Skidelsky, also of Columbia, has brought civil action against Felix Meek, of Ash street, this city, to recover damages to the amount of $46. The case will be heard before Justice of the Peace Dean on September 3. The damage is on an unpaid note. A motorcycle owned by the defendant has been attached by City Sheriff Thomas J. Killourey.

The annual outing of the Putnam, Norwich and Willimantic Chambers of Commerce, scheduled for Thursday at the Connecticut Agricultural College grounds, has been indefinitely postponed. Clerks' day, however, will be observed and the stores will be closed all day Thursday.

Ralph, the 9-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. David Monty of 219 Main street, sustained injuries to his right foot recently while attempting to lift a length of railroad iron with a number of other boys, on the river bank, near the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company plant. The rail slipped and fell on his foot, crushing the toes badly. The injury was treated by a physician.

A touring car headed from this city toward New London, turned over on Franklin hill, Sunday evening. The machine was occupied by a man, his son and mother and the last named was cut and bruised about the face but the remainder of the party escaped injury. The woman was brought to the home of her sister in this city by a passing Willimantic machine.

Mrs. Ames E. Lewis and sons have returned, after a visit in East Hampton.

Miss Hope Merrill has entered the office of Doyle & Murphy, contractors.

Schectman and Morris Lotstein of Columbia are the defendants in a civil suit brought against them by H. A. Gillette, doing business under the firm name of the Boston Grain company. The case is returnable before Justice of the Peace Curtis Dean in September. Damages of $75 are claimed by the plaintiff for an unpaid bill. Attachments have been made.

Mrs. Dell Ryan recently entertained her brother, Lawrence Hanover of Springfield, Mass.

John A. Keefe and son, John W. Keefe, have returned home after spending a week in Boston and other places on interest.

Miss Medora Cardinal and Miss Gertrude Hinds are at Sound View for a vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dickie who are motoring in the White Mountains, have as guest, Mrs. Peter McIntosh of Lebanon avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. John Smith and son Russell and Mrs. Kate Draman of Attleboro, Mass., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Tripp of South Coventry.

Dr. William E. Cramm and family of Mansfield Center and L. W. Cramm of Hartford left Monday for an automobile trip in Massachusetts and New Hampshire.

Misses Mary and Nellie Day recently entertained John Flynn of Norwich and other cousins from Westerly, R. I., and Mt. Vernon, N. Y.

Mrs. Mary Britton has as guests Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Scott of Hartford.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Successful Welfare Work.

The Minute Tapioca company has recently purchased about 100 acres of land situated on the beautiful Miller's river, three-quarters of a mile from Orange, Mass., where the factory is located. This land has been made over at a cost of several thousand dollars into a picnic ground and recreation park for the benefit of its employes.

They call it the "Ranch" and it is a remarkably beautiful place for a project of this kind. A mountain stream has been dammed back to form a swimming pool a hundred yards wide and several hundred yards long, equipped with diving boards, rafts, etc., and with one end shallow for the use of children. Evergreens and birches cover the land in profusion, making it most attractive for picnic parties and holiday gatherings.

A clubhouse has been erected with bathhouses for men and women, a dance floor and a co-operative store where candy, ice cream, fruit and soft drinks can be bought.

On June 30th, 400 employes of Minute Tapioca company took part in the dedication of these grounds and they were turned over to the employes, who have formed an association with dues of $1 a year.

Children of Jazz, Melodramatic Comedy, at the Strand.

Theodore Kosloff, Ricardo Cortez, Robert Cain and Eileen Percy are featured players in the Paramount picture, Children of Jazz, which was shown for the first time with brilliant results at the Strand theatre last evening.

This is a delightful, modern, melodramatic comedy, having as its central figures the much discussed present-day miss and her hair-brained set of admirers, all devotees of jazz. Eileen Percy, in the principal feminine role of Babs Weston, comes in for an unusual amount of criticism from her flame, Richard Forestall, who rebukes her because she has become engaged to three men at the same time.

A novelty in the production is the contrast of the styles of today and those of 75 years ago brought about when Babs and several of her associates are stranded on a small island where Forestall's father lives, still clinging to the old dress and customs of 1850. Besides being unique, this scene is perhaps the most important of the picture, for on it the novel climax of the production hinges.

The supporting cast of Children of Jazz is especially strong and includes Irene Dalton, Alec. Francis, Frank Currier, Snitz Edwards and Lillian Drew. Jerome Storm directed the production, which is an adaptation of Harold Brighouse's play by Beulah Marie Dix.

A Mermaid comedy, Winter Has Come, and a News Weekly were the short subjects.

The Neil O'Brien Super Minstrels With Bert Swor.

One of the important engagements made this season by Neil O'Brien and Bert Swor for the Neil O'Brien minstrels, which will be seen at the Broadway theatre Thursday, Aug. 16, is Tex Hendrix, a very remarkable female impersonator.

Mr. Hendrix is the possessor of a phenomenal soprano voice, which is to be heard in the musical numbers in the "first part," and he will also be seen in the after-piece, playing an important role. He is said to be the owner of a remarkable wardrobe of feminine finery and during the performance will exhibit some of the newest fashions from Paris. Some of the other members of the company are "Sugarfoot" Gaffney, George Decker, Riley Rolly, Fred Miller, Billy Henderson, Tom West, J. C. Downing, Lester Haberkorn, Billy Taylor, Herman Williams, William McCarthy, C. L. Broome, Dick Merrimon, Dick Fleurnoy, George Daniels, L. V. Smith, Leo McWilliams, George Brocken and L. T. Spearman.

The two stars and managers of the organization, O'Brien and Swor, will both appear at all performances.

Seats are now on sale at the Broadway theatre.

Breed Theatre.

A new Cosmopolitan picture, The Love Piker, distributed by Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan, featuring Anita Stewart, was shown at the Breed theatre yesterday. It is a fine melodramatic love comedy and demonstrated its popularity in no uncertain degree.

The story tells of a lovers' romance which has its inception in the loss of a sable scarf, and in which romance two traffic policemen and a judge act as agents of Cupid. At first Martin Van Huisen, the man in the case, is a bit disgusted by the girl's superficiality, for Hope Warner believes that there is not another girl in the world quite like her.

Hope visits a building which Martin is constructing for her father and is saved from a fall from a scaffold by Van Huisen. Then and there they become the best of friends. But then there is Archie Pembroke, an ultra-smart, wealthy young man whom Hope's mother is determined to have as a son-in-law but whom Hope is not interested in. How Hope eventually sidetracks him for Van Huisen is entertaining, to say the least. Miss Stewart retains all of the personal charm and acting ability which have made her so popular on the screen.

Martin Van Huisen is splendidly played by Robert Fraser, while others in the supporting cast are William Norris, Carl Gerrard and Arthur Hoyt. The Love Piker was written by Frank R. Adams. Frances Marion adapted it for use on the screen, and E. Mason Hopper did the directing.

The Love Piker will be the feature attraction again today at the Breed theatre, and other pictures on the bill include the Pathe News and a Metro comedy.

The Mayor of this City has a thousand and one things depending on him—it's vitally important that he keep himself fit.

He ought to eat a big bowl of Mapl-Flake every morning for breakfast—for Mapl-Flake is full of the things that put both mind and body in trim for a big day's work.

"Eat More Wheat!"

Mapl-Flake is 25% Bran

Mapl-Flake is a whole wheat flake, with all the natural bran content of the wheat—enough to make it a harmless, natural laxative. Yet it's so appetising and full of flavor you forget about "taking bran" as a healthful duty; you eat it in Mapl-Flake as a pleasure.

Little grains of wheat,
Little flakes of iron
Make a dish of Mapl-Flake.
Beat it if you can!

In addition to the bran, there's all the nourishment of the "staff of life"—vitally valuable salts of iron for making good red blood; phosphorus and lime for sturdy bones, and the indispensable vitamin elements that transform food into force and action. It makes a perfect breakfast.

It's good to eat, and good for you. Be a "Mapl-Flaker."

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

Local building operations maintained the normal average for the week just closed and good progress was made on practically all of the projects under construction. There were several applications for building permits and six were granted by Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton. These permits include one for a two and a half story building on Boswell avenue, two garages and three additions the total value of the proposed work being about $7,000.

The most marked progress during the past week has been made on the New Palace theatre where workmen have been steadily at work on the interior. It will be but a short time before the work of installing the seats and the other interior fixtures will be started.

At the Eastern Connecticut Power Company plant in Montville where a $1,500,000 addition is being put on. Much work has been done during the past few weeks and the new building is taking on proportions rapidly. The contract is a large one and it is expected that it will be completed within a comparatively short time for such an undertaking.

Other local building operations made equally as good progress during the past week and several were completed. Several houses in the East Great Plain district have been brought almost to the completion stage.

The building permits granted by Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton during the past week are as follows:

To Herman M. Rosieue to add to the present building at 29 Oakridge street. The addition to be 16x21 feet of frame construction throughout with shingle roof and plaster walls.

To Cornelius J. Downes to erect a frame veranda to the present house at 42 Prospect street. The veranda will be 7x28 feet.

To Frank B. Decker to erect a new dwelling house on Boswell avenue. The house will be of frame construction with concrete and stone foundation. The building will be 24x32 feet and 2 1-2 stories high. The exterior finish will be in composition shingles and the interior finish will be in plaster and hard wood.

To Washburn and Healey to build for William Bendett at 65 Mechanic street a frame garage. The superstructure will rest on a concrete foundation. The walls will be of composition roofing.

To F. F. Sweeney to alter and add to the present building at 327 Central avenue for W. Strans. There will be two brick additions, one 6x25 and the other 5x18 feet, both one story high. There will be plate glass fronts.

To Homer J. Monty to erect a 2-car garage on Elmwood avenue for John Quinn. The garage will be 15x17 feet with concrete foundation, novelty siding and composition roof.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were 20 sales of real estate as compared to 22 sales for the corresponding week in 1922. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $81,400 and $75,750.

There were 3 sales of real estate in New London during the past week, one more than for the same week a year ago $8,050.

The State Situation

The record of building permits granted during the past week in the leading towns of the state says the Commercial Record parallels very closely the total amount expended a year ago in new construction, the aggregate amount indicated for the week, $668,539, comparing with $670,434 last year. The number of permits issued, however, was greater than a year ago, the total of 279 comparing with 205 last year. In the year 1921, 199 permits were granted and the cost of building amounted to $351,615.

NEW LONDON

The contract has been awarded to Thomas Severino for extensive alterations and an addition to the dwelling of Josephine H. Aimetti at 16 Center street. From plans by Architect Francis De Gauge, the addition will be 36x30 feet, two stories high. There will be new plumbing and electric wiring. The work will cost about $4,000.

George U. Dayton, Broad street, ext., has the contract for alterations to the Old Memorial Hospital at Pequot avenue, corner of Gardner avenue. The proposed work includes three dormer windows and interior changes.

J. E. Butler, 63 South street, has purchased a building lot at Oswegatchie Park, Waterford, from D. M. Buckley, 106 Main street, and J. F. Ryan, Hartford. Mr. Butler will erect a five-room bungalow on the property for himself.

Johan H. Jansen has a permit for a frame dwelling and garage which he is to erect for himself at 8 Crocker street. From private plans the house will be 22x26 feet, with all improvements. The cost of the house will be about $4,000 and the garage $300.

Applications for Building Permits

William N. Bellamy, garage, Riverview avenue $200.

Johan H. Jansen, dwelling and garage, 8 Crocker street, $4,500.

Abdo Facas, store front, 185 Main street, $400.

J. B. Baxter, frame dwelling, Nameaug avenue $6,000.

Josephine H. Aimetti, addition, 16 Center street, $4,000.

Old Memorial Hospital, alterations, Pequot avenue, $1,000.

Daniel Donovan, garage, Dennison avenue, $500.

Eleanor Sullivan, garage, Spring street, $300.

J. Krepmiewski, garage, 360 Main street, $800.

Number of permits issued for the week, 13; estimated cost of buildings, $19,200.

WATERFORD

D. M. Buckley, 106 Main street, and J. F. Ryan of Hartford are developing property in Waterford, at the head of the Niantic River. They are completing a five-room bungalow, 30x40 feet, and are furnishing three houses now on the property. Charles B. Watrous, Waterford, has the general contract for the new dwelling. The newly developed tract is known as Oswegatchie Park.

A survey is being made to the property at Oswegatchie Park, Waterford, in preparation for the installation there of a modern water system.

WILLIMANTIC

The selectmen will soon call for bids for the construction of a receiving vault at the new Willimantic cemetery.

FIRPO KNOCKS OUT WEINERT IN SECOND ROUND OF NO-DECISION BOUT

Philadelphia, Aug. 13.—Luis Angel Firpo, South American heavyweight, knocked out Charley Weinert of Newark, N. J., in the second round of an eight-round no-decision match tonight in National league ball park.

The knockout came after one minute and 49 seconds of the round had passed.

Firpo fought his winning battle in a businesslike manner. From the first bell until the time that his ponderous flat crashed upward into the Newark man's chin he was after him, swinging rights to the body, pushing lefts to the face. Weinert's blows were few and apparently unnoticed by the Argentine.

Once in the first round, with Weinert's long left poking his nose until the blood came, Firpo gave ground, but when he had drawn Weinert to the ropes he loosed the mighty right and the Newark man grunted dissatisfaction as it crashed against his body. Weinert attempted to box Firpo at times, but the South American bored inside the guard and drove his opponent to cover.

Weinert took his first count in the second round on his knees, but when he arose it was apparent that his strength had been sapped by the heavy blow that sent him down, and the right to the jaw that followed was only a finishing blow.

Firpo had a 24 pound weight advantage. He weighed 212 against Weinert at 188.

The Detail Fight.

Round One: Weinert brought blood to Firpo's nose with straight lefts and the South American gave way, clinching as they fell into the ropes. As they broke away Firpo launched two heavy right swings to the body and followed with a right to head and one to body. They were both winded when the bell sounded.

Round Two: The Argentine heavyweight rushed wildly toward his opponent and they clinched. Weinert landed a light left to the face and swung a right uppercut which glanced off Firpo's chin. A right uppercut connected with Weinert's chin and he fell to the canvas, arising at the count of nine. Firpo rushed again, swung his right and landed flush to the jaw, Weinert falling heavily to be counted out.

The Preliminaries.

Nate Goldman, product of the marine corps, outpointed Bobby Barrett, Philadelphia lightweight, over eight in the first eight round preliminary, in the opinion of a majority of newspapermen at the ringside.

Jeff Smith, Bayonne, N. J., middleweight, outpointed Andy "Kid" Palmer, Philadelphia, in eight rounds, in the opinion of the boxing writers.

Danny Kramer, the left-handed junior lightweight of San Francisco, was outpointed in the eight round semi-final by Alex Hart of Cleveland, in the opinion of the writers. Hart was five pounds heavier than the Californian. Kramer suffered from a cut over his left eye, made by a glancing right in the first round.

JOCKEY KILLED WHEN THROWN FROM MOUNT

Columbus, O., Aug. 13.—Jockey Albert Arvin of Louisville, Ky., riding Mont Ferri, owned by his father, J. G. Arvin, died a few minutes after the horse had fallen in the fifth race at Beulah park today.

Jockeys John Byrne of New York and Charles Eames were injured when their mounts, Edith K and Lou Jose, went down. Byrne was taken to a hospital. Eames was bruised severely.

ALBANY MAKES IT TWO STRAIGHT FROM HARTFORD

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 13—Albany made it two straight over Hartford today, winning by 9 to 7. Thirteen of the runs scored on homers. Malone of Hartford hit two home runs, each coming with two men on. Schinkel of Albany hit one with the bases filled and Hughes of Albany made one with two men on. Altenburg of Albany was banished for disputing a decision at third base. Score by innings:

SENATORS AND WHITE SOX DIVIDE TWIN HONORS

Washington, Aug. 13—Washington and Chicago divided a doubleheader today, the Nationals winning the opener, 5 to 4, while Chicago took the second game, 3 to 2.

Rice's heavy hitting gave Washington the edge in the first game. Sheely's home run in the eighth inning of the second contest with Mostil on base settled the issue, Washington failing one run short in a ninth inning rally. The scores:

INDIANS SPLIT EVEN WITH ATHLETICS

Philadelphia, Aug. 13— Cleveland split even on a double header with Philadelphia today winning the second game 8 to 6 after losing the opener 14 to 3. The victory gave the Indians three out of four on the series.

Speaker was the hero of the second game hitting a homer with two on base and driving Harris from the mound in the fourth.

In the opening game the home team pounded the ball hard, driving Coveleskie from the mound in less than two innings. Score:

EBBETS SUES TREASURER OF DODGERS FOR $20,000

New York, Aug. 10.—C. H. Ebbets, Jr., secretary of the Brooklyn National League baseball club, today filed suit for $20,000 damages in King's county, Brooklyn superior court against Stephen W. McKeever, treasurer of the club, the club was named co-defendant.

The suit is based on two alleged assaults committed on Ebbets by McKeever at Ebbets field, Brooklyn, on July 8 and 21. Ebbets charges that, without cause, McKeever struck him and called him vile names. He named the ball club co-defendant on the advice of his attorney, Meier Steinbrink of Brooklyn, he said.

Because of congestion on the court calendar the case will not come up for trial for about 14 months, Ebbets said.

Although Ebbets is listed as secretary of the Brooklyn club it is known that he has taken no active part in the organization's business affairs this season. McKeever said today he was prepared to fight the suit.

FAVORITES WIN EASILY IN FIRST ROUNDS

Casino Courts, Newport, R. I., Aug. 13—Seeded players and favorites with one exception, swept through their opposition in the early rounds of the seventh renewal of the men's invitation tennis tournament which opened on the Casino courts here today. The exception was S. Howard Voshell, Brooklyn player, ranked sixteenth in the United States last year, who was beaten by Phillip Vandeventer of Plainfield, N. J., in a long drawn out struggle, 10-8, 4-6, 8-6.

R. Norris Williams, 2nd, romped through his match with G. P. Gardiner, of Boston, winning 6-3, 6-4. Robert and Howard Kinsey, Pacific coast stars; Lucien Williams, former intercollegiate champion; Walter Wesbrook, of Detroit; Harvey Snodgrass and Manuel Alonso all entered the third round by early victories.

Of the three English college players entered only one, C. P. Kingsley, remains in the tournament at the end of the day's play. Amos Wilder and J. N. Lowry both being eliminated in the second round. B. I. C. Norton, South African player, easily disposed of W. W. Ingraham, of Harvard, 6-4, 6-0, and entered the third round. Wallace J. Bates and Phil Neer, California college net men, both won second round matches.

FOHL PEEVED AT REMARKS MADE BY PRESIDENT BALL

Chicago, Aug. 13.—Lee Fohl, deposed manager of the St. Louis Browns, conferred with President Ban Johnson of the American League today, presumably over the statement made by Phil Ball, president of the st Louis club, that Fohl was "dismissed for the good of the game."

Since his discharge, Fohl persistently has declared that he wanted an explanation from President Ball what he meant by the statement. Fohl believed it was a reflection on his character.

AMERICAN WOMEN TENNIS PLAYERS WIN FINAL MATCHES FROM BRITISH STARS

Forest Hills, N. Y., Aug. 13—(By the A. P.)—American women tennis players scored one of the most decisive victories in the history of international tennis today, when they won the remaining four matches in their contest with ranking women players of England for the trophy donated by Mrs. Hazel Hotchkiss Wightman of Boston. Their performance today made the score, America 7, England 0. America's victory was all the more sensational in that many leading experts had predicted that the British players would win easily.

The American team had won all of the three matches played for the cup on Saturday with the loss of but one set and needed but one of the four matches played today to win the trophy. Miss Eleanor Goss, a tall youngster, whose game has been one of the sensations of eastern tournaments this season, won the deciding match for America against Mrs. Geraldine Beamish, long a high ranking player in England. Miss Goss won 6-2, 0-6, 7-5.

The twisting service of the American girl, her short chop stroke on shots from forecourt and smashing drives employed from the baseline was more than the English woman could meet in the opening set.

In the second set, however, Mrs. Beamish with a queer underhanded service for which her game is noted, stood off the close attack of her young opponent and won at love. The third set after a sharp fight for every point went to Miss Goss at 7-5.

Miss Helen Wills, the Berkeley, California, girl, who won the opening match Saturday from Kathleen McKane, triumphed again today against Mrs. R. C. Clayton, the British hard-court champion in straight sets, 6-2, 6-3. Mrs. Clayton played a beautiful game from the baseline but it could hardly meet the sustained attack of the Californian. Powerful fore-hand drives, a fast service and excellent ground stroking enabled Miss Wills to keep the British woman at bay throughout the match.

Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, the American national champion won from Miss Kathleen McKane, 6-2, 6-3. The English champion was far off form.

Paired with Miss Wills, Mrs. Mallory defeated Mrs. Clayton and Mrs. Beamish in the doubles, 6-3, 6-2. The British pair started many rallies, but were almost invariably beaten by points by the spectacular work of Miss Wills. The California girl won a majority of the points in the match. Her volleying was superb and her service best of the four. A heavy wind blew across the courts throughout the matches, making play difficult.

WOMEN FAVORITES WIN IN FIRST ROUND OF TENNIS

Forest Hills, N. Y., Aug. 13—(By the A. P.)—Twenty four of the three score women tennis stars seeking the national singles crown held by Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory advanced today to the second round as a result of victories in the initial matches of the 1923 title tournament on the courts of the West Side Tennis club.

The start of the championship was overshadowed for the day by the concluding matches of the international series between America and Great Britain, but the few stars who did swing into action came through decisively.

Only two of the "top ten," Miss Leslie Bancroft, of Boston, No. 2, and Mrs. Helen Gilleaudeau Lockhorn, of Mamaroneck, N. Y., No. 7, took the courts. The former easily vanquished Miss Virginia Travell, of New York, 6-2, 6-0, while Mrs. Lockhorn was never in danger in winning from Mrs. J. S. Taylor, of Montclair, N. J., 6-3, 6-3.

Miss Bancroft, at the top of the second quarter, was the only "seeded" player to perform, the other seven—three American and four British stars—deferring their initial play until tomorrow because of participation in the international contests this afternoon.

Miss Mayme McDonald, of Seattle, the national clay court champion, sped through two love sets against Mrs. George R. Stanwix, of New York.

Mrs. M. B. Huff of Philadelphia, and Miss Helen Hooker, youthful Greenwich, Conn., star, were triumphant in two of the keenest battles of the afternoon. The former caused something of a surprise by outsteadying Mrs. Edward Raymond, of Hartsdale, N. Y., to win by 6-3, 5-7, 7-5, while Miss Hooker was extended to the limit to put out one of the few western contestants, Mrs. R. M. Leachman, of San Francisco, 6-3, 8-6, 6-4.

Mrs. Mallory, the titleholder, as well as the other women who competed today in the international matches, will swing into championship play tomorrow morning to make it possible to complete the second round in the afternoon.

GREAT BRITAIN HAS YACHT RACE CLINCHED

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Aug. 13—(By the A. P.)—Great Britain is going to have nothing to worry about when the last two heats in the British-American cup race for six metre yachts are sailed at Ryde this week, for the British yachts annexed the prize today by defeating the American boats, 24 points to 12 in the fourth heat. Today's scores added to those of the previous heats gave the British a total of 96 points, to 48 for the Americans. Coila II, owned by F. J. Stephens, won today's heat.

BIG MEET BETWEEN ENGLISH AND AMERICANS PLAN

New York, Aug. 13.—John T. McGovern, counselor of the American Olympic committee and a member of the advisory board of the intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America, returned from Europe today on the Olympic with the announcement that negotiations for a dual international meet between Great Britain and the United States to be held immediately after the Olympic games in 1924, were well under way. The meet would be held at Wembley stadium, London.

Preliminary plans have already been extended to the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States and the Intercollegiate A. A. A. to participate.

MGR. DONOVAN SAYS REPORT OF GAME EXAGGERATED

Sporting Editor:—In Monday morning's "Bulletin" there was a report on the Riverview-Corbin Red Sox game played at the State Hospital Saturday. This is another sad case of a baseball fan trying to report a baseball game, about which he knows very little. He reports that the Red Sox outhit the Riverview Club three to one. He evidently doesn't know a base hit from a 2.10 trot, and perhaps that is one of the reasons he didn't attend the horse races at the local course. He credits the Riverview victory to three scattered hits, Jack Clabby's sensational catch in left center and errors by the Red Sox at critical times. While Jack Clabby did make a sensational catch, there were other features throughout the game while this fan's mind was in the arms of Morpheus. The only earned run of the game was made in the fifth inning by the Riverview Club on Massey's two base blow to right and a single in the same territory by Hart. The Red Sox had scored in the first half of this inning on a two base wild heave by Mills and Snyder's single over second. In the 7th inning West crashed a hit off Berg's gloved hand and Preisser recovered same and in a hurry to get West at first, pegged wide and West pulled up at second; Walsh bunted along the third base line, West going to third and Walsh to first. On the first pitch Walsh stole second and scored behind West when the throw to second was bad. The Red Sox got their second run in the eighth on Snyders drive to center which Couillard misjudged, the error allowing Snyder to reach third, he scored on Huber's single to right center. Both West and Berg pitched air tight ball, each allowing six hits. West retired nine via the strikeout route, while Berg sent one over the same route. Both pitchers walked two men, while Berg had one wild pitch and hit one batsman.

This game ended the series between these two clubs, the Riverview winning two out of three. The scalp of the Red Sox is packed away in the same bag as that of the Taftville A. A.

PETER MANNING SHATTERS TOLEDO TRACK RECORD

Toledo, Ohio, Aug. 13.—(By the A. P.)—Peter Manning, world's champion trotter and pacer, on his record of 1.56¾ the fastest harness horse in training, this afternoon broke the track record of 1.55¼ made by Nedda last year, trotting the mile in 1.55¾, driven by Thomas W. Murphy.

The Newes Bee 2.08 pace, carrying a purse of $3,000, feature race of the card, went four heats before a decision was reached. Hal Bee took the first heat, Merriman the second and Miss Ellen Todd the third. Heat winners met in the fourth heat, which Miss Ellen Todd took in a furious driving finish in 2.05¾.

Just David, with Valentine up, took the 2.09 trot by winning all three heats. Diamond Axworthy was second and The Consequence third. The best time for the race was 2.06¼.

The 2.14 Arot went to Count Bugle, who also took all three heats. Zaquilla took second place and The Great Lullwater third.

Cigarette won the 2.15 pace by winning the first two heats.

JANOWSKI STILL LEADS MASTER CHESS PLAYERS

Lake Hopatcong, N. J., Aug. 13.—At the close of play today in the masters' tournament of the ninth American chess congress, Janowski of Paris was still leading with a score of 6 1-2 out of 7. He defeated Lasker of Chicago, while Marshall of New York, with a win against Kupchik of New York, remained second with 6-1. Schapiro of Columbia was defeated by Tenner of New York and dropped to third place with 5-2. Chajes, New York, tied Kupchik for fourth place at 4 1-2—2 1-2.

The results in today's seventh round were as follows: Kupchik, New York, 0; Marshall, New York, 1; Janowski, Paris, 1; Lasker, Chicago, 0; Schapiro, New York, 0; Tenner, New York, 1; Hodges, New York, 1-2; Morrison, Toronto, 1-2; Santasiere, New York, 1-2; Sournin, Washington, 1-2; Chajes, New York, 1; Bigelow, York, 0; Palmer, Toledo, 0; Black, Syracuse, 1.

In the eighth round tomorrow the pairings will be as follows: Marshall and Black, Bigelow and Palmer, Sournin and Chajes, Morrison and Santasiere, Tenner and Hodges, Lasker and Schapiro, and Kupchik and Janowski.

Midgets Beat Lake Street Juniors

The Midgets won an easy game from the Lake street juniors on Monday afternoon by a score of 16 to 13. Frank D'Artri who pitched for the Midgets had 11 strikeouts to his credit. The fielding of N. Felis and the hitting of Georgie Lamber also featured.

Army Team Beats Bryn Mawr

Narragansett Pier, R. I., Aug. 13.—The junior United States army team defeated Bryn Mawr, 8 to 2 in the second event at the Point Judith Polo club today for the twelve goal championship.

The army four scored in every period except the fourth, when Bryn Mawr showed its best defensive. Chas. Leonard and J. Converse scored for Bryn Mawr.

Tomorrow Point Judith will meet Penllyn in the third round of the championship.

FRENCH PRACTISING FOR TILT WITH AUSTRALIANS

Brookline, Mass., Aug. 13.—Showing no signs of fatigue from their long Sunday session on the Longwood Cricket Club's courts, the French Davis cup players resumed practice today and tried a number of experiments with a view to the opening matches against Australia on Thursday. Rene Lacoste, 18-year old school boy champion of France, and Jacques Brugnon who was a spare on the French international team of two years ago, have been definitely selected for the opening singles matches and drawings will be held Wednesday to determine their opponents.

Norwich A. C. Wins

Sunday afternoon at the Lake street playgrounds diamond the Norwich A. C. defeated the New London Axis, 7 to 2. Couture pitched good ball and two runs were scored off his delivery. The Burns boys of Norwich Town, and Scud Zeralski featured.

Baltic A. A. After Games

The Baltic A. A. has postponed the game that was to have been played at Taftville on Saturday and is looking for out of town games the coming week end.

Shugrue Gets Decision Over Brown.

New Haven, Aug. 13.—Johnny Shugrue of Waterbury won the referee's decision over Chic Brown of New Haven in a 12-round bout at Weiss park here tonight.

Fulton Signs With Brassecos.

Mobile, Ala., Aug. 13.—Charles Fulton, pitcher of the Mobile Southern association team, today signed with the Waterbury Eastern league club.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

Total stock sales, $12,700 shares.

Twenty industrials averaged 88.95, net loss .16; high 1923, 105.38, low 86.91.

Twenty railroads averaged 78.10, net loss .01; high 1923, 90.63, low 76.78.

MARKET WAS DULL.

New York, Aug. 13.—Prices moved within a narrow and irregular range in today's stock market, one of the dullest full day sessions this year. Trading was almost entirely a professional affair, with little disposition to extend commitments being shown by either the bear or bull operators.

The unfavorable week end political developments in Europe had no effect on stock prices but resulted in French francs dropping to a new low record for all time and brought about some sharp recessions in the French and Belgian bonds. French francs were quoted as low as 5.53 1-4 cents. Demand sterling held steady around $4.56 3-4 and Belgian francs advanced nearly 10 points on reports of a 500,000,000 franc loan from France to Belgium. German marks dropped from 35 to 27 cents a million, and then recovered to 33 cents. Widespread agitation for lower gasoline prices, which has resulted in state intervention in South Dakota, was held responsible for the liquidation of oil shares by frightened investors, but the recessions in active issues were held to a point or less. The unfavorable trade developments in the oil industry, arising from the heavy over-production of crude oil in the California fields, have been well discounted by the oil shares, some of which are reported to be in an over-sold condition. This probably accounts for the caution exercised by professional bear traders in extending their operations in this group.

U. S. Steel was in fairly good demand during the morning, touching 88 5-8, but it dropped back later to 88 3-4, where it was up 3-8 on the day. A flurry of buying also took place in Baldwin, which registered a similar net gain on the day. American Locomotive, Studebaker and American Can registered nominal losses.

Rubbers again yielded to pressure, U. S. Rubber common dropping 1 5-8 and the first preferred breaking three points to a new low record for the year. Kelly-Springfield yielded 1-4 on the day. Coppers were firm, Utah closing a point higher. July copper shipments, foreign and domestic, by American producers approximated 167,500,000 pounds as against 155,000,000 in June and 195,000,000 in May. Total shipments for the first seven months of the year approximate 1,335,000,000 pounds, the highest for any similar peace time shipments in the history of the industry.

Rails showed little change on the day.

Call money held at 4 3-4 per cent. all day. The time money market was dull, with plenty offered at 5 1-4 per cent. for all maturities. The demand for commercial paper was brisk, with the bulk of the prime names commanding 5 1-4 per cent. Out of town banks are the principal takers.

THE PRESIDENTIAL TERM.

New consideration to the need of relieving a president of the United States of the heavy burden he must bear in his office has been invited by the death of President Harding and the illness of former President Wilson, both of whom were stricken in the line of duty. The suggestion has been made by Senator Cummins of Iowa, president pro tempore of the senate, that the president's term in office should be limited to four or six years and that there should be no second term. The Iowa senator is quoted as having said that "the great responsibilities and tremendous strain of the office are more than any man can stand for eight years."

It is not a new suggestion, but the single term might well succeed in lightening some of the burdens of the office. The presidential office is concerned particularly with the administration of government, with the development of policies, with "patronage," which is the appointment to office of thousands of officials, high and low, and with politics. Patronage and politics are more or less associated, and it might be that the adoption of the single term would eliminate politics in a large measure and with it some of the difficulties of patronage.

Those who have hitherto argued the advisability of a single term have emphasized the advantage of having the president give his whole attention to the administration of government, without the complication of a more or less constant campaign for possible re-election. In 1912 the democrats went so far as to place a one-term plank in their platform, but following the election of Woodrow Wilson in that year, little more was heard of the matter except the chiding of republican senators who wanted to know when that proposed constitutional amendment was to be brought forward.

In view of the statement of Senator Cummins it may be expected that a resolution will be introduced in the next congress providing for a constitutional amendment for a single term for president. Of course, such an amendment would not and should not apply in case of a man who has succeeded to the presidency from the vice presidency because of the death or disability of a president. In such a case the vice president might have occupied the White House for only a few months or a week, in fact, before the nominating conventions. It would not be fair to bar him, perhaps the people's choice, from an elective term.

Whether the term of the president if a single-term amendment were adopted, should be for four years or for six is a question that merits consideration. Four years, it has been urged, might be too short a time for a good president to carry out his policies. On the other hand, it might well be too long for the country to stand a week or inefficient chief executive.

WINDHAM HOUSE.

When Connecticut college was founded, youngest of New England colleges, and the only college strictly for women in Connecticut, there was inspiration in its aim "to maintain with high standards, and to conduct with highest efficiency, a curriculum prepared to develop each woman's peculiar talents toward her most effective life work." Today, in its eighth year, the college at New London has justified the belief of its founders that it could, while not disregarding the best of academic tradition, hew out new lines and make offerings of studies particularly congenial for women and essential to their best development in their plainly revealed new and expanding opportunities.

The appeal of its programme has brought response from earnest, purposeful girls who make the quality of its student body unusually fine. Three hundred applicants for admission had to be turned sadly away this year because the college could not accommodate them. For the students now there and for those who will constitute the student body in the years to come, the women of Windham county reached the laudable determination several years ago to meet the college's need of more dormitory accommodations by raising the money to present a new dormitory, Windham house, to the college.

Since the effort to raise the fund was started three days before the war, the women have never ceased to work quietly and they have now renewed an active campaign to bring the work to a successful consummation. One most encouraging feature of the work has been the voluntary response which the needs of the college have brought forth, till the fund in hand now amounts to $26,000. Several of the donors have made their gifts as memorials, an example that the women hope many will follow. These memorial gifts include $5,000 from David Hale Fanning of Worcester for a drawing room and an additional gift for a student room, $3,500 from Mrs. Tourtellotte of Hartford for a suite of rooms, and $3,500 from Mrs. Marinda Butler Robinson in memory of Dr. Rienzi Robinson. There is a $5,000 gift to the college from Guilford Smith, which has also been added to the Windham House fund, and since the campaign has been renewed $5,000 has been accumulated in cash and pledges without solicitation.

It is the ambition of Windham county to be the first county in the state to give to the college a dormitory to stand on the banks of the Thames as a beacon light for all other counties to follow. It is an admirable aim that deserves and will no doubt achieve success. Whether it will come early lies with the individual citizens, the business men's organizations, and the large industrial enterprises, all of which are offered the opportunity of meeting an imperative need of the college, whose future will have so determinative a bearing upon the lives of hundreds of girls in this state.

The initial efforts of the women in the campaign to date should now find prompt and generous backing to the victory point for the honor of Windham county.

THE CHANGING SENATE.

The debate as to whether the direct election of United States senators has changed the senate as a body has been revived by the election of Magnus Johnson of Minnesota to the senate. Johnson is not so greatly different from some others who have won senatorships, but the election in which he won victory was nearly the only political event of importance at the time, and the attention of the country was concentrated upon it. His decisive and apparently easy victory over a popular republican already well known to the voters of his state has aroused speculation as to whether the farm bloc states are going to add a large number of these rough and ready men to the senate.

Like Brookhart, Frazier, Shipstead and others who have gathered about La Follette, Senator Johnson is a product of the tendency in some states to send a man to the senate with a definite mission in mind. He goes there not to join a representative deliberative assembly exercising great power for the benefit of the whole country, but to submit a special problem to the senate and to plead for its solution.

Being a United States senator is one thing but being a Minnesota senator in Washington for a special purpose is quite different. The senate is still dominated by men with the national view and the old ideals, but the next session may find them losing ground. There is even the suggestion that the La Follette group might hold the balance of power. Unless this tendency is checked, the senate will acquire a new character. It will be more like a stock or grain exchange trading floor. This unhappy condition can be prevented by the conservatives. If they can hold the senate in line until the people can take the true measure of the radical senators, the senate will right itself as a reflection of the common sense of the voters.

A GASOLINE WAR.

As far as the first reports of the "gasoline war" in South Dakota go, there is much yet to be learned whether the methods adopted will establish the fair price at which gasoline can be marketed with a reasonable profit for wholesaler and retailer. The Standard Oil company's price at filling stations was 26c per gallon when Governor McMaster started the "war" by demanding that the price be made 21c. To this the oil company responded that it would lose money at this price, and the governor countered this answer by directing the state highway supply department to sell at 16c, which is two cents above the wholesale price. Three days later the Standard Oil met the 16c price with the explanation that it had always "stood upon the principle that the customers who purchased its goods should never be compelled to pay a higher price than that maintained and fixed by any competitor."

Having refused to sell at 21c on the ground that it would lose money, the Standard Oil is in the position of accepting a 16c price by which it will lose more money. On its own statement that it could not sell at 21c without a loss, it is apparent that the company is sustaining a loss of something more than 5c a gallon on every gallon sold at 16c. This approaches the kind of cut-throat competition designed to drive a competitor out of the field, and in that case it is not a legitimate business method. Pure kindness to its customers is not usually discoverable in such price reductions by any large corporation dealing in essential commodities.

The facts that have developed so far fall far short of determining a fair retail price for gasoline in South Dakota. Future developments will be of interest and it remains to be seen whether Governor McMaster's method will succeed in proving that an extortionate price has been charged.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The soft answer might produce a little more hard coal.

German economists are figuring out how many grains of wheat are worth a bushel of paper marks.

A third party movement is often designed not so much to organize a new political programme but to disorganize an old one.

The man on the corner says: Those who know President Coolidge do not expect him to make the mistake of talking too much.

Just at the moment the presidential boom of a widely advertised automobile manufacturer seems bumping to a halt on four flat tires.

Just because two swimmers have crossed the English channel this year, the feat is in no danger of becoming a popular summer diversion.

Mexicans, Italians, Japanese, Germans and others have objected to being cast for villains in American photoplays. Will Hays might order an insert showing them taking out naturalization papers so as to be good Americans.

PERVASIVE FAMILY

"I saw that Butterly fellow downtown today," reported the man who thought it one's duty to brighten the dinner table with glittering bits of information. "My, but he's grown fat."

"Which Butterly?" inquired the girl to whom all men were immensely interesting.

"It was Ted Butterly, wasn't it?" asked the gentleman who always acted as though he were the main source of wisdom.

"There must be as many Butterlys on earth as there are Yarps down home!" asserted the temporary visitor understandingly. "You never saw anything like that Yarp family! Why, if they ever tried extracting the Yarps from that town it would look like a sieve and all the best residence streets would resemble that picture where the lions are prowling alone by moonlight through the desolate ruins of something or other—you've seen it!

"The oldest inhabitant remembers his father telling about the time when the town was entirely Yarpless, and even after the original Yarp appeared he don't make much of a splash—but when his eight sons and two daughters grew up and married and began to buy baby cabs folks sat up with a jerk and took notice. It was exactly as though some power above with giant pepper pot had shaken a cloud of Yarps on to the town.

"Nobody could cash a check, order a pound of tomatoes, buy a new dress, build a house or ask if there was any mail without negotiating with a Yarp. They were all-pervasive. It was Mrs. Henry Yarp who managed all the church suppers and Mrs. Thomas Yarp who was so interested in uplifting the schools. Tillie Yarp taught basket weaving, Melanie Yarp developed a voice and went abroad for it, Edgar Yarp ran the Daily Clarion. Yarp brothers bought the sash and blind factory, another brother owned the hotel and Clarence Yarp started an opposition bank.

"The first name anyone in town wrote down when she was making out a list for a party was Yarp and in all its ramifications it was likely to run over the page. Whenever any important visitor came to town and had to be met by a committee with plug hats a Yarp invariably was chairman of that committee and carried off the visitor to one of the Yarp mansions, which had sprung up like radish seeds on all the good streets.

"Why, once I was up at the depot at 5 o'clock in the afternoon on a cold, rainy day with no train due for three hours and not a soul in sight. Even the station master had run out to get a shave and folks down Main street were shutting up early and going home to supper because nobody was around, the weather being so bad. It was so lonesome up there that it made you regret your past life. So when the baggageman came along to feed a crate of hens waiting for the 8 o'clock train I was glad to see him.

"'Hello, Jim,' I said. 'Say, I'll betcha a dollar that a Yarp shows his head here inside of five minutes.' You can imagine how bad the day was and how desolate the scene when I tell you that the baggageman, who knew all about the omnipresence of the Yarps, said he'd take me and never batted an eye. He said he had good use for a dollar right then.

"He went on inside and when he came out I had three Yarps to show him. Young Tom Yarp, who had been up to the next town to see his girl, had caught the slow freight back, which crosses our line at the siding above the depot, and just as he came along, dusting his hands, Alonzo Yarp rattled up in the express wagon with a lot of unexpected boxes, while Dr. Ellis Yarp's sedan broke down just as he crossed the tracks and he had to get out to fix it. The baggageman declared he'd be shot dead before he'd ever pay me the $3 due me.

"We're sort of spreading out now with the third generation of Yarps—they are in congress, the state legislature and everybody's affairs and the way the girls act you'd think marriage wasn't legal any more unless the other party was a Yarp! Not that I care, but when a girl like Chryssie Creamer throws down a perfectly fine man—I am naming no names—for the sake of that rich shrimp, Eugene Yarp——"

"I've got it!" cried the man who had introduced the subject of the Butterlys and who had not been listening at all to what was being said. "It was Augustus Butterly whom I met downtown today! That's who it was!"

"Well, what of it!" growled the temporary visitor who had just remembered a lot of things he could still tell about the Yarps if he had a chance.—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Laurel Hill Work.

Mr. Editor: With your permission I would like to express my opinion by answering the last article published under various matters in the Norwich Morning Bulletin, under date of Aug. 13th, 1923, which mentioned the vexing delay of the roadbuilding job on Laurel Hill avenue, in which you suggest that it would be to the city's advantage to put on a night shift and thereby hurry the work to completion. This would be, in my opinion, a great help, but expensive to the taxpayers, which I do not favor when not necessary, for I believe our taxes are now high enough. But I would suggest that the present administration finish one job before they begin another and not do as they have done on Laurel Hill avenue, by taking the men off of that job and leaving it fenced off so we cannot use it for months and thereby compel us to use the most dangerous detour in the state, and have their men tear up and repair Broadway, Rose Place and West Main street with the men that should be at work on Laurel Hill avenue.

Yours respectfully,
GEORGE E. PITCHER.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

John Dewey, who will probably be invited to reorganize the Turkish educational system, as he did the educational system of China some years ago, is a professor in Columbia University, and, in some respects the most famous of contemporary American writers on philosophy and education, field of research in which he has published books that have an international circulation. Professor Dewey is a Vermonter, trained at the University of Vermont and at Johns Hopkins University, who began his teaching career at the University of Michigan, then had a place on the faculty of the University of Minnesota, and then was called to the University of Chicago to be director of the department of education, a position which he held for two years, during which he collaborated with Mrs. Emmons Blaine in her original and lavishly-backed experimental schools. Called to Columbia university in 1904, Professor Dewey soon came to be one of the outstanding figures connected with that institution.

Stories That Recall Others

The Eternal Triangle

Geneva, three years old, loves her little brother, Eugene, four months old. So, too, does Auntie, and Geneva also loves Auntie. Another eternal triangle.

"Oh, you sweet thing!" Auntie called again and again to the baby brother at the other side of the room. Each time he cooed and squealed, inviting more loving remarks.

Finally Geneva turned from her play on the floor.

"I don't want you to talk with him that way. He's not a sweet thing, either; he just cries all the time."

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

Mecca's Pilgrims.

"The surprising action of the government of Egypt, a Mohammedan country, in stopping almost at their goal thousands of its citizens on pilgrimage to Mecca, draws attention to this annual religious event which attracts vast crowds of men and women from all parts of the world," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"As all roads led to great and splendid Rome two millenniums ago, now they lead to the rather tawdry capital of the Hedjaz, set down in a bare, dusty, desert-rimmed valley of Western Arabia. More than 200,000,000 people cherish the hope—and indeed feel it to be their solemn religious duty—to travel at least once the dusty road to the holy center of their faith. Probably 200,000 of them make the trip annually, about one-half at one time during the period of the Hadj, or 'great pilgrimage,' in the last month of the Mohammedan year. It is this great pilgrimage that has been in progress during July.

"Though pilgrims on the Hadj descend upon Mecca from every quarter of the globe, they converge into some half dozen large caravans along as many routes. For centuries the two principal groups have been those from Damascus and Cairo. In some ways the latter has been the most important because it has carried the black brocade, a gift from the faithful in Egypt, which is renewed each year as the covering for the little square, hut-like Kaaba, Islam's holiest shrine. The recalling of the Egyptian caravan from Jidda, the port of Mecca, because the king of the Hedjaz would not permit a medical mission to accompany the pilgrims, has many potentialities, and may even mean that the square stone house to which all Mohammedan prayers are directed, may have to put up with its old covering for another season.

"The fact that the presence of a medical mission was the cause of trouble at Jidda, emphasizes a condition that aroused European interest years ago and caused steps to be taken to prevent Mecca's becoming a menace to the rest of the world. Pilgrims from dozens of countries and thousands of communities, many no doubt harboring the germs of dangerous diseases, congregate in a city ill-equipped to care for them, and during a portion of the religious observances occupy crowded camps in a little desert valley absolutely devoid of sanitary arrangements. There was always likelihood that pilgrims returning from such surroundings would carry with them epidemic diseases, especially cholera, to eastern Europe, and to European colonies in North Africa and Asia. An international conference called to consider the matter in Paris in 1894 arranged for the inspection of pilgrims at ports of departure, detention when necessary, and supervision of pilgrim ships and caravans.

"The thousands of pilgrims who reach Mecca over the several routes to take part in the annual Hadj observances, go through with ceremonies that seem rather trifling to westerners. Before reaching Mecca they prepare for what might very literally be called 'the exercises' by bathing repeatedly and donning the ceremonial garb; two pieces of seamless cloth wrapped about them in a prescribed way. On reaching the holy city they go to the black-draped Kaaba, kiss the 'Black Stone' set in its wall, and then circle the structure seven times, three times running and four times walking. They must next run up and down some nearby sacred hills. On another day the pilgrims take a half-day's journey to Mt. Arafat where the most important feature of the ceremonies is observed; they must stand on the little hill throughout the afternoon and repeat prayers and texts. The following day they return toward Mecca but stop at the village of Mina to sacrifice a sheep, goat or camel. A very important part of the observances at Mina is the casting of seven stones at each of several cairns.

"The pilgrims may then shave and cut their nails, for the prescribed ceremonies of the pilgrimage are at an end. The desire of a lifetime has been fulfilled. The devotee who has survived sickness, fatigue and robbers en route, and unsanitary conditions in the city and camps, is now considered to be as sinless as when he was born. If he successfully withstands the hardships of the return journey he appears among his co-religionists wearing the special green turban which proclaims that he has journeyed to the sacred shrine. He bears the honorable title 'Hadji,' 'he who has performed the Hadj,' and is looked up to and envied by all Moslems who have not yet made the journey to the holy city."

SAW SMOKE, THOUGHT GARAGE WAS ON FIRE

Someone who saw smoke apparently issuing from a garage in the rear of No. 110 North Main street sent in a telephone call to the fire department a few minutes after 8 o'clock Monday night. The firemen found upon arrival that the smoke was coming from a small bonfire in front of the garage.

Edward Houston, who occupies the garage had just cleaned out the garage and was burning the rubbish in front of the garage doors.

Has Old Norwich Pictures.

A local man who collects pictures of Norwich of the old days has procured two pictures of Norwich back in the late 80's. One of them shows a picture of the bank corner, the New York Hat store and McGrory's saloon standing where the Norwich Savings Society now is located. The pictures were taken just after the death of President Garfield and in the store windows are seen portraits of the dead president, while flags are shown at half-mast and buildings along the street draped with black bunting in memory of the president.

WILLIMANTIC COUNCIL FIXES SALARIES OF POLICE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, Aug. 13.—At the monthly meeting of the board of aldermen tonight Attorney Thomas J. Kelly spoke in behalf of the Hartford-Willimantic Blue Line Jitney Inc., asking that in the advent of the enactment of new parking regulations the firm be allowed to retain the same privileges which it is now enjoying, namely, unrestricted parking time on Railroad street. Attorney Kelly also spoke in regard to exempting the Salvation Army from the payment of taxes in conformity with other cities.

The water committee will investigate the matter of installing city water on Card street at the request of the residents of that thoroughfare. The light committee were given power to act in a matter brought forth by the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company who have offered to install new street lights of a higher candle power to replace the old ones. Nine sidewalk applications were read, drainlayers' licenses were granted to M. F. Fryer, Welsh and McCarthy and H. H. Lyman.

Alderman Jackson introduced a resolution authorizing and instructing the police committe to conduct a complete investigation of the police court and report. The resolution was adopted. A resolution expressing grief on the recent death of President Warren G. Harding was unanimously adopted by a rising vote. Another resolution on the death of Jeremiah Lyon, late superintendent of sewers, was adopted. The street superintendent will fill the position of sewer superintendent at a weekly compensation of $10 until a definite appointment is made. The salaries of the police department were fixed at $40 per week for captain, $35 for lieutenant and $30 for the patrolman to go into effect immediately. The chief of the department now receives $50 per week.

The following settlements were voted on claims: John Sullivan, $400 on a $1000 claim; Mrs. M. E. Baldwin, $50 on a $75 claim, Mrs. Bridget Dennehy, $75 on a $100 claim.

Mayor Charles A. Gates made the following appointments as officials of the Willimantic police court late on Monday evening: Allan McArthur, who has been acting chief, was appointed chief; Thomas F. Grady, who has been acting as lieutenant, was assigned captain and Officer Frank McLean was advanced the position as lieutenant.

UNION OFFICIAL HERE TO ASSIST STRIKE NEGOTIATIONS

Following a strike that was declared last week at the factory of Kadish & Levy, manufacturers of men's and youths' pants, in the Majestic building on Water street, a representative of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, J. Kleinholz, has arrived here from New York, to assist the local union in negotiations. So far these have not been successful in arranging for the return to work of the force of about 30 employes who were laid off several weeks ago.

According to the union officials the men have been offered a return work at a reduction of 7½ per cent in wages and under working conditions which the unions are trying to eliminate all over the country. The local union has the support of the national organization in their resistance to accepting employment under these conditions.

WORDS OF PRAISE FOR STATE HOSPITAL

Dr. and Mrs. George H. Kirby and daughter Janet were recent guests of Dr. and Mrs. Franklin S. Wilcox of the Norwich State Hospital. After a critical examination and inspection of the local institution Dr. Kirby complimented Dr. Wilcox on the high standards of the institution, stating that the hospital is "very much on the map." He said that in every respect the Norwich hospital compared favorably with the best institutions of similar character in the country.

Dr. Kirby is the director of the Psychiatric Institute, Ward's Island, New York, which institution is devoted to post graduate courses for alienists and pyschiartrists, also in research work in mental and nervous diseases. Dr. Kirby has made surveys of many institutions in this country and his opinion of the Norwich institution is greatly valued.

In the City Court.

In the city court Monday Judge Libby fined one man charged with breach of the peace $3 even. J. Brewer appeared on an intoxication charge and was given a jail sentence of 10 days for the offense, plus a jail sentence of 10 days for a previous offense and was taken to the jail to stay over Labor Day.

An old couple, charged with fighting in their home, had their case nolled and received some good advice. A young man charged with gambling with dice was put on probation for six months and Herman Baker, 19, colored, charged with carrying a revolver, had his case nolled, the weapon being confiscated. A boy, aged 17, charged with drinking, was placed on probation for six months to report to the probation officer every Saturday.

Four young men who engaged in throwing pie in a local restaurant paid $5 each and received some good advice, and a man charged with making trouble at his home was placed on probation for six months.

Five out of town men paid fines and costs for intoxication and one man was given a sentence of five days for being drunk, the sentence being suspended as he promised to change his manner of living. Court adjourned after an automobile case had been continued until August 27th.

ONE MAN TROLLEY HITS TOURING CAR

The Buick touring car owned and driven by Nathan Gilman of Bozrahville was struck by a one man trolley operated by Motorman Bunn Monday afternoon about 2.30 o'clock near the second bridge on West Main street.

Mr. Gilman came out of Falls avenue just ahead of the trolley and proceeded east on West Main street. Near the second bridge he turned sharp to the left, without warning to pass a wagon which was ahead, and the trolley which was only a few feet behind him struck the running board of the auto before it could be stopped.

The trolley was not damaged but the auto suffered a broken running board and bent rear fender. Both were going slow when the accident happened and it was apparently unavoidable.

NAMED ASSISTANT CASHIER AT MERCHANTS' BANK

The resignation of Arthur E. Story as assistant cashier of the Merchants National bank was tendered Monday and accepted with sincere regrets at a meeting of the borad of directors.

At the meeting of the directors Harry F. Fowers of the Thames National bank was elected to fill the place of Mr. Story as assistant cashier at the Merchants National bank. News of his selection for this position is pleasing to his many friends.

CHARGES HUSBAND WITH HABITUAL INTEMPERANCE

On grounds of habitual intemperance, Mrs. Annie M. Carbray of this city has brought suit for divorce from her husband, John A. Carbray, also of Norwich. The papers in the divorce action were filed Monday with the clerk of the superior court in this city.

The plaintiff's maiden name was Anna M. Weltin and she married Carbray April 29, 1920. In addition to the divorce Mrs. Carbray asks permission to resume her maiden name.

RESIGNS AS BOOKKEEPER AT CHELSEA BANK

After being connected with the Chelsea Savings bank for a number of years, Henry D. Johnson has tendered his resignation, to take effect Aug. 31, and at the regular meeting of the board of directors held Monday noon at the bank the resignation was accepted. Mr. Johnson entered the bank as clerk some years ago and had reached the position of head bookkeeper. He expects to enjoy a vacation, after which he is to enter another field of business.

RENTED BIKE BUT FAILED TO RETURN IT

Andrew Przehop of Greeneville reported Monday night that his bicycle had been stolen Sunday. An unknown party offered Przehop twenty-five cents for a sightseeing ride and the Przehop boy consented. When the stranger did not return with the bicycle he made an investigation but could find no trace of the missing bicycle. The bicycle was a Harding-DeLux make, painted blue and gray and was equipped with a black light and red battery.

ALEXANDER M. PASNIK HOME FROM EUROPEAN TRIP

I'm glad to be back, said Alexander M. Pasnik of No. 79 Williams street, who has just arrived home from an extensive tour to European countries. I had a very pleasant trip and my visit to my sick father did him a world of good, added Mr. Pasnik.

Mr. Pasnik sailed from New York June 23rd on the Berengaria and landed at Cherbourg. He visited France, England, Germany, Austria, Holland, Czecho-Slovakia and Poland. Mr. Pasnik said he found conditions good in all the countries he visited. Speaking of his visit to Germany Mr. Pasnik said:

No one seems to be anxious to save money for the money grows less in value every day. The consequence is that the people, instead of being thrifty, are becoming spendthrifts. Many of the stores close their doors rather than part with their merchandise as the proprietors find that, owing to the drop in the value of the mark, they are unable to replenish their stocks with the money received for sales.

There is no more republic in Germany now than there was in Russia under the reign of the czar. No non-German can become a citizen of Germany, even though he was born in Germany of non-German parents. Mr. Pasnik said that among the things that impressed him was the way the hotel registers are watched. As soon as a traveler registers at a hotel his address and nationality are checked up and if he proves to be a non-German he has 80 per cent added to his hotel bill.

Asked how the Germans feel toward Americans Mr. Pasnik said: They are playing politics and will dig you in the back if they get the chance. It is worth a man's life to tell them he is a Frenchman. The hatred toward the French is very strong.

Mr. Pasnik said he had no trouble getting about Germany. I took a train at Berlin, said Mr. Pasnik, secured a sleeper and leaving Berlin at 8 P. M. arrived in Poland at 8.30 the following morning. The price of the sleeper was 93,000 marks, which amounted to nine and a half cents in American currency at the rate of exchange at that time or four and a half cents in American currency at the present exchange rate. The price of the railroad ticket was 110,000 which was 11 cents in American currency. That was for first class passage and the distance is about 449 miles. However, I'd rather ride in America and pay the price.

I traveled in France a good deal and saw a number of the war ruins, many of which are not yet replaced. I found the feeling in France towards Germany none too good. I could see they have good reason for their feeling towards the Germans. On a train I met a French woman whose house had been shelled by the Germans, and who lost her husband in the war. Her claim for damage to her house she placed $1200. The government comprised on the claim and she was paid but $400. Passing through the Ruhr I saw a great many of the colored soldiers the French have in their army of occupation.

Reaching Poland Mr. Pasnik went to Bendzin where his father, Cicel Pasnik resides. Mr. Pasnik said that his father had suffered a shock and that his face had become disfigured but that much of the disfiguration disappeared from the joy his father experienced in seeing him once again.

Speaking of the food situation in Germany Mr. Pasnik said he saw no starvation. There is plenty of food for those who have the price and nearly all can buy what they want as the workmen are paid in marks according to the fluctuations of the exchange rate. In Austria conditions are very good, he said. Considering the conditions as they were three years ago there has been a very marked improvement in the country since the mark became stabilized.

From observation it seems to me that there are strong efforts being made on the part of the Germans to combine with the Russian government. I have never seen so many Russians in Berlin as I saw on this trip. The German people to who I spoke, asking them if it is true that the Germans want to combine with Russia they said that would be their only salvation in the future. I think otherwise, for from what I heard from people coming in from Russia, it would mean the ruination of Europe.

I rode from Paris to Amsterdam in an aeroplane. When I got out of the air machine I said "never again." There were three women among the nine passengers on the airship and I must admit that they were better travelers than the men. I could have continued in the aeroplane all the way to Berlin but I had had enough air and went by train.

I was in Paris the day President Harding died. Owing to the difference in time it was the following morning before we knew of his death. The Paris offices of the New York Herald and the Chicago Tribune published extras carrying the sad news of the President's sudden passing.

Speaking of his trip from New York to Cherbourg Mr. Pasnik said he had an unexpected streak of luck for he won a $674 pool on the way across. He attended a masquerade dance on board ship and appeared dressed like a tramp. He won the first prize, a bottle of wine.

This makes the fourth trip Mr. Pasnik has made to Europe since he originally came to the United States.

MRS. HICKEY SO WEAK COULD HARDLY STAND

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health

Worcester, Mass. — "I had some trouble caused by a female weakness and got so run-down and weak from it that I could hardly stand or walk across the floor. The doctor gave me all kinds of pills, but nothing helped me. I happened to meet a friend who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, so I thought I would try it. After taking it a week I began to improve, and now I feel fine and am doing all of my housework, including washing, sewing and house cleaning. I have recommended your medicine to my friends, and I am willing for you to use this letter as a testimonial, as I would like to help any one suffering the way I did from such a weakness."—Mrs. DELIA HICKEY, 4 S. Ludlow St., Worcester, Mass.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women" will be sent you free upon request. Write to The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. This book contains valuable information.

Don't Get Bald Cuticura Does Much To Prevent It

Dandruff, itching and scalp irritation point to an unhealthy condition of the scalp which leads to falling hair and premature baldness. Frequent shampoos with Cuticura Soap do much to prevent such a condition, especially if preceded by a gentle anointing with Cuticura Ointment.

Samples Free by Mail. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept 21K, Malden 48, Mass." Sold everywhere. Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. "Cuticura Soap shaves without mug."

Needed at Dances And the Sea Shore

(Aids to Beauty)

Here is a home treatment for removing hairs that is quick, painless and inexpensive: With some powdered delatone and water make enough paste to thickly cover the objectionable hairs, apply and after 3 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and it will be left soft, clear and hairless. This treatment will not mar the skin, but to avoid disappointment, be careful to get real delatone. Mix fresh as wanted.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

The First Rhode Island Light Artillery Veterans' Association held a reunion at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Amos H. Armington, on Main street, Monday. The veterans came from Providence by automobile to the G. A. R. hall where the annual business meeting was held. All the officers of the past year were reelected. They are: President, Amos H. Armington, of Danielson; vice presidents, William D. Jordan of Riverside, R. I.; Calvin L. Macomber of Lynn Haven, Fla., and Leander Baker of Providence, R. I.; secretary and treasurer, Charles T. Straight, of Pawtucket, R. I. chaplain, Charles H. Payne of Brooklyn, N. Y.; executive committee, William D. Jordan, Charles H. Bowden, and Leander Baker. There were six deaths reported during the past year, and there are now living, as far as is known, 29 members of the association. The veterans present at the meeting were Amos H. Armington, Charles H. Bowden, Edward Howard, William Jordan, William Chaplin, Charles H. Panis, these are members of the original First Rhode Island Light Artillery. Charles T. Straight and O. H Bolcam were also present at the reunion. These two men were at first members of another company, but later were transferred to the First Rhode Island Light Artillery.

A unanimous vote of thanks was accorded Mr. and Mrs. Armington for their hospitality in the use of their home for the reunion. In the afternoon the veterans went to Alexanders' Lake to enjoy a dinner and picnic.

It was exactly 62 years ago that this company was called into service it participated in the battle of Gettysburg and some of the other famous battles of the Civil War.

Charles W. Russell was presented before Judge Fenner Woodward Monday morning and fined $25 and costs of $11.58. Russell was driving his car at an excessive rate of speed when he was arrested by State Policeman Stephens. This is the third case of speeding that has come up in the town court in the past two days.

The Capt. Put Engine Company was called to the Connecticut Company's power plant at Dyer Dam, about two miles south of the borough shortly after 2 o'clock to extinguish a fire that was eating up a big pile of tie and saw dust threatening to spread to a nearby coal pile and the plant itself.

When the fire was discovered by he men at the power station they attempted to put it out with a small hand hose and fire extinguishers. The blaze had gained too much headway, however, so a call was sent in for the engine company. After a hard fight the fire was subdued and the truck returned to Danielson at 4.10. Cassius A. Hamilton was acting chief due to the absence of Chief Woodward.

Rev. Frewer Tillotson Ledwith, M. S. of La Salette seminary, Hartford, from Tuesday to Sunday of this week to conduct a mission for the Catholics of the vicinity. Rev. Ledwith's services are to be delivered in the new church, Brooklyn and many people from this section are planning to hear him speak. All the services are public.

PUTNAM

Sergeant George Laird of the Putnam police department, is having two weeks' vacation. With his family he has gone to Fall River and New Bedford to visit relatives. Patrolman Ryan has one more week. During the absence of these two members of the force, Specials Origenne Touchette and Ernest Chandler, are doing night duty.

Two minor automobile accidents were reported to the police over Sunday, the damage altogether not amounting to $100. The cars that collided were driven by Francis Lepine and Alvin Jarvis, who came together at the corner of Main and Providence streets, and by Isadore Beauregard and Miss Myrtice Barnett, who collided on Main street near Bugbee corner.

Francis Connors of Detroit is spending his vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Connors.

Malcolm M. Willey left Monday morning to hike to Sag Harbor. He will return the middle of the week.

People using the city dump are again getting careless and unloading refuse outside the gate. The dumping ground is open only three days a week—Monday, Wednesday and Friday. Some people do not keep this in mind and getting to the place on the wrong day take a chance and leave their loads outside.

Many explosions as blasts were set off where stone is being taken out for road construction on the piece of state highway between Putnam and Pomfret, were heard during Sunday. While construction itself ceases on the seventh day of the week, in order to keep the stone crusher busy the gang in this department works on Sunday. Some years ago an attempt was made to enforce the blue laws in Putnam and not a newspaper was allowed sold. Times have changed and the legislature has seen fit to enact laws that somewhat modify the old blue laws and certain stores may now be opened and certain sports under certain conditions engaged in. One Monday morning an entire section gang of the N. Y., N. H. & H. railroad was brought into court for cutting brush on the Sabbath day, outside the city limits, in the vicinity of the town farm. It was decided that this was not a work of necessity. The following Sunday the section workers were put on bridge construction work in the heart of the city where the noise was kept up all day long. This, however, being a work of necessity, nothing could be done about it.

In the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends from Putnam, Moosup and nearby towns, Miss Aldea Buteault, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Agenes Bibeault, Woodstock avenue, was united in marriage at St. Mary's church, Monday morning at 9 o'clock by Rev. W. Arthur Routhier, with Henry Trudeau, son of Mrs. Carl Trudeau of Moosup. The attendants were Mrs. Trudeau, mother of the bridegroom and Miss Jeanette Osier. The bride wore a gown of white satin and carried a large bouquet of tea roses; the bridesmaid also wore white and carried pink roses. Following the mass, a reception at the home of the bride's parents was attended by nearly 60 guests. Many beautiful and useful presents were received. During the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Trudeau left for a wedding trip through the White mountains. Upon their return they will make their home in Moosup.

Joseph Dumas, who runs a pool room on Providence street, was given a hearing before Captain of Police William Jarvis in the city court room, Monday morning, to show cause why his pool room license should not be revoked. He was represented by Attorney A. S. Macdonald. It was a matter of court record that Dumas had twice been convicted of violation of the liquor law. No other evidence was given. In order that Dumas may have a reasonable time to dispose of his business, or to sell his pool tables, he was allowed to continue in business as a pool room until the 15th of September. Under the statute pool rooms may be licensed by the chief of police of cities to any suitable person, which license the same authority is given power to revoke, for cause.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

The Little White Snake.

When the prince's birthday party was over, which I told you about in the last story, Little Jack Rabbit and his friend, the good Duck, took Little Jack Rabbit on his back and swam up the brook to find the King of the Fairies. After a while, for it took longer to swim up stream than it did down, he came to the place where the King of the Fairies lived. There he stood by the bank waiting for them.

"We have conquered the dreadful ogre," shouted Little Jack Rabbit. "I blew him away with my magic whistle."

"Ha, ha!" laughed the Fairy King, "you are like a boy named David who slew a giant with a pebble from his sling."

After that the King of the Fairies called together all his subjects and told them what a great deed Little Jack Rabbit had performed and they were delighted for the dreadful ogre had often frightened them in the wood and many a time they had been forced to hide under toadstools and in flowers called Jack-in-the-pulpit.

Well, after a while, Little Jack Rabbit said goodbye to everybody and hopped off once more upon his journey of adventure and when he had gone for maybe thirteen miles and his boots were all dusty, he turned off the king's highway and sat down to rest beneath a big tree. And while he sat there that little yellow bird whose name I shall tell you some day, commenced to sing:

"A little white snake is under a bush
Close to the sparkling rill.
And the little gold ring she swallowed today
Is making her dreadfully ill."

At once the tender hearted little bunny hopped up and looked for the bush. Pretty soon he found it and under it, just as the little bird had said, there lay the tiny white snake.

"Oh dear, oh dear!" she whispered, "I have swallowed a gold ring and it hurts me dreadfully."

"Little Yellow Bird," shouted the bunny boy, "come here!"

The pretty bird fluttered down and when Little Jack Rabbit had carefully opened the snake's mouth, the little Yellow Bird pulled out the ring with her bill. Then she flew away like a flash of sunlight.

"You may have the ring," said the little white snake." I have heard it is a magic one." So Little Jack Rabbit thanked her and slipped the ring on his little toe.

"Come," said the snake and I will show you where I live," and she led the way until they came to her front door, just a tiny hole in the ground.

"Now rub the little ruby stone in your ring," she said and the next moment the little rabbit became small enough to crawl through her front door. Wasn't that wonderful?

And after they had gone down a winding passage for a little way they came to a pretty room where the little snake lived and in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

WESTERLY

Miss Marjorie Olive Taylor, the 18-year-old daughter of Charles S. Taylor, of Lewis lane off High street, who was taken in the ambulance of the Westerly Sanitary corps on Saturday to the Homeopathic hospital, Providence, has been operated on for appendicitis. Sunday she was visited by her father, who reports his daughter resting comfortably.

Saturday, Sheriff William H. Casey of Pawcatuck had as his guest Chief of Police James Cronin of Warren, R. I., who came into Stonington harbor from a fishing trip off Block Island. Saturday afternoon, Chief Cronin met Chief of Police Brown on his way to Watch Hill, the three police officials having known each other for many years. In Warren Monday night, a warm discussion took place as to the conduct of carnivals in the town. President of the Town Council and Police Commissioner Maxwell taking the stand that no games of chance should be allowed. In furtherance of this policy Chief Cronin notified a committee of the Warren Artillery not to sell tickets on automobiles to be given away as a feature.

A fishing party made up of Edward Simon and Charles Sampter, president of the A. F. Meiselbach Mfg. Co. of New York; Julian T. Crandall of Ashaway and Prentice Lanphear of Westerly were on a tuna fishing party off Block Island Sunday. On their return to Westerly Sunday night, Lanphear exhibited a well conditioned 35-pound tuna fish caught with rod and reel. The fishing party reported seeing a school of black whales and in fact as one of the party expressed it "all there was to see in the fish line." Foggy weather delayed an earlier departure of the fishermen.

Harry F. Cook of Springfield, Mass., a former resident of Westerly, returned home Sunday afternoon after a visit spent with local relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Penny of Rockville were automobile visitors to Westerly Saturday, calling on E. M. Dodge and H. P. Dodge, whom they knew when residing here twenty-eight years ago.

Westerly seems to be a stopping place for automobile parties from the west and far west in their "swing around the circle" as the northern portion of the United States is crossed on the eastward trip to Maine, returning down the Atlantic coast. Last week A. H. Noyes of San Jose, Cal., with automobile party stopped long enough to report a pleasant trip on such an itinerary.

Mr. and Mrs. Layman Woodroof and Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Farmer of Wichita, Kan., were automobile guests the past week of the family of E. J. Burdick, 5 Spruce street, and C. I. Spencer, 12 William street. Mr. Woodroof and party came east to Maine on an automobile tour returning by way of New and Washington to their Kansas home.

Earl E. Saunders returned Monday to the store of E. M. Dodge & Co., on Broad street after a week's vacation passed with relatives and friends in Edgewood, R. I.

Misses Lois and Beatrice Lawton of Norwood, R. I., are guests for a week of Westerly relatives and friends.

Louis J. Reuter with his son, Norman, of Watertown, Mass., was a business visitor in Westerly Monday.

A special conclave of Narragansett Commandery, No. 27, K. T., is to be held in commandery asylum Wednesday evening to hear and act upon the report of a special committee on entertainment for some date in September.

Arthur McClellan Weeden, assistant janitor of the Memorial and Public library is having a week's vacation in South Kingstown, part of which time will be spent fishing for blackfish at Narragansett Pier.

That the new community hospital in Westerly will have an open staff and that the campaign organization work is nearly complete was announced on Monday by Charles Perry, president of the hospital association and president of the Washington Trust company.

"With the opening of the campaign only a few days off, Mr. Perry said, "it is proper to review what has been accomplished and to see clearly the task that lies just ahead, also to clear up some doubts and questions that have been raised by those sincerely interested in the matter.

"In the first place, the new hospital will be an open hospital. That means that patients will not be restricted in the choice of their attending physicians or surgeons to a small local staff, as is done in some hospitals. In communities having several hospitals, there is often one or more institutions with a "closed staff," or small coterie of doctors who alone are permitted to hospitalize their patients there. Anyone going to such a hospital must choose his doctor from among a limited group.

"Probably those who have asked about the policy of the new hospital in this respect have at one time or another been patients in a hospital with a closed staff, so have the mistaken impression that the same idea will prevail here. But our new hospital will be, in the first place, a community hospital, and in the second place it will be the only one in this district. And a hospital under such conditions practically always maintains an open staff, as ours will do.

"Some have asked whether we really need a hospital with a capacity of fifty-one beds. On the other hand others have said that will not be enough. This capacity was decided upon only after a thorough study of the matter and consultation with experts in hospitalization.

"There is a certain relation between the population of a community and the number of hospital beds that it ought to have; various ratios, from a minimum for safety up to a maximum for full security, have been worked out in large and small communities all over the country. The indication of these figures is that about fifty beds would be the least that it would be proper for us to try to get along with in this district, and in order to keep down the cost of construction and operation to a minimum, a hospital of that size has been decided upon.

"The goal of $250,000 is the mini-mum requirement. It is our hope that a generous public response, together with thorough work on the part of the campaign organization, will make it possible to go beyond this minimum requirement and give our new hospital an endowment that will put it on a par in every respect with the best hospitals of other communities.

Local Teams Complete.

"The organization of the campaign forces has been remarkable. Both the local men's and women's divisions are 100 per cent complete, with every single member enrolled. The executive committee, of over sixty, was formed with but two refusals, both of them for personal reasons rather than from any unwillingness to help. While the organization of teams in the communities outside Westerly and Pawcatuck, which we are calling the 'Neighborhood Division,' is naturally not quite so rapid as here, it is progressing satisfactorily; most of the captains are appointed and the team membership reports are coming in daily.

"The ease with which this organiza-tion work is being done can mean but one thing, that the people are wholeheartedly behind the hospital project.

"I have been interested in some comparative figures that I have found for campaigns in other places. In our own state, in Woonsocket, a hospital campaign that was run along the same lines as ours was completed in June, with $274,000 raised, although the objective was only $250,000 and there was already a small hospital in the town. Down in Nyack, New York, in a little place of about 10,000 population, with some outlying communities, a campaign to raise $200,000 for improvement and enlargement of the local hospital took everyone's breath away by reaching $400,000, just twice the objective.

"The thing that made these and other campaigns successful was a unified community spirit—the kind of group enthusiasm and determination that accomplishes whatever it sets out to do. That spirit is rapidly becoming evident here, and it will build our hospital!"

STONINGTON.

Funeral services for James Curtin, were held at St. Mary's church Monday morning, Rev. J. E. O'Brien, the pastor, singing requiem high mass. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, Stonington.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Belcher and son Fred, of Springfield, Mass., spent the week-end at Ledward's Island.

The annual inspection of the apparatus and rooms of the Stonington fire companies was held Saturday afternoon. The wardens and burgesses, under direction of Chief C. D. Main and Assistant Chief C. E. McCourt, visited each of the quarters and noted the machines and the up-keep of the rooms. There was no parade as was formerly the custom. During the afternoon the hose wagon of the Mystic Hook and Ladder company paid a visit to Stonington so the borough firemen might see what a fine piece of apparatus Mystic has.

Sunday afternoon the fifth procession and celebration of the services of the Holy Ghost society was held. The Liberty band of Providence was hired to play for the marching and during the day. The crown was taken to the home of Dennis Cidele, of Trumbull street, where it will remain until next Sunday. Sweet-bread, grape juice and soda were passed around to those who attended the exercises. Stonington is one of the few places where the old-time ceremony of Portugal is celebrated every year.

The home of Edward Simmonson, superintendent of the American Velvet company's mill here, was entered, being broken into recently by someone while he and his wife were away. It is understood there were several pieces of goods removed from his new home he has just completed this summer, on the state road. Entrance was gained through a cellar window, and then the door at the head of the cellar stairs was forced open, which gave the thieves entrance to the main part of the house. Things were strewn about the rooms.

The Atwood Machine Company, closed from last Friday, opened for work Monday morning.

Five new houses are being erected on the Velvet Mill property just east of the borough. As soon as these are finished, it is understood there are to be several more put up for the employes.

Dr. Hamilton Holt, of New York and Woodstock, gave a lecture on The World Court, here at the Community House Saturday evening, which made a great impression on his hearers. Refreshments were served and a delightful musical program was rendered. While here Dr. Holt was entertained by Dr. and Mrs. Henderson, at their home on Main street.

MYSTIC

The burial of Mrs. Cyrus Mitchell, of Wequetequock, formerly of Mystic, took place at Elm Grove cemetery, in Mystic, Saturday afternoon. The funeral was held from her home in Wequetequock.

The body of William H. Perkins, who died in Groton, Wedesday, was brought to Mystic for burial in Elm Grove cemetery, Saturday afternoon.

Howard Duall is having his vacation from the office of the Rossie Velvet company's mill and is spending it with his parents in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Hermes and Miss Isabelle Hermes are on a motor trip to Massachusetts and through New York state.

Harry Fielder and Miss Annie Fielder, of New York, are guests of relatives on High street.

Harry Packer has returned after spending several weeks in New Jersey.

Mrs. Armon Hoffman is having two weeks' vacation at Ocean Grove, N. J.

Miss Marion Hope, deaconess, of the New Bedford district, Southern New England conference, spoke interestingly of the work in the diocese at the Methodist church Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Rogenberg of Chicago are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Jackson, of Mystic.

HAMPTON

Mrs. T. J. Gary, of New York and Nashville, Tenn., and Dolly Fairchild, of New York city, spent the week-end with the latter's sister and her husband Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Howell at Fern cottage Hampton.

Mr. and Mrs. Howell entertained at a dancing party in Abington Saturday evening. Those pesent were Mr. and Mrs. Austin Wade, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Humes, Mr. M. McLaughlin, Marshall Humes, Russell Bell, Dolly Fairchild, Mrs. J. T. Gary and Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Howell. A very enjoyable evening was spent. Refreshments were served.

IN MEMORIAM.

In Loving Memory of
MARY DOYLE BENNETT,
Died Aug. 14, 1921.

A precious one from us hath gone,
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.
God in His wisdom hath recalled
The boon His love hath given,
And though the body slumbers here
The soul is safe in heaven.

POETRY

A BROOK SONG.

I'm hastening from the distant hills
With swift and noisy flowing;
Nursed by a thousand tiny rills,
I'm ever onward going.
The willows cannot stay my course,
With all their pliant wooing;
I sing and sing till I am hoarse,
My prattling way pursuing.
I kiss the pebbles as I pass,
And hear them say they love me,
I make obeisance to the grass
That kindly bends above me.
So onward through the meads and dells
I hasten, never knowing
The secret motive that impels,
Or whither I am going.

At little child comes often here
To watch my quaint commotion
As I go tumbling swift and clear
Down to the distant ocean;
And as he plays upon my brink,
So thoughtless like and merry
And full of noisy song, I think
The child is like me, very.
Through all the years of youthful play,
With ne'er a thought of surrow,
We, prattling, speed upon our way,
Unmindful of the morrow;
Aye, through these sunny meads and dells
We gambol, never trowing
The solemn motive that impels,
Or whither we are going.

And men come here to say to me:
'Like you, with weird commotion,
O little singing brooklet, we
Are hastening to the ocean;
Down to a vast and misty deep,
With fleeting tears and laughter
We go, nor rest until we sleep
In that profound Hereafter.
What tides may bear our souls along,
What monsters rise appalling,
What distant shores may hear our song
And answer to our calling?
Ah, who can say! Through meads and dells
We wander, never knowing
The awful motive that impels,
Or whither weare going!"

—Eugene Field.

PERHAPS.

And if we nevermore should meet,
If none of all our dreams come true,
If there's no pathway for my feet
That leads at last to love—and you—
Perhaps I might have brought you grief
Instead of joy, and that is why
God made our day so bright and brief
And our Good-morrow meant Good-by.
—Amelia Josephine Burr, in Ladies' Home Journal.

TAFTVILLE

If you hear the band playing Sunday morning, crane your neck out of the door or window and see "who's coming." It will be the start of the Ponemah Wheel club on their annual outing to Wildwood park. The procession will leave the clubhouse on Norwich avenue at 9 a. m., headed by President John B. Benoit in the Bear Cat, that made the coast to coast trip several months ago. The car will be decorated especially for the occasion, as will also the 35 cars which will follow the bus carrying Tubbs' band, which will furnish music for the day. The procession will also be accompanied by two state policemen who will see that the procession is orderly to and from Wildwood park. Before leaving the village the parade will go up Providence street and will leave town by way of Lisbon. The towns through which the boys will travel after leaving the village will be Jewett City, Plainfield, Central Village, Wauregan, Brooklyn, Danielson, Elmville and Dayville. After reaching Wildwood park, the Ponemah Wheel club boys will enjoy one of George "King" Jacques' famous clambakes, and spend the day enjoying all kinds of sports, especially the ball game between the married and single men. The boys expect this to be the best outing the club has enjoyed since its organization in 1895.

The funeral of Mrs. Marie Ritcher was held at the home of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ritcher, on Norwich avenue, Monday morning at 8.30, with a solemn requiem high mass celebrated at Sacred Heart church by the pastor, Rev. V. O. Bellerose. There were many beautiful flowers sent sent by the many friends of the deceased. Burial was in the Greeneville cemetery. The bearers were six sons of the deceased, Arthur, Frank, Napoleon, Charles, Adelard and Philip Ritcher. Undertaker George E. Grant was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Henry Chenete, Aime Pepin and Omer Rondeau have returned home after spending a week at Oakland Beach, R. I.

A game between the Single Men and Madden's Nuggets has been arranged to take place on the Providence street grounds Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Garnier and family of South B street are moving to Wauregan, where Mr. Garnier has accepted a position in a store.

Mrs. Ferdinand H. Lenz of Rye Beach, N. Y., has been a recent visitor at the home of her mother, Mrs. Agnes Joubert, of Norwich avenue.

Brunelle's band are giving a carnival in the open lot on Providence street opposite the ball grounds and are drawing good crowds nightly.

Mr. and Mrs. David O'Brien, Jr., of Occum and Miss Lena O'Brien of Providence street are spending a few days in Springfield, Mass.

Mrs. Axel L. Aberg of North Third avenue is spending a few days this week at Gales Ferry.

A number of local people made a pilgrimage to the shrine of St. Anne at Fiskdale near Sturbridge, Mass., on Sunday and while there witnessed some remarkable cures.

Mr. and Mrs. Godard Bouchard and Mr. and Mrs. William J. Smith of Merchants' avenue have returned from a few days' stay in Cambridge, Mass.

Miss Alexina Rocheleau of Oakland, R. I., is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Smith of North B street.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Heselton and son Kendall of North B street have returned from a few days' stay in Ballouville.

The work on the new residence of Mrs. Eva Adams of Germania avenue is rapidly progressing.

CRAZED WITH LIQUOR, MAN JUMPS INTO YANTIC RIVER

Crazed with liquor, William Anderson, 23 years of age, colored of Stonington, jumped into the Yantic river cove near the Central Vermont railroad station shortly after 10.30 o'clock Monday morning. His suicidal attempt, if such it was, was unsuccessful for he is locked up at police headquarters on a charge of intoxication.

Anderson became the possessor of a bottle containing liquor of questionable composition Monday morning and proceeded to drink about half the bottle. Shortly afterwards he became crazed and jumped into the cove. An employe of the freight station notified Officer Daniel O'Neil that a man was drowning in the river and the officer hurried to the river bank. Two boys, about 16 years of age, who happened to be in the immediate vicinity succeeded in getting Anderson onto a raft near shore and with help of Officer O'Neil pulled Anderson onto the river bank.

A call for the patrol wagon was sent in by telephone. Anderson put up a stiff fight and his rescuers had their hands full for a few minutes but they finally landed him in the patrol wagon and he was taken to police headquarters and booked on a charge of intoxication. He will be presented in the city court this (Tuesday) morning.

FLETCHER MEMORIAL FLOWERS AT PARK CHURCH SUNDAY

The flowers on the communion table at Park Congregational church Sunday, during the union service with the United Church, were a memorial to Sergeant-Major Robert Ogden Fletcher, killed in action Aug. 15, 1918. There was a magnificent display of dahlias from the R. J. P. Brown gardens, featuring the superb Robert O. Fletcher blossom, named for the brave young soldier, one of the most popular boys that ever went out from Norwich. The flowers were sent by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William L. Fletcher, of Lincoln avenue.

At the same service was displayed the large and handsome wreath which was so generally admired at the memorial service for President Harding in the United church Friday afternoon.

MIGHT HAVE CAPTURED DEER ON WAY TO WORK IN NORWICH

The Bulletin's Willimantic correspondent writes:

George Clouthier of Valley street, this city, tells of an easy capture which he might have made recently while motoring to work at the Uncas Paperboard company in Norwich. Just below South Windham he noticed a deer five feet in height feeding among a herd of cows. Becoming inquisitive, he got out and walked toward the animal, but failed to frighten it away. He found that the deer was wounded and he could easily have captured it.

AUGUST OUTING OF COUNTY POMONA GRANGE

The August outing of the New London County Pomona Grange, No. 6, P. of H., is to be held Thursday of this week at Happy Land park, near Poquetanuck and Gravelrange. At 12.30 o'clock (n. t.) a basket lunch with chowder, prepared by the women of the grange will be served.

The afternoon will be devoted to music, songs and addresses.

NEW YORK YACHT CLUB FLEET DUE IN NEW LONDON HARBOR TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Aug. 13.—Irene Congdon, wife of Donald Merrill, 131 Jefferson avenue, died Sunday at the Mitchell ward of Lawrence hospital of tuberculosis, for which malady the young woman had been under treatment a long time. Mrs. Merrill is survived by her husband, her mother, and two children.

Charles Swan of Niantic, Andrew Hunter of Waterford, Mrs. Michael Dorsey, wife of Patrolman Dorsey, and infant son of Lincoln avenue, Mrs. John Lucy of West Mystic, Mrs. Francis Harrington of Glenwood avenue, Mrs. George Crawford of Springfied, Mass., and George McSweeney of the United States Coast Guard academy were patients discharged at Lawrence hospital today.

Miss Helen Gilmore, clerk in the office of City Treasurer Herbert J. Huntley, resumed her duties today after having enjoyed her vacation, a part of which was spent with Boston friends.

An automobile, owned and operated by Dominick Perrotti of New Haven, overturned on Plant Hill, East Lyme, Sunday night and Perrottie and a woman, believed to be Mrs. Perrotti, were thrown out. Both escaped injuries, other than lacerations and bruises. They were treated by a physician after which they went to their home. The automobile, a new Packard, was being operated towards New London about 6 o'clock and when about midway up the steep grade, it began to skid. Perrottie lost control of the steering wheel with the result that the car went off the edge of the highway and turned over. Passing autoists assisted in the care of the passengers until a machine came along and carried them away for medical treatment. The machine was later towed to a Flanders garage. Perrottie, it is understod, is proprietor of a fruit and produce place in New Haven.

The police did a nice day's business this morning in dealing with a bunch of crap shooters who were caught in the freight yard of the New Haven railroad Sunday afternoon, in a shack. There were fourteen throwers in the bunch taken to police station. That did not include the chief or promoter of the game for he got away with the stakes, by way of a window. There is said to have been $365 in the pot. There was a time when crap shooting was exclusive with the colored men employed as waiters and porters in the hotels and on the steamers that came to the harbor and by those who found employment on the railroads, but as time changes all things so it has changed the great American gambling habit. All the men corralled at the crap game were fined in court this morning. In dealing out a penalty, a fine of $10 to each, Judge Prince told them they were despicable fellows in that they were a nuisance and that they had no regard for the laws of the city. "If any of this party comes back here for the same offense he will go to jail. A fine will not satisfy in the future," said the judge. One of the gamblers in the bunch is yet to come to the court. He had a chance to get away, but he talked so much of what he had done and what he proposed to do that he was called back and will now have to take the dose of discipline to the other gamblers. There was one of the gang that gave a bond of $25 for appearance when he was arrested. He failed to appear and his bond was declared forfeited. The cost to each of the gamblers fined was $12.17. So the day's business with the gamblers put $158.21 into the city treasury.

A couple of violators of the rules of the road for the operation of automobiles were fined $5 each and one drunk paid a fine of a similar amount. Two drunks went to jail.

The New York Yacht club squadron will be in this port Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday they will start on their annual cruise to the eastward. There will be, it is expected, some 70 boats in the fleet, ranging in size and beauty from the largest pleasure craft any country in the world can boast to the fastest and most beautiful lined craft naval architecture has yet produced. Harold Vanderbilt is at the head of the New York club this year and he will manage its affairs from the handsome schooner Vagrant. The monster steam yacht Nourmahal, belonging to the Astors will be the stakeboat from which the yachts will start from this harbor. They will go around Sea Flower beacon when they depart, leaving it on the port and dash away to Newport. Off the latter harbor the race is for the King's cup, the donor of which is the ruler of England. Other races will be for the navy cups. The yachts have not cruised since the outbreak of the war and many familiar boats then in the squadron are not in it now.

An automobile, owned and driven by Ralph C. Whalie of New York, was struck and damaged by a bus bearing Connecticut registration, J-412 on State street, this forenoon.

Henry S. Berg, of Williams street, operator of a motor moving truck, was arrested last night by Patrolman Henry Hicks for the Waterford authorities, charged with reckless driving and evasion of responsibility. Berg will be presented before Justice of the Peace Thomas F. Morton in Waterford Tuesday night and until such time he is at liberty on his own recognizance. Berg would have been given a hearing last night but following the arrest of Berg the justice could not be located, and the postponement of the case resulted. Berg was hired by the Beaver club to convey their membership to and from the Golden Spur where the annual picnic of the organization was in progress throughout the day. Last night, while Berg was operating the truck with several of the club members as passengers and was passing Station 13, the truck collided with a car owned and operated by Settimio Giordani of Waterford. Berg attempted to make his escape, for he failed to stop to ascertain the damage he had occasioned. Giordani secured the services of another automobile owner and gave chase to the speeding truck. The truck was passed at Moosbroker's corner and continued to Bank street where Giordani requested Patrolman Hick to arrest Berg. When the truck appeared Hick went to the highway and signaled Berg to stop, but the latter speeded past the officer. Hick commandeered another machine and put after Berg. On Shaw street the truck was overtaken and Hick instructed his driver to operate the automobile in front of the truck and reduce the speed so that Berg would either be forced to stop the truck or collide with the automobile. Berg finally brought the truck to a stop and his arrest followed. After his arrest Berg was taken in charge by State Policeman Carson. Berg has twice before been arrested on a similar charge.

Samuel Gipstein and Joseph J. Shapiro have sold to Morten and Nissene G. Olsen a house and lot on Crescent street.

Lena B., wife of James Gilmartin, 76 Colman street, is a patient at the Mitchell ward of Lawrence hospital, having been removed to the institution today suffering from typhoid, the first case of this nature to develop in the city during the summer. It is believed that the fever developed from drinking water or milk. Mrs. Gilmartin is the mother of two small children.

Another case of typhoid fever, but which developed in Waterford, resulted fatally at Home Memorial hospital Sunday when Carmella, the 16 years old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Villano of Gallows lane, died of the disease. The girl had ben ill about a month.

E. A. Dyer of Westerly, who was stricken at the union station by illness several days ago and Miss Anna Langan of Pequot avenue, were patients discharged today at Home Memorial hospital.

Snapper blues have put in an appearance. Although early for the fish to begin biting several small catches have been reported in Niantic river and in the Thames river, near Riverside park.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Randolph L. Hayden of New London, formerly of Haddam to Miss Ruth Raymond Kellogg, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. C. W. Kellogg of Washington street, Middletown. The event will occur next month.

Mrs. Alfred H. Chappell entertained the Monday evening bridge club this evening at her residence, Sunnyridge, Ocean avenue.

Alma Gluck, noted grand opera singer nad her husband, Efrem Zimballst are occupying their cottage at Fishers' Island for the remainder of the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Delap are spending a fortnight at their cottage at Best View.

Miss Catherine Glynn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Glynn, is spending two weeks at Atlantic City.

Leo Kelley is visiting his aunt, Mrs. Martin Roche of Glen Falls, N. Y.

Miss Mildred Saunderse daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Saunders, is visiting relatives in Providence.

Mr. and Mrs. Elias Wentworth were in Hartford today in attendance at a funeral of a relative.

Miss Francis Marsh and Miss Helen Jobson have returned to New York, after having spent a week in New London, guests of Miss Ann S. Scroggie.

Announcement is made of the approaching marriage of Joseph Schwartz son of Mr. and Mrs. Paty Schwartz of Washington street and Miss Rose Gaberman of Windsor avenue, Hartford. Miss Gaberman is spending the summer at Ocean Beach.

The Christian Endeavor society of the First Baptist church of Waterford held its annual picnic Saturday at the Golden Spur.

Mrs. Frank Saunders is spending a week with Hartford friends.

Miss May Donohue entertained over Sunday Miss Loretta O'Connor of New Britain.

Thomas K. Egan of Glen Falls, N. Y., spent the week-end in New London with his family. Mrs. Egan and children will go to Glen Falls within a few weeks.

Mrs. Julia Wright, 71, died Sunday at Lawrence hospital. She had been under treatment some time.

An automobile, owned and driven by Nestor Dreyfus of Channing street collided with a machine owned and driven by J. C. Listo of Hartford this afternoon, at the corner of State and Green streets. Neither auto was seriously damaged.

Adolph Sylvia, 18, through his mother Mrs. Olivis Sylvia of Denison avenue, has brought suit for damages for $1,000 against the city as a result of injuries alleged to have been incurred by her son last June. Papers in the action, which is returnable before the September term of the superior court, were served Saturday by Sheriff J. H. Tubbs. The action recites that on June 23, 1923, the plaintiff he stepped upon a section of defective planking of the Hamilton street bridge, sustaining a fall and injuring his ankle, arm, an dbody and as a result cannot continue his work as forman in the employ of the J. E. Fitzgerald Company.

As the result of a collision between automobiles owned by Eugene F. Bronstein of Providence and John McGinley of Hartford, at the crest of Fort Hill, Groton, Sunday, Bronstein was fined $25 and costs in the Groton town court this forenoon for reckless driving. Both machin ewere damaged. The McGinley automobile was operated by Mrs. McGinley.

Charles Tresno of Westerly was charged with indecent exposure and indecent assault, the alleged crimes having been committed recently at Mystic in front of the Baptist church. Tresno, who has a wife and family was bound over to the superior court by Judge C. C. Costello. In default of a surety on a bond of $50 Tresno was remanded to jail.

Judge George E. Hinman, of the superior court today revoked the parole of Mrs. Lillian Caughey, wife of Joseph Caughey and ordered that the woman's sentence of a year in jail be put into operation. The revocation of the parole was at the recommendation of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield, as aresult of the woman being arrested last night when found in company with a man and after reports had been received hat the woman was not walking the "straight and narrow path." Mrs. Caughey and her husband were found guilty at the May term of the superior court, Caughey served a part of the year's sentence and was paroled, but his wife was not compelled to serve any part of her sentence. Caughey, who has been employed a number of months as a linotype operator in New York, and who today secured employment in New London, arrived in the city Saturday; according to his statement he gave his wife $25 for the support of herself and two children. After the woman received the money, Caughey asserts, she left her home and her whereabouts were not known to him until his wife's arrest.

The nominating petition, the second circulated by Mrs. Anna Bailey for Howard B. Marshal for the office of school visitor and which was filed with City Clerk Julian D. Moran, Saturday has been found to be defective and invalid as was the first petition circulated by Mrs. Bailey. As a result to endeavor to gain a seat on the school board. The last petition filed was invalidated because of the charter provision of the document containing fifty-one names not being attached to it. Had the necessary number of names been signed to it the petition would have been defective for some of the signers' names do not appear on the city's voting list. The candidates for the office of school visitor now are Dr. Joseph M. Garney, Frederick W. Edgerton and E. Victor Goldsmith

Mrs. Mary C. O'Brien is the latest nominee for the office of councilor to be filed with City Clerk Moran, the candidate filing her notice of acceptance this afternoon. Two other nominees have also accepted, Lucius E. Whiton and Mrs. Emily C. Spiers.

A hearing took place in the probate court this afternoon for the acceptance of the final accounting of the estate of Mrs. Augusta Stever Luther widow of Capt. Joseph Luther. At the conclusion of the hearing which was contested, Judge Arthur B. Calkins reserved his decision.

An automobile, owned and operated by A. T. Salter, 292 Montauk avenue and a machine owned by Samuel D. Barnes, 102 Riverview avenue and operated by Mrs. Barnes, were in collision on Ocean avenue this evening. Both machines were damaged.

NEW GERMAN MINISTRY HAS NEW POLICY TO DEAL WITH CONDITIONS IN THE RUHR

Chancellor Stresemann and His Political Associates Propose to Induce Premier Poincare of France to Respond to a Modified German Attitude—Realize That the Cuno Policy Has Miscarried—Occupation No Longer a Barrier to Negotiations—Scenes of Rioting, With Fatalities, Are Reported in Berlin, Hamburg and Aix-La-Chapelle.

Berlin, Aug. 14.—(By the A. P.)—Chancellor Stresemann's reference to the new government's attitude on the Ruhr and Rhineland issues in his initial speech before the Reichstag today suggests a slight modification of the attitude maintained by former Chancellor Cuno, which made evacuation of those territories a preliminary condition to resumption of reparation payments by Germany.

There was no reference to "French bayonets" in the government's statement today, although the new chancellor was very emphatic in naming the complete restoration of German sovereignty and legal jurisdiction in the occupied regions as the conditions under which Germany was willing to conclude a truce.

Even then, he stated, Germany would have to be accorded a "breathing spell," during which she would be given an opportunity to restore the Ruhr basin to its former standard production. This modification of the previous German attitude is viewed as marking the limit of German concessions and the cardinal conditions under which she is prepared to abandon her campaign of passive resistance.

Political gossip around the Reichstag occupied itself today wholly with speculating whether the present Bourgeois-Socialistic cabinet will assume the initiative in finding a way out of the Ruhr dilemma which numerous political observers believe was one of the decisive contributing factors to the recent crisis.

As the Cuno government had assumed an attitude to the Ruhr issue from which it could not recede without defeat, it is now generally believed that the present cabinet—composed of political extremities the union of which would have been impossible a few months ago—has been installed primarily because the four parties represented in it considered Herr Cuno's attitude on the Ruhr as having incumbered the situation to the extent that Germany was not in a position to seek a solution along dignified and promising lines.

While the Stresemann cabinet inherits the former government's far-flung program of tax and financial reforms which the Reichstag approved last week, it is not committed to his Ruhr policy beyond the statement that the passive resistance will go on under the present conditions of the occupation.

On the other hand, the incoming cabinet is free to seek a solution along new lines, and Dr. Stresemann's failure to mention evacuation in connection with the conditions under which the passive resistance will be called off suggests to some observers that the new chancellor and his political associates propose to provoke Poincare into reacting to a modified German attitude.

NEW CABINET GIVEN VOTE OF CONFIDENCE

Berlin, Aug. 14.—(By the A. P.)—The new cabinet headed by Chancellor Stresemann was given a vote of confidence today by the Reichstag, 240 deputies out of a total of 341 balloting in favor of the government. Seventy-six votes were cast in opposition, while twenty-five deputies supposed to be in the Bavarian people's party, abstained from voting. The other opposition came from the nationalists and communists.

The voting came after Dr. Stresemann had addressed the Reichstag and given that body the new government viewpoint on the general situation, and particularly with reference to the crisis brought about by the occupation of the Ruhr and the Rhineland. He informed the members of the chamber that Germany required complete restoration of her rights in the occupied territory as an essential to the abandonment of passive resistance. The getting free of all Germans imprisoned in the districts occupied by the French and Belgians and permission for the return of those who have been sent out of the occupied area also were made conditions for a cessation of passive resistance.

Dr. Stresemann declared the change in government was not a sign of weakness on the part of Germany. On the contrary the change had brought into being the strongest cabinet, as regards opposition to any idea of permitting the violation of Germany, that the country had had since the republic was formed.

Passing almost immediately to the question of the occupation of the Ruhr in his address, the Chancellor said passive resistance was deeply rooted in the firm conviction of its justice. "This," he declared, "has been unequivocally recognized by the British government, and we may assume that this statement of the British conception will find echo in France and Belgium."

Asserting that Germany would welcome arbitration of the Ruhr question, Dr. Stresemann added: "We have no doubt that any impartial decision would restore to us our Ruhr territory and on the day this happens all forces will work to end the intolerable paralysis of the main artery of German economy.

"If the free and unrestricted administration of the Ruhr is assured us; if the situation in the Rhineland again is such as is guaranteed by international treaties; if every imprisoned German in the Ruhr and the Rhineland is restored to liberty, then, after a breathing spell has been granted us, we shall be able, by exerting the whole economic force of the country, to furnish means for settlement of the reparations question, provided the burdens imposed upon us permit of the existence of our economic life and the further development of our nation. The consolidation of our political and economic life is a preliminary condition for a resumption of the reparation deliveries which had to be discontinued owing to economic derangement caused by the invasion of the Ruhr."

Turning to domestic affairs the Chancellor said that what most was demanded from the new government was activity in restoring order. A promising beginning had been made by the Reichstag, he said, in the adoption last week of the new taxation laws introduced by the Cuno administration. He appealed to all classes to support the gold loan, declaring that it was the government's duty to satisfy the demand for a stable currency. The government also regarded the demand for a stable basis of wages justified in view of the present circumstances. The Chancellor concluded by asking confidence from the Reichstag, saying:

"He only is lost who surrenders himself. We have a right to believe in Germany's future, and it is our task to secure it."

FOUR PERSONS INJURED DURING RIOTING IN BERLIN

Berlin, Aug. 14.—(By the A. P.)—Communists in the east end of Berlin tried to erect barricades at noon today to prevent the passage of tram cars. They smashed car windows and assaulted the drivers. The police fired on the rioters who returned the fire. Four persons were injured before order finally was restored.

COMMUNISTS STORMED TOWN HALL AT ALSDORF

London, Aug. 14.—A central news despatch from Berlin says communists stormed the town hall at Alsdorf, eight miles north of Aix-La-Chapelle, with hand grenades and that 100 persons were killed or wounded.

Alsdorf has a population of about 8,000. Its industries consist mainly of iron mines and smelting furnaces.

15 PERSONS KILLED, MANY WOUNDED AT AIX-LA-CHAPELLE

Dusseldorf, Aug. 14.—(By the A. P.)—Reports to the German newspapers from Aix-La-Chapelle say that 15 persons were killed and more than fifty wounded in the rioting there. They agree with the other reports that the affair was caused by crowds attempting to free certain arrested persons whom the police refused to deliver.

FURTHER RIOTING REPORTED IN HAMBURG

London, Aug. 14.—(By the A. P.)—Hamburg was the scene of further rioting today, with many killed or wounded, according to a Central News despatch from Berlin, communists have gained the upperhand at Wilhelmburg, near Hamburg, the despatch adds, disarming the militia and taking control of the town.

CIRCULAED BY MAIL ANTI-FASCISTI ARTICLES

New York, Aug. 14.—Carl Tresca, editor of Il Martello, an anti-fascisti weekly published here in the Italian language, was arrested tonight and locked up in the Tombs charged with "mailing and delivering unmailable matter through the United States.

Shortly after Tresca was jailed, bail was provided by the American Civil Liberties Union, which charged that the arrest was not occasioned by any crime, but was inspired by the Italian government.

Robert W. Dunn, associate director of the union, stated that in the opinion of that organization the charges were part of a general scheme of the Italian fascisti to "get" Tresca for his anti-fascisti articles which have been widely distributed among Italians both in the United States and in Italy.

The special article on which Tresca was arrested appeared in the issue of May 5 last, and treated the wedding of Princess Yolanda in a flippant manner, Mr. Dunn said. The article implied that many royal marriages were merely matters of "convenience" he declared.

$250,000 SUIT FOR ALLEGED BREACH OF CONTRACT

Hartford, Aug. 14.—Suit for $250,000 for alleged breach of contract has been brought by the Mutual Drug Stores corporation, of Delaware, with offices in Hartford, in the superior court here against George Ulrich, A. D. Davidson, and David Seide, all of this city. It is claimed that the defendants entered into a contract with the plaintiff agreeing to sell $300,00 worth of stock of this corporation before January 1, 1923, or to subscribe to and pay for the unsold balance. The plaintiff claims that this has not been done and redress is sought through the courts. Large attachments of property, stock and bank accounts have been made in connection with the case.

IRELAND NOT EXCITED OVER COMING ELECTION

Dublin, Aug. 14.—(By the A. P.)—Neither here nor in the country generally is there any sign as yet of any strong election fever, but the electoral organizations are active and the list of candidates daily is growing.

Professor John MacNeill, Minister of Education, is opposing Eamon De Valera for the seat for County Clare. Several women candidates are likely to enter the Dublin contests, fighting as independents. The Honorable Mrs. Noel Guinness is among them. She probably will run for the seat for the northern division of Dublin.

STEAMER BEACHED AFTER STRIKING A WRECK

St. John's, N. F., Aug. 14.—The Steamer Sable I., which struck a submerged wreck last night shortly after the harbor of St. Pierre, was beached at LaMaline, New Foundland, and may be refloated, reports from the south coast of the island said tonight, all on board the vessel were landed safely.

The steamer, from Halifax and St. Pierre to St. John's, had just landed 7,000 cases of whiskey at the French port.

EIGHT FATALITIES FROM CLOUDBURST IN UTAH

Salt Lake City, Utah, Aug. 14.—Eight known dead, several persons missing, scores of others injured and property damage amounting to more than $1,000,000 tonight was the toll reported in the wake of cloudbursts which struck northern Utah last night and today.

As the stricken farm communities counted their losses after the swollen streams had receded, Governor Charles Mabey issued orders to the national guard here to stand ready for possible duty in the flood area.

Picking their way through waist deep mud and debris, rescue workers recovered four bodies, at Farmington, near Salt Lake.

Farm buildings and livestock along the banks of several ditches, normerly dry, but which swelled last night to streams nearly a quarter of a mile wide and many feet deep, were swept downstream when the huge walls of water rolled with startling suddenness and rapidity from the mountain canyons and down upon the sleeping farm communities.

Most of the damage was reported in Boxeidel and Weber counties.

Fears that the death list would mount were expressed tonight by railway men and others who surveyed the situation. Unconfirmed reports were received here that two men had been drowned at Willard, near Ogden, early today, increasing the death list to ten. Three were drowned at Willard last night.

One of the victims, a policeman, died of exhaustion attempting to rescue his daughter from flood waters near Farmington.

Heaps of mud and debris today covered acres of land in Willard, and officials there expressed the belief that several bodies might be found after a exploration of the area. Four persons in an automobile, last seen being carried down the current near Willard, had not been accounted for today.

In the path of the flood were the home and ranch buildings of Mrs. Le Grand Hess. As she looked from a window a flash of lightning disclosed a torrent rushing against a barn. Obtaining a rope, Mrs. Hess threw it to three men who had sought shelter there. The men slid to safety, going hand over hand down the rope until they reached safe soil.

A sick doctor left his bed to rescue an 80 year old woman who had clung to a calf in the flooded Farmington creek. After saving the woman and a child, the physician, upon the pleas of the aged woman, saved the calf.

A NEW RULING ON SEIZURE OF RUM SHIPS

New York, Aug. 14.—Seizure of alien rum running vessels that hover outside the three-mile limit was held legal by Federal Judge Woodrough today in a decision handed down in the case of the British Ship Marion Mosher, seized while transferring a liquor cargo to the American owned motor boat J. H. B., eight miles off the coast near Fire Island, July 27, 1922.

Bonds of the Detroit Fidelity and Surety Company, given the seizure of the craft as a guarantee that it would proceed to its supposed destination, St. John, N. B., were declared forfeited, it being contended that although the vessel arrived at the Canadian port, she did not have her cargo, thereby violating her agreement.

The Marion Mosher case brought about a special session of President Harding's cabinet and an exchange of conversations with Great Britain. The American government decided that the Marion Mosher and other foreign vessels seized as rum runners should be released provided they proceeded immediately to their destinations.

Judge Woodrough held that seizure of foreign ships engaged in smuggling liquor into this country justifiable was even though they were on the high seas.

"When a ship hovers around the American coast," he said, "although three miles from shore, with intent to violate the laws and is caught in the attempt to smuggle intoxicating liquors and it is shown that it be of foreign registry and outside the three-mile limit is justifiable."

NEW YORK DENIES CHARTER TO KLAN AND KAMELIA

Elizabethtown, N. Y., Aug. 14.—Supreme Court Justice Ellis J. Staley tonight granted an injunction sought by the state of New York restraining the Knights of the Ku Klux lan, Inc., and the Kamelia, Inc., its sister organization, from acting as chartered benevolent fraternal organizations in New York state.

Declaring that the statutes clearly intended a certificate of incorporation "should be approved in the form in which it was filed and filed in the form in which it was approved," Justice Staley held that the act of incorporators of the Klan and Kamelia in altering the certificate of incorporation after approval and before filing was "not only an illegal and unauthorized act, but also an imposition and fraud upon the court."

TULSA HAS SUBMITTED QUIETLY TO MARTIAL LAW

Tulsa, Okla., Aug. 14 (By the A. P.)—Tulsa submitted quietly today to the reign of martial law invoked by Governor Walton because of recent cases of mob activity here. Three companies of national guardsmen are on duty here.

Rules promulgated by the commanding ocer for the period of military occupation prohibit street traffic between 11.30 p. m. and 6 a. m., daily, provide penalties for all attacks and criticism, verbal or written, against military authorities and the state administration and forbid the carrying of firearms unless authorized.

The police say they have not found a trace of members of the mob which Friday night kidnapped Nathan Hantaman and beat him severely after questioning him concerning the sale of whiskey and narcotics.

CHARGED WITH MURDER OF JOHN B. GIROUARD

Marlboro, Mass., Aug. 14.—Two men were held here tonight, charged with the murder of John B. Girouard, ice dealer, who received fatal wounds when he arrived on the scene of a rum runners' battle here last night, according to the police. The men under arrest are Bernard Martino, of Newton, and Hugo Baldi, of Somerville.

Gasoline War Raging Throughout the West

Heavy Selling of Petroleum Stocks Followed Tumbling in Prices.

Chicago, Aug. 14.—(By the A. P.)—Tumbling prices in gasoline, placed in effect by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana and followed by the large independent oil companies of the middle west, resulted today in a heavier selling in petroleum stocks on the Nork York stock markets. Coalesced with these reports came word that a cut in the price of crude was inevitable and that a large reduction in the price of that product was expected today or tomorrow.

Another state joined the ranks of those which have already begun investigation of the gasoline price structure, when Governor Walker of Georgia announced he would instruct Attorney General Napier to investigate the price of gasoline in Georgia to determine whether there was a monopoly. The Columbus Automobile club wired the automobile club at Dallas, Tex., requesting it to obtain the purchasing price of gasoline in carload lots. The Columbus club said that unless a radical reduction in the price of gasoline was made by the independent marketers, it would purchase gasoline and sell it to its members.

Gasoline being marketed by the Standard Oil Company of Nebraska was selling at 16¼ cents a gallon today and independent dealers were meeting the cut. L. V. Nicholas, President of the National Petroleum Markert Association, last night advised the members of the association to reduce their price five cents, following the cut of 6.6 cents made by the standard. Mr. Nicholas said today that most of his members would reduce their price five cents and appeal to the public to stand by them in the gasoline "war."

From South Dakota came the information that Governor W. H. McMaster, who started the midwestern agitation for price cut in gasoline, was ready to quit the gasoline selling business. The governor was satisfied that he had brought down the price of gasoline in his state to a price on an equal basis with that being asked by the state supply depots and that as soon as his supply of gasoline was exhausted he would close down.

Retail prices in Kentucky, Florida, Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia were reduced one cent by the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky, following the declaration of the gasoline "war" by northern and midwestern states.

Attorney General Jesse W. Barrett of Missouri, in a statement, said today that 16 cent gasoline left a fair profit for the retailers and did not injure the independent companies.

IMPLORE INTERVENTION BY THE FEDERAL GOV'T.

Columbus, O., Aug. 14. (By the A. P.)—While the gasoline war is raging throughout the west and central west, Ohio today officially viewed it with alarm and implored the federal government to step in and cope with the situation.

After a protracted conference with officials of the Ohio State Automobile Association, Governor A. V. Donahey sent a telegram to President Coolidge urging "an immediate searching investigation by the federal government to ascertain the facts so that justice may be done to all concerned." Fred H. Caley, president of the automobile association, and Charles C. James, secretary, also sent a joint telegram to the president endorsing the governor's request for an investigation.

Philadelphia, Aug. 14.—Mayor Moore today ordered an investigation of prices charged for gasoline in this city.

COOLIDGE TO HOLD SEMI-WEEKLY PRESS CONFERENCES

Washington, Aug. 14. — President Coolidge today went through one of the critical experiences that falls to the lot of presidents—his first conference with Washington newspapermen since taking over the executive offices.

The new president had let it be known that he would follow the policy of President Harding of holding semi-weekly press conferences after cabinet meetings with the correspondents privileged to present written queries and to ask verbal questions once a topic was opened up for discussion.

Consequently Mr. Coolidge early this afternoon looked up from his desk to find newspapermen ranged around it and many more steaming through the door. He hastily arose, smiled and nodded his head in way of greeting.

After announcing that he favored continuance of the custom of never quoting the president in press reports —a policy that has obtained in the case of the chief executive—Mr. Coolidge made a brief statement as to the cabinet meeting which had just adjourned and then, taking up the sheaf of questions which he had carefully sorted, began to answer them.

He spoke slowly and distinctly and went from one subject to another without hesitancy. His statements were so complete that none of the 150 newspapermen present requested amplification. When he had disposed of the last question, he looked around and said:

"Well, I guess I have given you a stickful."

The conference was over.

STRICTER REGULATION OF AVIATION IN CONNECTICUT

Hartford, Aug. 14.—Stricter regulation of aviation in Connecticut in the interest of public safety was decided upon at a conference tonight of the state motor vehicle highways and police department heads with the state aviation inspection corps.

Every state policeman will be instructed within the next few days to require any aviator landing within their patrols to give satisfactory evidence that he has the permission of the state to operate his airship over Connecticut. Superintendent Robert T. Hurley assured the aviation inspectors of full co-operation of the state police department.

Stunt flying over cities, athletic fields, fair grounds or other places where crowds congregate will be made cause for prompt arrest and revocation of licenses. Operators in charge of the passenger carrying planes will be subjected to rigid examination and their planes will be carefully inspected in all details before being allowed to take off. These examinations will be made by the aviation inspectors, all of whom are former army pilots.

Former Lawyers of Brokers Indicted

Held for Conspiracy to Conceal Records and Assets of E. M. Fuller & Co.

New York, Aug. 14.—Edward M. Fuller and William F. McGee, partners in the bankrupt stock bucketing house of E. M. Fuller & Co., were indicted with their former lawyers, William J. Fallon and Eugene F. McGee by a federal grand jury today for conspiracy to conceal records and assets of the firm, which failed for nearly $6,000,000.

The lawyers surrendered, entered pleas of not guilty, and were held in $5,000 bail, Fallon being freed under a $5,000 bail bond posted in connection with an incident for bribing a juror. McGee was given until tomorrow morning to provide bail. Fuller and his partner, William F. McGee, were not arraigned today, being already in federal custody for contempt of court, it was said their arraignment would be deferred until a more convenient time.

Additional indictments, naming alleged "higher ups" in a supposed widespread bucketing ring were promised, possibly for tomorrow.

Before deputy marshals had time to find Fallon and McGee, the attorneys appeared at federal building to surrender. They were arraigned at once before Federal Judge Goddard.

McGee was given until tomorrow morning to produce $5,000 bail and Fallon got his liberty on the same $5,000 bail he had deposited on another indictment, still pending, which charges him with attempting to bribe a juror.

Sensational developments in the case and the disclosure of prominent names about which Wall street is betraying much uneasy curiosity, are expected to follow Fuller's appearance before the grand jury tomorrow and the expected return of more indictments.

Fuller's appearance before the grand jury was not considered necessary to the indictments returned today. But his partner testified for about an hour, having been withdrawn from the secret jail where he and Fuller have been in custody since their surreptitious removal from Governor's Island a week ago.

Arriving at federal building in a taxicab, well guarded against escape or any attempt at revenge on the part of persons implicated in the bankrupt's confession, McGee was whisked into the jury chamber before a single photographer could fire flashlight powder. His departure was equally sudden and unexpected, so that tonight the whereabouts of the pair had become an 8-day-mystery.

The latest indictments against the partners, who are alleged to have left 4,000 creditor-investors in the lurch when they failed, charge conspiracy on two counts. The first is conspiracy with their lawyers to conceal books, records and check stubs of the firm; the second specifies six overt acts, aimed conspiracy to destroy and conceal properties and assets, including those known to have been concealed in the now-famous dress suit case.

Two previous indictments are pending against Fuller and McGee—both for using the mails to defraud. The brokers also await a state sentence to Sing Sing prison after having confessed and pleaded guilty, during their fourth trial, to 1 of the 3 indictments returned by a district grand jury.

TO BECOME SECRETARY TO PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

Washington, Aug. 14.—Former Representative C. Bascom Slemp of Virginia has been tendered and has accepted the position as Secretary to President Coolidge.

Announcement of M. Slemp's appointment was made today at the White House shortly after he had concluded an hour and a half conference with Mr. Coolidge. Mr. Slemp will not take permanent charge of his office until after labor Day. In the meantime George B. Christian, Jr., Secretary to the late President Harding, will remain as presidential secretary.

The appointment of Mr. Slemp came as a surprise inasmuch as his name had not been mentioned in connection with the secretaryship. Among those who had been talked of as successors to Mr. Christian, who submitted his resignation last week, were Edward T. Clark, who was Mr. Coolidge's secretary as Vice-President and Benjamin F Felt, of Boston.

Mr. Slemp was born at Turkey Cove, Lee County, Virginia, in 1870. He was graduated from the Virginia Military Institute in 1891; studied law at the University of Virginia; taught mathematics at the Virginia Military Institute, and later practiced law at Big Stone Gap, Va., his present home.

DR. C. W. ELLIOTT DECLARES CLOSED SHOP IS ILLEGAL

New York, Aug. 14.—The general committee of anthracite operators today made public a letter from Dr. Charles W. Elliot, president emeritus of Harvard university, attacking the United Mine Workers' demand for adoption by coal operators of the "check-off" system, which he characterized as a step in a program aiming at "control of all American industries and of the government itself."

Adoption of the "check-off," Dr. Eliot wrote, would be equivalent to acceptance by the coal operators of a closed shp and this he declared, meant that the miners would control industry and the government.

Dr. Eliot denounced the closed shop ac "undoubtedly illigal," and in contravention of the federal anti-trust law. Every high court throughout the country that has passed on it, he asserted; has declared it illegal.

MAN BURNED TO DEATH IN $300,000 FIRE IN L. I. CITY

New York, Aug. 14.—An unidentified man was burned to death today in a fire of unknown origin which completely destroyed the plant of the Panther Motor company, Long Island City, causing damage estimated at $300,000. An explosion in a section of the building where the flames started is being investigated.

The man's body was found after the flames had been extinguished, burned to a crisp beside the ruins of a 50-gallon still. A chauffeur's identification card, found near the body, and by some freak only partially destroyed, bore the name of Daniel Pagliarella, of Manhattan. Police believe this to be the name of the dead man.

The part of the building in which the explosion occurred was not used by the Panther Motor company. Near the still was found 1,000 empty cans varying in capacity from one to five gallons.

FEAR THAT 104 ENTOMBED MINERS HAVE PERISHED

At the Kemmerer Mine in Wyoming 138 Had Been Trapped by an Explosion—Rescue Workers Brought Out Alive 34—Explosion Occurred Near the 1,700 Foot Level—Belief Prevails That the Fire Had Followed the Blast—100 Volunteer Workers Are Searching the Lower Depths of the Mine.

Kemmerer, Wyo., Aug. 14.—Fighting their way through the partially dismantled portions of Frontier Mine No. 1, of the Kemmerer Coal Company, one mile from here, scene of an explosion shortly after eight o'clock this morning, rescued workers tonight had brought out alive 34 of the 138 miners entombed by the blast.

It is feared that the 104 men, still unaccounted for, have perished.

The explosion occurred near the 1,700 foot level. Tonight rescue workers had penetrated to nearly every quarter of the workings and it was indicated they had brought out all the survivors. Smoke blackened embers of nine cars, buried in a cave-in on the 1,700 foot level in entry fifteen, gave rise to the belief that fire had followed the blast.

The cause of the explosion is presumed to have been a blowout shot, according to a statement issued today by the Kemmerer Coal Company.

The company declared that no fire had followed the explosion. At the same time it was announced rescue work was continuing and that the final figures on the number of victims would not be known for a few hours.

Throngs of women, many of them widowed by the blast, and children gathered about the mouth of the shaft. Many were hysterical. When "trip" cars carrying the survivors came to the surface, the crowd became uncontrollable, rushing forward in a mad effort to find their loved ones, and Kemmerer police and volunteer workers experienced the greatest difficulty keeping them back.

One hundred Volunteer workers were searching the lower depths tonight.

Mine rescue car number two of the United States Bureau of Mine, arrived here this afternoon from Rock Springs, where it was intercepted after having here earlier today, and members of the crew immediately entered the mine. Mine rescue car number nine was expected later today from Salt Lake City, Utah.

The survivors were found in entries numbering 27 to 30. Nearly all of them were blackened by smoke and suffering from the effects of the inhalation of fumes, though there, apparently had been very little gas after the blast.

Pitiful scenes were enacted about the mouth of the mine, as relatives of the men who came out alive rushed into the arms of their loved ones, while nearby stood women and children in deepest grief, fearful lest those they sought should never come forth.

Alex Inama and Pete Tapero were two of the first men to come from the workings. They had been in a section of the mine near the shaft and made their way out slowly through the smoke and dust after the explosion. Both were suffering from their experience.

The greatest damage to the interior of the mine was done on the fifteenth entry where 15 cars had been buried by a cave-in. The task of clearing the main slope delayed rescuers several hours.

On the entries between twenty-seven and thirty, the majority of the survivors were found. Many had taken refuge in rooms off the main slope. One miner who had gone through three such explosions, is credited with saving the lives of six comrades by instructing them in the method of averting inhalation of gas, and directing them to a portion of the mine where the greatest safety lay, as they rushed toward the smoke-filled main slope.

The first intimation workers on the outside of the mine had that there had been a disaster, was given shortly after 8 o'clock when long streams of black smoke began to issue from the ventilating fans. An effort was immediately made to sound the electric danger alarm system with which the mine is equipped, but the explosion had torn down the wires.

Within a few minutes the first rescue workers went into the smoke-filled mine. The first evidence of the extent of the disaster was on the fifteenth entry where they found the body of a pumpman. A short time later they encountered the wrecked "trip" cars.

Meantime, company officials had begun mobilization of rescue and first aid forces. A temporary hospital was established, doctors were summoned and nurses were hurried to the first aid station.

Tonight, six physicians were working at the mine, four undertakers were present and a dozen trained nurses were giving first aid to the survivors and in some cases to bereaved women.

Although rescue workers declare they saw many bodies, they did not stop except to ascertain if the men were living. In some cases they resuscitated miners who were suffering keenly and carried them from the mine. In other cases they were able to help the victims walk out.

Most of the victims lost their lives through suffocation on the main slope, it was indicated. Those who sought isolated rooms or passageways, after the blast, survived in most instances.

P. J. Quealey, vice-president and general manager of the Kemmerer Coal company, directed rescue work from the surface.

None of the dead had been brought to the surface at nightfall, the officials preferring to wait until after dark before carrying out the corpses, most of which are blackened in a few cases, charred.

Shortly after the explosion it was feared that rising water in the mine which is normally a wet slope would cause the death of any who survived the blast. The pumps, however, which had been out of commission, were again put into working order this afternoon and the level was being pumped out tonight.

BARGE CAPTAIN HELD FOR VIOLATING LIQUOR LAW

Hartford, Aug. 14.—A squad of police boarded Barge Number Five of the Hartford and New York Transportation company while it was tied up to a commerce street dock tonight and arrested Captain Charles C. Crawford, of Clairmont, Va., on a charge of violating the liquor law on authority of a warrant issued several days ago.

The raiding party which consisted of detective Sergeants Andrew J. Williams, and Charles J. Keefe, of the "dry" squad, Detective Sergeant James H. Moriarty, sergeant Isaack Kroopnick and policeman James O'Brien had been on the watch for the barge for the past five days when information was received at police headquarters that liquor had been stowed aboard and that sales had been made to residents of the East Side.

Although the police anticipated a big cache of spirits aboard the boat a thorough search revealed about five gallons of liquor of good quality and sixty bottles of beer. A large still which had been camouflaged in order to resemble a giant keg of ice cream was confiscated and about twenty gallons of mash were dumped overboard into the Connecticut river.

The barge hails from Elizabethport, N. J., and was laden with coal consigned to a local company.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE TO REMAIN IN WASHINGTON

Washington, Aug. 14.—The requirements of the presidency at the present juncture are so great that President Coolidge does not expect to leave Washington this summer or in any measure resume the vacation interrupted by the death of President Harding.

The new President, it was said today at the White House, recognizes that there are many details of the office he has taken over with which he is unfamiliar. The quickest and easiest way to become acquainted with these details, Mr. Coolidge feels, is by staying in Washington where the necessary information is available.

Neither does President Coolidge intend to make any speaking trips within the next few months.

COUSIN OF COOLIDGE WINS DEMOCRATIC NOMINATION

Burlington, Vt., Aug. 14.—Park H. Pollard, of Cavendish, a first cousin of President Calvin Coolidge, was chosen by the democratic state committee here today to be the party candidate at the special primary and election this fall to elect a United States senator to succeed the late Senator William P. Dillingham.

The committee decided to go before the voters on a platform favoring a modification of the Volstead law permitting the sale of beer and wines. Burton E. Brailey, of Montpelier, was named as candidate for congressman in the election to choose a successor to Congressman Porter H. Dale, who has resigned in the second Vermont district to become one of the republican candidates for the vacant senatorship.

HELD FOR HOLD-UP OF TRUCK IN WESTBROOK

Westbrook, Aug. 14.—Three men with guns stopped a moving van bound from New London to New York early today at a point on the main highway close by the Old Saybrook town line, but as the truck was empty they got nothing and drove westward in their automobile.

John F. Sullivan, driver of the van, sent a message to the state police barracks at Centerbrook and two officers started after the highwaymen, finding them in a garage in Madison where they were taking on gasoline. Two of the men gave the names of Michael Angelo, of Milford, who is said to be on parole after a fifteen months jail sentence and William Stebbins, of 10 Cherry street, Waterbury. The name of the third man could not be made out but he was thought by the police to be the owner of the car which is registered in the name of Delno Pogni, of 203 Washington avenue, Bridgeport.

According to Sullivan who was accompanied by A. Meyer, the van stopped by the three men with guns pointed at him got on the vehicle. Finding it empty they left it. The state police got an automobile and an old fashioned gun from the three men besides a flask of liquor. The three men were locked up in Westbrook to wait the return of Sullivan as complainant.

CONSTABLE'S PROPERTY ATTACHED FOR $4,000

Greenwich, Conn., Aug 14.—Property including an automobile, owned by Constable George T. Jones, of this town was attached today for $4,000 by Deputy Sheriff Lincoln Taylor of Stamford in a suit brought by Mr. and Mrs. Philo Risdon of Greenwich, whose nine years old son Jack was struck and injured by the constable's automobile several weks ago.

The case will be heard by a jury in Bridgeport early next month. Jones has made known his intention of "fighting it to a finish."

$200,000 PUBLIC BEQUESTS IN WILL OF D. P. KIMBALL

Boston, Aug. 14.—Public bequests of $200,000 are made in the will of David P. Kimball, Boston lawyer filed today. Harvard university, Radcliffe college and the Massachusetts General hospital each received $50,000, and there are gifts to the Boston Public Library, Boston Museum of Fine Arts, Massachusetts Institute of Technonogy, New England Hospital for Woman and Children; Infants' hospital and the Bertram Home for Aged Men, Salem.

BODY OF A FLOGGING VICTIM FOUND IN RIVER

Newman, Ga., Aug. 14.—The body of Millard Trouise, 33, who fruitless claim, was a victim of a flogging party, was found today floating in a creek near here. Police were told Trouise was kidnapped Friday night by armed men, who forced him into an automobile and drove off.

WILLIMANTIC

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office
31 Church Street Telephone 1062

Lieutenant Frank McLean, who received his appointment Monday night from Mayor Charles A. Gates, following the addition of a captaincy to the police department, was appointed a member of the department, Sept. 10, 1917, and was assigned to duty as a regular May 25, 1918. Lieutenant McLean, who has been traffic officer since the promotion of Officer Grady to acting lieutenant, is a republican and one of the younger members of the department.

Chief Allan MacArthur announced the hours for the officers and the assignment of the patrolmen's beats on Tuesday forenoon. The chief will be on duty from 7 a. m. to 2 p. m.; Captain Thomas F. Grady will be on duty from 2 p. m. to 11 p. m., and Lieutenant Frank McLean will be in charge from 11 p. m. to 7 a. m. The captain and lieutenant will have an hour off for luncheon. Chief MacArthur will be in touch with the department headquarters at various times during the day, aside from his regular hours.

Officer Edward received the assignment of traffic officer Tuesday and will start on his new duties today (Wednesday). Officer William T. Hurley will cover the upper Main street beat. Officer Roderick Lariviere, the center beat. Officer Arthur Hurley, Jackson street and the Sodom beat will be under the care of Officer Grant Bombria. The arrangement went into effect on Tuesday night.

Willimantic Rotarians gathered on Tuesday noon for the weekly luncheon and meeting, with President Jim Mustard in charge. A guest of the club was Lester Matthews of Cornell, N. Y. Secretary Charles W. Hill read the roll call which showed that the percentage of attendance was small. A communication from the Rutland club was read with reference to the golf tournament there during the holding of the fall conclave. An invitation was read from the Pittsfield Rotary club extending a welcome to local members who wish to stop in that place over night while en route to Rutland, Vt. Luncheons will be served and hotel accommodations are available.

Fines of 25 cents were imposed on C. Harry Branch, Charles Pomeroy and James P. Bath for violation, of one of the rules of the club, namely, that of using the prefix "mister" when addressing a fellow member.

A practical joke was played on Harry Standish by Jim Bath, but the latter lost no time in making a suitable return.

Humorous stories were told by Charles Pomeroy and excited much mirth.

Fourteen of the members have already made arrangements to attend the fall conclave in Rutland and President Mustard made an appeal for additional registrations.

The secretary read a letter of congratulation from District Governor George Cooper on the excellent attendance of the local club at the field day held at Storrs in July.

Jim Fullerton, who attended a meeting of the New York Rotary club August 9, told of the contrast between a club of that size and the local club. He said that the spirit of unison and good fellowship which becomes possible at a gathering of a smaller club, is entirely lacking between the members of a larger club. At the meeting which he attended congratulatory remarks were made by the president on the fine attendance which was only 34 per cent. About fifty per cent of those present were strangers coming from clubs in all parts of the country, practically all being unknown to each other. The local meeting was closed in the usual manner at 12.55 o'clock.

Mrs. Joseph Rizy, formerly of Hartford, died Monday morning at New Smyrna, Florida, after a week's illness. She had been residing in Florida for the past five years. Besides her husband she leaves a son, Arthur and a daughter, Elizabeth Rizy, her mother, Mrs. Michael Conway of No. 87 Jackson street, Willimantic; two brothers, John Eagan of this city, James Eagan of Hartford, and three sisters, Mrs. J. C. Gardner of Stanbridge, East Canada, Mrs. Margaret Meran and Mrs. Charlotte Robarge of this city. Burial will take place in Hartford.

The funeral of Dwight E. Lyons was held from his home in North Windham Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Services were conducted by Rev. John H. Knott, and burial was in North Windham cemetery. The bearers were Harry C. Smith, Charles Tucker, Arthur Hibberd, William Sibley, Jr., Joseph Mathews and Warren Keith. There were beautiful floral pieces. Avery & VanZandt were in charge of the arrangements.

The North Windham road from just beyond the Willimantic Country club grounds to the center of the village was closed Tuesday night and will remain closed until Thursday morning, due to the fact that a new bridge is being erected over the railroad tracks at Phelps' crossing. The work is being done by the New Haven railroad and the state highway department jointly. The large 10x12 upright timbers are being put in place by employes of the railroad and the bridge proper is being built by carpenters in the employ of the state highway department.

Cottage owners on the shores of Lake Wangumbaug, South Coventry, are conducting a legal investigation which is extending in three directions —whether the cottage owners will be denied the privilege of bathing in the lake, whether or not the South Coventry Water Supply Company secured its charter in a legal manner and if the state board of health has the right to prohibit bathing in all parts of the lake, as ordered Wednesday of last week.

Dr. William W. O. Keating presided at a large meeting of the owners recently and the history of the Water Supply company was thoroughly gone over. Many doubted the right of the company to furnish drinking water from the lake, according to a law enacted in 1884, since a cemetery is situated within half a mile from the shores. The cottagers are wondering just how the water supply company obtained a special privilege to furnish drinking water in spite of the fact that the century-old Nathan Hale cemetery is but a short distance from the lake. The owners contend that the property on the lake shores is valued at between $450,000 and $500,000 and the prohibiting of bathing will mean a great depreciation in value. As there is a twenty-seven mill tax on the property, the income to the town of Coventry in taxes is greatly increased, besides the benefits derived by the merchants of the village with whom the cottagers trade during the summer season. According to a vote taken, the investigation will be carried on unceasingly. Doctors W. P. S. Keating and W. E. Hendry of this city and Edgar Morgan of Manchester were chosen a committee to go to Hartford and confer with an attorney with a view to having an injunction brought against the South Coventry Water Supply company, if conditions warrant. The committee is receiving the enthusiastic backing of all the cottage owners. An entertainment is being planned by James H. Fitzgerald to be held at Lakeside Casino to raise funds for the investigation.

At present the legal battle at South Coventry involves four different parties—the state board of health, the water supply company, the cottagers and the residents of the village who fear that the water supply may be shut off, should an injunction be secured against the company.

It was learned at the meeting that a prominent stockholder in the company was willing to come to an agreement by allowing bathing at the further end of the lake and some distance away from the intake, but the state board of health rejected this compromise and insisted that bathing must be stopped entirely. It was also pointed out that the chlorinating plant at the intake pipe is but a temporary affair and is not working satisfactorily. The cost of installing a suitable one would amount to a large sum Another meeting is to be held later this week when it is expected that some definite action will be taken.

The third annual shore dinner of the Federation of French Societies will be held at Crystal Lake, Sunday, Aug. 19. Over 75 members with their guests will attend. The committee in charge of the affair includes: H. Dion, Alexis Caisse, Florimond J. Bergeron, Alphonse Chagnon and Joseph Lefebvre. F. J. Bergeron is chairman of the ticket committee.

The state department of the Patriarchs Militant, I. O. O. F., will hold its annual field day at Mamauguin, Sunday, August 26. Lieut.-Col. F. H. Williams of this city is one of the officers of the state council who are arranging for the affair. A large delegation from Canton Windham will attend.

The calendars for the coming year of Anne Wood Elderkin chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, are being distributed. The first meeting is set for September 16.

The union church night services, being held at the Methodist church have been attracting much attention from members of both churches. The next meeting will be held Thursday evening, when Rev. A. S. Muirhead will speak.

John Haran states that in regard to the collision of automobiles which took place Sunday evening at the corner of Mountain and Pleasant streets, between his machine and one owned by Abraham Lerner, of Chestnut Hill, it was his machine which was run into contrary to reports. Haran alleges that he was proceeding at a rate of fifteen miles per hour when the rear of his machine was crashed into by the Lerner car.

NEW ENGLAND CROP OUTLOOK

Reports for the New England crop reporting service as of August 1, show that the outlook for crops is mostly for fair to good yields and high quality.

Most of the main hay crop has been harvested with but little rain damage, and although yields outside southern Maine, northern New Hampshire, and Vermont run slightly under average, the quality and feeding value are excellent. Southern Maine, northern New Hampshire and Vermont have big hay crops.

Prospects for the New England potato crop declined from a forecast, July 1, of 37,640,000 bushels to 36,546,000 bushels, August 1. Last year's short crop was 32,240,000 and the 5 year average 37,576,000. Up to late July, the season in Aroostook, Maine and in Connecticut was unfavorable, but late rains are making rapid improvement in Aroostook's crop. The stand there was early judged quite poor, but later opinion considers it up to average for the county as a whole. Elsewhere in New England the crop is in good condition and promises well.

Reports from the fruit men forecast a commercial apple crop for New England of 1,600,000 barrels against 1,060,000 last year, and the five year average of 1,169,000. July brought a slight decline. In spite of many irregularities, the crop outlook tends to be quite uniform over New England this year. Astrachan and Transparent lead as the favorite summer varieties in all six states, while McIntosh loads in fall apples with Wealthy and Snow as close seconds. Scab in Maine is reported quite prevalent, but on the whole, the outlook is for fruit of good quality. New England's peach crop is mostly quite good, but pears are generally a light crop.

The Connecticut valley crop of set onions is now being harvested, and marketed, and yields run from 200 to 400 bags per acre. Sets have 17 per cent. of the total onion acreage and seed onions 33 per cent. Seed onions are mostly poor, due to unfavorable weather and thrips. Late rains should benefit the crop more or less.

WHEAT AND CORN FEED

Based on digestible nutrients, wheat and corn are practically equal pound for pound, according to officials of the U. S. department of agriculture But corn and corn products alone make a better feed for cattle than wheat and wheat products alone. It is pointed out, too, that it is not necessary to grind corn as a hog feed, while wheat should be coarsely crushed or ground.

With wheat at its present price, it is declared to be a desirable feed for poultry, both as a whole grain in scratch feeds and in ground form mixed with mash. Fed alone, however, it does not give the best results, but should be mixed with corn. Wheat may take the place of corn in rations for dairy cows. It is figured that a bushel of wheat is about equal in feeding value to a bushel of corn, so that in cases where the farm value of corn is only slightly less than that of wheat and where the farmer has surplus wheat but does not have corn it may pay him to feed wheat, since he will save haulage. Wheat for horses should be ground or preferably rolled, and must be mixed with other feeds because of its sticky qualities which are brought about in mastication, and also because it fed alone, it may cause digestive troubles.

WORLD SWINE PRODUCTION SHOWS DECREASE

Numbers of swine in the principal producing countries of the world are estimated at 227,421,000 head by the United States Department of Agriculture, compared with 263,844,000 head for a representative pre-war year. This is a decrease of 36,413,000 head or 14 per cent.

The United States shows the largest increase in production. There were 63,424,000 hogs on farms on January 1, 1923, compared with 58,938,000 hogs on farms on January 1, 1914. Smaller increases are indicated for Argentina and Canada. The number of swine in most of the European countries was less in the recent estimates than during the pre-war period, the department states. Some of the countries showing decreases in numbers are France, Germany and Denmark.

NORTHEAST FOREST STATION.

The Northeastern Forest Experiment Station of the Forest Service, which was provided for by the last congress, began its work on August 1, according to an announcement by the United States Department of Agriculture. R. T. Dana, who was forest commissioner of Maine, is the director of the new station, which will cover in its activities the northeastern forest region, including the New England states and New York.

Amherst, Mass., has been selected as the general headquarters for the staff, so that very close cooperation can be had with the Massachusetts State Agricultural College. The two main forms of land utilization are for agriculture and for forestry, and the location of the headquarters of the Northeastern Forest Experiment Station in cooperation with the state agricultural college is in recognition of the need for close contacts in lines of research which are so closely allied.

TIMBER ON FARM WOODLOTS.

Farm woodlots offer a splendid opportunity for growing timber crops, according to statements from the forest service, United States Department of Agriculture. It is estimated that there are 150,000,000 acres now in farm wood lots which if placed under sound forestry methods would yield substantial revenues to their owners, as well as lumber to help relieve the timber shortage which has already begun to be felt.

WOMEN FAVORITES COME THROUGH MATCHES FOR NATIONAL TITLE

Forest Hills, N. Y., Aug. 14—(By the A. P.)—Favorites came through without upset today in the quest for national women's tennis honors on the turf courts of the West Side Tennis club but two of the eight seeded stars in the singles—Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, the champion, and Mrs. R. C. Clayton, one of the four English entrants—were extended to gain their third round brackets.

Mrs. Mallory, beginning a campaign for her eighth national title, found unexpected opposition from Miss Lillian Scharman, of New York, in the second round, and triumphed only after a sparkling duel by scores of 6-3, 6-4. Mrs. Clayton, who holds the English covered court championship, won her first round match easily, but was forced to top speed to down Mrs. David C. Mills, veteran Orange, N. J., player, in the second round, 7-5, 6-2.

Miss Helen Hooker, Greenwich, Ct., defeated Miss Mary Heaton, Greenwich, Conn., 6-3, 7-5 in the second round of the singles. Miss Hooker and Miss Mayme Macdonald, Seattle, won the first round of the doubles, defeating Mrs. C. Chisholm, New York, and Mrs. Caroma. Winn, Mountain Lakes, N. J., 6-1, 2-6, 6-3.

The brilliant play of Miss Helen Wills, 17-year old Berkeley, Calif., schoolgirl, was another outstanding spot in the second day of championship play. The "wonder girl" from the coast faced perhaps the stiffest test of the day, but triumphed convincingly over two youthful New Jersey stars, eliminating Miss Martha Bayard of Short Hills, 6-1, 6-3, and Miss Ceres Baker, of Orange, 6-0, 6-1.

Miss Bayard, who is the sixth ranking woman player in the country, played aggressively but was consistently outgeneralled and outdriven. She threatened for a time in the second set but with games 3-all, the California girl speeded up to finish the match. Against Miss Baker, who ranks No. 30, Miss Wills was at her best and rushed through two sets without being extended at any time.

Coming on top of her spectacular triumphs in the international series, Miss Wills' performances demonstrated that she has hit the top of her stride. She looms as one of Mrs. Mallory's most dangerous rivals for the crown of women's tennis in this country.

Aside from Mrs. Clayton, none of the British contestants was given much opposition, but they performed in convincing fashion, nevertheless. Miss Kathleen McKane, ranking star of the invading quartet, swept aside Miss Louise Diron of Philadelphia, 6-1, 6-2, in the first round, and put out Mrs. Robert Leroy, of New York, in the second round, 6-1, 6-0.

Mrs. Geraldine Beamish dropped but one game in each of two matches, the first against Miss Eleonora Sears of Boston, and the second against Miss Anna Fuller of Worcester, Mass., while Mrs. Nancy Covell, the other English player, drawing a bye in the first round, raced through two love sets to victory over Miss Gertrude Hopper of Engewood, N. J., in the second round.

The other two American seeded stars, Miss Leslie Bancroft of Boston, and Miss Eleanor Goss of New York also came through decisively. The former, playing but one match, advanced at the expense of Miss Edith Moore of Montclair, N. J., 6-3, 6-3. Miss Goss registered two victories, the first from Miss Penelope Anderson of Richmond, Va., and the second from Mrs. A. F. Riese of Saginaw, Mich., both by scores of 6-2, 6-0.

Mrs Mallory held the upper hand at most stages of her match with Miss Scharman, but the aggressive and hard-hitting young New Yorker frequently caught the champion out of position with well placed drives. In the last set Mrs. Scharman squared the count at four all with a love game but Mrs. Mallory called on her reserve to take the next two games and the match.

Mrs. Clayton was bothered by the forcing tactics of Mrs. Mills in their second round encounter and it was only by a determined rally that the British woman pulled out the last set, a deuce struggle. The American weakened under the swift pace in the last set, however, and after a brief spurt was quickly eliminated.

Miss Mayme Macdonald of Seattle, the national clay court titleholder, also faced a severe test against Mrs. M. B. Huff, Philadelphia star, the western girl triumphing only after three sets, 6-2, 3-6, 6-1.

Completion of second round singles play left sixteen survivors of which four are British players, two from the Pacific coast and ten from the eastern area.

First round doubles play was begun today and all but one of the matches in the initial bracket completed. The match between Miss Goss and Mrs. George W. Wightman of Boston, and Mrs. B. Konkol and Miss M. Richardson, both of New York, was postponed until tomorrow.

Feature matches in the singles tomorrow will bring together Miss Goss and Mrs. Lockhorn, Miss Sigourney and Mrs. Covell, Mrs. Mallory and Miss Macdonald, and Miss Hooker and Mrs. Beamish.

BANCROFT BACK IN GAME AFTER ILLNESS

New York, Aug. 14—The New York Giants returned from a successful road trip today and defeated Brooklyn in a one game series, 2 to 2, Henry pitched well for Brooklyn but was poorly supported, Bancroft scoring one run while Johnston was chasing Frisch back to first on an attempted double steal. Scott was knocked out in the seventh, Bentley stopping a Brooklyn rally with two strike outs. Dave Bancroft, captain of the Giants returned to the New York lineup after an absence of seven weeks and played second base. Score:

CUBS TAKE BOTH ENDS OF TWIN BILL FROM BRAVES

Boston, Aug. 14—Chicago took two games from Boston today; 6 to 1, and 5 to 4. The batting of Adams, who made a homer in each game, scoring Statz ahead of him each time, and the general play of the latter were features. Statz knocked out a triple in the seventh and this, followed by Adams' home run to right center, gave Chicago the tieing and winning runs in the second game. The scores:

PHILLIES OUTSLUG PIRATES IN WEIRD GAME

Philadelphia, Aug. 14—Philadelphia took a slugging match from Pittsburgh today 16 to 10 after the lead had see-sawed throughout the contest.

Seven runs in the eighth gave the locals the game after Pittsburgh had battered Couch for five runs in their half of the inning tying the score.

Traynor and Lee divided batting honors, the former having two doubles, a triple and single while Lee hit a home run and two doubles. The score:

HOLLYROOD LEONARD WINS RICH STAKE AT TOLEDO

Miami Park, Toledo, Ohio, Aug. 14. (By the A. P.)—The fourteenth renewal of the Matron stake, value $7380 for three-year-old trotters was won here this afternoon by Hollyrood Leonard, driven by Tallman, owned by Charles W. Leonard, of Boston, Mass. Hollyrood Leonard finished sixth in the first heat which was won by Thompson Dillon. The Senator, owned by Thomas Taggert, of French Lick, Ind., was second in each heat.

The pace in the first heat in which he broke killed off Thomson Dillon and Hollyrood Leonard coming fast outraced the Senator and Thompson Dillon in the stretch on the second mile. The final heat was easy for the Beaumont farm colt. McDonald made a terrific stretch drive with The Senator but Hollyrood Leonard, after leading to the three-quarter mark had enough left to stave off the challenge.

The 2.06 pace went four heats before a decision was reached. It also developed the day's betting feature, Russell Ongale, winner of the first heat, rewarding his few backers with $71 for $3 in the Mutuels. Robert Direct, the favorite, broke in the first heat but took the second without trouble, Russell Ongale being second. The third went to Frisco June and so did the fourth in which only the heat winners met. The best heat of the race was 2.03 1-4.

Gold King won the 2.18 trot, taking the first and third heats, the second going to the favorite, Lady Blondeau. This race was sensational because of the accidents in the first heat. Before the start Bemore, driven by Lon McDonald, tripped, throwing his driver and smashing the sulky. Near the finish of the same heat, Lady Bondsman fell, throwing Driver Dick McMahon under the feet of Bemore, which hurdled him and then threw McDonald into the fence. Both sulkies were smashed but neither driver was hurt. McDonald, however, refused to drive Bemore the next two heats. Harry Gray finished the race back of Bemore.

Walter McGregor took the 2.10 pace by winning all three heats.

REDS WIN LOOSE GAME AT GLOVERSVILLE

Gloversville, N. Y., Aug. 14.—In a loosely played game here today, the Cincinnati Reds defeated the Gloversville Elks, 10 to 4. Burns and Sammy Bohne secured a home run each. Bohne's home run hit was over the right field fence, with two on bases while Burns clouted his over the fence in left garden, with the bases empty. Forbes and Kratsch made spectacular catches for the Elks, the former nailing Fonseca's long fly one-handed just before it hit the right field fence. Kratsch made a running catch of Bohne's long hit to left. Score:

FIRPO SECRETLY TRAINING FOR COMING BOUT WITH JACK DEMPSEY

New York, Aug. 14—(By the A. P.)—Luis Angel Firpo, the Argentine medicine man who aspires to the heavyweight pugilistic title, came into New York today to attend to "business affairs". He said he would leave again tomorrow for Indianapolis to fight Joe Downey Friday night.

Luis, as ever, was sphinxlike, answering all questions with a stony stare. Once he deigned to shrug his shoulders in a "that-wasn't-much-of-a-task" manner when his victory over Charley Weinert at Philadelphia last night was mentioned. He wouldn't discuss Jack Dempsey. He didn't know there was such a person as Enrique Tirabocchi in the Argentine Republic, and thought the English channel must be a duck pond if two men could swim it within a week.

The South American is an artful fellow, he takes great delight in doing a lot of work and letting people believe he is a loafer. He hadn't been in town two hours before he was working like a trojan in a tiny gymnasium hidden away from curious, prying experts and such. This Buenos Aires drug clerk turned pugilist has ideas of his own and intends to carry them out. He wants the heavyweight title and realizes that to get it he will have to do some tall working and some better thinking, and perhaps, a little fighting.

He doesn't understand English and gets mad when ear quoted by a lot of curious men talking in a foreign tongue. So he does it concentrate. He says he must be alone, or with people who speak his own language. So he may do a lot of his straining for Dempsey behind closed doors, as it were.

Firpo has never seen Joe Downey, but he knows all about him, and he let it be known that he wasn't worried any about Friday night. Yet Luis is anxious to get to Indianapolis. He has purchased a motor car and it awaits him there. He wants to see it, with its shining trimmings and the heads of wild bulls painted on each of the foredoors.

It's the very first thing with a motor in it that he ever owned and he wants to get a look. He would drive it back, he said, only he didn't want to take any unnecessary risks of injuring himself before the fight with Dempsey on September 14.

From Indianapolis Firpo will hurry back to New York to meet Horatio Lavelle, the Argentine sportsman who is due to arrive Monday to take charge of the challenger during his training grind. Until Lavelle comes Firpo will not make any training plans.

WILLOW STREET PLANT TRIMS TAFTVILLE FORCE

Baseball enthusiasts were given a real treat Tuesday evening when one of the large crowds of the season witnessed the game between the Foremen-Office team of the Willow street plant of the J. B. Martin Co. and a team made up from the same departments of the Taftville plant in which the former were returned victors 10 to 6. Practically every player on both teams were either a former high school or college player and while a trifle out of form at the start of the game they showed more of their old time form as the game progressed.

This was the first of a series of three games and all honors in the first conflict go to the Willow street boys. The only redeeming feature of the Taftville team was the home run clout by Adams in the 4th inning with the scored tied at 5 all. Blackledge, a former N. F. A. pitcher hurled a fine game and was cleverly supported by Hussey, a former Beichertown star. Bill Elliott, the idol of Gales Ferry, pulled a couple of Ty Cobbs on the base paths. A double play by Lund and McGlone was also a contribution to the fielding sensations. The lineups were:

AMERICAN YACHTS WIN FINAL HEAT FROM BRITISH

Ryde, Aug. 14.—(By the A. P.)—Sailing in light airs, the American six-meter yachts with this year's contest for the British-American cup lost to them because of the great number of points England scored in the earlier heats, won the fifth heat in the series today, scoring 26 points to England's 9. This makes the aggregate points 105 for England and 74 for America.

There were only the lightest airs from the westward when today's heat was started. The British team had the better of the start, getting the three boats over the line, the American Crack Lea being the last to cross.

It was a beat almost right around the course, and the American team did splendidly, all four being ahead of the British quartet for the first time in the contest. At the end of the first circuit the order was Lea, Clytie, Ingomar and Hawk, America; and Suzette, Coila III, Capelie and Reg, England. The Lea was flying a protest flag at the end of the round, and the Capelle soon afterwards gave up.

The British Clytie got ahead on the second round and finished first, the order being Clytie, Lea, Hawk and Ingomar, America; Suzette, Coila III and Reg, England.

EAST SIDE HAS TAKEN UP BARNYARD GOLF

Since the baseball series on the East Side has passed into history there has been lack of twilight diversion among the young bloods of that highly active community. Youth must be amused no matter what the form of entertainment or what the cost. So the East Siders have taken up that highly interesting and exciting game of "Barnyard golf," otherwise known to our forefathers as horse-shoe pitching. Horse-shoe pitching is not by any means an easy game but it is really scientific, in fact, so scientific that national tournaments are held at St. Petersburg, Fla., every winter. Speaking of national honors it is not probable that any of the East Siders will enter the tournament next winter but the boys are getting a whole lot of fun out of it.

Last evening one of the most exciting matches was played between Jimmy Pedace and "Whacko" Riley against Berger Goldbery and Charley Risley in the second round of the play for the East Side title. With the score 44 and 45 "Whacko" teased in the winning range.

MARX, PUGILIST, IS DESERTER FROM MARINES

New York, Aug. 14—Dave Brown, manager of Sid Marx, who fought in the squared circle unde rthe colors of the United States Marine corps, announced tonight that unknown to him Sid had deserted from the corps about ten days ago, and that as a result he was now in the custody of marine officers. Brown said Marx was scheduled to fight in Chester, Pa., on August 20, but that as soon as the bout was announced he received word from Washington that his protege was wanted for desertion. He immediately resigned his position as manager, he said.

YACHT RACES ON GREAT LAKES FULL OF RIVALRY

Chicago, Aug. 14 (By the A. P.).—A rivalry of years standing will be opened here when the yacht Rogue, champion of her class in Boston waters, and Ariel, New York class champion, both new to Great Lakes waters this year, will meet again in the Sir Thomas Lipton cup races scheduled for Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Designed and sailed by Francis Adams, who also sailed the yacht Defender, the Rogue won the championship of the Marblehead Yacht club in 1917-18-19-21-22. The only year she failed to take the honors was in 1920, when Ariel, champion of New York, entered and won the race.

Ariel, formerly owned by Addison Hannon, wealthy shoe manufacturer, was considered one of the fleetest yachts of her class in eastern waters when sailed under the New York Y. C. colors. Since being brought west by Ogden T. McClurg, she has shown exceptional ability in the fast fleet of boats here.

Besides these two entries, three winners of the Lipton cup in former years will be entered—Gossoon, Yank and Sari.

The Lipton cup was given to the Columbia Yacht club by Sir Thomas Lipton, famous English yachtsman. Since 1902, Chicago boats have captured the cup in every race except three, Detroit entries winning in 1904 and 1905 and Cleveland in 1917. The cup in 1917 was turned over to the Chicago Yacht club, under whose direction this year's races are being held.

LEFLER'S HITTING GIVES WORCESTER VICTORY IN 11TH

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 14—Lefler's hitting gave Worcester a six to four eleven-inning victory over Springfield today. His home run in the eighth his double in the ninth and his single in the eleventh all figured in the scoring. Stryker pitched great ball for eight innings, allowing but two hits, but weakened and the Ponie tied the score in the ninth. Score by innings:

	R.	H.	E.

CONFERENCE OF BOXING AUTHORITIES THIS FALL

Trenton, N. J., Aug. 14.—State Comptroller Bugbee, in charge of boxing, plans to summon boxing authorities of eastern states to a conference in Newark this fall regarding the general welfare of the sport.

Referring to the probability of a match between Benny Leonard and Mickey Walker in Newark, the comptroller said he would not permit the bout until the lightweight champion made his peace with Tex Rickard in a match arranged by the promoter. The comptroller said he intended to impress upon boxers the importance of contracts.

CANAVAN HOLDS HILLIES TO EIGHT HITS AND ONE RUN

Pittsfield, Mass., Aug. 14—Hartford defeated Pittsfield 5 to 1, this afternoon. Canavan was strong with men on bases and ten of the locals were stranded on the paths. An error by Gardella paved the way for Hartford's first two runs. Five hits and a pass gave the victors three runs in the sixth. Score by innings:

	R.	H.	E.

TWO SURPRISES IN NEWPORT TENNIS PLAY

Casino Courts, Newport, R. I., Aug. 14.—Two surprises cropped up in the second day's play in the men's invitation singles on the Casino courts today—the defeat of Watson Washburn, tenth in the United States ranking last year, by Wallace J. Bates, Pacific Coast college star, and the decisive victory of Arnold W. Jones, of Providence, over Manuel Alonso, former Spanish Davis cup team member who has to his credit one victory over William Tilden this year. Both of the winners captured their matches in straight sets, Bates winning 6-4, 8-4, and Jones 6-3, 6-4.

BRIDGEPORT BEATS BRASSCOS FOR THE THIRD TIME

Bridgeport, Aug. 14.—Bridgeport won its seventh straight game and its third in a row from Waterbury 10 to 2 here this afternoon. Both Hall and Tomlinson were easy for the Americans while Abrams was effective with men on bases. The hitting of Woods and King featured.

Score by innings: R. H. E.

Senators Lose Exhibition.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 14.—The Martinsburg team of the Blue Ridge League today defeated the Washington Americans in an exhibition game 12 to 5. The locals piled up their lead early by hard hitting against Potter and Mitchell.

Sterling Beats East Greenwich.

With Turner of Rhode Island State College pitching masterly ball and allowing only seven scattered hits, Sterling shut out East Greenwich 5 to 0 at Sterling Sunday. Good solid hitting in the first and fourth innings with Kelly and Fichte leading the attack. Next Sunday the Anthony A. A. team will be the attraction, with Mackie of the Industrial League of Providence pitching and Francis catching. The battery for Anthony will be McElroy and Howard.

Marshall Takes Lead.

Lake Hopatcong, N. J., Aug. 14.—United States Champion Marshall forged into the lead in the eighth round of the masters' tournament of the ninth American chess congress today. The exact position of several of the other leaders remained in abeyance in consequence of two games that were adjourned between Kupchik, New York, and Janowski, Paris, and Lasker, Chicago, and Schapiro, New York. Chajes of New York moved up into third place.

Hardigs vs. Atlantics

The Harddigs baseball team clashes with the Atlantics at the Fairground Wednesday night. If the Hardigs win tomorrow they will be tied for fourth place with the East Ends.

The Hardigs will lineup as follows: Tombari c, Segal p, Donegan 1st, Dungan 2nd, Rankin ss, Burbrick 3d, Kamos lf, Peterson cf, Heebner rf, S. Tombari, Fitzgerald and McCloskey will be the utility men.

The Hardigs have lost two of their star players, Lynch and Mack who have gone back to Monson, Mass.

WHERE DO THE IMMIGRANTS GO.

Announcement in the New York press that many of the immigrants now entering the United States are making hasty departure for the farms and cities of the Northwest renewes interest in the question as to the sections of the country which are to receive the greatly diminished supply of immigrants now being admitted to the country. The records of the movements of the new arrivals indicate that former occupation and climatic conditions still control the immigrant in determining his future abiding place in the United States.

This is particularly noticeable in the movements of the new arrivals from northern Europe, a large percentage of the Scandinavian arrivals in the opening month of the new fiscal year have already departed for the upper Mississippi valley, notably the farms and cities of Minnesota, the Dakotas, Wisconsin and Illinois. With those from the countries of central and southern Europe the opportunities in the factories and mines of the north atlantic frontage are more attractive and the bulk of the small additions to our population made under the law which limits the number of each nationality permitted to enter will find homes in the area bounded by the Potomac and Ohio on the south and Rocky Mountains on the west.

This distribution of the new arrivals follows the custom of earlier years. Compilations by the Trade Record of The National City Bank of New York show that of the 14,000,000 persons of foreign birth now living in the United States, about 5,000,000 are residents of the upper Mississippi valley, 5,000,000 in the Middle Atlantic States, 2,000,000 in New England, about 1,000,000 in the south, and approximately a half million on the Pacific coast.

It is in this detailed study of the final distribution of the immigrants arriving in earlier years says the Trade Record, that the disposition of the home seeker to select climatic conditions and occupational opportunity similar to those of his former home becomes apparent, and this is sharply illustrated by the announcement in the press of New York that the bulk of the Scandinavian arrivals of the new fiscal year have already taken their departure for the farms and cities of the Upper Mississippi Valley, especially to the states of Minnesota, the Dakotas, Wisconsin and Illinois.

The last census of the United States shows the distribution by states of the 14,000,000 persons of foreign birth which still remain out of the total of more than 30,000,000 of arrivals since 1830. Of the more than 1,000,000 Scandinavians in the country in 1930 220,000 were in the state of Minnesota, nearly 100,000 in the Dakotas, 90,000 in Wisconsin 150,000 in Illinois and 60,000 in Iowa, while the great manufacturing state of New York retained less than 100,000 of the more than a million entering through its doors. The Germans, while seeking climatic conditions similar to those of their own country, are less devoted to agriculture than their Scandinavian neighbors, and of the 1,686

THE CURZON NOTE.

Lord Curzon's note addressed in behalf of the British government to the governments of France and Belgium is not indeed the final break but brings out more clearly than ever the extent of the rift in allied relations. Coupled with polite phrases and assurances of esteem are plain expressions of opinion that cannot be misunderstood either in Paris or Brussels. In addition there are certain indications of policy that practically constitute veiled threats.

The latest note has already been answered by M. Poincare's vehement protestations that France will not recede from her claims, that she will not relax her grip on the Ruhr, and that the reparations issue, if settled at all, must be settled according to her judgment of what is just. From the French point of view the publication just now of the British note must necessarily be irritating because it is plainly calculated to encourage Germany to continue passive resistance to the limit of its power to hold out. Hitherto there has been little apparent ground for the French contention that passive resistance was due to British support, but at least some measure of moral support for Germany on this particular issue is unquestionably to be found in the British note to France and Belgium.

It should be noted that the French position receives the almost undivided support of the French press, while the position of the British government does not receive corresponding support in the British press. There is in Great Britain a considerable body of opinion which believes that the maintenance of the entente is paramount to every other consideration. The Tory Morning Post holds that it may be difficult to agree with France, but adds that it would be "suicidal to part from her." The Daily Mail, after repeating its condemnation of the British debt settlement negotiated by Mr. Baldwin with the United States, declares that the government "are backing Germany while the nation backs France." Expressions such as these cannot fail to stiffen the resolution of the French government to persist in its present course, even when Lord Curzon insists that such a policy must result in disaster and threatens that in the event of its further prosecution the British government will press France for the payment of her obligations to Great Britain.

Great Britain, rightly or wrongly, has evidently come close to the parting of the ways with Belgium and France. It requires no prophetic vision to conclude that the present situation, if allowed to continue unrelieved, is pregnant with danger of increasing trouble.

ROQUE WEEK.

For more than 40 years past Norwich has annually in August extended a welcome to the participants in the national roque tournament. Their coming has always been anticipated with pleasure and has been prepared for with interest by city organizations and by individual citizens, who have enjoyed the delightful personal associations with our out-of-town guests who this week are again meeting in their tests of skill with mallet and ball upon the Rockwell street grounds. In the week of outdoor activity around the sanded courts there has been a mutuality of goodfellowship that has resulted in the formation of many enduring friendships and our visitors have departed at the end of the tournament with the kindliest recollections of their brief stay in Norwich and the determination that they would come again.

Developments that have brought the game from the haphazard play of old-fashioned croquet to the complex skill of modern roque have been worked out on the Norwich courts and in numerous cases those who have received a baptism of enthusiasm here have gone forth to carry the game to other parts of the country. If a waning of local interest to furnish contestants has been apparent here in the last few years, the game has been taken up with new vigor in places where it has been introduced, sometimes because of the Norwich tournaments, and it may be said that scientific roque is played now more than it ever was before.

If the tournament is now to go elsewhere it will be with regret on the part of Norwich citizens, and doubtless on the part of a number of the players. They can be sure there will be a welcome awaiting them at any time they want to return.

GERMANY CHANGES LEADERS.

Changes in policy may naturally be expected in Germany with the change of chancellors from Cuno to Dr. Stresemann. Just how far the new chancellor will meet this expectation remains to be seen.

It is being said that Chancellor Cuno was overthrown because of domestic issues. That may be true, but he should look back to the source of his trouble in his handling of foreign affairs. The departed chancellor took office with the declared intention of reforming his country's internal affairs, while continuing his unyielding attitude toward France and the allies in the payment of reparations. This uncompromising foreign policy brought on the occupation of the Ruhr, an issue which he tried to meet by fantastic methods of juggling finances. He backed passive resistance to France and tried to defeat Poincare's purpose by reducing Germany's currency to pulp.

In his experiment he has been careful at all times to protect the industrialists, but the net result has been that the German middle class and certain divisions of labor have had to pay. Such a result aroused the active hostility of the moderate socialists who would not back the industrial magnates against the working people, willing as they are to support measures aimed at Poincare. They held the balance of power in the reichstag and when they swung over to the opposition, they threw Cuno out.

Dr. Stresemann, the new chancellor, is an able man. He is head of the people's party. As such he owes quite as much to the Stinnes group as did Cuno. But Stresemann has certain advantages not enjoyed by Cuno. He starts out with the support of the moderate socialists, which Cuno never had. He is also intelligent enough to know that the domestic troubles of Germany cannot be removed until there is a settlement of the reparations problem. His tenure of office will depend upon his willingness to compromise with France as well as with the socialists. If he attempts to carry on the Cuno foreign policy, none of his compromises on domestic questions will help him or contribute to a real solution of Germany's difficulties.

NORMAL SCHOOL BEGINNINGS.

The little town of Concord, Vt., is holding a two-day pageant of education and unveiling a monument in memory of the establishment of the first normal school in America one hundred years ago. There has been a wonderful development in the field of pedagogy since then.

The Congregational minister who was in a sense the father of normal instruction in this country was the Rev. Dr. Samuel Reed Hall, born in 1795, who had been a pastor in Fitchburg, Mass., and principal of the Fitchburg Academy. He went to Concord, Vt., as a "missionary" and there established his "School for the Training of Teachers," in 1823. His scholarship was of a high type. In 1829 he became a teacher in Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass. In 1837 he established a Teachers seminary at Plymouth, N. H. His last work was at Craftsbury, Vt., where he died in 1877.

The idea of teaching teachers how to teach was a new one here one hundred years ago, but Dr. Hall was abreast of his times for France and Germany were building up normal school systems at about the same period. Up to then the average teacher was a graduate of the same district school in which he became teacher. He had learned there all that the school was supposed to supply and it had not occurred to anyone to raise the question whether he could pass it on. Now the science of pedagogy has shown us that the matter and the manner of teaching must be linked for fullest efficiency, and normal school systems are an essential part of the state's educational programme. The Vermont milestone honors the beginning of a most important development.

FROM LUCILE'S DIARY

"Lucile, said mother late yesterday afternoon when I came in from the north shore. "Walter Paul called you over and over again today. He couldn't understand not hearing from you. Did you have an engagement with him?"

"Just for lunch," I answered. "Nothing so wildly important that he need agitate you about mother."

"You should have let him know that you were going to do something else. I'm afraid he is really vexed."

"I don't care if he is. Just because I'm engaged to him I don't have to be at his beck and call, do I?"

"An engagement doesn't seem to mean what it used to when I was a girl," sighed mother. "I should think you'd wish to be with him."

"Well, I do to a reasonable amount. But he has no right to try to absorb all my time." I answered, and then Tilly came to tell me that Mr. Paul wished to speak to me on the telephone.

"Why didn't you meet me as agreed for lunch, Lucile?" he asked rather peevishly I thought.

"Oh, it was too bad about that." I replied pleasantly. "You see I got into a mixup and I couldn't very well telephone you. I'm sorry if you wasted much time waiting for me."

"Of course I waited for you—a long time. What sort of a mixup was it, Lucile, that kept you from your appointment with me?"

"Dear me, Walter, I won't bother you with a lot of tiresome details about committee work in the Dix Amies. I got miles away from a phone. I was way out in the country near Waukegan looking up a charity case. "I thought it unnecessary to explain that George Requier had called me early in the morning to ask me to drive out to Highland Park to see a sick client. I thought it would be a good opportunity to call on a woman up on the north shore whom the Dix Amies are trying to help. As it turned out we didn't have time to go to her house.

"Well, I'll be over this evening, Lucile, said Walter.

"Walter, Burling Preston will be here."

"You hadn't better come to-night.

"Indeed?" Walter's tone was cold. "How about tomorrow night, then?"

"Now isn't that a shame? I'm going to the theatre with Hal Bentley."

Perhaps, then, you may be able to see me on Sunday. Of course, I don't wish to interfere with any of your plans."

"Don't be sarcastic, Walter. It's most unnatural to you and unbecoming. As it happens an old army friend is coming here from Atlanta to see me on Sunday. When dad and I were in Atlanta some weeks ago, Maj. Latewood and I renewed our A. E. F. acquaintance. Of course, if you'd like to meet him I'd be glad to have you drop in on Sunday evening. We shall be out in the afternoon. He is awfully fond of music and we are going to a concert."

"Your time appears to be quite thoroughly occupied," he remarked as he hung up.

This morning early I received a special delivery note from him. He has given me an opportunity to release him from our engagement, and I shall certainly do it. He says that he feels that I am too much taken up with other people to care deeply for him, and he says that I had not been quite frank with him about my day on the north shore yesterday. He happened to meet George Requier at the club where he was writing me, and George must have said something that disclosed the fact that he had taken me to Highland Park. He spoke of my Dix Amies excursion with George in a way that I know he meant to be very dignified, but while I think silly.

I am more and more impressed with my wisdom in insisting upon keeping the engagement secret, though it was rather hard not to wear the stunning ring Walter had made for me. I had intended to burst upon the next meeting of the Dix Amies with it upon my finger. I am tempted to wear it to one meeting anyway.

"The idea of wearing it is simply shocking, Lucile. You must return it at once," admonished my poor mother, who is dreadfully old-fashioned and conventional. She annoyed me this morning by saying that I have not treated Walter right. Fortunately my morale is so high that I can bear her criticisms bravely. Indeed I have no regrets, except a few for the ring, of course. I liked Walter much better as a suitor than as an engaged man. I am sure we shall soon be good friends again.—Exchange.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Slow Laurel Hill Work.

Mr. Editor: As a subscriber to your paper may I inquire about the Laurel Hill Avenue road work? I would like to know if this is a contract state job or are the city taxpayers supposed to pay for it?

When the work was first commenced it was stated at least one-half the new concrete would be ready for use by July 1st. It is six weeks now since then and at the rate the work is being done it will be Dec. 1 before the street is open; for not even one-half the street is finished as far as Walnut street. If the taxpayers are to pay for it why is there such unnecessary delay and expense?

ONE OF THE SUFFERERS.
Norwich, Aug. 14, 1923.

The Norwich Naval Reserve.

Mr. Editor: The naval reserve in Norwich is depending a great deal upon a popular support and we believe that only by the generous cooperation of influential citizens, can we make the naval reserve of Norwich a success.

If every person that is sincerely interested in Norwich could be reached and would use his or her influence to further our organization, we would soon be recorded in the navy department as a live city.

I am sure that very few persons in Norwich realize the fight we are making to make good with this new organization.

The facts are as follows:

We are holding meetings every Wednesday evening at the Central fire station.

We have the privilege of using the drill hall in the armory for drills, but we have no rooms in the armory.

We need about twenty more men to enable us to have a vessel detailed to Norwich as a permanent assignment.

It is quite possible that the present naval reserves in this state will be allowed to enroll in the naval militia when same is authorized.

This is a fact that Norwich and New London county should be interested in.

If Connecticut is to have a naval militia, then by all means the Thames river has a real claim to representation. Only four cities in the state can float an Eagle boat—Bridgeport, New Haven, New London and Norwich. What do the people of Norwich think of that. Do they feel that they have a real claim to a naval reserve unit, or are they disinterested?

Norwich and New London belong to the same unit. It is up to the people of Norwich, not only the younger men, but also the older men, which means the chamber of commerce, Rotary club, etc., who can by their influence encourage or discourage the movement. I regret to state that we have not, up to the present, heard one official word from either bodies, encouraging or discouraging. What do our national leaders think of the reserve? What does our governor think? The review of the reserve fleet in New York is one answer. From a national viewpoint the naval reserve is an important organization, second to no other. The naval reserve is a man's organization, and manly men will enroll in it, and only men that are gentlemen are desired. For the benefit of those who firmly believe that it is a badge of weakness to be classed as a gentleman, it might be enlightening to learn that some of the most surprising physical shocks have been delivered to many a would-be rough man by that same quiet inconspicuous chap, the gentleman.

We have only this summer to complete our organization, and that means fast work. Ex-service men can be reenrolled in their old ratings for the present, and we want all of these men that we can get. New men can also enroll, and they, too, will receive a hearty welcome. Every man is supplied with a thirty dollar outfit of clothing free each enrollment. No man is compelled to drill or make any active duty cruise. There is only one compulsory fact, and that is, he must report for duty in event of war or national emergency, as may be proclaimed by the president of the United States, in the meantime, keeping his commanding officer informed of his correct address.

He remains a member of the naval reserve in any state in the Union. Where is the real man that is afraid to assume these responsibilities—simply to serve his country in time of war? The reserves intend to promote social activities in the near future, which in itself will mean many a pleasant evening.

We hope to have the sub chaser No. 271 in Norwich during the latter part of this month for about two weeks to be used for week-end cruises and recruiting, etc. We have heard an unconfirmed rumor that the reserves are again to man the ship that will take the American athletes to France for the Olympic games. Some of the Norwich reserves are commencing to prick up their ears. One would think that they wanted to be in on it—maybe they do—maybe they will be—time alone will tell.

However we want to keep Norwich on the map, that is, on the navy map, and as our boys made an excellent impression during their cruise, we want to maintain it. The only trouble with Norwich boys in the navy is, that we haven't enough of them. Our boys' ambition is to have a ship of their own, and if we are not mistaken, it will be one of the most efficient. The question is, will Norwich, as a city and a population, support them?

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

The congratulations of the baseball world will go out today to Charles A. Comiskey, "The Old Roman," as he is called, owner of the Chicago American league club, on the occasion of his sixty-fifth birthday anniversary. For years Mr. Comiskey has been one of the big figures in baseball, and one of the best liked men ever identified with the national game. He has risen from bat boy to team manager and club owner. Baseball has been his life's work. He started his professional career in 1882 at Dubuque; became captain and manager of the St. Louis Browns in 1884 and won the championship with them in 1885. In 1892 he became manager of the Cincinnati club. Three years later he became a club owner, taking over the St. Paul club of the Western league. When the American league came into being five years later he transferred his St. Paul outfit to Chicago, where he has been ever since. There he has seen his team win five league pennants and two world's championships.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE ADDRESS RECALLED

A man of admitted reticence and modesty, the writings and published utterances of President Calvin Coolidge are few.

As Governor of Massachusetts he delivered a forty-word inaugural address. As Vice President he made few speeches.

One important public address, that before The National Geographic Society last February, he prepared carefully and revised for publication in the National Geographic Magazine under the title, "Massachusetts: Its Position in the Life of the Nation."

After summing up significant events fo the colonial period he continued:

"The contribution which Massachusetts has made has been on the side of practical affairs. It has been a demonstration of the method through which the power of intelligence and wealth are to be dedicated to the public service. Always the end in view has been the welfare of the people.

"In this there has been no class distinction. Properly and truly her designation has been 'The Commonwealth'.

"This principle has been applied educationally, industrially and humanely. It has given not only cultural training, but professional, technical, agricultural, and trade schools; it has used the wealth created in dustry not merely to heap up treasure for the few, but to provide safe and healthful conditions of employment and reasonable wages, through a Board of Conciliation and Arbitration, for the many.

"It has set up a public tribunal guaranteeing to the people the uttermost service that public utilities can render under the compensation which they are to receive.

"It has adopted preventive measures and ministered to those suffering from disease of the body or of the mind, restoring the deficient, reforming the criminal.

"It has reached out beyond all of these calls at home to minister in the missionary field of all the world. Faith, hope and charity have been translated into good works.

"While there has come to the sons of the Puritans that progress which results from science and great material resources, their supreme choice is still made in favor of a greater power.

"The Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts, which enjoys a reputation for sound opinions and which makes its decisions more often cited than those of any other court save the Supreme Court of the United States, recently announced the faith that is dominant still.

"'Mere intellectual power,' the decision runs, 'and scientific achievement without uprightness of character may be more harmful than ignorance. Highly trained intelligence, combined with disregard of fundamental virtues, is a menace.'

"They do not suppose that all virtue landed at Plymouth Rock, that all patriotism defended Bunker Hill. From every people and from every faith there have come Puritans. Every town and countryside has bred devoted patriots.

"The word of Massachusetts has never been used to utter a narrow and provincial view. Her ideal was correctly voiced by one of her greatest sons, Benjamin Franklin, when he exclaimed, 'Above all, Washington has a sense of the oneness of America. Massachusetts and Georgia are as dear to him as Virginia!'

"It is because Plymouth Rock, Bunker Hill, John Adams and Daniel Webster represent the nation that they glorify their state. In that faith Massachusetts still lives."

Equipped with canoelike boots he invented himself, an Englishman will attempt to cross the English channel.

"There's a whole lot more to driving besides simply shifting gears and steering. The biggest part of the job is to keep your head no matter what looms up in front of you. Poor brakes cause a good many accidents—and so do poor nerves."
(The Veteran Motorist.)

Says the Veteran Motorist:

I WISH I could paint some big signs along every motor highway and byway. They would all be alike—just five words. But I'm convinced that those five words would save many a mishap and many a doctor's bill. Here they are: LOOK WELL TO YOUR BRAKES.

"The least every motorist can do, for his own protection and the safety of others, is to be absolutely sure that the brakes are 100% O. K. Many a chap has started out for a spin and come back via the tow-line, sadder and wiser, because his brakes 'didn't work.'

"He thought they were good enough. But when a real test came on a steep hill, with a blind cross-road at the bottom, they didn't measure up. And it happens every day—to somebody. Look well to your brakes!"

Suffered Breakdown After Husband's Death

Was In a Serious Condition Until She Began Taking Wincarnis

"During my husband's illness I had practically worn myself out through work and worry, and so when he passed away, I had almost reached a state of collapse. I would feel so exhausted that it was all I could do to get about, and yet when night came I could get no sleep. I was fearfully nervous—the least little thing would make me jump.

I read one day about Wincarnis and decided to try it, and it certainly has done wonders for me. I began to improve wonderfully and by the time I had taken the first bottle my appetite had come back, I was free from nervous and was getting some sleep at night. I have taken only a few bottles and now I am entirely well, my insomnia is gone and I really feel like a new woman."

CONFESSED THE SLAYING OF HIS WIFE AND HER MOTHER

Medford, Mass., Aug. 14.—Two wooden boxes, each containing the dismembered body of a woman, were found in a field here early today. Shortly afterward Nunzio G. Tsekos, of Franklin, New Hampshire, was arrested as he was running through Medford square and the police said he confessed that he had killed his wife Natalie and her mother, Mrs. Katherine Adams. A formal plea of not guilty to a charge of murder was entered for him in the Malden district court later in the day and he was held without bail for the New Hampshire authorities.

A quarrel over money matters which resulted in a fight in which his wife and mother-in-law took the initiative led to the killing of the two women with a bat and a knife in their home in Franklin last Saturday night, according to an alleged confession by Tsekos to the Medford police. He told the officers that he took his two children to Boston on Sunday, then returned to Franklin, cut up the two bodies and put them in the boxes. Yesterday he hired Charles A. Clarke, a taxi driver, to take him to Boston with the boxes, which he said contained clothes.

Clarke became suspicious and discovered what he thought was blood on one of the boxes. The car was stopped in Medford and while Tsekos was taking the boxes to a field Clarke notified the police.

Examination of the boxes revealed the bodies, hacked to pieces and each bearing stab wounds. They were turned over to the medical examiner. After Tsekos' arrest the Franklin authorities were notified and officers started from there for this city.

The two children were found today in the home of Tsekos' sister in Boston.

The Franklin police upon examining Tsekos' house found no traces of a struggle and no bloodstains. This led to the suggestion that the murders might have been committed elsewhere, but nothing to support this theory had been discovered tonight.

Tsekos, an Albanian by birth, at one time conducted a fruit store in Medford. Recently he has been working in a paper mill in Franklin.
